KING'S DECISION DUE TOMORROW ON WHETHER TO GIVE UP THRONE FOR BRIDE OR TO FIGHT FOR BOTH

20 KILLED IN LATEST AIR RAID ON MADRID

Fascists Again Bomb Arguilles District Near U. S. Embassy, Setting Fire to Hospital—Two Attacking Planes Shot Down.

REBEL GUNS SHELL TELEPHONE BUILDING

Loyalist Flyers Also Active — Government Reports Dropping of Explosives on Concentration Centers and Airdromes.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Dec. 5.—At least 20 persons were killed today in a Fascist air raid, apparently directed against the Arguilles district, half a mile from the United States Embassy, which was evacuated Thanksgiving day.

One bomb struck a house in Glorieta de Quevedo, near the embassy, burying its inhabitants in the debris. Another hit the San Jose Hospital for incurable cases, starting a fire that spread rapidly. Others demolished houses in the workers' district, Cuatro Caminos, and in the Rosales area near the model prison.

Bombs also exploded in Zurbano street, near the American embassy, and in Bravo Murillo, Eloy Gonzalo, Donoso Cortes, and Gusmaniel Bueno streets, in the heart of the city.

Two Raiders Shot Shown.

Two of the ten raiding planes were shot down by Government flyers who took off as soon as the Fascist bombers were sighted.

While rescuers were digging into the wreckage made by the bombs, Fascist artillery opened fire on the American-owned telephone building, reported to be the strongest building in the capital, in which hundreds of refugees are being cared for.

Shrapnel struck the north facade of the building. Those within could see plainly the flashes and smoke from the rebel guns.

The air raid was the second in two days. Thirty Fascist planes bombed the Arguilles section yesterday, destroying 19 buildings and killing many persons.

Loyalists Also Bomb.

The defense Junta announced its own planes had successfully bombed enemy concentrations and airdromes, and that infantry forces had repelled repeated Fascist attacks at the city's gates.

Loyalist planes bombed Villasreal, in Alava Province, and rebel fortifications in Grado Escampiero in the Asturias it was announced.

A rebel ship, said to have been unloading war materials in Pasajes also was a target for air bombs.

The Government announced that 245 men and 185 women, all Spanish refugees, had been arrested in a raid on a Fernando Elsanto street house over which flew the Finnish flag.

Among those held are Cecilio Rodriguez, Eduardo Ordonez, popular football player; Marquesa de Monteagudo, and other aristocrats.

In an earlier raid on another house under the Finnish flag 600 persons, among them many prominent Fascists, were seized.

16 Civil Guards Sentenced to Be Shot as Rebels.

BARCELONA, Dec. 5.—The popular Tribunal condemned 16 Civil Guards to be shot by firing squads for participating in the July rebellion in the Village of Calasceite near Teruel.

MOTHER AND SEVEN CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH IN QUEBEC

Member of Family Lights Match When Dog Knocks Over Can of Gasoline.

By the Associated Press.

CHICOUTIMI, Que., Dec. 5.—Seven children and their mother were killed in an explosion and fire which destroyed their home in isolated St. Ambroise, messages reaching here tonight said.

The explosion occurred last night when one member of the family lit a match to investigate the noise made by a dog in a small cookshed. The dob had knocked over a can containing gasoline.

Louis Brassard, the father, tried in vain to rescue his family but was driven back by flames. An 18-year-old daughter, Cuprienne, escaped with the youngest child, a baby 15 days old.

SOCIAL SECURITY ACT REGISTRATION DEADLINE EXTENDED TO DEC. 15

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.

WITH the registration of 26,000,000 workers for Federal pension accounts falling short of expectations, the Government decided tonight to extend the deadline for applications until midnight Tuesday, Dec. 15.

The original deadline was midnight tonight. The board said so many inquiries had come in that an extension was necessary to allow time for proper preparation of the questionnaires affected. The Treasury is preparing an extension ruling.

Under the law, both the taxpaying employers and workers are liable to fines and jail sentences if they fail to submit data required. Giving no hint of punitive action, the board expressed appreciation for "the cooperation evident throughout the country on the part of employers and employes." The latter were reminded that application forms can be obtained from their employers or postoffices.

FASCIST PAPER SAYS ROME IS INTERVENING IN SPAIN

Students' Organ in Italy Declares the "Comedy of Non-Intervention Is Ended."

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Dec. 5.—A statement that Italy was intervening directly and concretely in the Spanish civil war was made tonight in the official organ of Fascist University students, Roma Fascista.

"It must be said once and for all," the publication stated, "that we are fighting materially and concretely in Spain."

"The comedy of non-intervention is ended," Roma Fascista asserted. "For us it never began . . . We can and we are determined now to denounce it as a catastrophe."

POPE SUFFERING PAIN FROM BLOOD CLOT IN HIS LEG

ATTENDANTS WATCH OVER HIM ALL NIGHT

Doctors Say Condition Is Aggravated by Combination of Arterio-Sclerosis and High Blood Pressure

By the Associated Press.

Pain occasional aroused the Pope, while Vatican attendants kept a vigil in a dimly lighted room adjoining his bedchamber.

The Pope's breathing was clearly audible to the attendants because of the asthma from which he has suffered.

Relatives who visited Vatican City said, however, they were assured his condition was not alarming.

Information issued by the Vatican tended to minimize the seriousness of the Pontiff's illness—the first serious ailment he has suffered since be became Pope, Feb. 6, 1922—but his intimates said they recognized his 79 years enfeebled him.

In the evening he talked for nearly half an hour with Senator Crispi, father-in-law of one of his nieces.

Donna Anastina Caminata Ratti, widow of Pius' brother, and nephews and nieces also visited the Vatican.

Attends to Duties.

The 79-year-old Pope was quoted as saying: "I am in the hands of God." Whereupon, it was said, he summoned his assistants and took up "with complete good cheer" the work of the day, dictating and signing letters from his bed, and generally carrying on the affairs of the church.

His valet, Malvestiti, was the first to discover the Pope's condition when he went to assist him with his vestments in the early morning. The Pope was unable to rise from bed. Physicians were summoned. The Pope was hardly able to stir the left leg. Later, the heaviness spread to the right leg.

In a preliminary diagnosis, the doctors said the condition was aggravated also by a combination of arterio-sclerosis and high blood pressure.

Unable to Attend Services.

The Pope had prepared a message to Cardinals, Archbishops and other church prelates awaiting him for today's final ceremonial after a week of spiritual exercises, but he excused his absence because of his illness and charged Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, papal secretary of state, to congratulate the prelates for having observed the important religious exercises. The churchmen replied with expressions of fervent hope that the Pope could resume his activities with 'unchanged energy."

When the Pope's message was read to them, they recalled that the Pope had given extraordinary emphasis to the exercises when they began a week ago, refusing all audiences and remarking: "Owing to our great age, we must always be ready and prepared for the final call."

Six Cardinals and a group of other churchmen read the ceremony of retreat, closing the week of devotion, in the Pope's bedroom when he was unable to join them in larger audience.

All audiences were canceled. Hundreds of persons who were to have been received yesterday were told the audiences might begin again tomorrow, but no definite time was set.

At the Vatican it was said the Pope's illness was a defect of the blood circulation. This produced blood clots at the knee causing the paralysis. Danger existed, the Vatican source said, that the defect might affect the Pope's heart.

The Pope was lifted from his bed for a short time yesterday afternoon and placed in an armchair to help the circulation of blood.

While an official notice stated the Pontiff was suffering from a "slight local disturbance," it was recalled that both his mother and elder brother, Fermo Ratti, were stricken in the same way.

TWO YOUNG MEN HELD IN ARSENIC DEATH OF GIRL, 15

Questioned at State Patrol Office at Kirkwood About Goldie Gay's Death on Auto Ride.

HER FATHER ASKED FOR INVESTIGATION

Second Girl Who Went on Trip to De Soto, Nov. 21, at Inquiry — Group Stopped for Drinks.

Two young men, 21 and 17 years old, arrested at Potosi, Mo., because of the death of 15-year-old Goldie Gay from arsenic poisoning, were questioned last night at State Highway Patrol headquarters in Kirkwood. A girl of 16 was also held for questioning.

The young men, tiff miners, were arrested on an affidavit made by the dead girl's father, Harry Gay, a timber worker, of Richwoods, Washington County, after a report from a St. Louis chemical laboratory had shown that the girl's death, while on an automobile ride with the young men and another girl the night of Nov. 21-22, was due to arsenic.

Goldie Gay and the other girl, who lived in an adjoining county but was visiting in the Richwood's neighborhood, were taken by the young men to attend a show in DeSoto. A stop was made for drinks on the way home, but the others said, when first questioned, that Miss Gay did not drink or eat anything at that time.

The first story told by the young men was that they saw no signs of illness before the Gay home was reached, when she was found to be dead in the rear seat of the car, beside one of the youths, who had been dozing. This was at 2 a. m. Nov. 22.

Later, Sheriff Steve Richards of Washington County said, the young men said the girl had shown signs of being ill on the drive home. Her father caused the laboratory examination to be made, resulting in the arrests yesterday.

At the patrol office last night, the young men and the surviving girl were questioned by John Eversole, Prosecuting Attorney of Washington County.

Their story of the fatality was little changed in the questioning, it was learned. They said Miss Gay had not taken any food or drink in their presence. When they got to her house and found that she could not be aroused, the three said they tried to get her into the house without arousing her father. Her sister was awakened, and called her father, and a physician was summoned, who found that the girl was dead.

Her last meal, according to their account, was lunch, which she ate at home Saturday afternoon, the 21st. She was at church for a time before going out in the automobile party, they said.

SECOND OF JOINED TWINS DIES AFTER OPERATION

Filipino Separated From Brther 11 Days Ago When Latter Succumbed to Fever.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Simplicio Godino, 29 years old, died at York Hospital tonight, 11 days after he had been separated from his twin brother by an operation.

Godino was surgically severed from his Filipino brother, Lucio, after the latter died of rheumatic fever Nov. 24. He had been recovering rapidly until 24 hours ago, when he took a turn for the worse.

The hospital declined to state the cause of death, but his ailment had been reported by doctors earlier in the evening to be cerebro-spinal meningitis.

The twins, both married vaudeville performers, entered the hospital Nov. 17, when Lucio was taken ill. He died, while his brother, joined to him at the hips by a segment of tissue 24 inches in circumference, remained in apparently perfect health.

MACON, Mo., Dec. 5.—All snow plows in State Highway Department Division No. 2 were ordered out today to keep Northeast Missouri roads open after a snowfall of more than three inches at noon.

Sleet added to the hazards and cinders were distributed over icy curves.

MRS. SIMPSON WITH FRIENDS IN CANNES VILLA

Ends Two-Day Drive Through France Near Midnight — 'Tired and Wants to Sleep.'

YACHT READY IF SHE WISHES TO GO TO SEA

King's Friend Avoids Crowds and Is More Composed After Phoning Palace in London.

By the Associated Press.

CANNES, France, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson ended her two-day trip across Southern France tonight and was driven through the gates of the secluded villa belonging to her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rogers of New York.

The car, bearing Mrs. Simpson, her secretary and a bodyguard, arrived at 11:45 p. m.

After the car entered the villa grounds, the gates were slammed shut, and British and French detectives joined a guard of local police, who warned hundreds of craning bystanders outside the villa that they "might as well go home because she's tired and wants to sleep."

Yacht Ready for Sea.

Steam was up in a 70-ton yacht, "Sister Anne," at anchor off Monte Carlo, the crew prepared to put to sea with Mrs. Simpson aboard, if the American-born divorcee friend of King Edward should decide upon a cruise.

The yacht's owner, Mrs. Reginald Fellowes, daughter of the Duke of Decazes, has long been a friend of Mrs. Simpson.

Five valises and eight wardrobe trunks initialled "WWS" arrived in Cannes today and cartage to the Rogers villa was supervised personally by Herman Rogers, who shunted off all questions with—"I don't know anything about Mrs. Simpson."

In Chateau Country.

On her reide through the Chateaux country today Mrs. Simpson stopped at Vienne, where she telephoned Buckingham Palace.

To avoid crowds, Mrs. Simpson and her entourage entered one of France's most famous restaurants through the wine cellar. She dined in a private chamber of the Cafe de la Pyramide, after which the wife of the proprietor, Mme. Pointe, said Mrs. Simpson told her she was "very tired and very nervous."

She had been driven at breakneck speed ever since 3 a. m., when she and her party slipped out of a hotel in Blois unnoticed except for a lone newspaper man. The chauffeur of her automobile, of American make and similar in detail to others in Edward's garages, said no one in the party had rested or eaten since their before-dawn departure from Blois.

Those who served Mrs. Simpson at luncheon said she only dabbled with her pate de fois gras, shrimp salad, and a bit of fowl. She sipped some of a glass of white wine, they said.

"But, yes," said Mme. Pointe, "she appeared, oh, so much more composed after she telephoned to the Palace in London."

Through the Wine Cellar.

After freshening up in leisurely fashion, Mrs. Simpson and her party sped away once more in the direction of the Riviera. She had run into her waiting car after stealing down the backstairs and through the wine cellar.

She was dressed in the same rust-colored suit, tailored to her chic figure, that she wore the day before. She wore a three-quarter length black fur coat.

Mrs. Simpson was served a cold meal in her car shortly after 6 p. m. at Aveenignon. Others of her party ate at a hotel.

Mrs. Rogers is the former Katherine Moore of New York. She and her husband have spent most of their time in recent years on the Riviera. They are listed in the New York social register.

AUSTRALIA HEARS KING MAY ABDICATE MONDAY; PARLIAMENT IS CALLED

By the Associated Press.

CANBERRY, Australia, Dec. 6 Sunday.

IT was unofficially reported tonight that the Australian Cabinet received secret information that King Edward was likely to abdicate Britain's throne Monday.

The report came after Prime Minister Joseph Lyons telephoned London several times and then announced a special session of Parliament for Wednesday. The full Cabinet will meet Monday.

Should Edward abdicate Monday, it was asserted, Parliament would have to pass an act of complementary legislation to provide for the accession of the Duke of York.

The reports in Canberra were unconfirmed in London, where officials said summoning of the British cabinet for Monday showed no decision had been reached by King or Cabinet.

BRITISH TROOPS GO TO QUELL REVOLT IN WAZIRISTAN

Tribesmen Ambush English Force, Killing 17 and Wounding 75 Persons.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—A military expedition was sent today to put down a revolt by tribesmen of Waziristan in India's Northwest Frontier Province.

Three thousand troops, most of them Indians, but including a section of a Northamptonshire regiment, were sent to the region with armored cars and light artillery. The Royal Air Force will co-operate.

Two British army officers and 15 Indian soldiers were killed from ambush by the Waziristan rebels Nov. 26. Seventy-five persons were wounded.

MUSSOLINI CONTEMPLATES MAKING FLIGHT TO ETHIOPIA

Dictator Wants to Inspect Newly-Won Territory; Trip May Depend on Spanish Events.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Dec. 5.—Aviation sources said tonight Premier Mussolini is contemplating a quick airplane trip to Ethiopia to inspect his newly-won territory. His final decision, will depend on events in Spain.

If the flight is made, Mussolini probably will use one of the new Italian planes, capable of flying 260 miles an hour. He would proceed directly from Rome to Addis Ababa, making only one stop on the North African coast.

EDWARD BELIEVED TO BE DETERMINED TO WED DESPITE ALL OPPOSITION

Premier Spends Another Hour With Him; Meanwhile Strong Influences Gather Behind Ruler and Mrs. Simpson.

CHURCHILL DEMANDS TIME AND TOLERANCE

Lord Rothermere Indicates Support but Monarch Is in Tight Corner; Public Demonstrations for Sovereign in London.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Secluded in Belvedere Castle tonight, King Edward was believed to be determined to wed Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, even though it cost his throne. His decision is expected Monday.

Prime Minister Baldwin motored to the castle late in the day, after a day-long conference with his Cabinet, and spent an hour and a quarter with the King. He gave the King "certain documents," but their nature was not disclosed.

Friends urged the King to play for time in what they said was his continued determination to surrender neither his throne nor his right to marry as he chose.

His antagonists were confident the King would be forced to abdicate to follow the dictates of his heart, but the King had not reached a decision to do so tonight.

In the meantime, Winston Churchill had thrown his powerful influence behind Edward in an appeal to the Empire to grant the King "time and tolerance" in his fight to wed Mrs. Simpson and retain his throne. Still other strong influences were gathering behind the King.

Questions Before Edward.

Edward is expected to decide within 48 hours whether to give up the throne because of Baldwin's firm warning that he cannot wed the former Baltimore belle and be King or whether to fight for both his love and his kingdom in the belief the people of the Empire will rally to his cause. The cabinet will meet Monday to receive his answer.

Meanwhile there will be a meeting of the ministers at 5:30 tomorrow afternoon.

While the American-born Mrs. Simpson sped across France to a haven at the villa of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rogers, where she arrived tonight, Edward spent the day at rural Belvedere Castle. The longer he could delay a showdown on the constitutional crisis concerning his right to marry whom he chooses, the better appeared his chances of rallying public opinion.

Challenges Government.

While Baldwin was motoring to Edward's Belvedere retreat for yet another appeal to Edward, Churchill, who may be King's Premier if Baldwin should resign, attacked the Government for not consulting Parliament and challenged its right to advise the sovereign to abdicate. He said abdication must not "hastily be extorted" and hinted the King himself had asked for more time to consider.

Churchill pointed out that the crisis concerned a marriage that, "in no circumstances can be accomplished for nearly five months and may conceivably, for various reasons, never be accomplished at all."

Churchill suggested also that the cabinet could advise the King against a reported request for legislation to permit a morganatic marriage, and that "if the King refuses to take the advice of his Ministers, they are, of course, free to resign."

Rothermere to Defense.

Lord Rothermere, powerful British publisher and brother of the late Lord Northcliffe, in an interview in the London Evening News

KING SAID TO RESENT BALDWIN'S ATTITUDE

Crown Crisis Viewed as "Personal Battle" Between Edward and Premier.

Frank H. King, chief of the London Bureau of the Associated Press, telephoned last night to New York this report on the British crown crisis. Hiss call was put through at 9 P. M. London time.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—A showdown is expected Monday on King Edward's wish to wed Mrs. Wallis Simpson. It is a personal battle between Prime Minister Baldwin and the King, and a close friend of both has begun efforts to effect a compromise between them, but it appears now that the effort will be too late.

The King resents Baldwin's attitude toward the whole affair. They have never hit it off any too well.

Baldwin is the epitome of tradition in the empire. The King is as streamlined in thought as the modern motor car which right now is speeding Mrs. Simpson across France.

Hancock (Witt Hancock of the London office) just telephoned that Baldwin is back in Downing street. He's just returned from an audience with the King.

The cabinet is going to meet tomorrow afternoon, but it won't be an official gathering. The big decision will come Monday, I feel sure.

Probably the biggest development today was Lord Rothermere's story in the Evening News and Lord Beaverbrook's support of the King. (Both publishers indicated today their opposition to any efforts to force the King to abdicate quickly if he persisted in his intention to marry Mrs. Simpson.)

Winston Churchill's appeal to give the King time to make his decision will have a lot of weight, too. But Baldwin still is master of Westminster.

Whatever happens, there is bound to be a great public reaction one way or the other.

What I said this morning still stands—the only definite decision is that the King is bound he will marry Mrs. Simpson but whether he will follow Mrs. Simpson to France and give up his throne no one can say now.

But he will have a tough fight if he decides to stay and have it out with Baldwin.

The public here still doesn't know much about Mrs. Simpson, or that the King, after her Ipswich divorce, spent a part of almost every day with her until her flight to France.

REPORT THAT KING HAS SIGNED PAPER GIVING UP THRONE

London Newspaper Says He Has Announced Intention to Abdicate to Marry Mrs. Simpson.

SUNDAY TIMES OPPOSES UNION

Declares Edward Cannot Delay or Compromise—'Rebellion Against Constitutional Advisers.'

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(Sunday)—The Sunday newsaper, Reynolds News, reported today there was "a belief, strongly held in certain highly placed quarters, that the King (Edward VIII) already has announced his intention to abdicate—that he has indeed signed the instrument which would make abdication final."

The newspaper added that if the Duke of York succeeded his brother he would be proclaimed King George the Sixth.

King Edward, the paper reported, probably will leave the country this week-end in order to devote his entire attention to his dispute with the British cabinet over Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson.

The Sunday Times vigorously opposed marriage between King Edward and Mrs. Simpson and said the King's decision cannot "be delayed or compromised."

King as a "Rebel."

"Scrutator," the Sunday Times' political commentator, warned the King against rebelling "against constitutional advisers." He continued:

"An appeal of sentiment to the masses of men already prepossessed in the King's favor would be tremendously strong and might conceivably win. But think of the terrible price of such a victory."

J. L. Garvin, the Sunday Observer's political commentator, said a marriage by which Mrs. Simpson would become queen was impossible but "not for a moment because the remarkable woman concerned is an American."

"Let all decent Americans dismiss from their minds that suggestion," Garvin wrote. "The reasons are of a higher, more inexorable force."

The Sunday Express said:

"The King's intention to marry Mrs. Simpson is not a whim of a young and inexperienced man. It is the result of ripe reflection of one who is mature in years and instructed in judgment. . . .

"There is nothing in the law of England against which this marriage would offend. There is nothing in the constitution to prevent Mrs. Simpson, were she to become the King's wife, from assuming the style and dignity of queen."

Pins Hope on Mrs. Simpson.

The hope that Mrs. Simpson will "make the supreme renunciation" by refusing to wed the King was expressed by the Sunday Referee in a front-page box.

"Her departure for France," this newspaper said, "is regarded as indicative of this, and with her great love for the King, torn as he is between love and duty, she is capable of feeling that she will be hurting him less if she makes this decision and leaves him with no alternative but to carry out his destiny.

"It would be a supreme sacrifice of renunciation that would go down in history as at once noble and self-effacing."

Canadian Comment: Mrs. Simpson's Background "Not Ideal."

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Dec. 5.—The Toronto Telegram reviewed the background of Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson today and said it "is not the ideal setting for a future Queen of Great Britain."

Another Toronto paper, the Globe and Mail, said that whatever King Edward's decision in the conflict between him and the cabinet, "there is no probability British faith in British institutions will be shattered."

The Telegram said:

"In an effort to build up Mrs. Simpson, some person has made the interesting discovery that she is of royal descent. This is quite immaterial even if true. If one cares to go back far enough it is surprising how many people can trace a royal connection.

"The undisputed facts about the much-discussed lady are that she came of poor but honest parents and that her widowed mother kept boarders in Baltimore, which is nothing to be ashamed of, and that Mrs. Simpson has been twice divorced. All of which, however, is not the ideal setting for a future Queen of Great Britain."

The Globe and Mail said:

"King Edward's unconventionality is not to his discredit. It has made him more secure in the hearts of the people.

"He could wed a deserving commoner and they would rejoice. They would not acclaim a queen, aristocrat or commoner, who has been through two divorces. . . .

"It is asking much of the sovereign to dedicate his life to the people, placing all personal interests secondary. This, however, is the position in which the Crown has been placed by its own acts in later generations. It explains why the British throne grew stronger when others fell.

"The King's decision, therefore, is of the gravest importance, but whatever it is, there is no probability British faith in British institutions will be shattered. If the result is not what is best for the empire, it will be but an interregnum in progress."

asserted a "concerted effort" was being made to hurry the King from the throne and opposed this with the warning: "No government, which on this matter of supreme importance, runs counter to the wishes of the people of England can survive. You cannot smuggle the greatest living Englishman off the throne of England during the week-end. Time must be given for a solution to this matter. The present haste is indecent and is giving rise to unpleasant rumors affecting high political and other personages."

The Rothermere expression seemingly threw to the King the support of the Northcliffe dynasty in the fight against government and church opposition to his projected marriage. It was the influence of Lord Northcliffe's Daily Mail which drove out Asquith and made Lloyd George Prime Minister during the World War.

Home Secretary Sir John Simon is said to be desirous of avoiding a constitutional crisis through too strong representations against the King's actions by his ministers.

It was believed Prime Minister Baldwin hoped to get Parliament to name the Duke of York, heir presumptive, to succeed his brother while England and the Dominions still were breathless from the shock of first publication of the news that Edward desired to marry a divorcee.

The King's firm stand against giving up Mrs. Simpson and the pronouncement by Lord Rothermere, with a previous indication of sympathy by Publisher Lord Beaverbrook, gave time for public reaction to show itself. Even so, practically all the cards seem to be against the King. On the constitutional issue, the church issue and the flouting of conventions, he is in a tight corner. But he could wage a tremendous battle over the constitutional question to determine whether the Government or the King shall be supreme.

Conservative Group for Him.

During the day a number of Conservatives in the House of Commons sent to the King their assurances of support in any parliamentary fight he may make, but their stand was regarded as almost hopeless. It was conceded no chance in forming a successful government, should Baldwin resign in the face of Edward's refusal to give up Mrs. Simpson.

The group of Conservatives, it was learned, met yesterday in the smoking room of the House of Commons to band together in behalf of the King, and agreed on personal letters to the King to convey their pledge of support.

Twenty ministers attended today's cabinet session, at which Edward's declaration he would marry Mrs. Simpson was delivered by Baldwin. He had received that declaration in audience last night at Edward's country retreat.

In Support of the King.

As the ministers drew up before 10 Downing street today, automobiles bearing banners urging the King not to give in to his Government appeared in the streets.

"Confound the Clerics," said one sign. "A Free Country and a Free King," declared another.

All last night crowds demonstrated in London, cheering the King and some proclaiming "The New Queen," meaning Mrs. Simpson.

A public rally was called for Hyde Park tonight "To Support the King."

Standing in the shadow of a statue of Henry Irving, off Leicester Square, a workman turned orator to shout: "Down with the Church of England—we want Edward."

"Let Him Have Her."

The average reaction of the young Englishman, who admires the King, is, "Let him have her." There is growing belief that the same reaction prevails throughout the Empire, although Baldwin claims sufficient backing from the Dominions to crush any attempt to pass legislation permitting Edward to have Mrs. Simpson as his wife but not as his Queen.

The crowds which demonstrated in favor of the King last night gathered outside Buckingham Palace to shout: "God save the King! God save the new Queen! Flog Baldwin! Down with the Bishops!"

They paraded through avenues and alleys of the city.

"We want Eddie and we want his missus!" demonstrators shouted. "After South Wales, you can't let him down. Come to the palace now," read some of the banners.

Commerce Slows Down.

Wheels of commerce of the Empire slowed today because of the crisis, and business leaders clamored for speedy settlement. Preparations for the coronation, scheduled for next May, were thrown overboard, for the time being at least, and much concern was felt by a number of trades and industries with contracts for goods for the huge event.

Thousands of orders for coronation goods were suspended temporarily by customers throughout the world and some threatened to refuse delivery if such goods already were in transit.

And, as the crisis continued, the family-loving Duke of York went to the country for the week-end—with the possibility he would return to London to be hailed as King. With him went the Princess Elizabeth, his little daughter.

Guard at Edward's Gate.

Edward, described in "excellent health" by his royal physician, Lord Dawson of Penn, remained throughout the day at Belvedere and it was announced all his public appearances for the coming week had been canceled. Late to the King received a telephone call from Mrs. Simpson in France.

The King's country estate was garrisoned tonight by uniformed police and a picked group of Scotland Yard officers. They kept the curious at least 100 yards from the entrances. A constant stream of cars passed and many slowed down at the white gate, but officers waved them along. No strange car was allowed to remain stationary in the vicinity. One machine bore a placard: "He's Your King. Stand by Him." Twice during the afternoon automobiles went from London, sounding their horns long before they reached the gate, which swung open and permitted them to go inside so rapidly the occupants could not be identified.

Meanwhile, from the Archbishop of Westminster, Dr. Arthur Hinsley, came an appeal for special prayers for the King by all Catholics tomorrow. The Archbishop of Conterbury also hdad asked prayers for the King from the Church of England.

CHURCHILL SAYS CABINET EXCEEDS ITS AUTHORITY

In Statement, He Challenges Power of Ministers to Advise Sovereign to Abdicate.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 5. — Winston Churchill, the man King Edward may ask to form a Government if the Baldwin Cabinet resigns, challenged tonight the authority of "any ministry" to advise the sovereign to abdicate.

Churchill, in a statement, declared "the Cabinet has no right to prejudice such a question (as that raised by the prospect of the King's marriage to Mrs. Wallis Simpson, without having previously ascertained, at the very least, the will of Parliament."

Pointing out the marriage "in no circumstances can be accomplished for nearly five months and may conceivably, for various reasons, never be accomplished at all," Churchill pleaded for time and tolerance.

Churchill on Ministers' Duty.

Instead of calling for abdication, Churchill declared the Ministers should refuse to act on the reported request of the King for "legislation" to permit a morganatic marriage, and "if the King refuses to take advice of his Ministers they are, of course, free to resign."

"The nation must realize the character of the constitutional issue," he said. "There is no question of any conflict between the King and Parliament.

"Parliament has not been consulted in any way or allowed to express any opinion on the crisis. The question is whether the King is to abdicate upon the advice of the ministry of the day. No such advice has ever before been tendered to a sovereign in parliamentary time."

Churchill said time is needed for a searching constitutional debate, asserting:

"National and imperial considerations alike require that before such a dread step as a demand for abdication is taken, not only should the constitutional position be newly defined by Parliament, but every method should be exhausted which gives hope of a happier solution.

"King Under Great Strain."

"Lastly, but surely not the least, there is the human and personal aspect," he continued. "The King has been for many years under the greatest strain, moral and mental, that can fall on man. Not only has he inevitably been subjected to the extreme stress of his public duty, but also to the agony of his own personal feeling.

"Surely if he asks for time to consider the advice of his ministers, now that at length matters have been brought to this dire culmination, he should not be denied.

"Howsoever, this matter may turn, it is pregnant with calamity and inseparable from inconvenience.

"But all the evil aspects will be aggravated beyond measure if the utmost chivalry and compassion is not shown both by the ministers and the British nation toward the gifted and beloved King, torn between the private and public obligations of love and duty.

"The churches stand for charity. They believe in the efficacy of prayer. Surely their influence must not oppose a period of reflection.

"I plead and pray that time and tolerance will not be denied.

Churchill concluded: 'If an abdication were to be hastily extorted the outrage so committed would cast its shadows forward across many chapters in the history of the British empire."

LONDON CROWDS SING AND SHOUT IN SUPPORT OF KING

Chant Their Desire That He Keep Throne and Wed Mrs. Simpson if He Wishes.

(Copyright, 1936.)

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(Sunday)—Crowds, cheering, singing and shouting their support of King Edward's cause, broke up early today after another night of noisy demonstrations in various parts of London.

Most of the thousands who participated in the parades showed displeasure with the cabinet of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, while at the same time chanting that they wanted the King to remain on his throne and marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson if he wished.

The crowd, mainly of young people, sang the national anthem and "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" until at midnight the palace gates were closed and the guards were changed.

Until after midnight crowds milled in front of the Palace gates and the entrance to Baldwin's official resident at No. 10 Downing street.

LADY RHONDDA SAYS PEOPLE WILL DECIDE KING'S COURSE

Thinks National Approval of Marriage Depends on Prevalence of "New Morality."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Lady Rhondda, British writer, said today in a broadcast to the United States from England that, since Great Britain was a democracy, the opinion of the British people would be the ultimate factor in determining King Edward's course as to Mrs. Simpson.

Citing Mrs. Simpson's two divorces, rather than her status as an American citizen and a commoner, as the obstacle to immediate national approval of such a union, Lady Rhondda said:

"If he marries, he will offend against the standards of the old morality. On the other hand, it seems to me that the new morality that says he should marry the woman he is in love with is a cleaner, a more honest, and a better thing."

"But, in the end, it is the people who must decide. If the old morality has too strong a hold, they will decide against the marriage; and if they so decide, it would be impossible for the King to marry her and to remain King."

Lady Rhondda is the editor of Time and Tide and author of a book, "This Was My World."

Walter Constable, Merchant, Dies.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Walter C. M. Constable, retired New York department store executive, died yesterday at the home of a daughter in Pelham Manor after a long illness. He was 84. Constable had been a partner in Arnold Constable & Co. and was the last surviving male member of the English merchant family that founded the firm. He was born in Bognor, England.

Secret of British Crisis Lies in Concept of Throne

Englishmen Surround King and Queen with "Glittering Gravity" and "Chivalrous Homage" That Disraeli Loved.

A. Murray Dyer, born an Englishman and educated in England, but now an American citizen and newspaper man, views the Simpson affair in the following article from the point of view of a former British subject

By A. MURRAY DYER.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—The roots of the constitutional crisis that faces the British Empire today—whether King Edward shall or shall not marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson—lie buried deep in England's history.

Americans are aking: Why does England feel the way it does? Why does it take such an interest in who shall be Queen? Why cannot it agree that this is the King's private business?

Englishmen are not asking these questions. They know instinctively why. What concerns England is not the crisis itself, but what the outcome of the crisis will be.

Meaning of the Throne.

Above everything in England stands the throne. To it all Englishmen look as a tangible expression of their intangible loyalties.

A thousand years, and more, of history, lie behind the throne of England today. Those years have seen the King, as a man, forced, inch by inch, to hand over to the people the powers of an absolute monarch. Yet each time the King lost in autocratic power he gained in influence as lengthening years of tradition decreed that the people ruled, but the crown was the symbol of government.

In 1657 a committee of the House Chomwell to assume the title of the Parliament, petitioned Oliver Cromwell to asseume the title of King.

"Your highness may demand why," the Lord Chief Justice said at that time, "we desire to restore a title, which a long series of wicked administration had made it proper to abrogate.

"To this we can easily answer, that our request is the request of the people, the people whose interest is chiefly to be considered, and to whom it is your highest honor to be a faithful servant. That they have a right to judge for themselves, to promote their own happiness by their own measures, and to distinguish their servants by what name or titles they shall judge most proper, cannot be denied. Monarchy has always been thought by this nation the most eligible form of government . . . the office in general was always regarded as useful and necessary, and the title was reverenced, when the conduct of him that held it was condemned."

Old Institutions Preferable.

Elsewhere, the Master of the Rolls, supporting the Lord Chief Justice in his argument for the monarchy, said:

"Long prescription is a sufficient argument in favor of a practice against which nothing can be alleged."

Elsewhere again: "It is a certain truth that old institutions are, merely because they are old, preferable to new plans, in their nature equally good, because a very small part of mankind judges from any other principles than custom and it will be long before new titles attract their regard, esteem and veneration."

At that time the committee told Cromwell that the King and the Parliament were parts of one unit, "nor can anyone destroy the other without a general dissolution of our Government."

In these appears to be summed up the reasons why the British Government today ventures to advise the King on matters relating to his private life.

The King is necessary to the functioning of Parliament and the "might, majesty, dominion and power" of the crown, through "long prescription" England has come to regard as the legitimate interest of its Ministers.

With this solicitude for the dignity of the throne goes an equal concern over the person of a Queen.

Tradition of Queenship.

The empire demands no less from its Queen than from its King, and the wife of Edward VIII, as his Queen, assumes her place in the long line of English Queens, from Eleanor of Castile, Queen of the first Edward, and Philippa, Queen of the third Edward, who interceded for the lives of the burghers of Calais, down through Elizabeth and Victoria.

Behind each one lay the tradition of service, and with each new Queen that tradition was strengthened, until, in Victoria's reign, despite her disapproval of Gladstone, when the Liberal party won the 1880 election, she sent for him, and, a biographer records:

"She was not cordial, but she did her duty," and told him to form his ministry.

Macaulay, writing of the wife of William of Orange, says:

"She was English by birth, and English also in her tastes and feelings. Her face was handsome, her temper sweet and lively, her manners affable and graceful...the stainless purity of her private life and the strict attention which she paid to her religious duties were the more respectable, because she was singularly free from censoriousness and discouraged scandal as much as vice."

Disraeli and the Queen.

Andre Maurois, in his book on Disraeli, describing Queen Victoria's first council, tells of Lord Lyndhurst's picture of the scene to Beaconsfield—"this assembly of all that was most illustrious in England, the sea of white plumes and stars and uniforms, the doors suddenly flung open, a silence deep as that of a forest ,and the young girl advancing to her throne in the midst of this crowd of prelates, statesmen and generals. Disraeli was spellbound by the recital. There he saw united all the things he loved: The pomp of ceremony, a glittering gravity, the chivalrous homage to a woman of all the strength of England."

About the throne of England today is still this "glittering gravity" and the homage of all the strength of England.

It is because this homage has marched with the development of England from feudal times that the King's Ministers weigh even his private life, since that life is inextricably a part of the dignity of the crown.

The King today exercises no actual law-making authority but in place of autocratic power his people have yielded homage and devotion to a title.

It may be, and from time to time has been, that the King has elected to put his personal desires above what his people conceived to be his duty.

When this has happened the title has still been maintained, but sometimes the personal affection for the monarch has waned, for, to Englishmen, in a conflict between the King's will and the people's wishes, the King, as a "faithful servant" is expected to give way.

SIMPSON AFFAIR AS BRITISH PUBLIC FIGURES SEE IT

Sir Stafford Cripps Thinks Fact Lady Is Not of Aristocracy Influences Government.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Many British notables are commenting publicly on the conflict between the cabinet and King Edward VIII over his desire to marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Laborite member of the House of Commons, said: "I cannot help feeling that if the lady in question (Mrs. Simpson) had been a member of the English aristocracy under precisely similar circumstances, a quite different decision would have been come to by the Government . . . no question of international policy is raised. Certain questions of propriety are suggested in view of the lady's previous history, but these seem to me not of sufficient political importance to entitle the cabinet to force the King into abdicating upon them."

George Lansbury, former leader of the Labor party in the House of Commons, in a speech in Southampton advised "A spirit of compromise." He said that King Edward would lose any struggle with Parliament because "an overwhelming mass of the people will see that a democratic Parliament, whatever are the issues, remains supreme."

R. T. Paget, Labor candidate for Northampton: "This is a King who is a King. He is no puppet of class. Let's show him who his real friends are. Let's show King Edward we are going to stand by him."

Sir Arnold Wilson, Conservative member of Parliament, speaking to his constituents in Hitchen, asked for time for reflection. He continued: "The oath of allegiance in this realm is to the King, not to the King in council. It has precedence over any constitutional difficulty or expediency or party."

INITIATIVE MOVE TO CHANGE WARDS STARTS THIS WEEK

Municipal League Will Circulate Petitions to Be Ready if Aldermen Fail to Act.

MAP APPROVED BY DIRECTORS

Proposed Redistricting Would Eliminate 4 Divisions Downtown and Create 4 New Ones.

Circulation of petitions will start this week to place the ward redistricting proposal of the Municipal Initiative League on the ballot in the municipal election next April, Harold R. Hay, chairman of the organization, announced last night. The League is proposing to eliminate four wards in downtown St. Louis and create four new wards in the northwest and southwest sections of the city.

Hay said that the League would also sponsor the introduction of a redistricting bill in the Board of Aldermen within the next few weeks. If the Aldermen do not pass the bill, the League, through circulation of its petitions, will then be in a position to place the proposition on the ballot.

The League would endeavor to obtain about 26,000 signers to the petitions, or 7 per cent of the total number of voters registered for the last mayoral election in April, 1933, Hay said. This would enable a special election to be held on the proposal, should the Aldermen fail to certify their refusal to pass the bill in time to have the proposition placed on the ballot in the regular city election next April.

The detailed redistricting plan and a proposed new ward map were approved by directors of the League at a meeting yesterday afternoon at the Melbourne Hotel.

New Ward Setup.

The plan, in general, provides for a new ward setup so as to place about 15,000 voters in each ward. Most of the wards would be given new numbers, but an effort has been made, in preparing the plan, to disturb existing ward political organizations as little as possible.

Under the plan, the new First Ward would consist of the eastern and southern half of the present First Ward. The western and northern sections of the present First Ward and the northern section of the present Twenty-seventh Ward would become the new Twentieth Ward. The new Second Ward would consist of the present Second and part of the present Eighteenth Wards.

The new Third Ward would be the present Nineteenth. The new Fourth Ward would consist of the present Third Ward, part of the present Eighteenth, and part of the present Fourth Ward, while the new Fifth Ward would be composed of part of the present Fourth Ward, all of the present Fifth, and part of the existing Sixth.

Proposed Consolidations.

The new Sixth Ward would comprise part of the existing Sixth and all of the present Seventh Wards. The new Seventh would be a combination of the present Eighteenth part of the Ninth, and the new Eighth Ward a consolidation of the Tenth with part of the Ninth. The new Ninth Ward would consist of the present Eleventh.

The new Tenth Ward would be the present Twelfth, while the new Eleventh would be the southern section of the present Twenty-fourth. The new Twelfth would be the southern half of the present Thirteenth, while the new Thirteenth would the northern half of the present Thirteenth. The Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth Wards would retain the same numbers and virtually the same boundaries.

The new Eighteenth would be the present Twentieth. The new Nineteenth Ward would consist of the present Twenty-first Ward with the addition of the eastern portion of the present Twenty-second Ward. The new Twenty-first Ward would be a consolidation of the southern half of the present Twenty-seventh with part of the present Twenty-second. The Twenty-third Ward would be unchanged, except for a slight extension of its western boundary to Kingshighway.

Ward 22 to Keep Its Number.

The present Twenty-second Ward would retain the same number but its boundaries would be contracted so as to make the ward smaller than it is at present.

The Twenty-fifth Ward would also be unchanged, but the new Twenty-fourth would consist of the present Twenty-sixth Ward, and the present Twenty-sixth would become the new Twenty-eighth Ward. The new Twenty-seventh would comprise the northern section of the present Twenty-fourth Ward and the new Twenty-eighth would be the central section of the present Twenty-fourth.

Under the League's plan, the voting population would range from 15,000 in the new Twenty-seventh Ward, to 19,000 in the new Fifth and Sixth Wards. The present range is from about 8800 in the Fifth Ward to 35,000 in the Twenty-fourth.

Hay was elected permanent chairman of the League's board of directors yesterday, William Hoeflin, vice-chairman, and W. E. Kirchner, secretary.

SEAPLANE OFFICER KILLED ON ERRAND OF MERCY

Sick Man From Tanker, Two Others Hurt in Crash; Another Rescue Plane Adrift.

By the Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 5.—Lieut. L. Christopher, commander of the Coast Guard amphibian plane VIII from Cape May, N. J., lost his life today when the plane crashed into Assateague Harbor while on an errand of mercy.

Two members of the plane crew and a seaman taken from the tanker Charles G. Black were reported seriously hurt. They were taken to a hospital at Salisbury, Md.

The VIII was the second plane to come to grief in an effort to get the seaman, said to be suffering from appendictis, to a hospital here. The V125, which had broken a wing in landing in a rough sea, was adrift off Assateague tonight. Commander Lieut. L. H. Seegar and two other men were taken off.

A Coast Guard surf boat had taken the sick man off the tanker and he had been transferred to the VIII. The plane apparently was taking off with ease when she crashed from the height of a few feet.

BENT WHALEBONE IN TALLOW USED TO KILL WOLF PACKS

Old Eskimo Trick Brought Into Play to Save Reindeer at Barrow, Alaska.

By the Associated Press.

BARROW, Alaska, Dec. 5.—An old Eskimo trick was used today to turn back wolf packs which had repeatedly stampeded 3000 reindeer being driven across 500 miles of Arctic wasteland to hunger-stricken Barter Island.

Chunks of frozen tallow were dropped for the pursuing wolves to snap up. Inside each chunk the Eskimos had bent a six-inch piece of whalebone, sharpened to needle point. When the tallow melts, the whalebone springs open, piercing the wolves' stomachs—and causing death.

Deer for the Barter Island drive were taken from the Point Barrow herd. Several hundred persons were reported near starvation in the Barter Island area last summer. Griswald Collins, a veteran game warden sent from Juneau to try to destroy the wolf packs, said he thought the Eskimo method would prove effective.

The accident occurred in the gun room of the Karl Bissel mansion at Old Westbury, Long Island. The wounded boy is a son of Arthur S. Barnes.

LORD MARLEY SAYS CABINET BIT MORE THAN IT CAN CHEW

Announces at New York He Has Cabled Support of King in Forming New Ministry.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Asserting he saw no reason why King Edward's romance with Mrs. Wallis Simpson should be regarded as a public affair, Lord Marley, deputy speaker of the House of Lords, today expressed the opinion that the Baldwin cabinet had "bitten off more than it can chew."

Addressing a luncheon of the Foreign Policy Association, Lord Marley said there were precedents for "every sort of a marriage by a king."

Remarking their appeared to be "certain possible explanations" for the present situation, he continued:

"During recent years the power of the cabinet has been growing stronger, and the veto of the King has not been exercised for 300 years. It may be that the power of the cabinet has been getting too near Dictatorship. The cabinet may resign and another cabinet may be formed. I try to think that the dominions are against abdication and in favor of some other solution."

Lord Marley said he had cabled his support if a new ministry is formed by King Edward.

"My oath of allegiance is to the King himself," he said, "and not because oil is being poured into his ear by the Archbishop of Canterbury."

MRS. THOMASSON TO RETURN TO WITNESS STAND TOMORROW

Cross-Examination of Government Witness in Muench Trial to Be Resumed.

The trial of Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench and three co-defendants on a charge of using the mails to further a scheme to defraud in the Muench baby hoax, will be resumed tomorrow before Federal Judge George H. Moore.

During the trial of the case, which began Nov. 23, with recesses for Thanksgiving and the weekends, the jury has not been impounded, but its members have been strictly enjoined by the Court not to discuss the case with anyone and not to read newspaper accounts of the hearing.

Mrs. Grace Thomasson, Government witness who had been under cross-examination 15 hours when court was adjourned Friday night, will return to the stand tomorrow for further questioning by defense counsel. It is understood that after she is finally excused the Government will complete presentation of its evidence in a day and a half.

NEW GRAND JURY MAY CONTINUE ELECTION INQUIRY

Circuit Attorney Miller Says He Will Inform Members Fully of What Remains to Be Done.

A new grand jury, which will serve through the remainder of December and January, will be impaneled tomorrow by Circuit Judge Eugene L. Padberg and may continue the investigation of election frauds which "appalled" the grand jury discharged Friday.

If it does it will be the third successive St. Louis grand jury to devote itself to election irregularities. The June term grand jury, discharged early in September, returned indictments against 30 persons, and the September term grand jury, which completed its work last week, indicted 68.

Judge Padberg said yesterday to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he did not intend to give the new grand jury any specific instruction to continue the election fraud inquiry. He said he was sure that Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller would advise the jury of what remained to be done, and of Judge Robert J. Kirkwood's instructions to the September term grand jury to investigate election frauds "thoroughly."

Miller's Statement.

The Circuit Attorney said the election fraud inquiry would, of course, be continued, but he was not prepared to say whether this grand jury will go into the matter or if it does, what phase will be taken up.

The investigation of the June term grand jury was concerned chiefly with registration frauds exposed by the Post-Dispatch prior to the August primary, and most of the indictments it returned charged precinct election clerks with willful neglect to canvass their precincts, a misdemeanor punishable by a jail or workhouse sentence of 30 to 60 days.

The September term grand jury devoted itself to the conduct of the primary election, investigating precincts in which lop-sided returns were pointed out by the Post-Dispatch shortly after the election. The jury investigated returns of 13 precincts, only a fraction of the 670 in the city, and in 11 precincts in as many wards found evidence which led to indictments. It indicted 66 precinct judges and clerks on charges of making a false canvass and return of the vote, and two party watchers on charges of inducing judges and clerks to make a false canvass and return of the vote. These offenses are felonies, punishable by prison terms of two to five years.

"Open and Blatant Fraud."

In returning these indictments Friday this grand jury, of which Maj. James L. Barngrove, president of the Barngrove Realty Co. was foreman, submitted a report to Judge Kirkwood that it had found "open and blatant fraud" on the part of many election officials which "robbed the people of their rights of suffrage."

The September grand jury did not complete the investigation of the August primary. Other elections in which charges of fraud are to be investigated are the primary of 1934, and the riverfront bond issue election of September, 1934, in which the Post-Dispatch exposed gross fraud.

Circuit Attorney Miller said he would inform the new grand jury fully of the work that has been done and of what remains to be done, and that the grand jury would decide for itself what course to pursue.

PUZZLE ON NAMES DISPOSED OF BY SECURITY BOARD

Actors and Women Employed Under Names Not Their Own Get Instructions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. — Actors known by stage names and married women working under their maiden names have run into a poser in applying for Federal pension accounts.

"Must I give my real name?" many asked the Social Security Board. So the board sought again to clarify the matter in the following statement.

"The employe's account number of identification card issued to an employe will carry the name which has been given by the employe on line number one of his application card. An employe who wishes to have his account number or identification card carry a name different from that shown line number one, should attach to his application card a special request to that effect.

"An employe who has already filed an application card but who wishes to have the account number or identification card carry a name different from that shown on line number one of his application, should do nothing further until he receives his account number or identification card, and then should make his request to that effect in writing direct to the Records Division of the Social Security Board, Baltimore, Md., returning with his request the account number card which he has received and making a complete statement of the corrections desired."

COURT BARS LAWYER'S PLEA FOR HIS REINSTATEMENT

Won't Allow Burnett to Move to Set Aside Order Ousting Him As Receiver's Counsel.

Robert Burnett, who was removed by Circuit Judge John W. Joynt as special attorney for George P. Dorris, successor receiver in the Moon Motor Car Co. receivership suit, presented a motion yesterday asking the Judge to set aside his order dismissing him. Judge Joynt, however, refused to grant Burnett permission to file the motion.

The motion set forth that Burnett was removed without cause and without notice and preferment of charges. The court's action was based on the ground that Burnett had no right to file a motion in behalf of the receiver for a new trial in which he objected to the action of the court's overruling exceptions to the final accounts of Seneca C. Taylor, former receiver. Creditors of the receivership estate also asked for a new trial.

WILMINGTON POLICE CHIEF AND HIS SON SUSPENDED

Charged at Hearing With Neglecting Duty and Protecting Disorderly Houses.

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 5.—Wilmington's directors of public safety suspended Superintendent of Police George Black and his son, Police Capt. George Black Jr. today at the conclusion of the prosecution's testimony to support charges of neglect of duty and protecting disorderly houses. Both denied the charges.

Harold C. Schutt, head of the board of directors, sitting as a trial board, ordered the suspension because of the intervention of time until the defense opens its case next Thursday.

After the hearing recessed Dominick Nardo, a barber was arrested and charged with perjury; Joseph Tollin was charged with interference with justice.

WOMAN DRIVES AUTO INTO LAKE IN FOG; CRIES BRING HELP

Plunged Into 5 Feet of Water at Mitchell, Ill.; Resort Owner Aids in Rescue of Wife.

Mrs. Otto Kehr, wife of the proprietor of Long Lake Resort, at Mitchell, escaped injury when an automobile she was driving plunged into five feet of water at Long Lake after she turned off highway 66 at the resort and was unable to see the driveway because of fog.

The car turned on its side. Mrs. Kehr kept her head above water with difficulty. Her husband and others at the resort heard her cries for help and responded. They called a nearby wrecking truck, which pulled the car onto the bank after about 10 minutes.

OBJECTION TO $100,000 AYLWARD GROUP FEE

Award to Lawyers "Contrary to Law," Those Filing Protest Allege.

Objections were filed yesterday by the Continental Life Insurance Co., Ed Mays, its president, and Garland Keeling, a policyholder, to the $100,000 allowance for legal fees made by Circuit Judge John W. Joynt last week in favor of special counsel for State Superintendent of Insurance R. Emmet O'Malley. The counsel named to participate in the award are James P. Aylward of Kansas City, Democratic National Committeeman from Missouri; James A. Waechter, former chairman of the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners; Frank P. Aschemeyer and Circuit Judge Albert A. Ridge of Kansas City.

The objectors said that they had no notice an application for an allowance was pending and charge the allowance is irregular and contrary "to the rules of either law or equity." They further contend that the attorneys seeking the allowance have no right to the fee because under the statutes of the State the Superintendent of Insurance is not empowered to employ "an array of attorneys," and the statutes prescribe who shall be counsel for him.

The award was based on services rendered by the attorneys in connection with the rehabilitation order for the life insurance company which was found by Circuit Judge O'Neill Ryan to be insolvent. Recently, an order was made terminating the rehabilitation period and its assets were sold to the Kansas City Life Insurance Co. The fees are charged against Continental assets.

Previously the same counsel were allowed a combined fee of $35,000 by Judge Ryan for services rendered during the trial of the case.

MARITIME STRIKE PARADE AND RALLY IN SAN FRANCISCO

MOVE TO RELIEVE HAWAIIAN SITUATION

Ickes Requests Food Ship Be Sent Quickly—Gov. Poindexter Says Outlook Is 'Becoming Serious.'

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—Thousands of maritime strikers paraded up Market street today in another effort to enlist public support while Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins forecast an "early end" to the ship tie-up and other Government officials started a movement to relieve Hawaii.

Two hundred longshoremen, with women and children headed the parade, which occupied the city's main thoroughfare for more than an hour.

Floats depicting the strikers' side of the long walkout—now in its thirty-eighth day—were sandwiched between long lines of men in working clothes, groups of women and children, allies of the 37,000 coast maritime men striking for what they term "fundamental" union issues. One float bore a portly individual in a silk hat leading a seaman with a hangman's noose.

Massed at Civic Center.

The paraders massed later in the civic center to hear speeches of union leaders at the City Hall. Mervyn Rathbone, a member of the Central Strike Committee, told the gathering that their demonstration was laying the foundation for a national maritime federation.

Pacific coast unions now are united in such a federation, along industrial union organization lines, but the federation is not recognized by either the American Federation of Labor or the shipowners. However, it is the central body behind the strike.

Secretary Perkins' Idea.

Secretary Perkins, in Lincoln, Neb., did not state the basis for her prediction of an early end to the strike but said "concessions and agreements have been made on both sides which have not been made public." She termed it "a very orderly strike."

Despite her statement, there was no outward sign of a resumption of peace negotiations, which came to a stop yesterday after having been in progress intermittently for several weeks.

In Washington Secretary of the Interior Ickes urged quick action toward sending a food-laden ship to strike-isolated Hawaii, where Gov. Joseph B. Poindexter reported the situation "becoming serious" regarding the need of certain supplies.

Poindexter repeated previous reports that potatoes and similar vegetables were virtually exhausted in the islands, that the rice, feed and flour supplies were nearly gone and that the canned milk situation was "alarming" because of its threat of infant mortality.

He Seeks Compromise.

Ickes asked Col. O. F. Ohlson, Interior Department representative, to arrange immediately for a conference with strikers, shipowners and Government officials with the view to working out a compromise permitting resumption of freight service to the islands.

The arrangements awaited the return of Ohlson here from Seattle where he was superintending the dispatch of a Government ship with supplies for Alaska.

Ten tons of ocean express arrived at Ketchikan from Prince Rupert, B. C., aboard the motorship Fairbanks today.

Other strikes continued to impede business on the coast and more business interests called for peace. Dr. William S. Schoenfeld told the Oregon Wheat League Conference that Northwest grain producers had lost $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 in the strike. Northwest lumbermen estimated the loss to employes at $1,718,000 and the reduction in sales at a like amount.

Observers here said $300,000,000 worth of cargo had been stopped or diverted to other transportation agencies since the strike started.

F. M. McAuliffe, concilliator for Mayor Angelo Rossi, announcer today the Warehousemen's Association accepted his compromise plan designed to end the 36-day warehouse strike. The proposal that the association pay $5.60 a day to regular warehousemen on a 40-hour week basis will be submitted to the Warehousemen's Union Monday night. If accepted, warehouse workers will receive 70 cents an hour, an increase from 62½ cents, on a 40-hour week basis, with time and a half for overtime.

French Dockworkers Lift Boycott; Normandie to Be Unloaded.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A deadlock between American and French longshoremen threatening to disorganize commerce between the two nations was broken today.

French Line officials said they expected 1100 tons of cargo would be unloaded from the liner Normandie when it arrives here Monday, as French dockworkers lifted their boycott against American ships.

The liner Champlain was forced to retrace its course across the Atlantic this week with 600 tons of cargo meant for America, because of retaliatory action taken here by American stevedores.

Their leader, Joseph Ryan, has given no assurance directly to the French Line that the Normandie will be unloaded, but he stated the American boycott would end as soon as the French one ended.

R. J. Baker, president of the American Steamship Owners' Association, said five American ships had to leave French ports during the last week without unloading cargo destined for those points.

The French boycott was launched in sympathy with the insurgent strike of rank and file seamen on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts. According to Ryan, the resultant embarrassment and financial loss to at least six trans-Atlantic liners was all due to a misunderstanding of facts.

"The French longshoremen thought that the strike of American seamen on the Atlantic and Gulf was official and had the approval of the American Federation of Labor," he said.

The Pacific Coast maritime strike is official in seven unions, including seamen and longshoremen, but the A. F. of L. has branded the East and Gulf coast walkout an "outlaw strike." It was called against the opposition of officers of the International Seamen's Union and longshoremen refused to join.

STUDENTS CAUSED CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL INQUIRY

Disillusioned Clients, Who Failed to Get Expected Jobs, Responsible for 32 Indictments.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 5.—Disillusioned students of the variously named correspondence schools of O. F. Schoeck of Alton, who were not placed in expected well-paying jobs after paying $75 to $200 for study courses, were responsible for the indictment of 32 salesmen for the school on mail fraud charges.

The indictments, returned here recently by a Federal grand jury, were suppressed pending the arrest of the defendants. So far six have been arrested and Postoffice Inspectors in several states are looking for the others.

The school promised to train men and women for jobs as secretaries, engineers and other technical occupations and, the indictments charge, falsely represented that it had connections with business firms which insured employment for those who completed its courses.

Conciliatory Letters.

Conciliatory letters sent by the school to disappointed students in widely separated cities are set out in the indictments. At one time, the Federal Trade Commission found in the course of an investigation of the school last year, it had 2500 students enrolled for a Diesel engineering course and 1500 for an air-conditioning course.

A letter from the school to Martin L. Doyle of Whitefish, Mont., is one of those set forth in the indictments. "I was very much surprised," the letter reads, "to learn from your letter of Dec. 30 that you are asking to discontinue your training with this school. When you first enrolled I thought that surely you were a young man of ambition and determination, anxious to complete whatever you began.

"I am indeed sorry that you are unemployed, but I am trusting that something will turn up for you soon. In the meanwhile, obstacles should serve only as a challenge to greater activity and to higher achievement. Surely you are not going to allow yourself to become discouraged now. Surely you can find some means whereby you can continue your specialized training. When you have finished your training, you will have the feeling that you have accomplished something worth while. You will not regret your investment.

"Come on, Mr. Doyle; let's keep those lessons coming this way!"

Another Letter.

Another letter, to Earl Price, of Muncie, Ind., was more terse. It reads:

"Today I received your application for a refund and upon checking your record here at school I notice your graduation date was Feb. 19. Therefore I am refusing to accept this application, because it was not received at the time specified in the written enrollment contract."

This letter was written last March 13, less than a month after the Federal Trade Commission had ordered the school to cease false and misleading advertising. The commission, after a hearing, found that the school advertised in "Help Wanted" columns for "clean-cut young men, mechanically inclined, to train for high salaried positions" and for "young women, with some knowledge of typing, to train for secretarial positions.. Answers were received from persons who thought they were applying for employment, the commission found, but applicants learned when salesmen called on them that the purpose of the advertisements was to sell correspondence courses.

Various Names.

The indictments allege that the school operated under various names, among them the O. F. Schoeck School, Schoeck Diesel Training Midwest Institute, Schoeck Technical Institute, Mildred Eleanor Studios and Midwest Institute.

Schoeck, who founded the school in 1929 following his graduation from Shurtleff College, was said to be on a business trip and was not expected back at his office in Alton until the middle of the month.

Those arrested so far are A. C. Andrews of Cleveland, O.; J. G. Burke of Chardon, O.; Earl Simmons of Cleveland; W. W. Beebe of Omaha, Neb.; J. L. Joseph of Livingston, Mont.; and Don Strader of Kansas City, Mo.

The names of the other 26 sought are withheld pending their arrest.

NEW JAPANESE DEMANDS ON CHINA AT TSINGTAO

Tokio Also Said to Have Arranged to Move Subjects in Event of Trouble.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Dec. 6 (Sunday.)—The Ministers of War, Navy and Foreign Affairs were reported today to have reached a decision for the removal of Japanese subjects, in event of future trouble, from points in the interior of China to cities where they could be under protection of Japanese arms.

A four-point demand for presentation in Tsingtao was reported today from Tsingtao to have been decided on in a conference aboard a warship by War, Navy and Foreign Office officials.

These demands, which were reported to have been drafted for presentation to the Mayor of Tsingtao, Shen Hung Lieh, were said to include:

Japanese co-operation in maintaining peace and order pending settlement of a cotton-mill strike in Tsingtao.

Discharge of municipal officials involved in the strike.

Dissolution of the local branches of the Kuomingtang (organization for the regeneration of China.)

SEVEN FALSE FIRE ALARMS IN ONE NIGHT; YOUTH HELD

Clifford Pope, 23, Admits Offenses, Pleading He Was Drunk; Felony Warrants Issued.

Two felony warrants charging Clifford Pope, 23 years old, 4024A Labadie avenue, with turning in false fire alarms were issued yesterday by the Circuit Attorney's office. The maximum punishment is two years in the penitentiary.

Pope was arrested early yesterday after seven false fire alarms were sent in during 50 minutes from boxes in North St. Louis. He admitted that he had called out the department in each instance, explaining that he had been drinking. He was picked up while on his way nome after the seventh alarm, on a description furnished police by persons who saw him near an alarm box.

The first alarm sounded at 3:10 a. m. from Vandeventer and Evans avenues. The others followed, two being sent in from a box at Sarah street and Labadie avenue within 15 minutes.

CONFIDENCE VOTE GIVEN BLUM ON POLICY IN SPAIN

French Deputies Indorse Non-Intervention 350 to 171, Communists Refusing to Cast Ballots.

PREMIER ANNOUNCES CABINET WON'T QUIT

Says Fascist Rule at Madrid, If Linked With That in Italy and Germany Would Be Menace.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—Premier Leon Blum's Popular Front Government won a substantial majority in a vote of confidence today in his policy of non-intervention in the Spanish civil war. The vote in the Chamber of Deputies was 350 to 171.

The cabinet crisis developed suddenly when the Communists in Blum's coalition government decided to abstain from voting on the call for confidence Blum demanded. They oppose the non-intervention policy.

Gaining unexpected Rightist support for his foreign policy Blum asserted that the cabinet would be unable to continue if the Communists left the majority.

A hurriedly called caucus of the Socialist party advised Blum to remain in power on the strength of the vote despite the fact the Communists had decided to abstain from voting.

Blum Announces He Will Stay.

Although the Socialists themselves were divided into two camps, one advising the Premier to refuse to carry on in the face of the Communist refusal to vote the general opinion was that the Communist action did not constitute a technical desertion of the Popular Front majority.

After the vote was tabulated Blum appeared in the Chamber and announced the Government would not resign.

"I must repeat what I said in Parliament," Blum told the Deputies, "that is not only a question of surviving the stress of one hour, but it is a question of solving our difficulties in such a fashion that tomorrow a united action can be followed under conditions of confidence and loyalty. It is for the future to show us how the Communist party will act."

Feeling in the Socialist party was that the Premier should make a strong declaration that the Communist attacks must be stopped.

Fascist Spain Called Menace.

In the speech in which he called for a vote of confidence Blum reaffirmed his determination to stay out of Spain, and asserted that if a dictatorship should be set up by victorious insurgents, it would constitute "a menace to peace" and would disturb "French solidarity." This would come about, he declared, if the Spanish dictatorship should be linked with the present governments in Italy and Germany which already have announced recognition of the Spanish insurgent Gen. Francisco Franco.

The Premier, in pleading for Parliament to approve his hands-off policy in Spain, said it had not "achieved all expected of it, but that is no reason to condemn it."

Communist Explanation.

Jacques Duclos, Communist leader, in explaining the Communist abstention from voting, made what many deputies considered a veiled threat of new occupation strikes which have been harrassing the Blum Government recently.

The Communist party, however, in a later statement said: "The party affirms anew its loyal support of the Government for application of the program of the people's front."

The statement said the Communist "by abstention refused to approve the blockade of republican Spain as contrary to the spirit of the people's front program. It (the party) manifests its desire not to have to give a similar vote in the future and wishes to collaborate in the Government's work."

Ex-Premier Pierre Etienne Flandin said: "When we vote for the Government, we vote against war for Spain. We vote for peace against all interference which would lead us to war."

Applause greeted the ex-Premier from all benches except those occupied by the Communists, who sat in silence.

EX-ST. LOUISAN KILLED IN AUTO ON WAY BACK FOR CHRISTMAS

Harry Carness Victim When Car Skids, Upsets Near Springfield, Ill.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 5.—Harry Carness, a Chicago salesman, was killed and his wife suffered a sprained ankle this afternoon when their car overturned after skidding on a wet pavement on Highway 66 several miles north of here.

Carness, who was 48 years old, was on his way to spend the Christmas holidays with his niece, Mrs. A. C. Anderson, 4069 Castleman avenue, St. Louis.

He formerly was stationed in St. Louis, moving to Chicago about three months ago.

RAILROAD THAT TAPPED VAST COLORADO RICHES DOOMED

DENVER, Dec. 5. — A twisting, climbing ribbon of steel—the highest railroad in the United States—over which much of the great fortune of Colorado's mineral wealth has been transported for 57 years, will be abandoned or sold on Dec. 12.

The Colorado & Southern Railroad on that date will shut down its famous Leadville (Colo.) or South Park branch, which crosses the Continental Divide at 11,494 feet above sea level.

Built in 1879 when H. A. W. Tabor, Colorado's "Silver King," was becoming accustomed to his "Midas" touch, and prospectors were becoming wealthy over night, the 185-mile line has been ordered abandoned by the Interstate Commerce Commission because of lack of business. Under the order, the railroad will be offered for sale, and if no bid is received, it will be dismantled.

Millions of dollars' worth of gold, silver, lead and other valuable ores have been hauled from Leadville to Denver, the location of the nearest smelter. While the road was being built, it showed an operating income of $1,826,924, or enough to show a profit over and above construction costs.

In recent years, traffic has been confined to a two-car passenger train a day each way, and an occasional four or five car freight train. Four loaded freight cars are all the midget engines can pull over the steep grades, and old-timers remember an occasion when elephants were borrowed from a circus to help push the train.

C. F. BATES ESTATE VALUED AT $215,000 IN INVENTORY

Bonds Worth $99,000 Included in the Property of Retired Business Man.

The estate of Charles F. Bates, retired business man who died July 5, is valued at $215,257 in an inventory filed in Probate Court yesterday. Principal assets listed are bonds valued at $99,837; notes, $5000; certificates of deposit, $40,200; corporation stock, $52,880; cash, $9073; chattels, $3746; and realty at 4325 Westminster place appraised at $4500.

In his will Mr. Bates, who resided at the Greystone apartments, McPherson and Newstead avenues, created a $30,000 trust fund for the benefit of his sister, Mrs. Althea Walbridge Kline, and divided the rest of his property among his daughters, Mrs. Arthur G. Hiemenz and Mrs. William Geoffrey Kimball, and a son, former State Senator William Maffitt Bates, an attorney. The son and the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. were named as co-executors and trustees.

The interest of each daughter was left in a separate trust to be handled by the trustees.

Hannibal Radio Station Hearing.
By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. — The Communications Commission has set for Dec. 7 hearing on two applications for authority to construct a new radio station at Hannibal, Mo. Applicants are the Courier-Post Publishing Co., and the Hannibal Broadcasting Co., both asked for a frequency of 1310 kilocycles, the former proposing to operate with 100 watts power at night, 250 watts daytime, the latter with 100 watts power, unlimited time.

RUSSIA CHANGES CONSTITUTION TO AID FRENCH PACT

Government Authorized to Fight "to Fulfill International Obligations" in Revision.

ALL-UNION CONGRESS GIVES APPROVAL

Provisions Include Two-House Parliament — Silence Greets Freedom of Religion Article.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Dec. 5.—Soviet Russia bolstered its military alliance with France today as the All-Union Congress of Soviets gave final approval to a new constitution which authorizes the Government to declare war "in case of necessity."

Among the sweeping governmental changes provided for in the new charter were creation of a two-house Parliament to be elected by equal and direct popular vote and protection of private property already held.

Informed persons, pointing to the fact the original draft of the constitution permitted a declaration of war only in the event of "an armed attack against the U. S. S. R.," said revisions which the Congress approved would give new force to the French-Soviet agreement for mutual aid.

They also interpreted it as a strong answer to the recent agreement between Germany and Japan to fight Communism.

To Fulfill Obligations.

The revised document authorizes the Government to fight "in a case of necessity to fulfill international obligations arising out of mutual assistance pacts."

It provides for establishment of a commissariat of military industry, a step which observers considered significant inasmuch as it will permit concentration of military defense preparations and the speeding up of the Red Army's supply organizaiton.

The 2016 delegates to the All-Union Congress—meeting for the last time before abolition of the group under the new charter—cheered and sang the "Internationale" immediately after the constitution was adopted unanimously by a show of their red cards.

Then the Congress adjourned to end the 10-day meeting during which discussion of the document was their only task.

Silence on Religious Freedom.

Applause greeted the reading of each article up to the one hundred and twenty-fourth, which grants religious freedom. Then complete silence reigned.

Tumultuous clapping followed acceptance of article 126, which gives the Communist party official recognition in the constitution for the first time.

The Congress voted to put the new charter into effect immediately and proclaimed Dec. 5 a national holiday in the future.

The Central Executive Committee was empowered to call elections to select members of the new Parliament, called the Supreme Council. It will consist of two chambers which will choose a Supreme Council Presidium of 37 members to perform as a legislative body between sessions of the Supreme Council. The presidium is to convene meetings of the Supreme Council.

The highest executive body is to be the Council of People's Commissars, which will be responsible to the Supreme Council.

Even Clergy Get Suffrage.

Even the clergy—totaling 100,000—and the old nobility are included in the grant of equal suffrage.

Freedom of religion is recognized, and on this point the Constitution says:

"To ensure to citizens freedom of religion, the church in the U. S. S. R. is separated from the state and the school from the church. Freedom to perform religious rites and freedom of anti-religious propaganda is recognized for all citizens."

There is provision also for freedom of speech, the press and public assembly.

Private Property Protected.

Private property—which has been held to a certain extent even since the organization of the U. S. S. R.—is protected. The Government guarantees that no longer will citizens have to fear their homes may be taken from them at any moment by the state.

In industry, however, state ownership still is maintained, except in cases of co-operative organizations or small businesses in which one man does all the work.

The new Constitution holds employment is not only the right of every loyal and able-bodied citizen but his obligation, and asserts there will be more than enough jobs for many years.

Heavy Grasshopper Infestation.

AMES, Ia., Dec. 5.—State Entomologist C. J. Drake said this week that "conditions in the Midwest threaten one of the worst and most widespread grasshopper invasions in the history of the nation." We discovered that severe cold does not destroy the grasshoppers, which live through the winter in the egg stage. Chinch bugs are killed by severe winters such as last year."

CORPORATE MEDICAL PRACTICE TO BE SUBJECT OF TEST SUIT

Physicians' Society Empowers Committee to Prepare Action to Determine Legality.

Members of the St. Louis Medical Society recently passed a resolution empowered the Medico-Legal Committee of the organization to prepare suit against a defendant, to be selected later, to test the legality "of the corporate practice of medicine." Physicians and others will be asked to subscribe to a fund to finance the proceeding.

The action, ratified by a large majority of the membership in a special referendum, followed months of discussion of the problem in ethics and economics created by "a mushroom growth of corporate practice throughout the country." The practice, held illegal by court decisions in some States, may be defined in general terms as the employment of doctors on a salary basis by business firms, factories or other organizations, to furnish ordinary medical services to employes or members of the organizations, and frequently to their immediate families. The salaries of the physicians whose services are thus contracted are usually paid out of a general fund from dues paid by his prospective patients.

DIPLOMATIC PROBLEM OF MIXED MARRIAGES

State Department Explains President's Recent Order to U. S. Representatives Abroad.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Embarrassing experiences of the United States Government during and after the World War were the background of President Roosevelt's recent order discouraging marriages of United States diplomats to foreigners.

The order requires diplomatic and consular officers below the rank of Ambassador and Minister to obtain permission from the Secretary of State before conracting such marriages. Expulsion from the service is the penalty for violation.

In view of international bitterness and rivalries, it was explained, this Government, could not with propriety, assign to Berlin, for example, a diplomat or consular official with a Russian wife, or send to Moscow an officer with a German wife.

The problem of "availability" of officers was demonstrated during the early part of the World War, when the United States, as a neutral, took over representation of the interests of certain Allied Powers within enemy territory, and of the Central Powers within allied territory. When this Government assumed charge of British interests in the Central Power countries, it found those of its own officers who either were naturalized citizens of German nativity or were married to German women were unavailable for service in guarding British interests.

This was not because they were not as loyal, faithful and intelligent as other officers, but because the prejudice against Germany and the Central Powers was so strong that British officials could not believe such officers could give adequate and impersonal protection to their country's interests.

The result was that numerous foreign service officers had to be recalled to duty in the State Department or relegated to isolated posts until the war's end.

"We may expect a repetition of this situation if the United States should again be called on to assume charge of the interests of belligerents in some future conflict," a source close to the administration explained.

"With 59, or 12 per cent, of the 683 foreign service officers now married to persons of foreign nationality and an equal number whose wives were foreign and have since become naturalized, it is not difficult to foresee some of the problems which we may be called on to face some time in the future, unless some check is put on these marriages.

READING (PA.) JAIL CROWDED WITH LIE-DOWN STRIKERS

63 Prisoners Removed to Other Quarters to Make Room for Arrested Pickets

By the Associated Press.

READING, Pa., Dec. 5.—Authorities took 63 prisoners today from the Berks County Jail to other quarters to relieve the overcrowded conditions at the jail which resulted from daily arrests of "lie-down" pickets at the Berkshire knitting mills during the last week.

Police arrested 147 pickets, including 43 women. They were sentenced to 30-day jail terms after refusing to pay fines on charges of obstructing the sidewalks. The pickets blocked the main entrance to the mill by lying down in front of the gate. Hosiery union officers, who called the strike at the plant Oct. 1, said a mass meeting would be called to discuss a general strike in the Berks County hosiery industry if any of the imprisoned pickets were taken to jails outside the county.

GEORGE W. ALSCHULER INQUEST

Put Off Pending Recovery of Aurora Publisher, Two Others.

By the Associated Press.

AURORA, Ill., Dec. 5.—An inquest into the death of George W. Alschuler, 72 years old, former Aurora mayor and state legislator, was postponed today pending the recovery of three persons injured in the same automobile accident in which Alschuler lost his life today.

The injured, Alfred Hirsh, 70, president and publisher of the Aurora Beacon-News; Irving Lisberg, 36, news dealer, and Mrs. Rose Borman, 38, were reported not seriously hurt. The accident occurred when the four were returning home about 4:30 a. m. after attending a birthday party for Hirsh. The car skidded on an icy street and crashed into a pole. Alschuler died an hour and a half later. The victim, a cachelor, was minority leader of the State Assembly from 1909 to 1913. A brother, Judge Samuel Alschuler, resigned last May as presiding justice of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Kentucky Congressman Dies.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 5.—Congressman Glover H. Cary, 51 years old, of Owensboro, Ky., representative from the Second Kentucky District, died at 9:25 tonight from complications resulting from a pneumonia attack last winter. Congressman Cary had submitted to the third transfusion in four days today. He had been in the hospital since August.

George Clisbee Dead.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—George Howard Henry Harrison Clisbee, artist and author, died at a hospital today after an operation. He was 41 years ago. He was art editor of the Cleveland Daily News for eight years. He signed his art work, "Klitz."

$82,700 IN WISCONSIN JOB INSURANCE PAID

Total of 6700 Benefited by Money From 517 Employers Who Laid Them Off.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 5.—From Aug. 17, when the State Industrial Commission issued the first unemployment insurance check in the country, to Nov. 30, benefits totaling $82,733 have been paid to 6700 persons. The money to meet the checks came from the 517 employers who laid off these persons.

The provision that makes each employer responsible only for his own workers is a feature of the Wisconsin law. Each employer contributes a payroll tax to a general reserve fund, now totaling more than $14,000,000, but his account is segregated in the same manner as a depositors account in a bank. He is required to keep his contribution at a specific level.

The steady growth of benefit payments, the administrators say, is not an indication of increasing unemployment but a normal result of the operation of the law.

The ratio for determining benefits under the Wisconsin law is one week of benefits—at half pay—for each four weeks of employment. The first man to receive a check last August was paid from his employers fund for only one week and got $15, which is the maximum weekly benefit.

Some of those laid off at a later date, depending on how long they were laid off, received more than one check.

By next July it will be possible for a worker to draw 13 weeks of benefits. In some cases a worker after that date could receive as many as 20 benefit checks in a year.

Not all of those who are gainfully employed are eligible to participation under the unemployment insurance law. Any person who receives $150 a month for 10 months in a year is regarded as a salaried worker. He cannot claim benefits if he does not work the other two months.

EXTORTION SUSPECT

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

JAMES FRANK HALL,

Sun's Rays Explode Nitro Cache.

By the Associated Press.

FINDLAY, O., Dec. 5.—Thirty-two Civilian Conservation Corps youths escaped injury by 20 minutes, when a quart of nitroglycerine which they had uncovered exploded after they had gone home. The blast rattled windows more than a mile away. Explosive experts said the sun's rays had caused the nitroglycerine to explode. The workers evidently uncovered two quarts of the explosive wrapped in a burlap sack, but had not noticed it.

DEATH THREAT IN EXTORTION NOTES TO GINGER ROGERS

Sailor Said by Federal Agents to Have Admitted Sending Letters.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—An attempt to extort $5000 from Ginger Rogers, movie dancer, resulted in the arrest of James F. Hall, 20 years old, identified as a sailor on the Navy's aircraft carrier Lexington, about midnight last night near a Long Beach cafe where Miss Rogers had been directed to leave the money. Hall was held under $25,000 bond.

Federal agents said Hall confessed he was the author of the letters which threatened death to the actress.

J. H. Hanson, chief of the Los Angeles office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said Hall wrote two letters to Miss Rogers postmarked Nov. 26 and Nov. 28. Mrs. Rogers disclosed receipt of threatening notes Thursday night, but said she and her daughter had been unconcerned over them. She said the threat in the letters was "to shoot us full of holes until we looked like sieves."

Shot in Eye by Playmate.

James Dyer Jr., 14 years old, of 9910 Linn avenue, Luxemburg, was wounded in the right eye yesterday afternoon by a pellet from an air rifle fired by a playmate. The boy, who stated that he and his friend were shooting at each other in his back yard, was taken to St. Louis County Hospital.

PROBATION OFFICER, DEPUTY EXCHANGE THEIR POSITIONS

Gilbert Weiss Will Practice Law; Andre Chopin Gets $1000 Salary Increase.

Gilbert Weiss, supervising probation officer for the Courts of Domestic Relations, and Felix Andre Chopin, deputy supervising officer, have exchanged positions to enable Weiss to devote more time to his private practice of law, it was announced yesterday by Judge Eugene J. Sartorius of the Court of Domestic Relations.

The two submitted their resignations to Judge Sartorius, who immediately appointed each to the other's former position. The change carries a salary increase for Chopin from $2000 to $3000 a year.

Weiss has been associated with the probation department of the Domestic Relations Courts since 1928, having been transferred from probation work in the Juvenile Court. Chopin, also an attorney, was deputy supervising probation officer for about a year.

NEGRO UNIONS ASK BOARD TO SELECT NEW SCHOOL SITE

Continue in Petition With Assertion Whites Have Ignored Their Right to Work.

ALSO URGE MORE BE CHOSEN TO TEACH

Assert Race Barriers Remind Children of Their Peculiar Situation in Community.

A petition has been sent to the Board of Education by the St. Louis Workers' Council, representative of Negro unions, urging the board not to carry out its plan of erecting a Negro elementary school on the Vashon High School grounds and requesting employment of Negro mechanics in construction and repair of Negro schools.

As has been told, a suit by other Negro objectors to the school site, to prevent the board from using this location, has been set for hearing before Circuit Judge Granville Hogan Thursday.

The Workers' Council petition recited that the council, which adopted the communication unanimously, represented organizations with membership of 1500, and that it joined in the same objections as to suitability and sufficiency of the Vashon site made by other protestants.

"Consistently Ignored."

It continued with the assertion that the right of Negroes to work had been "consistently ignored" in connection with the schools, and said:

"The council takes the position that the board should extend its policy of employing Negro teachers, clerks, etc., in those schools set apart for Negro children to include Negro skilled mechanics in the construction and maintenance of these school buildings. It is impossible for the Negro students attending Booker T. Washington Vocational School to acquire the desired attitude toward the building trades taught there; if their only knowledge of the situation for Negro mechanics is that of workers about the city building ashpits, shacks and occasionally small buildings."

The petition was signed by officers of the following unions: Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, Electricians' Association, National Association of Brakemen-Porters, Building Service & Maintenance Workers' Association, Dining Car Employes, Painters and Decorators' Association, Longshoremen's Union, Moving Picture Operators' Union and Musicians' Equity Association.

Letter to Dr. Sullivan.

In an accompanying letter to Dr. Francis C. Sullivan, president of the Board of Education, T. D. McNeal, secretary of the Workers' Council, said:

"We take the position that the best education should be given the young without regard to race. Our boys and girls likewise feel this way very strongly. It follows then that both of the matters which we are calling to your attention constitute for our children, not good education looking forward to progress, but two objectionable barriers that at best can only be interpreted as means of reminding Negro children of their peculiar situation in the community.

"Please understand that we take this position out of necessity. The force of obvious unfair acts can have but one effect on any people, more especially when these acts tend in the first instance to deprive people of a right to earn a living and in the other instance to disregard the welfare of their children."

Wants to Submit Case.

McNeal requested that a committee of the Workers' Council be permitted to lay the case of Negro building mechanics before the Board of Education.

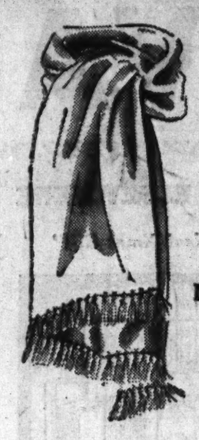

Previous efforts to obtain employment of Negro mechanics by the board have failed. The Negro building workers generally have not been in the American Federation of Labor, and for that reason school officials have feared labor difficulties if Negroes were hired. A specific request to the board was made two and a half years ago by the Allied Building Contractors' Association and Allied Building Crafts Union, which were supporting the idea of a vertical union in the construction industry, in opposition to the A. F. L. craft union idea. Negro workers were included in the Allied Building Crafts Union, of which little has been heard lately.

COTTON BELT HEARING PUT OFF

Reorganization Proceedings Postponed at Request of Trustee.

Federal Court hearing on classification of creditors of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railroad in the reorganization proceedings under the amended bankruptcy act was postponed from next Friday to Jan. 29 yesterday on application of Trustee Berryman Henwood.

The hearing, on Henwood's petition for classification, was set originally for last May 9. The amended bankruptcy act requires approval of two-thirds of each class of creditors for adoption of a reorganization plan.

UNITED CHARITIES ASK CORPORATIONS TO INCREASE GIFTS

30 Pct. Addition to Contributions Requested in Letter—20 Firms Already Have Complied.

PLEA MADE ALSO TO INDIVIDUAL GIVERS

Those Donating $100 or More Are Appealed to for 20 Pct. Extra in Effort to Meet 1937 Needs.

Letters are being sent by United Charities to corporations, and to all individuals who gave $100 or more in the recent campaign in an effort to obtain increased contributions.

Although the campaign formally ended last Tuesday, with pledges of $2,115,964 received, the follow-up solicitation now being conducted is expected to increase the total to at least as much as was raised last year, $2,184,146. The total pledged this year was 81.3 per cent of the $2,600,000 sought.

Letters to corporations, signed by Fred L. English, campaign chairman, and Robert L. Lund, chairman of the corporation unit, ask for increases of 30 per cent in gifts already made and state that 20 corporations have agreed to increase their gifts by that amount.

Centralization Deplored.

"We are confident," the letters add, that you will meet this challenge because of the interest you have shown in subscribing to these charities so vital to St. Louis.

"We deplore the centralization of relief in Washington, but unless we support our own charities, there can be no alternative.

"The corporations' part of the quota in St. Louis is almost 25 per cent less than in a dozen other comparable cities.

"There seems no way to justify this difference. Subscriptions in sight do not equal last year's total. In the light of greatly improved business, this showing is extremely disappointing.

"A card is enclosed for the increase in your subscription. May we urge that you make this increase as large as by any means possible, so that our St. Louis record, particularly that of corporations, may be at least creditable."

Letters to Individuals.

The letters to donors of $100 or more, signed by Oliver F. Richards, president of United Charities, ask for increased contributions of 20 per cent.

"It is hard to believe that, in a year of better business, big bonuses, extra dividends, our charities must struggle along with less money than was raised at the depth of the depression," these letters state.

"It is not like St. Louis to deliberately neglect its poor. Yet countless families besieged by illness and broken by mental, physical and moral problems, will suffer this winter as never before if we do not supply sufficient funds for their care. Other cities comparable to St. Louis have reached their goals. Reports from other campaigns show returns far in excess of last year.

"You are a contributor to United Charities but, in the light of a grave emergency, we are asking you to make an additional pledge. If those who can will add 20 per cent to their present subscriptions we can show the world that St. Louis is capable of taking care of its own people.

"For the sake of the thousands who will be in distress this winter unless we come to their aid, won't you please help out by signing the enclosed 'Special Emergency Gift' pledge? It will be the finest Christmas gift you will make this year."

NEW SECTION OF EXPRESS HIGHWAY TO BE OPEN JAN. 1

Section Between Vandeventer and Kingshighway; Non-Glare Lights in Park Portion.

The one-mile section of the new express highway between Vandeventer avenue and Kingshighway will be opened to traffic about Jan. 1, it was announced yesterday by Robert W. Hodson, division engineer of the State Highway Department. The two-mile stretch in Forest Park, between Kingshighway and Skinker boulevard, has been in use for several months.

Most construction has been completed in the eastern section, but work on a bridge carrying Taylor avenue across the depressed highway has to be finished this month. Scaffolding blocks the road in the meanwhile. Traffic has been diverted in the park a short distance west of Kingshighway. A contract probably will be awarded shortly, under a bid received by the State last week, for a bridge to extend the highway over Vandeventer avenue, connecting with the Chouteau avenue viaduct. Its erection likely will be completed next summer.

The eastern section of the highway will be illuminated with non-glare sodium vapor lights, like those in the park portion, but they may not be ready by Jan. 1. The Board of Aldermen has not yet acted on a pending bill to increase the maximum speed permissible on the express route from 30 to 45 miles an hour.

A. & P. TO PAY FLORIDA TAXES

Announces Willingness to Remit if Penalties Are Dropped.

By the Associated Press.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Dec. 5.—The Great Aclantic and Pacific Tea Co. announced readiness to pay its chain store taxes today, and a fight of 18 months appeared near an end. The company telegraphed Comptroller J. M. Lee it would pay the $93,000 taxes if the Comptroller would cancel penalties.

By telegraph the Comptroller offered to withdraw pending criminal prosecutions against the company on payment, but he said payment "must include penalties."

William Gillette, Actor, Ill.

By the Associated Press.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 5.—William Gillette, 81-year-old actor, is a patient in the Hartford Hospital, it was disclosed today, recovering from what his physician said was a "bad cold." Dr. John A. Wentworth, who is attending Gillette, said a blood transfusion had been administered but his condition was not serious.

29,000 PERSONS SEE BOY SCOUT CIRCUS

More than 14,000 relatives and friends last night saw 10,000 Scouts, Sea Scouts and Cubs present the final performance of the Scout Circus at the Arena.

In the two nights of the circus 29,000 persons saw the scouts build cities and Ozark homesteads, apply first aid to injured persons, copy the Indian in his dancing routines, and balance themselves in intricate designs on skates and bicycles.

The same traffic problems as Friday night arose last night, even when cars were parked in Forest Park as far north as the New Jewel Box as early as 7 p. m. Parents, determined to arrive on time to at least one scout circus in their lives, were rebuffed by traffic jams. However, more persons were able to see the colorful grand entry last night than on Friday.

The events of the circus ran smoother and faster last night with more spontaneous applause on the part of the audience. The events causing the most enthusiasm were: the grand entry, the tornado event, the Indian dancing, the skates and wheels act.

A definite drive on the part of the St. Louis Council of the Boy Scouts of America to increase the number of scouts here was shown last night when E. D. Nims, president of the Council, presented honor streamers to 187 scouting units, because they had increased their membership since Oct. 1.

"Since October," Nims told a Post-Dispatch reporter, "1540 boys have joined the ranks of scouting, and 17 new troops have been formed here." The Council now has a total of 10,282 Boy Scouts, Sea Scouts and Cubs, the largest number of boys ever to join scouting in St. Louis and St. Louis County, according to Nims.

If membership increases much more, however, the Scouts will have to present their circus outside, for again last night the Arena was filled to capacity, 14,000 persons risking the slippery streets to attend the Circus.

The Scouts showed their appreciation Friday night to Clarence Howard Jr., chairman of the circus, by formally presenting his mother, Mrs. Clarence Howard, with a large bouquet of chrysanthemums. Last night Mrs. E. D. Nims, wife of the president of the Council, was given a bouquet of American roses as a token of thanks for the effort her husband has exerted to advance scouting here.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OF JOYCE KILMER, POET

Civic Ceremony at New Brunswick, N. J., Where Man Who Wrote "Trees" Was Born.

By the Associated Press.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Dec. 5.—Joyce Kilmer, who wrote: "I think that I shall never see a poem lovely as a tree," would have been 50 years old tomorrow, had he not been killed in action in France in 1918.

New Brunswick, his birthplace, marked the occasion with a civic ceremony today. Joyce Kilmer Post of the American Legion will observe the anniversary tomorrow.

In Who's Who at 25, Kilmer was well-to-do when he enlisted for war service, and was widely known for his poetry, his prose in the form of book reviews and feature articles, and his lectures.

JUVENILE CALF CLUB SHOW HAS MORE THAN 400 ENTRIES

Ninth Annual Contest and Auction This Week, Sponsored by Livestock Exchange.

The ninth annual boys' and girls' calf club show and auction sponsored by the St. Louis Livestock Exchange will be held Thursday and Friday at the National Stockyards, East St. Louis. More than 400 entries have been received from Missouri, Illinois, Iowa and Arkansas.

Judging of entries will begin Thursday morning and continue throughout the day. The association will hold a banquet at Hotel Jefferson Thursday evening, and the prize calves will be sold at auction at noon Friday at the stockyards.

Entries are restricted to three breeds, Aberdeen Angus, Shorthorns and Whitefaced Herefords. They must be between 9 and 18 months old and must be owned by boys or girls between 7 and 18 years of age. Most of the contestants are members of 4-H clubs or students of vocational agricultural schools.

There will be two classes of entries for each of the three breeds, one class consisting of all entries of more than 940 pounds, the other, all weighing less than 940 pounds. There will be 15 prizes for each class, ranging from $2 to $25, a $100 prize for grand champion of the show, and a $50 second general prize.

Illinois Takes Cattle Show Honors

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Illinois farmers and stock men took first place at the thirty-seventh international live stock exhibition which closed tonight. Exhibitors from Illinois took away 44 championships and 148 first places of the totals of 206 and 543 respectively, awarded during the week. Indiana got second place in today's tabulation. Missouri took 19.

Kentucky Leads in Whisky Output.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 — Kentucky led all other states in liquor production for the fiscal year ended June 30 this year, the Treasury Department reported today. The Bluegrass State produced 73,674,523 gallons of whisky, or more than a third of the national total of 223,659,539 gallons. To produce Kentucky's third required a total of 15,479,352 bushels of grain.

GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY INDORSED AT BUENOS AIRES

Brazilian Delegate Declares Accord With Roosevelt Idea — Hull's 8-Point Peace Program.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 5. — The United States urged co-operative organization for peace, and Brazil promised full support of President Roosevelt's "Good Neighbor" policy at the second plenary session of the inter-American Peace Conference today.

United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull, one of the 21 heads of delegations to outline national policies, proposed an eight-point program to maintain American peace and, by example help avert strife abroad, where, he said, "statesmen are shouting threats of war."

Jose Carlos Macedo Soares, Foreign Minister of Brazil, declared: "I proclaim Brazil's full solidarity with the good neighbor policy. The great pertrubing forces in international society are the alarming antagonism in the economic field and the financial oppression of certain peoples. In America those elements of discord are checked by special conditions which enable free expansion of internal markets."

American League of Nations.

A proposal that the conference move to create an American League of Nations was presented by the delegation from the dominican republic. Its fate was doubtful, inasmuch as some larger nations such as Brazil and Chile already had announced their opposition to it. It was understood the United States and Argentina also would not welcome the establishment of such an organization.

Under the dominican plan, all the American republics would unite against outside aggression, and would renounce war, intervention and forceful acquisition of territory. They would prepare for the establishment of an inter-American court. A permanent executive council would be set up, including one representative from each of the 21 American republics. A special assembly would be called in the event of inter-American war.

Limitation of armaments to the amount required for national defense and prohibition of sale of arms to private citizens of other nations would be two provisions of the league accord.

Indirect Opposition.

Macedo Soares indirectly opposed the inter-American court plan in his speech by praising The Hague Court of International Justice.

"In no manner should we isolate ourselves from the rest of the world," said Soares. "We should give it a great example. We should initiate a new policy of international fraternity."

Although not mentioning the American League of Nations—which he previously had opposed in speeches—Macedo Soares said American nations should weigh the errors of the Geneva body but at the same time should keep its difficulties in mind, "owing to the disconcert of European passions and interests."

Hull's 8-Point Proposal.

Secretary Hull asserted peace and prosperity rested on "eight pillars of peace":

1. Internal quiet and education.
2. Frequent international conferences.
3. Swift ratification of existing peace pacts.
4. Adoption of a common neutrality policy.
5. Fair and equal commercial policies.
6. Practical international co-operation.
7. Strengthening of international law.
8. Faithful observance of the sanctity of treaties.

"I strongly entertain the hope," Hull said, "that a united group of American nations may take common action at this conference further to assure peace among themselves and define their attitude toward war; and that this action may not only demonstrate the happy position of the new world, but, though designed primarily for our own benefit, embody policies of world application, and correspond to the views and interests of nations outside this hemisphere."

Broken Treaties.

Asserting that international agreements had lost their force as a basis of relations between nations, Hull said: "This extremely ominous and fateful development constitutes the most dangerous single phenomenon in the world of today.

"It is to the interest of everyone that there be an end of treaties broken by arbitrary unilateral action. Peaceful procedure, agreements between the signatories, and mutual understanding must be restored as the means of modifying or ending international agreements."

Hull received an ovation.

Committees in a Snarl.

Disputes over technical questions jammed the machinery of the Committee on Organization of Peace, the most important subdivision of the conference, and the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation. Chairmen of both committees had trouble quieting the arguing delegates, but compromises were reached.

The peace committee was debating whether sub-committees or individuals should report on the various peace projects submitted to it. The United States took no part until the discussion became heated, when Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles declared in favor of the sub-committee plan, which was adopted soon afterward in a modified form.

MRS. WILLIAM F. RANDOLPH DIES IN NEW YORK AFTER FALL

Mrs. Carleton H. Randolph of St. Louis, widow of William Fitzhugh Randolph, former member of the legal department of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, died in a New York hotel yesterday of a heart attack which followed a fall. She was about 70 years old.

Mrs. Randolph, whose home formerly was at 5624 Bartmer avenue, went to New York six weeks ago with a daughter, Miss Cary H. Randolph, a teacher at the Adams School, who obtained a leave of absence last September in order to travel with her mother. Surviving also are two other daughters, Miss Marie F. Randolph, a teacher at Cleveland High School, and Miss Elizabeth C. Randolph, a teacher at Webster School. The body will be returned here for burial.

2 Per Cent Bonus to 15,000 Workers.
By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A bonus amounting to 2 per cent of each worker's base wage was announced today by Gimbel Bros., department store operators. In effect this means a little more than one week's salary will be paid to every employe, it was said. The total amount will be $300,000 and will be paid next week. This bonus is in addition to any existing compensation or bonus arrangements. The Gimbel chain employs more than 15,000 persons in five cities.

MAN WHO DIED IN GUATEMALA TO BE BURIED IN ST. LOUIS

Herbert A. Spies, Engineer, Succumbed When at Work in Puerto Barrios.

The body of Herbert A. Spies, structural engineer who died Tuesday of apoplexy in Puerto Barrios, Guatemala, is being sent to St. Louis for burial. He was 44 years old and had lived here until 1912.

He was employed in St. Louis as a draftsman in the construction of the Railway Exchange building. He went from here to Buffalo, then spent six years in Peru and Bolivia. During the last two years he worked for the International Railways concern in Guatemala, spending most of his time rebuilding bridges washed out during the rainy season.

He died when inspecting a railroad and was buried within 24 hours, in accordance with Guatemala law. The company which employed him had the body disinterred and it will be reburied in New St. Marcus Cemetery here.

Surviving are his wife, his daughter, Miss Lois Spies, and son, Herbert A. Spies Jr., who have been living in New York during the last two years. His mother, Mrs. Carrie Spies, lives at 6106 Alaska avenue and a brother, Fred Spies, resides at 5633 Dewey avenue.

WOMAN DEAD OF MONOXIDE POISONING IN GARAGE

Mrs. David McConnell Jr., Daughter-in-Law of Wealthy New York Perfume Manufacturer.

By the Associated Press.

RAMAPO, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Coroner J. C. Dingman of Rockland County, said tonight Mrs. David McConnell Jr., 23-year-old daughter-in-law of a wealthy New York perfume manufacturer, was found dead from monoxide poisoning in the garage of her home here today. He said an inquest would be held Monday.

Dingman said Mrs. McConnell's body was found this morning by a gardener on the McConnell estate, wedged between her car and the wall of the garage, the door of which was closed. She was last seen, the Coroner said, by a maid last night driving away from the estate in the same direction her husband had gone in another car a short time before.

Chief Joseph Bilord of the police at Suffern, where the body was found said he had received "unofficial" reports of the death. Suffern police declined to investigate pending "official" notification from the family.

LINDBERGH-FOR-GOVERNOR MOVE IN JERSEY REPORTED

Paper Says Republican Leaders Have Decided to Ask Him to Seek Nomination.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 5.—The Atlantic City Sunday Press says it has learned through authentic North Jersey sources that influential Republican leaders have decided to ask Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to become the Republican candidate for Governor of New Jersey in 1937.

The newspaper said about 15 party leaders from all sections of the State reached this decision at a meeting in Newark a few days ago. They virtually agreed, it said, that the "only hope the Republican party may hold in waging a successful fight against the prospective Democratic candidate, United States Senator A. Harry Moore, lies in erecting a solid front on behalf of a candidate who holds the sympathies and regard of the people."

Among those present, the Press said, were State Senator Lester H. Clee of Essex, but Clee denied he had attended such a meeting.

ELECTED TO PHI BETA KAPPA

14 University of Missouri Students Honored by Fraternity.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 5.—Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, honored 14 University of Missouri students at its annual banquet held last night. Among those honored by the society were George Lorimer Hawkins Jr. of Webster Groves and Fred C. Troettcher of St. Louis.

Oxford Debaters Silent on King.

By the Associated Press.

FULTON, Mo., Dec. 5.—Trained to discuss international affairs of moment, Oxford University's touring debaters maintained a discreet silence tonight when asked in a public forum to give their views on King Edward's romance with Mrs. Simpson. "We cannot discuss the King's affairs publicly," said A. W. J. Greenwod. His companion, R. U. P. Kay-Schuttleworth said they had no "personal feelings" in the matter.

Detective Kills Robber in Fight.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—A city detective shot and killed one robber tonight and a grocer helped him capture another in an attempted holdup. Detective Sergeant Bart Gorman said he shot John Collins, Negro, as the robber used the grocer, Harry Shapiro, 42, as a shield, and John Henderson, 17, also a Negro and Collins' alleged accomplice, tried to prevent the officer from firing. Gorman, Shapiro and two other officers then captured Henderson.

PLACED ON PROBATION AFTER LOSING APPEAL ON SENTENCE

W. A. Swanson Convicted for Having Stolen Whisky; Clemency Granted for Poor Health.

William A. Swanson, a Negro, former proprietor of a night club, who was sentenced to two years in prison last February for possessing whisky worth $1700 stolen from an interstate shipment, was placed on probation for three years by Federal Judge Davis yesterday. His counsel informed the Court he was suffering from diabetes and that imprisonment would endanger his life.

He surrendered 10 days ago, after his appeal had been dismissed, and was placed in city jail, pending disposition of his application for probation. There his illness became aggrevated and the United States Marshal was preparing to remove him to City Hospital when he was placed on probation.

$4000 in Pants Lost in Fire.

By the Associated Press.

ASBURY, N. J., Dec. 5.—Samuel Hoffman, 78 years old, who saw his life savings go up in smoke with his pants, looked hopefully to the Federal Government for relief today. Hoffman's pants, with $4000 in bills in them, were in his house in this Warren County community when it was destroyed by fire early this week. He notified the Treasury Department of his loss.

DECISIONS LIKELY TOMORROW ON NEW DEAL CASES

Supreme Court May Rule on as Many as Five Acts—Justice Stone Is Still Absent.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Five cases involving New Deal legislation may be decided Monday by the Supreme Court.

The legislation involves:

Whether PWA can provide money for publicly owned hydro-electric projects. The Duke Power Co. is attempting to halt a project at Buzzard Roost, S. C.

The right of Congress to authorize President Roosevelt to impose an embargo on sale of munitions for the recent Chaco war between Bolivia and Paraguay. The Government contends its neutrality legislation is at stake.

Whether the Government can postpone decisions of lower courts on constitutionality of the Public Utility Holding Company Act until the Supreme Court rules on a test case it has brought against the Electric Bond & Share Co.

Constitutionality of the Ashurst-Sumners Act forbidding transportation of prison-made goods into states that prohibit their sale and requiring that the products be labeled as convict-manufactured.

Constitutionality of the 50 per cent tax on profits made by silver dealers during passage of the 1934 silver purchase act.

Effect of Tie Vote.

Should the decisions of lower courts be affirmed by tie-votes—as was done Nov. 23 in upholding the New York unemployment insurance act, the Government would win the PWA and prison goods cases, lose the others.

The tie vote in the New York case was due to the illness of Justice Stone, who has been confined to his home with dysentery since Oct. 13. He will be unable to attend court this month but can participate in deciding any of the cases if he so desires.

Twenty-eight cases, including the five New Deal acts, have been argued. Decisions in most of them are expected Monday.

Among the pending cases is a controversy over whether the Associated Press is entitled to enjoin radio station KVOS of Bellingham, Wash., from broadcasting the press association's news until 18 hours after publication.

Another involves constitutionality of the California and Illinois "fair trades" acts which prohibit sale of standard products for less than a price fixed by producers and dealers.

To Decide About 30 Appeals.

The Court also will announce whether it will review 30 cases appealed from lower courts. These include two by members of the Chicago Board of Trade and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange challenging constitutionality of the 1936 act broadening the regulation of commodity exchanges. A similar case filed by the Kansas City Board of Trade probably will be acted on the next Monday.

After handing down decisions and orders the justices will start listening to another two weeks of arguments. One case to be heard late next week involves whether the 1933 resolution abrogating payments of obligations in gold applies to rental contracts.

The Holyoke (Mass.) Water Power Co. is seeking to collect in gold, or its equivalent in devalued currency, on a contract leasing water power rights in the Connecticut River to the American Writing Paper Co. of Massachusetts.

A brief filed by the paper company contended its obligation was only to "deliver the value of gold" and that the power company had not proved any damage and hence should not recover more than the face value in present day money.

In its brief filed recently, the water power company contended it should receive more than the face value because the purpose of the gold contract was "to provide against the effect of an appreciation or depreciation of the currency."

SENATE COMMITTEE CONSIDERS LIMIT ON CAMPAIGN SPENDING

Studies 3-Cents-a-Vote Proposal by Prof. James K. Pollock of Michigan U.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Senate investigators announced today they were giving "careful study" to bill drafted by Prof. James K. Pollock of the University of Michigan to control "irresponsible and indiscriminate" political spending.

The Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures, will recommend amendments to the Federal Corrupt Practices Act. The committee is analysing expenditures in the last campaign, estimated at more than $13,000,000.

Prof. Pollock advocates forbidding the national committee of any party to spend more than 3 cents for each vote cast in the preceding presidential election. He favors similar restrictions on congressional and senatorial committees.

On this basis, less than $1,500,000 could have been spent by each national committee during the last campaign, in comparison with $7,400,000 actually paid out by the Republican National Committee, and the $3,400,000 by the Democratic National Committee.

CITY'S APPEAL NOTICE FILED ON MORGAN STREET WIDENING

Based on Sustaining Motions for New Trials in Cases of Owners With Exceptions.

The City of St. Louis yesterday filed notice of an appeal to the Missouri Supreme Court in the Morgan street widening condemnation suit. The appeal is based on Circuit Judge Robert W. Hall's recent action sustaining motions for new trials in the case of property owners who excepted to benefit assessments charged against them.

The motions were sustained on the ground property owners had not had an opportunity to be heard, and also the city failed to enter reductions in charges which had been authorized by the Court. About 250 property owners whose benefit assessments total approximately $100,000 are involved in the exceptions.

Warning on Christmas Liquor.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Harllee Branch, second assistant postmaster general, reminded postmasters in a formal notice today that "intoxicating liquors found in the mails are subject to confiscation and the mailers are subjects to heavy fines." Christmas liquor also came under the scrutiny of the Federal Alcohol Administration which said the Government would "frown" on liquor advertisements using pictures or images of Santa Claus.

QUALITY CAR IN THE LOW-PRICE FIELD

THE New Ford V-8 for 1937 is one car, built in only one chassis size—but the quality V-8 engine which powers it is now offered in two sizes. 85 horsepower for maximum performance with good economy—60 horsepower for good performance with maximum economy.

The smaller 60-horsepower V-8 engine, optional in several body types, makes possible the lowest price for a Ford car in years.

The car is entirely new in appearance—wide and roomy, with a low center of gravity. Headlamps are streamlined into the fender aprons. The modern lid-type hood is hinged at the back. The new all-steel top sweeps back from the windshield in an unbroken curve. Interiors are tailored to the minute. The slanting V-type windshield opens in all closed cars.

It is new in safety, quiet and comfort. The body is all steel—top, sides, floor and frame, welded into a single steel unit of great protective strength. Safety Glass all around at no extra charge. New methods of mounting body and engine bring quieter operation.

You are invited to visit your Ford dealer and see how the quality car in the low-price field has broadened its range and extended its usefulness as The Universal Car.

EASY-ACTION SAFETY BRAKES: You want two things in a modern braking system. Dependability, and soft pedal action. The new Ford brakes give you both. They are positive and direct, with "the safety of steel from pedal to wheel." Cable and conduit control. Self-energizing. About one-third less pedal pressure is required to stop the car.

TWO V-8 ENGINE SIZES: Improved 85-horsepower V-8 engine delivers the modern dynamic performance for which the Ford V-8 is famous—with unusually good gasoline mileage. New 60-horsepower V-8 engine, optional in five body types, delivers V-8 smoothness and quietness—even at speeds up to 70 miles an hour—with gasoline mileage so high that it sets an entirely new standard of economy.

NEW COMFORT: By every modern standard of design, the 1937 Ford V-8 is a big, roomy car. Extra space is in the body where you need it, not taken up by the engine under the hood. Comfort of the Center-Poise Ride is increased by smoother action of the long-tapering springs with new-type interleaf pressure lubrication. The whole car is quieter too.

TELLS OF TRIP AROUND WORLD IN SAILING SHIP

Andrew J. Lindsay Jr. Returns to St. Louis After Two Years.

A two-year voyage around the world in a small sailing ship a half century old, which Andrew J. Lindsay Jr. of St. Louis completed six weeks ago was merely a "pleasant existence" for him, and any stories about excitement, hardship, adventure or romance on the cruise are "all bull," he said yesterday at his home at 362 Walton avenue.

Now a youth of 19 with a crew hair cut and a determined jaw, he left Country Day School a month before he was to be graduated to board the ship, the Joseph Conrad, at New York, in December, 1934. The cruise was conducted by Alan Villiers, Australian sea-story writer, who took along a small professional crew and about 20 young men, who each paid $1000 for serving as "cadets," or apprentice seamen during the trip.

But Andrew was never under any illusions that he was facing a real life of the sea, he pointed out. "Some of the boys kept telling themselves it was a tough life," he said. "But I wasn't kidding myself after we got started."

"A Pleasant Cruise."

Working on the yards the few times it was necessary to change or shorten sail was not as dangerous as "crossing Kingshighway in the rush hour." Climbing the ratlines was like "walking upstairs." Generally there was enough work painting, polishing rails, and holystoning the decks to keep the cadets busy, and no cargo was carried, therefore there was no work of handling it. They were treated kindly. They often had beans for breakfast, but the food was wholesome, if salty, even "though some guys did turn up their noses at it."

"It was a better life than on shore," Andrew said. "It was really a pleasure cruise. There are a couple of fellows living down the street, who have seen real hardship on mule boats and whaling ships."

He disagreed with stories told by Villiers when the ship reached New York in October about hair-raising storms, meeting pirates at Balimbing at the southern tip of the Philippines, "and the child Princess of Malasa, who wanted to kidnap Stormalong, the youngest cadet, and marry him." If he were also an adventure writer, undoubtedly Lindsay would be of the debunking school of Peter Fleming.

His Version of It.

"There weren't any pirates at Balimbing," he said. "Just a lot of peaceful natives. Only one had a pistol, and he was the head man. But a bunch of the guys went off in a boat looking for pirates. They couldn't have been very tough if you had to go look for them. The chief, the guy with the pistol, didn't want to kidnap Stormalong. That was the nickname for the youngest kid on the ship, who was 16. The chief came aboard one night and said he wanted white blood in his family and asked if Stormalong wanted to meet his daughter and supply it. Stormalong said no."

He described "Nissan's palm-fringed lagoon" as "just a coral island," and the Melanesian natives there "as a bunch of mangy-looking scabs if I ever saw any." He thought the Trobriands, which Villiers described as "Happy Islands, almost the last domain of laughter and unspoiled natives," was "a nice place," but "certainly no unspoiled paradise." Bali, he said, was "very beautiful, but over-exploited by the Dutch." The women, famed in travel folders, were "just like any others, once you got used to looking at them." At Tristan da Cunha, in the South Atlantic, called "the loneliest island in the world," he said the natives were "a bunch of half-caste beggars." And the storms did nothing more than joggle the dishes at meals and wet the decks, he said.

In minimizing the whole experience he neglected to mention, a friend told the reporter afterwards, that he really did have at least one exciting moment. He fell overboard while painting a lifeboat off the coast of Australia and had to swim for half an hour while the ship was being turned about to pick him up.

KENNETH TEASDALE FOR NEW METHOD OF ELECTING JUDGES

State Bar Association President Addresses Lawyers of Northeast Missouri at Macon.

By the Associated Press.

MACON, Mo., Dec. 5.—A change in the method of selecting judges in the largest cities of the State was advocated tonight by Kenneth Teasdale, St. Louis, in an address before the Northeast Missouri Bar Association.

Teasdale, president of the State Bar Association, said the voter was unable to express an intelligent choice because of the large number of candidates and the long ballot.

"As a result," he continued, "the power of selection devolves upon the political organization and in the ultimate analysis upon the individual ward committeeman." The remedy, he said, lay in "some system of appointment in the larger cities."

Circuit Judge E. L. Alford of Hannibal in an address said delay in court procedure in Missouri was due to poor administration rather than to defects in the State code.

Storekeeper Says Man Hit Him, Snatched Bills and Ran.

Julius Swiener, proprietor of a dry goods store at 1801 Franklin avenue, reported to police last night that a Negro took $75 from the cash register of the store when he opened it to deposit money the man had given in payment for a small purchase.

The Negro seized the bills as the drawer was opened, struck Swiener with his fist, and ran out of the store.

3 Injured When Steering Gear Locks

An automobile driven by George Bruenning, a billposter, 3111 Ljsmore street, crashed into a concrete safety zone marker in Union boulevard, at Enright avenue, Friday night, injuring Bruenning and two passengers. Bruenning, taken to City Hospital with brain concussion, said the steering gear locked, causing the accident. His wife, Maude, suffered fractured jaws and lost several teeth, and Alphonsus Hill, 2716 Sullivan avenue, was treated for leg injuries.

Sinecure Senator Cuts His Son In.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—By filing for a two-month term in the Senate at the last election, Guy V. Howard of Minnesota got a job for his son as well as one for himself. Howward, filing at the last moment, was the only candidate for the term expiring the day Congress meets in January. Although he will do no work he will draw full senatorial pay of $833.33 a month and is entitled to clerk hire of more than $1000 a month. He went on the Senate payroll this week, together with J. W. Nash, named secretary at $325 a month and Guy V. Howard Jr., as clerk at $200 a month.

Fourth Jail Break in Six Weeks.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 5. — Russell Long, 22-year-old Federal prisoner, escaped from the Cole County jail late today. He is the fourth prisoner to escape within the last six weeks. He had pleaded guilty of stealing an automobile in Tulsa and driving it into Missouri. Haley Wheatly, the jailer, said that while another prisoner occupied his attention Long slipped out a window.

NEW HAMPSHIRE DEMOCRAT WINS; TIE FOR CONGRESS ENDED

State Ballot Law Commission Decides That Alphonse Roy Has Majority of 17.

CONCORD, N. H., Dec. 5.—The State Ballot Law Commission ruled last night that Alphonse Roy (Dem.) was elected Representative from the First Congressional District in the recent election.

The board, after an examination of contested ballots, decided that Roy had won over Arthur B. Jenks (Rep.) by 17 votes. The final vote, as decided by the board, was: Roy, 51,695; Jenks, 51,678.

The board's action broke the first apparent tie in more than 100 years in any congressional contest. The official returns from the election gave the congressional seat to Jenks by 560 votes. Roy sought a recount. The recount gave each man 51,679 votes.

WPA WILL ASK FOR TWO BILLION A YEAR

Administration Proposes to Continue Present Spending Until Jobs Increase.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Indications that the administration will ask Congress to continue WPA spending at a $2,000,000,000-a-year rate, until private employment increases, arose today from a conference at WPA headquarters.

Aubrey Williams, Deputy Works Progress Administrator, told a committee of relief workers that WPA expenditures in December and January were being curtailed only because existing funds were near exhaustion.

The November outlay of $165,000,000 constituted "a valid level" which should be maintained, he said, even though shortage of funds before the new Congress can act requires a curtailment to about $150,000,000 this month and an undetermined reduction in January.

7 to 9 Million Jobless, He Says.

"I am convinced there are seven, or eight, or nine million unemployed persons in the country," Williams added. "It is perfectly insane to hold that these people can go on year after year without jobs."

While there were many workers on the November rolls who could be removed without hardship, he continued, there were many others not on the rolls who ought to be receiving work relief.

The WPA official told the delegation, "white collar" workers from nine cities, that, by marshalling every available dollar and reducing the rolls by 425,000 persons, the program could be carried on with present funds to Feb. 1.

"We are assured by the Treasury," he said, "we will have funds to go through January," but that in order to do this it would be necessary to exhaust certain reserves usually maintained.

Hopes to Avoid Hardships.

Although the WPA is hopeful that it will be able to reduce the rolls this month without dismissing persons who do not have other income, Williams told the committee the administration has no positive assurance this hope will be realized.

He said each state has been given a money quota for December, not to be exceeded. The quotas were based on reports indicating it would be possible through a general combing of the rolls to cut off 150,000 workers who have other sources of income. In addition, dismissal of 20,000 non-relief and 5000 administrative employes has been ordered and 250,000 drouth relief cases are being transferred to the Resettlement Administration, whose direct grants are less costly than work relief.

Williams said the administration defines other income as income equal to that earned on WPA.

Committee Not Satisfied.

Unconvinced the reduction is a temporary matter, the committee expressed belief the layoffs represent "the beginning of the liquidation of WPA" and added:

"This whole policy of WPA represents, in our opinion, a betrayal of the promises made to the American people before Nov. 3. Apparently the policy is not now we have only begun to fight,' but rather 'now we have only begun to lay off.'"

The committee recommended that, on the start of the scheduled curtailment, relief workers on every project be rallied "to protest meetings, to strikers, to stoppages, delegations to city officials and Congressmen to mass picketing."

Should these measures fail, the committee said: "Let tens of thousands of laid-off workers come to the National Capitol and lay their problem at the seat of government. It is not patriotic to starve. We will not starve."

FEDERAL LIQUOR TAX RECEIPTS PASS PRE-PROHIBITION MARK

$505,464,000 Collected Last Year Exceeding 1918-19 Peak by $22,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Federal taxes on liquor since repeal, have reached a total of $1,400,000,000.

Receipts last year aggregated $505,464,000, a total of $94,443,000 more than the previous year and $22,000,000 above the pre-prohibition peak of 1918-19. Receipts since July 1 total about $225,000,000. Revenue for the entire 1936-37 fiscal period is expected to aggregate $589,200,000.

On the third anniversary of repeal, Edward B. Dunford, attorney for the Anti-Saloon League, charged that emphasis has been placed on revenue rather than on "social safeguards" since repeal J. M. Doran, executive director of the Distilled Spirits Institute, Inc., said 1,000,000 workers have received jobs because of repeal, that racketeering has been virtually eliminated, and that per capital consumption of liquor has decreased from 1.62 gallons in 1917 to .56 gallon in 1936.

60 PCT. OF SECURITY CARDS IN

200,000 of 330,000 Sent Out in St. Louis Area Returned.

Up to last night more than 200,000 or 60 per cent, of the 330,000 registration cards distributed in the St. Louis area had been returned to the local office of the Social Security Board in the old Federal Building. A last-minute rush to make the previously announced deadline brought 90,000 of the enrollment blanks to the office Friday and early yesterday.

TWO ALTON FIRMS INCREASE WAGES OF THEIR EMPLOYES

Western Cartridge Co. Grants 10 Per Cent Rise, Box Board & Paper Co. 5 Per Cent.

An average increase in wages of 10 per cent for about 2500 employes working on an hourly basis at the Western Cartridge Co., East Alton, was announced by the company yesterday. The increases were effective last Tuesday.

It was announced also that payments under the company's bonus plan had been increased from a maximum of 5 per cent to 6 per cent. The bonuses will be paid to all employes who have worked for the company three months or more. Piece work and production bonus rates had been increased in proportion to the increased hourly rates, the company said.

Wage increases averaging about 5 per cent for 575 employes of the Alton Box Board & Paper Co. were announced by that company yesterday. The increases, also effective last Tuesday, amount to 5 per cent for lower-salaried employes and slightly less for those in the upper brackets, it was said.

WOMAN DIES OF PNEUMONIA AFTER BEING HIT BY AUTO

Mrs. Bertha Geiger, Who Was Hurt Nov. 25, Succumbs; 72 Years Old.

Mrs. Bertha Geiger, 72 years old, died yesterday at her home, 3162 Nebraska avenue, of pneumonia which resulted from an injury she received Nov. 25, according to her physician, when she was struck by an automobile as she crossed Jefferson avenue at Wyoming street.

The driver, William Scheipeter, 3945A South Grand boulevard, took her to Alexian Brothers' Hospital where it was found she had a fractured rib. After receiving emergency treatment she was removed to her home.

November Sales Tax Collections.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 5.—Illinois collected $6,239,823.49 in retailers' occupation tax in November, K. L. Ames Jr., director of the State Department of Finance, has announced. The November revenue compares with $5,747,860.06 collected for the preceding month and $5,403,952.70 for November a year ago.

STENCH-BOMBING OF GROCERY

East St. Louis police yesterday investigated the possibility that ice cream sales competition may have been the cause of the throwing of a stench bomb through a plate-glass window in a grocery at 722 Ohio avenue at 2:15 a. m.

The proprietor, John Weissman, said that although he had received no threats, he believed the attack was in retaliation for his cutting the price of ice cream.

CHICAGO HORSE SHOW WINNER

Entries of Judy King of Atlanta Take 14 Blue Ribbons.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Individual honors at the International Horse Show went to Miss Judy King of Atlanta, Ga., whose entries won 14 blue ribbons, more than any one of the other 166 stables participating.

She came to Chicago with four horses, two ponies, three dogs and a billy goat following a tour of horse shows in the United States and Canada, that began last April.

Text of Secretary Hull's Address Laying Down 8-Point Program for Peace at Buenos Aires Conference

He Stresses Public Education Against War, Common Neutrality Policy and Lowering of Trade Barriers

Buenos Aires, Dec. 5—The text of Secretary of State Hull's Address today at the Inter-American Peace Conference, follows:

The primary purpose of this conference is to banish war from the Western Hemisphere.

In its earnest pursuit of this great undertaking, it is necessary at the outset to visualize numerous dangerous conditions and practices in general international affairs to the extent that they bear upon and affect the work of this conference.

It is manifest that every country today is faced with a supreme alternative. Each must play its part in determining whether the world will slip backward towards war and savagery; or whether it can maintain and will advance the level of civilization and peace. None can escape its responsibility.

The 21 American republics cannot remain unconcerned by the grave and threatening conditions in many parts of the world. Our convocation here in Buenos Aires utters this hemisphere's common voice of its interest, nay, its intense concern, over the determination of this momentous question.

Peace of World Concern.

The repercussions of wars and preparations for wars have been so universally disastrous that it is now as plain as mathematical truth that each nation in any part of the world is concerned in peace in every part of the world.

The nations of all the Americas, through their chosen delegates, have assembled to make careful survey and analysis of all aspects of their responsibilities; to take account of their common duties, and to plan accordingly for the safety and welfare of their peoples.

The western hemisphere must now face squarely certain hard realities. For the purpose of our undertaking, we must frankly recognize that for some time the forces of militarism have been in the ascendant in a large part of the world; those of peace have been correspondingly on the decline.

We should be lacking in common sense if we ignored the plain fact that the effects of these forces will unavoidably have direct impact upon all of us. We should be lacking in ordinary caution if we fail to counsel together for our common safety and welfare.

Lessons of Last War.

It is bad enough when many statesmen and peoples close their minds and memories to the awful lesson taught by the millions of soldiers sacrificed in the World War, the shattered cities, the desolated fields, and all the other material, moral and spiritual ravages of that conflict. Still worse, that war has brought in its train wounds to man's heart and spirit, national hatreds and fears, the dislocation or destruction of indispensable political and governmental structures, and the collapses or cool abandonment of former high standards of national conduct.

The supreme tragedy is completed by the breakdown of the commerce of mind and culture, the attempt to isolate the nations of the earth into sealed compartments, all of which have made war a burden not to be endured by mankind.

The delegates of the American nations, meeting here in the face of these grave and threatening world conditions, must realize that mere words will not suffice. From every wise and practical viewpoint, concrete peace planning, peace views and peace objectives are imperative.

We must quicken our words and our hopes into a specific, embracing program to maintain peace. Such a program, adequately implemented, should constitute an armory of peace. It should comprise a structure affording all practical means for safeguarding peace.

Up to the Americas.

At a time when many other governments or peoples fail or fear to proclaim and embrace a broad or definite peace plan or movement; while their statesmen are shouting threats of war, it is all the more necessary that we of the Americas must cry out for peace, keep alive the spirit of peace, live by the rules of peace, and forthwith perfect the machinery for its maintenance.

Should we fail to make this outstanding contribution, it would be a practical desertion of the cause of peace, and a tragic blow to the hopes of humanity.

In meeting this problem, the American republics are in a peculiarly advantageous situation. There are among us no radical differences, no profound mistrusts or deep hatreds.

On the contrary, we are inspired by the impulse to be constant friends and the determination to be peaceful neighbors.

We recognize the right of all nations to handle their affairs in any way they choose, and this quite irrespective of the fact that their way may be different from our way, or even repugnant to our ideas. But we cannot fail to take cognizance of the international aspect of their policies when and to the extent that they may react upon us.

I, myself, am unalterably of the view that a policy leading to war may react upon us. In the fact of any situation directly leading to war, can we therefore be other than apprehensive?

In sustaining the firm determination that peace must be maintained, and that any country whose policies make war likely is threatening injury to all, I believe that the nations of this hemisphere would find themselves in accord with governments elsewhere.

Urges Common Action.

I strongly entertain the hope that a united group of American nations may take common action at this conference further to assure peace among themselves and define their attitude toward war; and that this action may not only demonstrate the happy position of the new world, but, though designed primarily for our own benefit, embody policies of world application, and correspond to the views and interests of nations outside this hemisphere.

There is no need for war.

There is a practical alternative policy at hand, complete and adequate. It is no exclusive policy aimed at the safety or supremacy of a few, leaving others to struggle with distressful situations. It demands no sacrifices comparable to the advantages which will result to each nation and to each individual.

In these circumstances the representatives of the 21 American republics should frankly call the attention of the people of this hemisphere to the possibilities of danger to their future peace and progress, and at the same time set forth the numerous steps that can well be undertaken as the most effective means of improving and safeguarding the conditions of permanent peace.

While carefully avoiding any political entanglements, my Government strives at all times to co-operate with other nations to every practical extent in support of peace objectives, including reduction or limitation of armaments, the control of traffic in arms, taking the profits out of war, and the restoration of fair and friendly economic relationships.

Peace by Agreement.

We reject war as a method of settling international disputes, and favor such methods as conference, conciliation and arbitration.

Peace can be partially safeguarded through international agreements. Such agreements, however, must reflect the utmost good faith; this alone can be the guarantee of their significance and usefulness.

Contemporary events clearly show that, where mutual trust, goodwill and sincerity of purpose are lacking, pacts or agreements fail; and the world is seized by fear and left to the mercy of the wreckers.

The conference has the duty of considering all peace proposals of merit. Let me enumerate and briefly discuss eight separate and vitally important principles and proposals for a comprehensive peace program and peace structure. They are not designed to be all-inclusive.

In considering them, we should be guided by the knowledge that other forces and agencies of peace exist besides those made and to be made on our continents; what we do contemplates no conflict with sincere efforts the world over.

Education for Peace.

First: I would emphasize the local and unilateral responsibility of each nation carefully to educate and organize its people in opposition to war and its underlying causes. Support must be given to peace; to the most effective policies for its preservation, and, finally each nation must maintain conditions within its own borders which will permit it to adopt national policies that can be peacefully pursued.

More than any other factor, a thoroughly informed and alert public opinion in each country as to the suitable and desirable relationships with other nations and the principles underlying them, enables a Government in time of crisis to act promptly and effectively for peace.

The forces of peace everywhere are entitled to function both through governments and through public opinion. The peoples of the world would be far wiser if they expended more of their hard-earned money in organizing the forces of peace and fewer of the present $5,000,000,000 in educating and training their military forces.

Since the time when Thomas Jefferson insisted upon a "decent respect to the opinions of mankind," public opinion has controlled foreign policy in all democracies. It is, therefore, all important that every platform, every pulpit and every forum should become constant and active agencies in the great work of education and organization.

Organizing Public Opinion.

The limited extent of such highly organized and intelligent public opinion in support of peace is by far the largest drawback to any plan to prevent war. Truly the first step is that each nation must thus make itself safe for peace. This, too, develops a common will for freedom, the soil from which peace springs.

People everywhere should be made to know of the peace mechanisms. Even more, there should be brought home to them the knowledge that trade, commerce, finance, debts, communications have a bearing on peace.

The workman at his bench, the farmer on his land, the shopkeeper by his shelves, the clerk at his books, the laborer in factory, plantation, mine or construction camp must realize that his work is the work of peace; that to interrupt it for ends of national or personal rapacity is to drive him toward quick death by bayonets, or to slower, but not less grievous suffering through economic distress.

In all our countries we have scholars who can demonstrate these facts; let them not be silent.

Our churches have direct contact with all groups; may they remember that the peacemakers are the children of God. We have artists and poets who can distil their needed knowledge into trenchant phrase and line; they have work to do. Our great journals on both continents cover the world. Our women are awake; our youth sentient; our clubs and organizations make opinion everywhere.

There is a strength here available greater than that of armies. We have but to ask its aid; it will be swift to answer, not only here, but in continents beyond the seas.

International Friendship.

Second. Indispensable in their influence for peace and well-being are frequent conferences between representatives of the nations and intercourse between their peoples. Collaboration and the exchange of views, ideas and information are the most effective means of establishing understanding, friendship and trust.

I would again emphasize that any written pacts or agreements not based upon such relationships as these too often exist on paper only. Development of the atmosphere of peace, understanding and good will during our sessions here will alone constitute a vast accomplishment.

Third. Any complete program would include safeguarding the nations of this hemisphere from using force, one against the other, through the consummation of all of the five well-known peace agreements, produced in chief part by previous conferences, as well as through "the draft convention coordinating the existing treaties between the American States and extending them in certain respects," which the delegation of the United States is presenting for the consideration of this conference.

Present Treaties.

In these, virtually all of the essentials of adequate machinery are present. If their operation is somewhat implemented by provisions in the draft proposal I have just mentioned to be considered by this conference, such machinery would be complete.

The first of these is the treaty to avoid and prevent conflicts between the American states, which was signed in Santiago in 1923.

The second is the treaty for the renunciation of war, known as the Kellogg-Briand pact, or the Pact of Paris, signed at Paris in 1928.

The third is the general convention of inter-American conciliation, signed at Washington in 1929.

The fourth is the general treaty of inter-American arbitration, signed at Washington in 1929.

The fifth is the anti-war treaty of non-aggression and conciliation, signed at Rio de Janeiro in 1933.

While the Montevideo conference in 1933 went on record in favor of the valid execution of these five agreements by each of the 21 governments represented, several have not yet completed this ratification.

These agreements provide a many-sided and flexible-functioning machinery for the adjustment of difficulties that may arise in this hemisphere. A government could not give more tangible proof of its readiness to translate into practicable form its desire to promote and to maintain peace.

Swift action by all of us to ratify these agreements should be the natural assertion of our intentions.

Common Neutrality Policy.

4. If war should occur, any peace program must provide for the problem then presented.

For the belligerent, there is the ruin and suffering of war. For the neutrals, there is the task of remaining neutral, of not being too disturbed in their own affairs, of not having their own peace imperiled, of working in common to restrict the war and bring it to an end.

Can we in this conference work out for ourselves a common line of policy that might be pursued during a period of neutrality? Some first broad approaches towards that end are, I think, possible.

If these are to be sound, they must be inspired by the determination to stay at peace. When interests are challenged, when minds are stirred, when entry into war in some particular juncture may appear to offer some country the chance of national advantage, then determination is needed to retain neutrality.

The maintenance of neutrality is an achievement to be attained more readily if undertaken jointly. Such agreement would be a tremendous safeguard for each of us. It might be a powerful means of ending war.

When we have done all that seems to be possible in extending and perfecting an integrated and permanent mechanism for preserving peaceful relations among ourselves, and when we have placed in operation these various instruments, the 21 republics of this hemisphere will have given overt expression to the most determined will for peace to be found in the world today.

In the fact of a weakening elsewhere in the world of reliance on and observance of international agreements, we shall have proclaimed our firm intention that these peaceful instruments shall be the foundation of relations between nations throughout this whole region.

If we can endow peace with certainty; if we can make it glow in our part of the world; then we may indulge the hope that our example will not be in vain.

Lowering Trade Barriers.

Fifth. The peoples of this region have a further opportunity. They must make headway with a liberal policy of commerce, which would lower excessive barriers to trade and lessen injurious discriminations as between the trade of different countries.

This means the substitution of a policy of economic benefit, goodwill and fair dealing for one stimulated by greedy and short-sighted calculations of momentary advantage in an impractical isolation. It would have most beneficial effects, both direct and indirect, upon political difficulties and antagonisms.

A thriving international commerce, well adjusted to the resources and talents of each country, brings benefit to all. It keeps men employed, active and usefully supplying the wants of others. It leads each country to look upon others as helpful counterparts to itself rather than as antagonists.

It opens up to each country, to the extent mutually profitable and desirable, the resources and the organized productive power of other countries; by its benefits small nations with limited territory or resources can have a varied, secure and prosperous life; it can bring improvement to those who feel their toil too hard and their reward too meager.

Prosperity and Peace.

Prosperity and peace are not separate entities. To promote one is to promote the other. The economic well-being of peoples is the greatest single protection against civil strife, large armaments, war. Economic isolation and military force go hand in hand; when nations cannot get what they need by the normal processes of trade, they will continue to resort to the use of force.

A people employed and in a state of reasonable comfort is not a people among whom class struggles, militarism, and war can thrive. But a people driven to desperation by want and misery, is at all times a threat to peace, their conditions an invitation to disorder and chaos, both internal and external.

The intervening years have given added significance to the economic program adopted at the conference at Montevideo three years ago. That program is today the greatest potential force both for peace and prosperity. Our present conference should reaffirm and secure action upon this program of economic intelligence.

One feature of the resolutions adopted at Montevideo was the support for the principle of equality of treatment as the basis of acceptable commercial policy. This rule has been followed in a number of commercial agreements that have already been concluded between American nations. Their benefits are already becoming manifest and will continue to grow.

Some of Gains Lost.

We cannot blind ourselves to the fact, however, that at the same time there has taken place even among the American nations a growth in the restrictions upon trade and an extension of discriminatory practices; these have tended to counteract the advantages resulting from the liberalizing terms embodied in other agreements.

I would urge again the wisdom of avoiding discrimination in our commercial policy.

The practice of discrimination prevents trade from following the lines which would produce the greatest economic benefits; it inevitably in the long run must provoke retaliation from those who suffer from discrimination; make it more difficult for countries eager to pursue a liberal trade policy to secure the fair gains from this policy and thereby check the lowering of restrictions.

It will not serve our broad and deep aims; on the contrary, if steadily extended, will lead us into new controversies and difficulties.

The Montevideo program offers the only alternative to the present short-sighted, war-breeding bilateral bargaining method of trade, to the exclusion of triangular and multilateral trade, which is being Wolf Killed in St. Louis County.

J. C. Walach, Valley Park, farmer, killed a female wolf while hunting yesterday near Highway 66, about three miles west of Vandover road. Applying at Clayton Courthouse for the $10 bounty paid by the county, he said he was hunting rabbits when his dog brought the wolf to bay.

Graybar
ANNOUNCES ITS APPOINTMENT AS DISTRIBUTOR FOR KELVINATOR
Electric Refrigerators and other household products in ST. LOUIS AND AREA

It is with a great deal of pleasure that the Graybar Electric Company, 1220 Spruce street, announces its appointment as distributor for Kelvinator household products in St. Louis and its area.

Graybar and Kelvinator, separately, are old friends to the people in this great St. Louis area. Together they form a strong combination, merged with the interest of the public at heart.

The Kelvinator products distributed through the Graybar Electric Company are: Kelvinator Refrigerators, the new Kelvinator Washers and Ironers, Kelvinator Electric Ranges and Kelvinator Gas Ranges.

St. Louisans, interested in the finest possible equipment for their homes, gain immeasurably in this, the linking of Graybar and Kelvinator, two world-famous names. We urge you to see your neighborhood Kelvinator dealer for a complete demonstration of these products.

Text of Secretary Hull's Speech at Buenos Aires

The ends we seek can best be achieved by the concurrent or concerted action of many countries. Each can exert itself steadfastly amidst the particular circumstances of its economic situation to make its contribution towards the rebuilding of trade. Each can grant new opportunities to others as it receives new opportunities for itself.

All are called upon to share in the concurrent or concerted action which is required.

Any country which seeks the benefits of the program while avoiding its responsibilities, will in time shut itself off from the genefits. Any country which is tempted or forced by some special calculation to depart from these lines of action, and which conveys and seeks special advantage jeopardizes the progress, and perhaps the very existence of the program.

Faithful dealing, without favor, between equal partners will be required to readjust trade along the lines of growth, which is our goal.

International Co-operation.

Sixth. The conference must recognize the all-important principle of practical international co-operation to restore many indispensable relationships between nations, for international relationships, in many vital respects, are at a low ebb. The entire international order is severely dislocated. Chaotic conditions in the relations between nations have appeared.' Human progress already has slowed down.

Nations in recent years have sought to live a hermit existence by isolating themselves from each other in suspicion and fear. The inevitable result in not unlike that experienced by a community where individuals undertake to live a hermit existence, with the resultant decline and decay of the spiritual, the moral, the educational and the material benefits and blessings which spring from community organization and effort.

The difference, when nations live apart, is that the entire human race in countless instances suffers irreparable injury—political, moral, material, spiritual and social.

Today, for illustration, through lack of comprehension, understanding and confidence, we see many nations exhausting their material substance and the vitality of their people by piling up huge armaments.

We behold others, in their attempted isolation, becoming more indifferent and less considerate towards the rights, privileges and honest opinions of others.

National character and conduct are threatened with utter demoralization. At no distant time, we shall see a state of moral and spiritual isolation, bringing with it the condemnation of the world, covering great parts of the earth, unless peopes halt and turn towards a sane course.

Stronger International Law.

Seventh. International law has been in large measure flouted. It should be re-established, revitalized and strengthened by general demand.

International law protects the peace and security of nations, and so safeguards them against maintaining great armaments and wasting their substance in continual readiness for war. Founded upon justice and humanity, the great principles of international law are the source and fountain of the equality, the security and the very existence of nations. Armies and navies are no permanent substitute.

Abandonment of the rule of law would not only leave small or unarmed states at the mercy of the reckless and powerful, but would hopelessly undermine all international order. It is inconceivable that the civilized nations would long delay a supreme effort to re-establish that rule of law.

Faith in Agreements.

Eighth. Observance of understandings, agreements and treaties between nations constitutes the foundation of international order.

May I say here that this is not a time for crimination or recrimination, nor is such in my mind during this discussion. There must be the fullest patience and forbearance, one country with another, as the nations endeavor to climb back to that high ground of wholesome and elevating relationship of loyalty to the given word and faithful fair dealing.

International agreements have lost their force and reliability as a basis of relations between nations. This extremely ominous and fateful development constitutes the most dangerous single phenomenon in the world of today; not international law merely, but that which is higher—moral law—and the whole integrity and honor of governments are in danger of being ruthlessly trampled upon.

There has been a failure of the spirit. There is no task more urgent than that of remaking the basis of trusted agreement between nations.

They must ardently seek the terms of new agreements, and stand behind them with unfailing will. The vitality of international agreements must be restored.

If the solemn rights and obligations between nations are to be treated lightly or brushed aside, the nations of the world will head straight toward international anarchy and chaos. And soon, too, the citizen begins to lower his individual standards of personal, moral and business conduct to those of his government.

Trust in each nation's honor and faith in its given word must be restored by the concerted resolve of all governments.

End to Treaty-breaking.

It is to the interest of everyone that there be an end of treaties broken by arbitrary unilateral action. Peaceful procedure, agreements between the signatories, and mutual understanding must be restored as the means of modifying or ending international agreements.

In the accomplishment of the high aims and purposes of this eight-fold program, the people of every nation have an equal interest. We of this hemisphere have reason to hope that these great objectives may receive the support of all peoples.

If peace and progress are to be either maintained or advanced, the time is overripe for renewed effort on each nation's part. There can be no delay.

Through past centuries, the human race fought its way up from the low level of barbarism and war to that of civilization and peace. This accomplishment has only been partial, and it may well be but temporary.

It would be a frightful commentary on the human race if, with the awful lesson of its disastrous experience, responsible and civilized governments should now fail.

The nations of this continent should omit no word or act in their attempt to meet the dangerous conditions which endanger peace. Let our actions here at Buenos Aires constitute the most potent possible appeal to peacemakers and warmakers throughout the world.

An Example for Peace.

So only does civilization become real. So only can we rightly ask that universal support which entitles governments to speak for their peoples to the world, not with the voice of propaganda but with that of truth.

Having affirmed our faith, we should be remiss if we were to leave anything undone which will tend to assure our peace here, and make us powerful for peace elsewhere. In a very real sense, let this continent set the high example of championing the forces of peace, democracy and civilization.

Release From Alcatraz Denied.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—H. Carl Hall, 40 years old, failed Friday in his attempt to obtain his freedom from Alcatraz prison on a writ of habeas corpus. The Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a lower court decision refusing the writ. Hall is serving a 13-year term for smuggling pistols into the United States hospital for defective delinquents at Springfield, Mo., in November, 1933, and aiding in the escape of some of the inmates.

ORDERED TO SHOW CAUSE WHY RECEIVER SHOULDN'T BE NAMED

Head of West Side Terminal Warehouse Co. Cited in Action by Cincinnati Woman.

An order directing Walter B. Ver Steege, president of the West Side Terminal Warehouse Co., to show cause Tuesday why a receiver should not be appointed for the company was issued yesterday by Circuit Judge John W. Joynt. The order is in a suit filed by Mrs. Bertha S. Kinne of Cincinnati, owner of 166 shares of stock, who complains of Ver Steege's management.

The petition states that the company owns two warehouses on Collins street between Cass avenue and Dickson street, valued at $100,000 and other property worth $14,000.

AIMEE M'PHERSON WON'T TALK

Refuses to Answer Questions at Slander Suit Deposition.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 5.—Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson refused to answer questions for a deposition sought for use in trial of the $1,080,000 slander suit recently filed against her by Rheba Crawford, her co-pastor.

So heated became clashes between lawyers that Court Commissioner Kurtz Kauffman threatened to withdraw. Mrs. McPherson's reply to all questions concerning temple affairs was: "On advice of counsel, I refuse to answer." "You are adopting these tactics for the purpose of delay?" inquired Joseph Fainer, attorney for Miss Crawford. "What do you think?" Mrs. McPherson asked.

Question Please ! ! !
WHAT HAVE YOU THAT WE MAY SELL?
In Which We Describe the Useful Service Suggesting This Question

To householders and the public at large, we repeatedly direct this simple question. Moreover, we consider it a very sensible question, knowing as we do, that practically everyone has something or another which should be sold.

Be your consignment large or small, we have in our Auction Salesroom, the service, facilities, and the market to effect a quick cash sale of your property—the nominal charge is fifteen per cent of the selling price.

To hundreds of buyers for hundreds of owners, we sell each week, Furniture, Furnishings, Domestic and Oriental Rugs, Carpets, Home Utilities, Electrical Appliances, Antiques, Objects of Art, Curios, Paintings, Books, Silverware, Chinaware, Glassware, Bric-a-Brac, Electric Refrigerators, Kitchen things, Cameras, Firearms, Sporting Goods or—what have you?

"SEEK AND YOU SHALL FIND"

Relegated to and forgotten in the storeroom, attic or basement of your home, you will find many surplus things from which cash may be realized—things unneeded by you, but nonetheless valuable to others—why not let us sell them for you?

Recently, a lady to whom this thought was suggested, searched her home for surplus things for consignment to our regular Weekly Furniture Auction Sale. She was astonished at the surplus yielded and certified that she "enjoyed the experience." This lady's experience is typical. Household searchers are amazed to discover the many things which can be readily dispensed with, and sold through our Auction Salesroom service, at a competent resale price.

The primary purpose of our new and modern salesroom, is to gather together, small consignments into a large collection, which we sell at Public Auction each Wednesday during the year. No consignment too small—yes, we receive single pieces.

POLICEMAN SHOOTS MAN AS HE FLEES

Prisoner Said to Admit He Annoyed Women on Their Way to Church.

Fred Brandstetter, 46 years old, was shot in the right shoulder yesterday by one of three policemen who fired as he fled from them near Central Industrial avenue and the Missouri-Pacific Railroad tracks.

When captured, Brandstetter admitted, police said, that he was the man who recently annoyed women on their way to early mass at St. Bernard's Church, Gratiot street and Hawk avenue. He was identified by three women and the church janitor.

Patrolman Edward Dietz, stationed near the church because of complaints received from the women, halted Brandstetter about 6:30 a. m. when he alighted from a street car at Sarah and Gratiot streets, to question him.

Brandstetter answered the first questions of the policeman, then turned and ran. Two other officers in a scout car in the neighborhood joined with Dietz in the chase. They fired eight shots, some of them in the air, before Brandstetter was wounded.

After treatment at City Hospital Brandstetter was taken to the Newstead Avenue Police Station. He told police he had been sentenced to three months in the workhouse last March for annoying women and had served a jail sentence in New York for a similar offense. He gave an address in the 3300 block of Clara avenue.

NOLTE QUESTIONS USE OF AUTO BY CHADSEY

Fire Department Car Driven to Joplin; Comptroller Cites City Rule.

Comptroller Louis Nolte, whose duties in preservation of city property include jurisdiction over city automobiles, said yesterday that he would remind Director of Public Safety George W. Chadsey of a rule which requires that a written request be filed with the Comptroller when a city machine is to be taken out of the city.

The large green automobile belonging to the Fire Department which was assigned last March to Chadsey for his use was seen on the streets of Joplin a week ago. Chadsey explained that he had gone to Kansas City to inspect the new municipal auditorium there as a member of the Policy Committee of the St. Louis Auditorium Commission. He said he wished to learn why Kansas City had obtained some recent conventions which St. Louis failed to get. Before returning, he said, he went to Joplin to visit relatives.

Chadsey said he had used his own automobile for city business for five months without compensation and he thought his use of the city machine was proper. He contended that Nolte had no jurisdiction over Fire Department automobiles.

Mayor Dickmann said he would end the practice of using city automobiles for personal trips out of the city. He added that he felt entitled to use the machine provided for him by the city as he saw fit since this was done by other Mayors who are considered "good-will ambassadors." Nolte agreed.

U. S. POSITION ON NARCOTICS MISREPRESENTED AT GENEVA

Washington Protests Over Portuguese Delegate's Explanation of Refusal to Sign Pact.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Dec. 5.—The United States protested to the League of Nations today that its position on suppression of the narcotics traffic had been misrepresented before the League Council.

The United States declined to sign the 1936 narcotics convention. In reporting the action to the Council, Dr. Augusto Vasconcellos of Portugal attributed Washington's refusal to the fact that the convention did not provide for criminal prosecution of opium smoking.

Today the United States informed the League that "this conveys an entirely erroneous impression" of the American position. It forwarded copies of the speech which the United States delegate, S. J. Fuller, made at the Geneva narcotics conference, stating seven reasons for non-signature. Among them was a statement that ratification of the convention would be a backward step for the United States in its effort to end illicit narcotics traffic, that it would weaken rather than strengthen existing control.

Lion Victim's Widow Sues Trainer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 5.—Clyde Beatty, famous animal trainer, and the Cole Brothers Circus were sued for $10,000 damages in United States District Court here today by the widow of William M. Brookshire, who was killed by a lion a Rochester, Ind., last Jan. 6. Mrs. Bernice Brookshire of Livingston County, Missouri, stated in her petition that the defendants were careless in leaving unlocked a trap door through which the lion entered a training cage that her husband was cleaning.

KSD to Broadcast School Concert at 9:30 A. M. Today

Will Also Put Program on WEAF Network as One in Music and American Youth Series—Pupils of Soldan, Roosevelt and Sumner High Schools to Sing

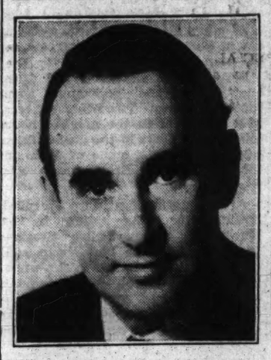

FROM 9:30 to 10 o'clock this morning, KSD will broadcast a St. Louis public schools concert and will also send it out for broadcasting over the coast-to-coast WEAF network in the Music and American Youth period. The concert will be broadcast through the KSD studios from Assembly Hall No. 1 in the Municipal Auditorium under the direction of Eugene Hamel, music supervisor for the Board of Education.

The vocal groups taking part in the broadcast will be the Soldan High School Boys' Glee Club, Ernst Hares conductor; the Roosevelt High School Girls' Choral Club, Birdie Hilb conductor, and a mixed chorus of colored pupils, the Sumner High School A Cappella Choir, Wirt Walton, conductor.

During the program, Dr. Walter Samuel Swisher of the Church of the Messiah, First Unitarian, will speak briefly on music and American youth.

The broadcast will open with the singing by the Soldan High School club of Adams' "Comrades in Arms" and Scott's "Soldier Rest." Then the Roosevelt High School girls will sing "The Silver Swan," composed by Orlando Gibbons in 1583; an arrangement of Wagner's "Dreams" and "Keel Row," a Tyneside air arranged by Fletcher. The Sumner High School songs, which will conclude the program, will be Noble's "Fierce Was the Wild Billow," Walton's "We Are Climbing Jacob's Ladder" and the spiritual, "Joshua Fit de Battle of Jericho."

"Hansel and Gretel" to Open Winter Season—Saturday Matinees by Radio Begin Dec 26.

A SPONSOR having been found, the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts will begin with the performance of Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel" the afternoon of Dec. 24. The broadcasts will be carried by the WJZ network, in which KWK is a link, and W3XAL and other sport wave stations affiliated with the NBC.

Beginning with the performance of Dec. 26, the Saturday matinee productions will be broadcast throughout the Metropolitan's season.

Singers who will be heard in the broadcasts include Kirsten Flagstad and Lily Pons, both of whom sang in concerts in St. Louis the past week; Lotte Lehmann, Rosa Ponselle, Elisabeth Rethberg, Grace Moore, Gladys Swarthout, Giovanni Martinelli, Lauritz Melchior, Richard Crooks, Lawrence Tibbett, John Charles Thomas, Friedrick Schoor and Ezio Pinza.

Broadcasts of the Chicago Opera Company performances this week on the WJZ net work include: third act of "Othello," from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Wednesday, with Martinelli, Marjorie Lawrence and Richard Bonelli as the principals, and all of "Samson and Delilah," at 2 p. m. Saturday, with Gertrude Wettergren, Martinelli, Carlo Morelli and Chase Boromeo heading the cast.

Here and There on the Air

Jessica Dragonette, Who Will Be Replaced in KSD Friday Night Concerts by Lucille Manners, Signs Contract for Another Series.

By J. L. S.

JESSICA DRAGONETTE, who is to leave KSD'S hour-long Friday night concert series after the broadcast of Jan. 29, when she will be replaced by Lucille Manners, the soprano, has signed a contract for a musical show on the CBS network. The contract, it is said in New York, will mean an increase of her salary to $2000 a week. Her new series will start Wednesday, Jan. 13, at 8:30 p. m., will run for half an hour, and will take the place of the present "Come on, Let's Sing" program on KMOX.

Miss Dragonette has sung in the Friday night concerts on KSD and the WEAF network for the past seven years, except for two five-week periods when she took vacations and Miss Manners substituted for her.

Miss Manners, who has been engaged on a long-term contract to replace Miss Dragonette, has rapidly been winning a place as one of radio's leading sopranos. She began singing for radio four years ago on a station in New Jersey, attracted the attention of NBC program officials and was given a contract. Since then she has been featured in important radio series, and now has her own network program.

Three-Hour Broadcast on British Crisis Tomorrow.

A THREE-HOUR broadcast from London, covering the crisis caused by the attitude of the British Cabinet toward King Edward and his plans for marrying Mrs. Simpson, is scheduled from 5 to 8 o'clock tomorrow morning on KMOX and the CBS network. Whether there will be any direct word in the broadcast from King Edward or Premier Baldwin is not known.

Preparations have been made by the NBC for a possible broadcast by King Edward of England, to the Empire. In the event that the King decides to speak by radio, the NBC will have to obtain permission from the British Broadcasting Corporation to rebroadcast his words.

Walter O'Keefe, who resigned Tuesday as master of ceremonies of the Saturday Evening Party on KSD, featuring Jane Pickens, said that his "walk-out" was to be effective immediately and that he would not take part in last night's broadcast. His contract with his sponsor was to have run for two years. His resignation, which had been rumored for some time, came after six weekly broadcasts of the program. Disagreement over program policies, which he insisted handicapped him as a performer, are given as the reasons for his resignation.

Ricci, Morton Downey At 1 P. M. Today.

RUGGIERO RICCI, the boy violinist; Morton Downey, tenor; Sheila Barrett, the mimic; Hannah Klein and Pauline Gilbert, the two-piano team, are billed for the program at 1 o'clock this afternoon on the WJZ net and KWK. The hour will include a broadcast from Buenos Aires of typical Argentine dance music by an orchestra led by Oswaldo Friesedo.

France Reported Planning to Erect 500,000-Watt Station

STATEMENTS that Japan plans to erect a 150,000-watt radio transmitter to replace a 10,000-watt one at Kawasaki, and that France is planning a 500,000-watt station near Paris, were made during a visit by representatives of the two countries to the 500,000-watt WLW transmitter at Cincinnati, O. The statements as to the French plans were made by Michel Denard, under-secretary to the Postmaster-General of France, and Pierre Godfrin, chief engineer of the French radio commission.

Leslie Howard With Cantor Tonight.

LESLIE HOWARD, the actor, will be Eddie Cantor's guest this evening. He is expected to play the comedian and possibly sing in a skit with Cantor.

Irene Rich's play Friday night will be "Afternoon Adventure," a story of a man and woman who meet a "public enemy" when hiking through the woods.

Eddie Cantor's talk to the Junior Birdmen of America at their rally in New York will be broadcast at 8 a. m. on either the WEAF or WJZ chain.

William McFee, the novelist, whose stories of the sea have won him international standing, will tell Scoop Ward what a boy faces when he goes to sea, in the News of Youth broadcast at 5:15 p. m. Tuesday on the CBS net and KMOX.

Arlene Jackson, the radio singer, will have her first chance as an actress when she plays a role in the Your Unseen Friend broadcast this afternoon.

Malcolm La Prade will resume his travelogues at 1:45 this afternoon on the CBS network.

Jolson's Series to Start Dec. 22.

AL JOLSON'S series, which will feature him as master of ceremonies with Martha Raye, the screen singing comedienne; Sid Silvers, the former vaudeville "stooge" who is now a Hollywood actor-writer, and Victor Young's orchestra, will begin at 7:30 Tuesday evening, Dec. 22. His show will replace the one now headed by Ken Murray.

Two teachers who have made effective use of verse choirs will bring their student groups to radio in the American School of the Air broadcast at 1:15 p. m. Tuesday on KMOX.

Nino Martini is to sing the "Je Crois Entendre Encore" aria from Bizet's "The Pearl Fishers" in his concert with Andre Kostelanetz's orchestra and chorus Wednesday night.

Harry Salter and his orchestra have replaced Al Goodman on the Saturday night Hit Parade.

The final Then and Now program will be that scheduled for next Thursday night.

Opera Stars Sing Today In Concerts

Lily Pons, Gertrude Lawrence, Reed Kennedy, Frank Sheridan Symphony Soloists.

INCLUDING Alexander Semmler's piano recital at 9:30 a. m. on KMOX, and the Radio City concert at 11:30 a. m. on KWK, today's fine music schedule features the usual symphony concerts and song recitals.

Reed Kennedy, the baritone, will sing for the last time this season with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, at 1 p. m. today on KMOX. He has programmed the Toreador Song from "Carmen" and familiar songs. Orchestral pieces will include the dance from Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Snow Maiden," Debussy's "The Afternoon of a Faun," Beethoven's "Turkish March" and the overture to Nicolai's "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

Frank Sheridan, the pianist, will play the Schumann Concerto in A-minor with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra at 2 p. m. today on KMOX. John Barbirolli will open the program with the overture to Rossini's "The Siege of Corinth," and will include Loeffler's "Memories of My Childhood." The second half of the concert will be devoted to Cesar Franck's D-minor Symphony.

Marion Talley's songs at 4 p. m. today on KSD will be "Moonbeams" and "Because You're You" from Herbert's "Red Mill," Haydn's "With Verdure Clad," "Estrellita" and an aria from Meyerbeer's "Les Huguenots."

Sigurd Nilssen will sing "Come Fair Rosina," "Jerry's Song" and "Old Winter Comes" in KSD's Fireside Recital at 6:30 p. m. today and Helen Marshall, Cadman's "Far Off I Hear a Lover's Lute," "Sleep, My Laddie, Sleep" and "Goodnight, Goodnight, Beloved."

Jose Iturbi will conduct the Detroit symphony concert at 8 p. m. today on KMOX. Marjorie Lawrence, the Metropolitan Opera's Australian soprano, will sing the "Plus Grand dans son Obscurite" aria from Gounod's "The Queen of Sheba," the "Il Est Doux" air from "Herodiade" and songs. For the orchestra, Iturbi has programmed the Nicolai "Merry Wives of Windsor" overture, the "Orgia" from Turina's "Danzad Fantasticas" and Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody.

Lily Pons will be the soloist with Erno Rapee's symphony orchestra at 9 p. m. today. Her songs will be Faure's "Rose d'Ispahan," the Polonaise from "Mignon," the Dell-Acqua "Villanelle" and the "Una Poce Fa" aria from "The Barber of Seville." Orchestral pieces will include the overture to "Die Fledermaus," the Andante movement of Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony, Debussy's Second Arabesque, Rimsky-Korsakoff "Flight of the Bumble Bee," and the Ride of the Valkyries from "Die Walkuere."

The program for George L. Scott's organ recital on KMOX at 10 o'clock tonight includes Boothe's "Prologue in Ozark" suite, the Brahms Fugue in A-flat Minor and Reger's "Awake, the Voice Calleth." Albert Scholin will be the soloist next Sunday night.

Richard Crooks, of the Metropolitan Opera, and Margaret Speaks will sing again in KSD's concert at 7:30 tomorrow night. Crooks has scheduled Oley Speaks' "Morning"; "I Know of Two Bright Eyes"; "Mother o' Mine" and Massenet's "Elegie." Miss Speaks will sing Padilla's "El Relicaria" and will join Crooks in "Parigi O Cara" from "Traviata."

Artur Rodzinsky will conduct a Music Guild concert by the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra at 12:45 noon Wednesday on the WEAF Network. Brahms' Eleventh Symphony and dances from Kodaly's "Galanta" are programmed.

Another concert by the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, Jose Iturbi conducting, is scheduled at 7:30 Thursday night on KWK.

Walter Damrosch's Music Appreciation Hour is scheduled as usual from 1 to 2 o'clock Friday afternoon on KSD.

Eugene Ormandy will lead the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in playing the Brahms "Academic Festival" overture, the Bach Air for Strings, the Scherzo from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" music and Berlioz' "Rakoczy March," at 9 o'clock Friday night on KMOX.

Aaron Copland, the young American composer and pianist, will open the "Modern Master" series of concerts on the CBS network at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. He will speak informally about his own music, and the program will consist of his compositions. Other composers of the day will be featured in these weekly broadcasts.

Gaspar Cassado, the Spanish 'cellist, will be the soloist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra next Sunday, and Grace Moore will sing in the Detroit symphonic concert that evening. Cassado will play his own transcription for 'cello and orchestra of a concerto for clarinet by Von Weber. John Barbirolli will open the Philharmonic broadcast with Beethoven's Fourth Symphony and include music by Delius, Mendelssohn and Respighi.

Madrigals and carols of the Elizabethan period in England will be sung in the Magazine of the Air broadcast Christmas day by the New English Singers of London.

Fred Astaire Adds Singer To His Cast

Francia White Engaged For Tuesday Night on KSD—Fred Allen Program Change.

FRANCIA WHITE, who will join Conrad Thibault, the baritone, as a featured singer on Fred Astaire's KSD program Tuesday nights, was unknown to listeners two years ago. She was employed in the movie studios to be the "voice" for women actors whose singing was not up to the requirements of their roles. She did the singing for Virginia Bruce when the latter played Jenny Lind in "The Mighty Barnum." A radio official who saw the film in a New York theater engaged her to star in an NBC network series. When she goes before the microphone Tuesday night for the first time with Astaire, she will sing "Allah's Holiday," and a vocal arrangement of the "March of the Sirdar" from Ippolitoff-Ivanoff's "Caucasian Sketches."

Melodrama in Singapore and on the sea, and piracy in Chinese waters, will be the theme of the First Nighter drama Friday night on KSD.

A new series of Col. Courtesy programs on KSD is scheduled from 5:30 to 6 o'clock Saturday evenings. The setting is the "Colonel's" Southern mansion, and the show, of the variety type, features music by an orchestra, a vocal trio and soloists.

A "Telatune" request program by Russ David, pianist, is a KSD feature at 8:40 a. m. Monday through Saturday.

Mitchell Schuster's orchestra is now playing on KSD daily except Sunday at 12:45 noon and, in addition, at 10:15 p. m. Saturdays.

Episodes in the life of Ross Graham, baritone of KSD's Show Boat, who will be dramatized in the broadcast of this show next Thursday night.

Jack Benny says that he and Mary Livingstone, who "are always at sea on land," plan a yachting party burlesque for their program on KSD at 6 o'clock this evening.

Suzanne Fischer, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, will sing on Bing Crosby's program Thursday night.

Dr. R. R. Spencer of Washington, D. C., will tell the story of the fight against "spotted fever" in the Rocky Mountain region, during the Leo Reisman program Tuesday night.

The dash in an airplane piloted by "Paul" by the fathers of "Jack Harbour" and "Betty Carter" to prevent their marriage after their elopement will be the center of action in the One Man's Family broadcast on KSD Wednesday evening.

Competitors in the Metropolitan Opera Auditions on KSD at 5 o'clock this afternoon will be Margaret Daum, a lyric soprano, of Uniontown, Pa.; Ralph Mageissen, baritone, of Minneapolis, and Hazel McGinley, a mezzo soprano, of Mansfield, O. Miss Daum joined the Radio City Music Hall chorus in 1933, rose to solo parts, and since has sung prima donna roles in Gilbert and Sullivan operettas on Broadway and has been billed on several well known radio programs. Mageissen studied in Germany, and sang in concerts in that country and Italy in 1932 and 1933. Going to New York, he sang in opera in the Lewissohn Stadium, then in the Robin Hood Dell opera in Philadelphia, and had the "second lead" in "The Great Waltz" in New York. Miss McGinley has sung with the Akron Civic Opera company and in concerts and broadcasts.

Music from Fritz Kreisler's "Apple Blossoms" is programmed for the Album of Familiar Music concert on KSD tonight.

Fred Allen's Town Hall Tonight program is to be considerably revised for his program next Wednesday night and thereafter.

William Merrigan Daly, the NBC orchestra leader, who has been the musical director of KSD's concerts featuring Richard Crooks and Margaret Speaks Monday nights, died in his New York home Friday of a heart attack. He was born in Cincinnati in 1889, was a pianist of some note at the age of 13, and was graduated from Harvard University when only 18. At 24, he was managing editor of Everybody's Magazine, and one of its assistants was Walter Lippmann. In 1914, he turned again to music and made a career for 10 years in Broadway productions as composer and conductor.

Gossip From the Studios

JIMMY BRADDOCK, the heavyweight champion, is supported by a cast taken from Broadway in his three-times-a-week radio series. Gabriel Dell, now cast as "T. B." in "Dead End," plays Braddock as a boy. Bobby Jordan, who plays "Angel" in "Dead End," is Braddock's boy friend in the broadcasts. Braddock's mother is played by Josephine Victor, who was leading woman in "Judgment Day." Charles Kennedy, who closed in New York, Nov. 21, in "Plumes in the Desert," plays Braddock's father. Edward B. Latimer, who was in the "Don't Look Now" cast, has the role of one of Braddock's friends. It is planned that Braddock will play himself in the broadcasts after the episodes of his childhood are disposed of....

Gertrude Berg's the Goldberg Family or her House of Glass probably will be back on the air by the first of the year. A sponsor has taken options on the two serials, and is trying to determine which would appeal to the larger audience. . . . Niela Goodelle's return to radio is expected within a few weeks. . . . After being away from New York for three years, Horace Heidt and his orchestra tomorrow evening will begin broadcasting their weekly program from the CBS chain's studios in that city. . . .

Alec Templeton, the British pianist who played on Jack Hylton's radio programs, was engaged as commentator for the broadcast of "Lohengrin" by the Chicago City Opera company yesterday. He will act in the same capacity for the broadcast of "Samson and Delilah" next Saturday. Templeton, who is an associate of the Royal Academy of Music in England, has been giving concerts in many cities in this country. His playing in his Chicago recitals was highly praised by the critics. He will give a concert next Wednesday night in the Opera House of the Municipal Auditorium in St. Louis for the benefit of the St. Louis School of Occupational Therapy.

Tony Wons, of "Scrapbook" and House by the Side of the Road fame, is appearing as "guest" master of ceremonies in a Chicago suburban cafe and broadcasting over a Chicago station.

France Laux, the CBS network and KMOX sports announcer, was taken last Tuesday to St. John's Hospital and operated on. It is expected that Laux will be away from broadcasting for at least a month. . . . Willy Schubert, the St. Louis German actor, has a new German program on KMOX at 7:45 a. m. Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Parker Fennelly, who plays with Arthur Allen in KSD's Saturday night Snow Village Sketches serial, has written a play, "Fulton of Oak Falls," which George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris plan to produce on Broadway. Rehearsals of the play, in which Cohan is to be starred, will begin next week and a two-week try-out run in Boston is to begin Jan. 4.

Appointment of William B. Hedges as vice-president in charge of broadcasting for the Crosley Radio Corporation means that he will be responsible for all programs on WLW, the 500,000-watt Cincinnati station, and WSAI, also in Cincinnati. Hedges was radio editor of the Chicago Daily News some years ago and later president of its station, WMAQ. He represented WMAQ when the National Association of Broadcasters was organized, and was president of the association for two terms. When WMAQ was bought, in 1931, by the NBC, he joined the latter company, becoming manager of WMAQ and WENR, Chicago, then of KDKA, Pittsburgh, and finally general manager of all stations operated by the NBC.

The return to radio of Elsie Hitz and Nick Dawson, who were starred for two years in "Dangerous Paradise," is set for Monday, Jan. 4, when they will open in a five-days-a-week serial, "Follow the Moon." The story will revolve around a girl who leaves the church on her wedding day to avoid marriage to a wealthy young man and then falls in love with a cowpuncher. The locale will be the foothills of the Sierra Nevada mountains and San Francisco.

Charles J. Correll, the "Andy" of Amos 'n' Andy, is a licensed airplane pilot with 300 hours in the air to his credit. He flies frequently in his 320-h. p. cabin plane, which is equipped with about every safety device known. The plane, which has a top speed of 160 m. p. h., can carry five passengers. It is finished in blue and maroon with gold pin-striping, and the upholstery is in a light powder blue shade. Although Correll does most of his own flying, he usually is accompanied by his pilot, C. ("Slim") Freitag. Correll and Freeman Gosden, who plays "Amos," have been on the air nine years as Amos and Andy, and have made more than 2500 broadcasts. . . .

Boake Carter, news commentator, will start tomorrow on a lecture tour of the Midwest in the interest of peace and neutrality. Until he concludes the tour Dec. 17, his broadcasts will go on the air through the studios of WBBM, Chicago. . . . Vivian della Chiesa, the radio singer, was cast as the Princess in the Chicago Opera performance of "La Juive" last Wednesday. Previously, she sang "Mimi" in "La Boheme" and the lead in "Elisir d'Amore". . . . Tim Ryan and Irene Noblette are rehearsing for a network series. . . . Phil Regan, who will go off the air with Ken Murray when Al Jolson takes over their spot Dec. 22, is being groomed for a radio show of his own from the Pacific Coast. . . .

Conrad Thibault, who has been engaged as a permanent member of Fred Astaire's Tuesday night KSD show, rose from being an electrician's helper and store floorwalker to sing with the Philadelphia Opera company and to radio prominence. He attracted the notice of the late President Calvin Coolidge when he was singing in a choir at Northampton, Mass. . . . He went to New York and worked in a store while studying, then won a singing scholarship and spent two summers in Europe with Emilio de Gorgoza, the baritone, returning to this country to join the Philadelphia Opera company. Among his radio engagements was one for three years on the Thursday night Show Boat.

. . . Walter Tetley, the network boy actor, and Gail Gordon, who played opposite Mary Pickford in her radio series last year, have the principal roles in a "Treasure Adventures of Jack Masters" serial three days a week. . .

There are still whispers about a possible radio show starring Shirley Temple and Clark Gable. . . . Fred Astaire and Johnny Green, who are working together on KSD Tuesday night, collaborated in recording "Top Hat," "Follow the Fleet" and "Swing Time."

Martha Linn, pioneer woman announcer on Chicago stations in 1926-27, is now writing and announcing the Tuneful Topics programs on WMAQ and a Musical Revue of the Day on WENR.

IN TOM MIX CAST

JANE WEBB, 11-year-old Chicago NBC actress, who plays in KSD's Tom Mix broadcasts. Her dolls are still her chief delight.

Peace Conference Reaction Broadcast For Latin-America

REACTION in this country to developments in the Pan-American Peace Conference in Buenos Aires will be the subject of comment by F. Larcegui, a Spanish newspaper man and lecturer, in broadcasts by W3XAL, the NBC short wave station at Bound Brook, N. J., which will carry the programs with which the National Broadcasting Co. will compete with foreign stations for Latin-American program attention.

Larcegui's comment will be carried by W3XAL from 6 to 6:15 p. m. Monday through Friday this week and possibly daily except Saturday and Sunday thereafter until the conference ends. It also will be broadcast by W2XAF, Schenectady.

Larcegui will speak in Spanish. He recently spent five months in South America. He represents as correspondent 14 South American newspapers, holds Spain's highest decoration and has been honored by several Latin-American countries.

At the time, W3XAL will be broadcasting on 6.10 megacycles.

Health habits of the Eskimos, and the experiences of a Canadian health official who each summer takes a relief ship into the Eskimo region beyond the Arctic Circle, will be discussed by Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the Dionne quintuplets, tomorrow evening. Tuesday he will tell mothers why they should not fondle their children over much.

Early Morning Programs Added By Berlin Station

SPECIAL early morning programs designed for this country are being broadcast by DJL, Berlin, 15.11 megacycles, from 7 to 8 o'clock week-days and 10:10 to 11:20 Sundays. They consist of music, the Sunday morning broadcast being a symphonic concert.

After being inactive for two years, Siam has re-entered short wave broadcasting with programs on HS8PJ, Bankok, on 10.95 meg., consisting of European and Siamese music. Announcements are made in English, Siamese, French, Spanish and Dutch. The time is 7 to 9 a. m. Mondays.

Programs from Holland worth tuning for are these in English from 6 to 9 p. m. Wednesdays on PCJ, 3.59 meg., and from 7 to 9 a. m. daily except Tuesdays and Wednesdays on PHI, Huizen, 11.77 meg.

Best reception of TPA-2, France, which broadcasts on 15.24 meg., is reported between 8 and 10 a. m. The programs are well balanced, featuring orchestral and vocal music.

Latest information is that the new higher powered stations now being erected at Daventry are expected to be in operation in time for the world-wide broadcasting of King Edward VIII's coronation in May.

Broadcast Today From Finland.

RUDOLPH HOLSTI, Foreign Minister of Finland, will be the speaker in a broadcast, marking the sixteenth anniversary of Finnish independence, at 12:30 noon today on the CBS network. There will also be music by a military band and a Finnish students' chorus.

The Penthouse Serenade, featuring Freddie Martin, his orchestra and singers, Terry Shand and Elmer Feldkamp, and a singing trio, will return to the air at 3 p. m. today for a weekly Sunday series on the WEAF network.

Ted FioRito and his orchestra are billed Tuesday night for the second time on the Portraits in Harmony program.

Elissa Landi and Robert Montgomery will play the "leads" in "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter," in the Radio Theater tomorrow night.

Jack Oakie Set for Series Dec. 29.

JACK OAKIE will play the president of a mythical college when on Dec. 29 he replaces Rupert Hughes as master of ceremonies of the 8:30 p. m. Tuesday program on the CBS net and KMOX. The screen comedian will head an informal hour with collegiate background, movie and radio singers of note, comedians playing "professors" and "lecturers" and student entertainers from various colleges. Frank Forest, the tenor, will leave the program with Hughes after the broadcast of Dec. 22, but Benny Goodman and Georgie Stoll and their orchestras will be retained. Clark Gable is billed as the guest for next Tuesday evening's broadcast.

The first broadcast in a new series called "Drama of the Skies" will come from the Hayden Planetarium, in New York, at 4:30 p. m Saturday on KMOX.

Dr. Holt Speaker in Broadcast.

THE Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt of St. Louis, president of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ, will be the speaker in a broadcast at 6:45 p. m. Tuesday on the WJZ network. His topic will be "The Service of the Federal Council of Churches."

White House Wives of Taylor, Fillmore, Pierce Era; Illness Took Toll of Social Energies

"Mrs. Zach" Prayed for Husband's Defeat; Fragile Successor Broken by Seeing Son Killed in Railroad Wreck.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON.—In the hero-worshipping years following the Mexican War, White House wives were so self-submerged as to be almost obliterated. Mrs. Zachary Taylor kept right out of her husband's limelight; able but ailing Mrs. Millard Fillmore spent most of her White House life in an upstairs study and died the month her husband's term ended; while the sick and sorrowing Mrs. Franklin Pierce fainted when her husband was nominated, came no closer than Baltimore when he was inaugurated, and languished throughout his four years' term.

Up in Seneca Falls, N. Y., the year of the Taylor campaign, a few women led by Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton lashed out against the prevailing fashion of languishing women, but their campaign made no difference as far as the White Houses was concerned. Zachary Taylor's war horse, Old Whitney, got twenty times the mention in the public prints that his wife did, and his laudatory biographers, engrossed in the record of his battles, seldom gave her more than a passing sentence.

Refused to Preside.

Yet it was this same Margaret Taylor, daughter of a Maryland planter, who took the most amazing stand ever recorded of a President's wife, when she flatly said she would never preside in person at an official function.

The late Rose Gouverneur Hoes, who became vastly versed in the personal histories of presidential families by virtue of her long years of patient work in behalf of the Smithsonian costume collection, said: "Margaret Smith Taylor, domestic in her tastes and devoted to her husband, had lived much of her life in garrisons and afield, making a home anywhere.

"She was bitterly opposed to her husband becoming Chief Executive of the land, on the ground of lack of home life, and she openly announced that she would never personallly preside at the White House." Another author said that Mrs. Taylor prayed every night that Henry Clay would win over her husband.

Mrs. Taylor did not take the mid-winter steamer trip from Louisiana to Washington with her husband. She left all the social glory of this gayest of inaugurations—there were three official balls—to her happily-named daughter, Mrs. Betty Bliss, and exactly when she did take up White House residence is hazy, though one authority tells of her "arrival" there the day before her husband died—after 16 months in office.

The Taylors' only son, youngest of their four children, evidently shared his mother's views, for the New Orleans Delta commendingly said of him: "Instead of wasting his time in the fashionable circles of Washington, he has purchased a plantation in the neighborhood of New Orleans and is become a Louisiana planter."

Famous "Miss Betty."

Of the Taylors' three daughters, the eldest married an Army surgeon and was often at the White House with her father; the second married Jefferson Davis, later President of the Confederacy, but died before Taylor was elected; the third was Betty Taylor Bliss Dandridge, to whom historians were writing their thanks for courteous co-operation as late as 1907, 57 years after her father's death.

"Miss Betty" was one of the White House social successes, credited with "the artlessness of a rustic, the grace of a duchess." That name, "Miss Betty," and the acclaim that went with it when she entered the White House at 22, stuck to her through widowhood, a second marriage, and on to extreme old age when "her home was the salon of the Valley of Virginia."

No more intimate and friendly atmosphere has ever prevailed at the White House than during the time of the General and Miss Betty—with "Old Whitey" browsing around the grounds, the public pouring in on summer evenings to hear the Marine Band, and "Old Rough and Ready" and his daughter friendly to all comers.

It was typical of their good-nature that they attended the Washington Monument exercises of July 4, 1850, a day so hot that the procession was abandoned and only one Senator, not a single Representative, came to hear the orator, whose audience, one reporter said, "was composed chiefly of such as are not wont to visit the capital."

In fact, Taylor's death five days later has been credibly attributed to his exposure to the sun, coupled with over-indulgence in cherries and milk, but none the less people were soon contending that the White House itself was a pestilential place, disastrous to Presidents and their families, a charge stridently denied by Washington papers.

Congress, however, quickly voted an appropriation which enabled the incoming hostess, Mrs. Fillmore, to clean and refurnish the house and even to buy it some books, a literary outlay of public funds for the Executive Mansion which was unheard of then and has seldom been heard of since.

President Weds His Teacher.

Mrs. Fillmore herself was both practical and progressive She installed the first kitchen range in the Mansion, causing the cooks to complain bitterly about being driven from their fireplaces, and also causing her husband to take a trip to the Patent Office so that he might be able to show the servants how the drafts worked.

This purchase of books was really the key to the character of Abigail Powers Fillmore. Books had brought her livelihood, companionship, home and happiness. Any extra dollars that came to her hand always went into books, and thus she and her husband kept well abreast of contemporaneous culture. Washington Irving was their close friend, they lost no opportunity of stimulating interest in music, and the local history of Buffalo, N. Y., became Fillmore's private hobby.

Mrs. Fillmore came of the Leland family, so proud of its lineage that a tally was kept of all descendants. Her father was a preacher, learned beyond most men of his day, and desirous that his daughter be learned too. When he died, she was able as a result to turn to teaching school.

And it was at this school that Millard Fillmore was one of her pupils, she being a few years his senior.

Fillmore himself has told how his great urge for self-bettermen had driven him from clothiers' apprentice to teaching one term at school; how that experience had convinced him that he must have more learning; how he bargained with a farmer to chop wood for two days, for every week's board he got while pursuing his studies.

"I then, for the first time in my life, heard a sentence parsed, and had opportunity to study geography with a map," he narrated. "I pursued much of my study with, and perhaps was unconsciously stimulated by the companionship of, a young lady whom I afterward married."

Triumph Over Family.

Abigail's early intimates thought a Leland was lowering herself to marry Millard Fillmore, and told her so—family opposition which must have caused her an especial glow of pride as she later saw her handsome, healthy, non-drinking husband advance to a seat in Congress; to the Comptroller-Generalcy of New York; to Vice-President.

Surely the greatest personal triumph of her life must have been when she and her Vice-President husband were invited to attend a gathering of the "great family of the Lelands!"

Abigail Fillmore appears to have been an influence in practically every day of her husband's public life. It is recorded of Fillmore that "when absent at Albany, or later at Washington, he wrote a letter to his wise and estimable wife every day." And an intimate friend testified: "Mrs. Fillmore was a woman who had read much and was well-informed on all the topics of the day. Mr. Fillmore had the highest respect for her attainments, and had been heard to say he never took any important step without her counsel and advice."

Their beautiful and accomplished daughter, Mary Abigail Fillmore, was her mother's mainstay when Taylor's death took them to the White House. Mary Abigail was then 18. She spoke French fluently, she could play the piano, harp and guitar. She was the social representative of the family outside the White House, for it was then the custom for the President of his wife to accept no invitations.

Days Spent in Library.

Of Mary Abigail a contemporary wrote: "Her attractive personality and rare conversational abilities won the admiration of the numerous guests to whom she was always ready to adapt herself."

None too well, and saddened by the death of a sister, Mrs. Fillmore leaned heavily on her daughter and her son, Powers, the President's secretary, also aided somewhat in social arrangements. Yet she conscientiously bore the brunt of the heavy social duties, even though it often meant staying in bed all day beforehand to make possible three hours of standing on a weak ankle, receiving with her husband.

The Fillmores' entertainments were described as "numerous and largely attended." A reception each Tuesday morning; a levee each Friday evening; large dinners on Thursday evening in the "congressional dining room;" small ones on Saturdays in the private dining room.

Though Fillmore called the White House "this temple of inconvenience," his wife somehow managed to screen off enough privacy for a happy home life centering about that library in the large oval room of the second story, which was described by a house guest: "Here Miss Fillmore had her own piano and harp, and here Mrs. Fillmore, surrounded by her books, spent the greater part of her time, and in this room the family received their informal visitors.

"The President had but little time to give to this library, but he usually succeeded in leaving the executive chamber at 10:30 at night, and spending a pleasant hour in the library with his family."

During their term, the Fillmores entertained Jenny Lind, Thackeray, the Hungarian patriot, Kossuth, and the Arctic explorer, Dr. Elisha Kent Kane, just back from the Grinnell expedition. They set a record in courtesy to an incoming President of opposite political party, when Fillmore attended Thackeray's lecture with his successor, Franklin Pierce, and remained at the White House to receive with him after the inauguration.

Correspondence Burnt.

Characteristically, the Fillmores had planned to round out their lives with travel. The President had all plans made to return to Buffalo via New Orleans, hoping that the Southern climate would improve his wife's health. He had dreams, too, of the courts of Europe.

Later, this all became actuality for Fillmore himself, but not for Abigail, for she died at the end of that March at the Willard Hotel and delayed her husband's Southern trip for a year. Wrote Washington Irving: "I almost think poor Mrs. Fillmore must have received her death warrant while standing by my side on the marble terrace of the Capitol, exposed to chilly wind and snow, listening to the inaugural speech of her husband's successor." Abigail's daughter, Mary Abigail, also died a year later.

No scrap of the daily correspondence between Mr. and Mrs. Fillmore, which might have added a chapter to history akin to the one contributed by John and Abigail Adams, remains. All of the letters of this literary family were burned in 1889 when the son, Millard Powers Fillmore, died, directing in his will destruction of "all letters to or from my father, mother, sister or me." That their story is preserved at all is due to the efforts of the Buffalo Historical Society, who had been organized by Fillmore himself.

After being five years a widower, ex-President Millard Fillmore married Mrs. Caroline C. McIntosh and enjoyed many more years of domestic felicity.

Mid-Victorian Idyll.

Jane Appleton Pierce was a frail and fainting heroine in a day devoted to the utter idealization of that type. The White House was a shrine to her suffering and her sorrow.

Her good-looking and gregarious husband deliberately chose, and for 30 years cheerfully played, the equally idealized role of chivalrous and gallant protector. If he sometimes slumped into intoxication, he gave the full measure of bitter repentance required by the better novels then in circulation.

Tubrcular at 28 when she was married to the 30-year-old Pierce, Jane was beautiful in an ethereal, fine-featured, Puritan fashion. She was daughter of a former president of Bowdoin College, Pierce's own alma mater, and her family chart, by blood and by marriage, brought in a large block of New England's oldest and best names.

Her capture by the fair-haired Franklin Pierce, whose ancestry was far less illustrious, was thus another of the dramatic touches of his singularly fortunate career. Fortune gave him Nathaniel Hawthorne as a school-chum—to become his campaign-biographer when he needed one. His debut in the New Hampshire Legislature was fortuitiously timed with his father's inauguration as Governor. He was New Hampshire's Speaker at the early age of 26; was elected to the House of Representatives at 28; and at 33 was functioning as "young Senator."

And if Mrs. Pierce was sometimes so much of a clinging vine as almost to choke his career, she also put sufficient check on his convivial tastes to enable him to keep and continue the honors so easily won by his eloquence and good-fellowship.

Shrank From Gay Life.

Their honeymoon was combined with a session of Congress. The first affectionate letter Mrs. Pierce wrote home to her husband's father showed her innate shrinking from the Capital's gay social life: "We have an invitation to dinner to Gov. Cass' on Wednesday night," she wrote, "which is accepted notwithstanding my predilections for a quiet dinner at home." By the time a withering Washington June had caused her to take to her bed, Mrs. Pierce was writing: "Oh, how I wish he was out of political life! How much better it would be for him on every account!"

For months at a time before Pierce became President, she visited her Massachusetts relatives while he was on duty in Washington. Her first son, Franklin Jr., was born in Amherst and died in three days, never seen by his father. After the birth of her second, Frank Robert, Mrs. Pierce made her husband's retirement to private life a definite objective, which she actually achieved after the birth of a third son, Benjamin, for Pierce went back to his law business in Concord, and brought joy to his wife by becoming a temperance crusader.

But family life according to her plan was short-lived. Frank Robert died at the age of four of typhus,

RECOMMENDS BANK'S MOTION TO VOID INJUNCTION BE DENIED

Referee Hope, as Special Master, Upholds Bar on Foreclosure by Wellston First National.

Dismissal of the motion of the First National Bank of Wellston to set aside an injunction preventing the bank from foreclosing on a $6500 deed of trust on five lots in the Frontenac subdivision, Conway and Spoede roads, was recommended yesterday by Referee in Bankruptcy John A. Hope.

The injunction had been issued on request of the Conway Road Estates Co., a real estate firm, in connection with its debtor's petition, filed April 24 in Federal Court. The bank asked that the injunction be dismissed on the ground that title to the lots, valued at $31,000, was in the name of Benjamin A. Wood, a director of the real estate firm, and not in the name of the company.

Hearing of the bank's motion had been referred to Referee Hope as special master by Federal Judge George H. Moore. The real estate company will continue the debtor proceedings and file a plan for reorganization if Judge Moore sustains the referee.

HUNTER L. GARY MARRIES AGAIN AT PHOENIX, ARIZ.

Former Kansas City Telephone Man, 52, Divorced Last June; Bride Is 36.

By the Associated Press.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 5.—Hunter L. Gary, for several years president of Theodore Gary & Co., Kansas City, Mo., and Rose L. Barth, were married here today by Justice Harry Westfall. He gave his age as 52; she said she was 36. Both gave their home as Reno, Nev.

Gary was associated with his father, Theodore Gary in the telephone business and was reputed to have more business connections than any other resident when he lived in Kansas City.

He filed a divorce suit against Mrs. Lamora S. Gary in Reno several months ago, but action was dropped and Mrs. Gary won a divorce in Kansas City June 23. They were married June 28, 1905. She charged he absented himself from home more than a year without reasonable cause.

EX-WIFE LOSES POINT IN FIGHT FOR SHARE OF $1,000,000

Demurrer to Plea of First Mrs. G. E. Smith to Set Aside Reno Divorce Sustained.

By the Associated Press.

RENO, Nev., Dec. 5.—Efforts of Mrs. Mary P. Smith to have set aside a divorce decree she obtained here in June, 1930, from the late George Edmund Smith, president of the Royal Typewriter Co., received a setback. District Judge Thomas F. Moran sustained a demurrer filed on behalf of Mrs. Helen Meade Smith, second wife of the manufacturer. It asserted the first Mrs. Smith did not present sufficient facts to set aside the decree.

The first Mrs. Smith is seeking to have the divorce set aside in order to participate in Smith's estate. He died in Nassau County, N. Y., last March, and left about $1,000,000 to his second wife and other relatives.

MUSICIANS HONOR ZIMBALIST

Late Skit on 25th Anniversary of His American Debut.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Eminent musicians assembled tonight at the Beethoven Association to honor Efrem Zimbalist on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his American debut. After dinner there was a skit written by Samuel Chotzinoff, musician and music critic. Deems Connelly was narrator.

In this hilarious offering in 25 years Zimbalist was impersonated by Jascha Heifetz. Heifetz made his entrance in swaddling clothes. Later in the course of the 25 scenes he put on knee pants. Others who took part in the skit were: Walter Damrosch, Mrs. Heifetz (Florence Vidor), Damrosch's daughter, Mrs. Thomas Finletter, Marcia Davenport, daughter of Alma Gluck Zimbalist. David Sarnoff and Mrs. Chotzinoff, sister of Heifetz.

Movie Director Weds Singer.

TUMA, Ariz., Dec. 5.—Dave Rapold, motion picture dance director, and Frances Paxton, singer and dancer, arrived from Hollywood by airplane this afternoon and were married by Superior Judge Henry C. Kelly. Gould gave his age as 33 and Miss Paxton's 21.

NEW CENTRAL ASSIGNMENT SYSTEM FOR CHOOSING JURORS

10 Civil Jury Divisions of Circuit Court Will Go Into Effect Tomorrow.

The new central assignment system for choosing jurors in the 10 civil jury divisions of the Circuit Court will go into effect tomorrow when prospective jurors will report in the courtroom of Circuit Judge O'Neill Ryan.

From there they will be assigned, in panels of 20, to any of the courtrooms which may have need for jurors. Formerly jurors were summoned by each of the 10 divisions separately. Fewer jurors will be needed under the new system and only 300 have been summoned for this week. Under the former practice 550 would have been summoned.

For the present the central assignment method will be used only by the civil divison of the court. Later it is planned to extend it to the criminal division.

QUAIL PROTECTION IN EFFECT

Two-Year Closed Season Begins in Washington County.

POTOSI, Mo., Dec. 4.—The recently voted quail protection law in Washington County became effective yesterday. Otis Popham of Hayti, Field Warden of the Southeastern Division and Jos. G. Rehm of Ste. Genevieve, game warden for District 26, came here to see that the law is observed and to make arrangements for carrying out its provisions.

A closed season for two years was voted on Nov. 3 but was not in effect until the County Court made the order closing the season.

ADMITS EXTORTION ATTEMPT

Buffalo Man Pleads Guilty of Mailing Obscene Pictures.

By the Associated Press.

FARGO, N. D., Dec. 5. — Peter Koteros, Buffalo, N. Y., pleaded guilty in Federal Court today to a charge of sending obscene pictures through the mails. He will be sentenced Monday.

Koteros was charged as the outgrowth of a plot, which District Attorney P. W. Lanier said involved two State penitentiary inmates and a guard, to extort money from opera stars through the use of photographs made by superimposing heads of opera stars on pictures of nude bodies.

Six Men Saw Way Out of Jail.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 5.—The state highway patrol was notified late today by Sheriff S. E. Juden that two white men and four Negroes had sawed their way out of the Pemiscot County jail at Caruthersville. The white men are David L. Lamb, 18 years old, held for car theft, and Berry Barrow, held for grand larceny. The Negroes include Roosevelt Thompson, alias Forest Jones, 22, of St. Louis.

WHITE HOUSE WIVES OF TAYLOR, FILLMORE AND PIERCE ERA

her health became worse and in fact caused Pierce to turn down the Attorney-Generalship, which had been offered him by President Polk.

But when the Mexican War came along, the fate that had him marked for fame made him a Brigadier-General, and Mrs. Pierce had for her consolation the careful plans for her welfare laid by her husband before his departure, and long and loving letters from the front.

Years later, Mrs. Pierce fainted when she first heard that her husband had been nominated for the presidency and she asked to be taken away from it all when the congratulations started pouring in. The trip turned out to be sort of a campaign tour instead of a rest. She tried to rally, and at times could contemplate almost with anticipation her role as White House hostess.

A Ghastly Tragedy.

But all that was ended by a tragedy terrible enough to overshadow any woman's four years in the White House, for two months before inauguration, she and her husband saw their adored only son, Benjamin, killed in a railroad wreck from which they both escaped unhurt. A relative wrote: "Misfortune has paralyzed her energy entirely, and from present appearances she has not bodily vigor enough ever to rally."

An old friend, Mrs. Abby Kent Means, went into the White House with her and took much of the hostess' duties from her slender and shrinking shoulders. There were few parties, and the Pierces saved money. They did much refurbishing of the old mansion, and installed the first furnace, a main-hall screen to shut off drafts, and a carpet that weighed a ton in the East Room.

At receptions, when Mrs. Pierce received with her husband, her sweet smile on a face where "traces of bereavement" were "legibly written" was much commented on. Yet she survived Abby Means and was able, after she left the White House, to make a tour of Europe—carrying with her to each country a box in which she treasured locks of the hair of each of her three dead sons. She died in 1863.

ALBERTA TURNING AGAINST ABERHART AND SOCIAL CREDIT

Two Minor Elections Show Change in Sentiment — Premier's Candidates Lose.

RETAILERS CHAFING UNDER REGULATIONS

Scrip Another Source of Dissatisfaction—Financial Aid Refused to Provincial Government.

TORONTO, Dec. 5.—Growing dissatisfaction with the Social Credit Administration of Premier William Aberhart in Alberta has been evidenced in recent weeks and there are predictions that he will lose in the next election.

Within the last two weeks there have been two elections in which Edmonton elected five Aldermen who were not supporters of Aberhart or Social Credit, and Calgary elected an opposition city commissioner and three out of six Aldermen not bearing the Aberhart tag.

Edmonton also reduced the interest rate on its municipal bonds held by the Aberhart Government in retaliation for the reduction in interest on the Alberta bonds, a large amount of which the city owned. Calgary took similar action.

Aberhart's Reply.

In a characteristic reply, Aberhart advised that the city might not reduce interest rates on its bonds to any single bondholder as such action would be regarded as discriminatory. His logic is fair enough—that it is wrong to reduce interest coupons on Alberta's bonds with the province's people paying, but right for the Government to reduce interest coupons on Calgary's bonds, with the city's people paying. But his action is gaining no votes in Edmonton or Calgary.

Chambers of Commerce of Edmonton and the Boards of Trade of Calgary and Lethbridge, the four major cities of the province, gave Aberhart's prosperity certificates a blow.

These business bodies declared the venture in scrip—started in an effort to stimulate purchasing power—had failed to achieve its purpose, and that the certificates would not circulate on their own merits; nor could they be kept in circulation even after strenuous efforts to organize for them.

"The entire scheme of prosperity certificates is unworkable and injurious to general business confidence," their letter to the Aberhart Government reads, "and we again appeal to the Government to recognize the failure of its experiment and to desist from it."

Circulation Dropping.

The first certificates, issued last August, totaled $230,000. The total in circulation has been dropping ever since. At the regular November redemption period two weeks ago, about $30,000 were still in circulation, of which $15,000 had been issued a few days previously to Alberta civil servants.

"If the Government has the money to pay salaries and relief in cash, why should it bother with the issue of prosperity certificates?" the chambers of commerce and boards of trade ask. "If it hasn't the money, who is going to stand the loss when the whole pyramiding system breaks down as similar systems have done? At Portland, Ore., the final winding-up resulted in a payment of 10 cents on the dollar to the holders of scrip."

Retailers also are chafing under Aberhart rules and regulations, and they are disciples of an opposition doctrine in any community. Officers of the Alberta Retail Merchants' Association say the new retail code has not stopped price-cutting and underselling because its provisions were not being enforced. They have shown little enthusiasm for the proposed trading bureau which would barter Alberta wheat for some product not produced in the province. Under the Social Credit system, the monthly dividends may be exchanged only for Alberta-made products, or goods imported by the trading bureau.

Premier Aberhart's appeals to Ottawa for financial aid have failed, although the Dominion continues its relief grants.

WINS CONSENT BY HIS VOICE

Young Man Sends Phonograph Record to Girl's Father.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Miss Gertrude Adler and Leonard Grossman were married today. The marriage was approved by the bride's father strictly by ear. That is to say: When Grossman, a former Alderman, proposed to Miss Adler last summer she told him he would have to ask her father, Adolph Adler. Adler lives in Frankfort, Germany. So Grossman made a little speech about how much he was in love with Miss Adler and had it recorded by phonograph.

Then he sent the record to Germany. Adler senior played it and decided he liked the young man's voice. He called in 70 relatives, and they said the same thing. So all of them sent a cable of congratulations to the pair. The wedding followed.

Jobless WPA Seamstresses

ASLEEP on the floor of the Council Chamber of the City Hall at Pleasantville, N. J., after they lost their jobs Dec. 1 because the town failed to provide funds to continue their projects. They have threatened to stay all winter "unless we get our jobs back."

SEAMSTRESSES AT CITY HALL FORCE CLEANUP ON TOWN

Group Say They Have Closed Three Joints While Protesting Against End of WPA Project.

By the Associated Press.

PLEASANTVILLE, N. J., Dec. 5.—Seamstresses who have been in possession of the city council's chambers since Tuesday when the city abandoned the WPA project on which they worked, were still in control tonight.

As on previous nights, the 88 women sat on the hard benches, knitted, embroidered doilies, crocheted lace, read love stories and talked of how they had forced a clean-up on city officials.

They said three "horse joints" had been closed and announced their next efforts would be directed at six "number racketeers." Their method is to have several of their group picket the places.

Mrs. Ann McArdle, a leader of the women, said one business man had promised to buy a pair of shoes for each of the women if they kept up their fight, and she reported merchants were still contributing an "abundance" of food. The women got their last WPA checks today.

BERNHARD A. MUELLER DIES

Architect in East St. Louis for 42 Years, Succumbs at 75.

Bernhard August Mueller, an architect in East St. Louis for 42 years, died of a stomach ailment yesterday at Christian Welfare Hospital there, after an illness of about a year. He was 75 years old and resided at 2929 Virginia place.

Mr. Mueller was consulting architect in construction of many East St. Louis buildings, including the Broadview Hotel, St. Paul's Social Center and public schools. Surviving are his wife, two daughters and a son. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Kurrus mortuary, 2525 State street. Burial will be in Mount Hope Cemetery.

GREEK WOMAN GOT $4000, INSULL'S ATTORNEY SAYS

All Claims to Jewels Released, He Asserts, Denying New York Story.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Samuel Insull's attorney, Floyd E. Thompson, said today he wanted to settle "once and for all time" how much his client paid Mme. Helen Coyimzoglu of Greece for "her sacrifices" while she befriended Insull during his exile in Athens.

"Mme. Coyimzoglu received $4000 in cash—no jewelry," Thompson said. "This morning I received from a New York lawyer Mme. Coyimzoglu's receipt, accepting the $4000 payment, which I advanced personally, as a complete release of all her claims against Mr. and Mrs. Insull."

Thompson said he disclosed the amount of settlement to refute "utterances in New York by Mme. Coyimzoglu's counsel, Peter Kouridas, who said his client received $4500 and would eventually be given some of Insull's jewelry stored in Paris."

Business at Work

Creates a Nation's Market

The Christmas season creates one of the big markets of the year. For months in advance factory wheels turn out new toys for the children—new gifts, both necessities and luxuries, for mother and father—the thousand and one surprises that are a part of Christmas.

The income created by these industries—and by many others—makes it possible to provide for your family and yourself, not only at Christmas but throughout the year.

In St. Louis, more than 200 different industries at work—64% of the industry classifications in the entire country—help to create this income.

85% of these St. Louis industries are represented on the books of Mississippi Valley Trust Company.

MAY CO. BUYS GROUND NEXT TO WAREHOUSE

No Building Contemplated for Present—Truck Terminal Projected for 2708-16 North Broadway.

By Berry Moore

Taking time by the forelock, the May Department Stores Co., which operates the Famous-Barr Department Store, has purchased 50 by 133 feet of ground on the south side of Market street, west of Spring avenue, to provide for future requirements. Adjoining department store's seven-story warehouse, relay shipping station and garage, occupying approximately a block, the ground is to be held as available for ultimate expansion. There are no immediate building plans in this connection, however, it was stated.

The Famous-Barr warehouse group was built in 1925 at an estimated cost of $1,000,000. A private switch for 14 cars with tracks available in connection with the Wabash railway, adjoins the first floor of the warehouse, and a large track concourse adjoins the alley, which provides space for deliveries by trucks. The entire group of buildings is equipped with automatic sprinklers and a complete system of heating and ventilating.

Garage Being Enlarged.

The concern is now building a large addition to its 100 car garage on Spring avenue, used for delivery trucks. It is mentioned as reflecting the increased requirements, as well as growth of the department store.

The group of buildings has an extensive frontage on both Market and Spring, with spur track connections with the Wabash railway on the south.

The lot involved in the present transaction is at 3716 Market street. It was owned by Maie Ruth McMillan. No intimation as to the price paid was given.

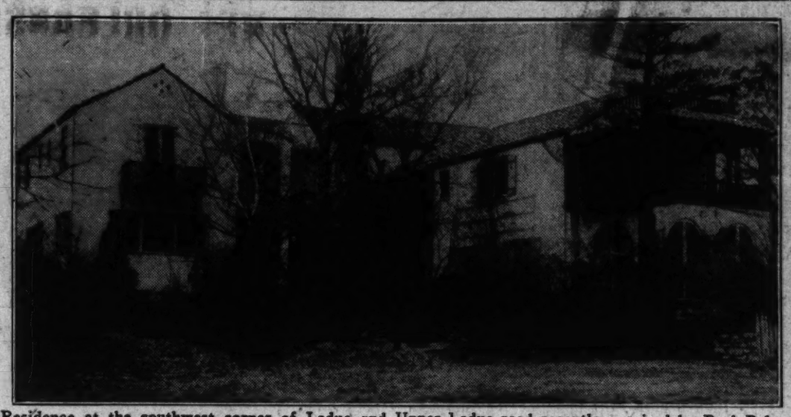

The vacant ground at the southeast corner of Spring and Market, comprising 95,000 square feet, has been acquired as a site for the proposed $1,000,000 Armory which is

Residence in County Recently Acquired

Residence at the southwest corner of Ladue and Upper Ladue road recently acquired by Paul Bakewell Jr., attorney, from F. W. A. Vesper. It is of Spanish design and is on a four-acre tract. It was formerly the residence of Harold Bixby. Albert T. Terry, Son & Co. represented the seller and Edward L. Bakewell, the purchaser.

FIVE SUBURBAN ESTATES CHANGE HANDS DURING WEEK

Paul Bakewell Jr. Acquires Upper Ladue House—Other Purchases of Larger Homes in County.

Purchases on Upper Ladue in Fordyce Lane and on the Clayton road marked the week's residential transactions which accounted for the bulk of real estate volume.

The 11-room house at the southwest corner of Ladue and Upper Ladue roads, owned by F. W. A. Vesper, was acquired by Paul Bakewell Jr., attorney. It was the former residence of Harold Bixby.

The house, of Spanish design, is on a four-acre site. The first floor comprises large living room, sun room, dining room, kitchen, card room, butler's pantry, lavatory and two maids' rooms, and bathroom. The second floor has large main bedroom, with two baths and two sleeping porches. A separate wing contains four bedrooms and three baths. An oil heating system is a part of the equipment, and there is a garage for four cars. A swimming pool is an attractive feature.

Albert T. Terry, Son & Co. represented the seller. Edward L. Bakewell acted for the purchaser. No intimation as to the consideration was given.

Harry Lesser, president of the Lesser Cotton Co., has concluded negotiations for the residence of Mrs. Louis Cella, at Clayton and Cella roads. It stands on a 9½-acre landscaped site.

The house has 10 rooms and four baths and is on a superb scale. It is to be remodeled at a large outlay. Mrs. Cella was represented by Cornet & Zeibig, and Lesser by the Arthur Goldman Realty Co. in the negotiations.

Fordyce Lane Sale.

A residence on a pretentious scale, known as No. 1 Fordyce Lane on Ladue road, has been acquired by Mrs. Marion Clifford Blossom, now residing at 4526 West Pine boulevard. Mary Potter Love, Inc., handled the transaction.

The recently completed house has reception hall, large living room, dining room, pantry, kitchen, paneled library, with fireplace and large sunroom on the first floor. There are four bedrooms, with dressing rooms, three baths, large sleeping porch and sewing room on the second floor. The third floor has two maid's rooms and bath. A paneled rathskeller with fireplace and guest's lavatory is in the basement. The site comprises 2.7 acres.

Mrs. Blossom will take possession of the new residence as soon as decorations have been completed.

Lake Forest House Acquired.

No. 52 Lake Forest has been purchased by John Fuhrer, president of the Egyptian Tie & Timber Co., through the Dimmitt Rickhoff Bayer Real Estate Co.

The house occupies a corner lot, with a frontage of 215 feet. It is of semi-fireproof construction, with concrete slab over the entire first floor, with hardwood floor laid over in herringbone design.

The first floor contains living room, dining room, breakfast room, butler's pantry and tiled kitchen, maid's room with bath and open porch. Four master bedrooms, two baths and a sleeping porch comprise the second floor. The basement includes a rathskeller. There is an attached garage for two cars.

The sale was made for the Modern Construction Co. which erected the building, just completed.

John A. A. Hecker has purchased a new house known as 77 Lake Forest, built by Fred Schiller, contractor. The John P. Dolan Real Estate Co. negotiated the sale. The equipment includes a three-horsepower unit for cooling.

A new house at 903 South Meramec avenue in Davis place has been acquired by R. L. Ward, certified public accountant, from A. A. Francis.

The first floor includes dining room, sunroom, kitchen and lavatory. There are four bedrooms, two baths and a sun room on the second floor. A rathskeller forms an integral part of the basement, which also includes a two-car garage.

The purchaser was represented by N. S. Wood, Inc., and the seller by Shaw & Francis, Inc.

REALTY FIRM GIVES MONTH'S SALARY TO WORKERS AS BONUS

The Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Real Estate Co. has voted a month's salary as a bonus to its 13 employes. The concern, one of the best known in real estate circles, has ground floor quarters at 808 Chestnut street, with a branch office at 3612 Gravois avenue. It conducts a general real estate and financial business.

F. E. MEYER TO HEAD COUNTY REALTY BOARD

Charles D. Jost Is Elected First Vice-President—Other Officers Named.

Franklin E. Meyer was chosen president of the St. Louis County Real Estate Board at the annual election of officers of the organization, held Wednesday. He is president of the Franklin E. Meyer Realty Co.

Charles D. Jost, who is associated with John H. Armbruster & Co., Inc., was elected first vice-president, Ralph L. Schwenck was made secretary and treasurer. He has served as secretary of the board for the last five years. He is secretary of The Trust Company of St. Louis County.

Grover W. Devine, L. W. Kraeger and L. William Gerling were elected to the directorate for three-year terms.

The retiring president is William L. Gerling of the William L. Gerling Realty & Building Co.

The installation banquet will be held in January.

ADVANCE IN VALUE OF REALTY BONDS SHOWN

Issues in Five Major Cities in East Contribute to Gains, According to Survey.

Average prices of Eastern real estate bonds have risen $41 in the first 11 months of the year, Amott, Baker & Company announced yesterday.

With issues in the five major cities in the East contributing gains, realty bonds maintained the steady upward climb of the previous months with an average gain of $6 per $1000 of face value in November. Prices have advanced from $389 per $1000 of face value on Jan. 1 to $430 on Dec. 1.

The Amott-Baker averages, based on the market action of 200 typical issues, disclosed a November gain of 1.4 per cent and a rise of 10.5 per cent for the first 11 months. The same advance was recorded for October.

New York City issues gained 1.2 per cent in November and 8.6 per cent for the 11-month period. The average price has increased from $383 on Jan. 1 to $416 on Dec. 1. Other November increases were: Boston, 1.2 per cent; Pittsburgh, 1.2 per cent; Philadelphia, 0.8 per cent, and Buffalo, 4.7 per cent.

Prices on Dec. 1 included: Boston, $606; New York, $416; Buffalo, $425; Philadelphia, $393, and Pittsburgh, $314.

The largest gain among classes of issues for the first 11 months was made by hotels, which advanced 20.1 to an average price of $376. Other Dec. 1 prices included: theaters, $679; office buildings, $477; housekeeping apartments, $391, and apartment hotels, $364.

MAY CO. BUYS GROUND NEXT TO WAREHOUSE

being exploited by realtors as a ten-strike for this part of the city.

Market street, widened from 60 to 100 feet, is designated a boulevard. Approximately 40 feet was taken off the south side of the thoroughfare.

Owns Entire Block.

The May Company recently acquirede a quarter-block at the northeast corner of Sixth and Elm streets in order to provide for increased garage and terminal facilities for the Famous-Barr bus terminal, occupying the entire Seventh street side of the block, extending from Walnut to Elm streets. The company now owns in fee the entire block bounded by Sixth, Seventh, Walnut and Elm streets. The block has a private north and south alley accessible from Elm.

The cut-off from Market to Walnut has had a salutary effect on this part of the city, realtors declare.

Another purchase within the last year or so was that of the seven-story building at 615 Locust street, owned by the Dolph estate, of which the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. is executor. The building, which has a Locust street frontage of 22 feet, is the east unit of the Dolph block at the northeast corner of Seventh and Locust streets, now held in fee or under 99-year leases by the May Company. The Walgreen Drug Co. occupies the Seventh street corner of the Dolph block, which has an extensive frontage on both Locust and Seventh.

The Famous-Barr store, occupying the block bounded by Seventh, Locust, Sixth and Olive streets, operates a cafeteria in the basement under the Seventh street side of the Dolph Block. A tunnel under Locust street connects the two buildings. The Famous-Barr store also has an eight-story warehouse in the 600 block on St. Charles street, also available in connection with the tunnel.

Terminal Building Project.

Plans have been completed for a truck terminal building to be erected dat 2708-16 North Broadway by a syndicate formed by the Henry R. Weisels Co. The site has a frontage of 80 feet on Broadway, with a depth of 150 feet extending through the block to the Wabash Railway tracks.

The building will be 80 by 140 feet, with a loading platform in the rear, car floor height, and connected with the Wabash tracks. It will be of steel frame construction and 15 feet in height with four-foot skylights. It is designed especially for truck terminal purposes. The Broadway front is available for loading, and there are switch tracks in the rear of the premises.

The project will entail an investment of $35,000, exclusive of the site. The building will be ready for occupancy about March 1 and will be under the management of the Weisels company.

LOT ON LINDELL BOULEVARD, EAST OF BOYLE, BOUGHT

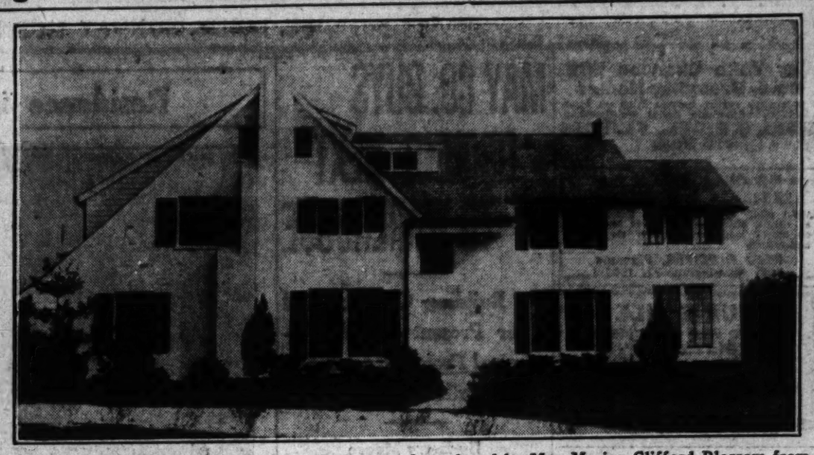

Interests controlled by the F. J. Cornwell Real Estate Co. have acquired 100 by 175 feet of vacant ground on the north side of Lindell boulevard, 200 feet east of Boyle. No building plans have been disclosed in this connection. Under the zoning ordinance, the site is available for business purposes.

The ground was owned by the Pine Investment Co., a holding company of Simon Van Raalte, wealthy real estate holder and financier, which had acquired it under a loan made in the pre-depression era. The consideration was not disclosed.

Residences Recently Sold—Design for Recreational Building

Residence at No. 1 Fordyce Lane on Ladue roa d purchased by Mrs. Marion Clifford Blossom from Howard Godwin, builder. Mary Potter Love, In c., handled the transaction.

F. H. A. PLAN IS FACTOR IN HOME CONSTRUCTION

Mortgages Insured by Administration 44 Per Cent of Permits in Cities.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—From June to October of this year, the value of new home mortgages accepted for insurance by the Housing Administration has averaged from 41 to 44 per cent of the total value of building permits issued in cities of 10,000 and more population for one and two family dwellings. This compares with an average of around 28 per cent for the same period of 1935.

"Houses which are designed and built to be livable homes for at least a generation will soon be the rule rather than the exception in this country," said Stewart McDonald, Federal Housing Administrator, "if the trend of the insured mortgage system in relation to new home-building activity continues to gain at this rate.

"While these figures do not represent total residential construction in the United States, they show clearly that the insured mortgage system has already become a major factor in new home construction.

The percentage ratio of mortgages accepted for new home construction to the value of building permits for one and two family houses in cities of 10,000 and more population, given month by month since the establishment of the insured mortgage system, is as follows:

Month.	1935	1936
January	0.04	35.6
February	9.1	25.0
March	13.0	21.6
April	19.3	26.1
May	22.2	33.25
June	22.0	43.2
July	29.5	40.5
August	28.6	42.2
September	31.3	43.7
October	32.9	43.6
November	35.0	.....
December	37.2	.....

These percentage ratios were computed upon the basis of building-permit statistics reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, as adjusted by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to cover all cities with a population of 10,000 and over.

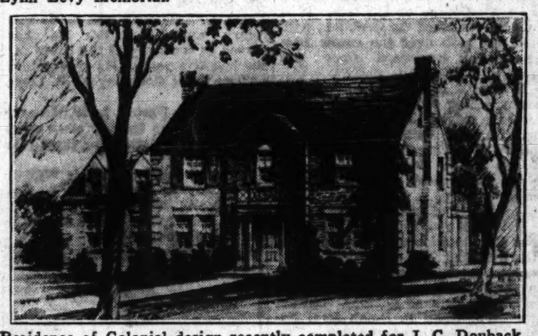

The mortgages used in making this comparison cover only those houses under construction or to be constructed from plans, and therefore to be inspected during course of construction by the Housing Administration. They do not cover houses completed at the time the commitment to insure the mortgage is made, although such houses may be entirely new.

THIS HOUSE GREW UP AROUND MUSIC

STUDIO LIVING ROOM WAS FIRST CONSIDERATION IN THIS CHARMING ENGLISH COTTAGE

Upper left—English cottage of painted brick redwood siding has all the charm of the informal. Upper right—The fireplace nook is part of the studio living room.

WHEN Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Brigham Jr. decided to build a house, architectural styles and materials were secondary. The one specification was a studio living room, large enough to accommodate a grand piano without dwarfing the room, and good acoustics since there were to be musicales, planned and impromptu.

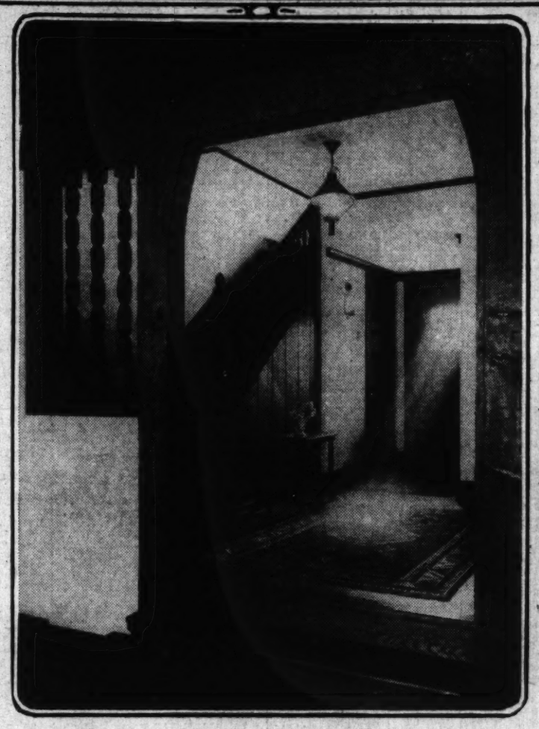

They took their idea and a building site, a hilliside lot in Algonquinwood, to R. Paul Buchmueller, who planned a house which, they all laughingly agree, has grown around a grand piano.

The house is a white-faced English cottage of painted brick and redwood siding and has the informal charm that is so desirable in a smaller house. It rises on its site with a certain sturdy dignity for the architect has taken full advantage of the slope. A two-car garage and game room, both entirely out of grade, are in the basement.

Exposure and view are additional considerations in building a house and since this one faces south it has the advantage of three bedrooms with the coveted southern exposure. The view is to the north over rolling, tree-clad hills and smooth greens and the studio window in the living room is a picture window of changing moods and colors as one steps through entrance and stops in the hall for a moment.

By dropping the living room three steps below the first floor level, additional height has been added to this beautifully proportioned room with its beamed ceiling and opened entrance. The fireplace has been located in a nook at the left, leaving the living room completely free for music and the more formal entertaining. A squared, redwood lintel forms the shelf over the brick fireplace and the variegated binding of books in the shelves on either side carry out the decorative color note that is sounded by the seascape over the fireplace. The lintel supporting the nook, the exposed beams and the squared posts at the entrance to the room are of hand-adzed redwood.

THE dining room likewise takes advantage of the view. An iron guard rail permits the opening of the French doors in the summer.

Entrance hall, showing stairway to second floor and hand-adzed redwood timbers.

These doors are part of the scheme which permits the house to grow to the extent of a porch which will be accessible from the living room also and may be used as a dining porch.

Mrs. Brigham, who is a fine musician as well as a good housekeeper, points out two features in the dining room with a great deal of pride for she is responsible for them. One is a tiny closet on the dining room landing in which it is possible to keep a musical library in order. The other is a roomy closet for china and glassware concealed by panelled doors.

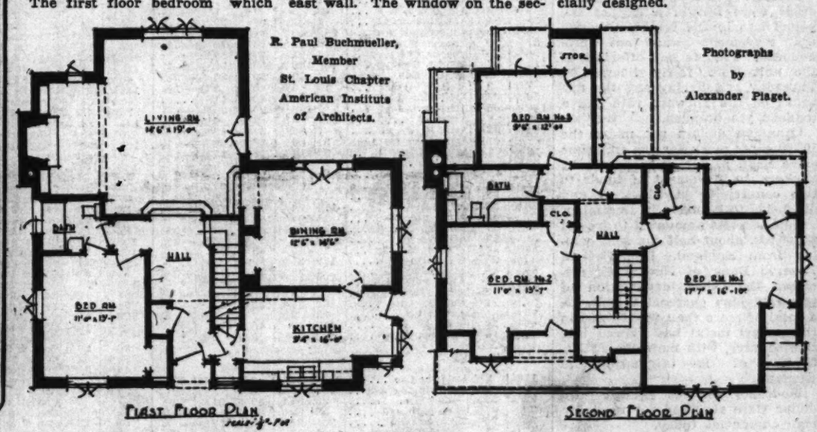

The kitchen is another of her hobbies. It is a sunny, well-arranged workroom placed at the front of the house and within a few steps of the entrance. Walls and cabinets have been painted cream and the floor and wainscoting are covered with linoleum in which cream, black and orange are blended. Cabinet interiors have been painted orange to harmonize with the colors in the floor and wainscoting. The counter space on either side of the sink is covered with black composition material which Mrs. Brigham finds "very easy on the china."

The first floor bedroom which faces south has a connecting door to a small, well-planned bathroom which takes up little more room than the usual downstairs lavatory. Here the color scheme is cream and dark blue, with floor and wainscoting done in navy blue linoleum.

THE master bedroom on the second floor has three exposures and three closets, including a large storage closet. The room is planned to permit good furniture arrangement and is large without seeming empty. The bath is placed between the smaller bedrooms and a spacious linen closet with ample shelf space is just opposite. Linoleum has been used on the floor and as wainscoting for this bathroom, likewise.

The north bedroom has been purposely left unfinished and will be turned into a den or study with built-in storage cabinets along the east wall. The window on the second floor landing which has sun during the greater part of the day has been fitted with glass shelves on which a collection of brightly colored Mexican glass has been set out.

The walls in the living and dining rooms are smooth plaster in off-white color. Bedroom walls are finished in cream-tinted plaster, which lends warmth to the rooms. The house is heated by a winter air-conditioning warm-air furnace. There are steel casement windows throughout the house. All lighting fixtures on the first floor are wrought iron and have been especially designed.

Some landscape work has been done near the house, but the slope at the back is to be left as it is. "We like it in its wild state," says Mrs. Brigham, "and will probably set out some redbud and dogwood in the spring. But we won't make a formal garden of it."

Thermometer Not Always Measure of Heat Comfort

Degree of Humidity and Location Play Great Part in Comfort in Winter Heating.

The thermometer is not always a sure measure of the degree of heat comfort in the home, say the Heating and Ventilating experts at the University of Illinois. Cold walls and windows, degree of humidity and, most important, the location of the thermometer all affect the degree to which its reading is reliable.

Temperatures of surrounding walls and objects have more bearing on the comfort of the individual than is usually recognized. When the weather is below zero and there is a slight wind the average uninsulated wall has an inside temperature of 50 or 60 degrees. In a room with three such exposed walls the room temperature must be raised to 78 to get the same comfort that would exist if both walls and air were at 72 degrees. With insulation the walls show a higher inside temperature and an air temperature of 73 degrees gives the same comfort to occupants as 78 degrees with uninsulated walls.

Window surfaces are often a greater source of discomfort. Research has shown that the inside surface of windows is only 17 degrees when the outdoor temperature drops to three below zero. With tight fitting storm windows the inside glass surface temperature rises to 41 degrees. Other benefits from storm sash are increased cleanliness, since the entrance of dust is not possible. Higher humidity too is possible without condensation on the panes when storm sash is used.

Humidity to the layman means little more than the moisture content of the air. To the heating and ventilating engineer it means health, comfort and preservation of property. When moisture is not supplied to heated air it is taken from every available source: the human body, the materials in the house, and the furniture. The mucous membranes and the skin begin to feel dry and parched, floors may warp and plaster may crack due to excessive moisture loss. Furniture too may crack and veneers begin to peel.

Maximum comfort is attained at 70 degrees with 50 per cent relative humidity. With humidity cut to 20 per cent the temperature must be raised to 73 degrees for the same amount of comfort. To maintain anywhere near this degree of humidity, eight gallons of water must be evaporated every 24 hours in the average size home. This presupposed weatherstripping or storm sash to prevent excessive humidity loss through leakage. Storm sash prevents the gathering of moisture on walls in excessively cold weather and prevents the frosting of windows. Frost on windows simply means the condensation of humidity due to contact with cooler glass.

The last point and one of the most important is the placing of the thermometer or thermostat. The average thermometer is placed about five feet from the floor. Most people in a home are sitting, and usually, below this level. Air temperatures are far from uniform from floor to ceiling. They are usually lowest near the floor and highest near the ceiling. In view of this fact it is recommended that the thermometer and furnace control thermostat be placed in the "sitting zone" which is about three feet from the floor.

FOR BETTER LIVING

When you start your oil burner it would be well to have it checked to see that combustion is complete. Improper combustion is not only wasteful of fuel but causes soot to foul the atmosphere and deposit its smudges all over the neighborhood.

Curtain materials are one's best help in making windows assist the decorative effect. Sheer fabrics are useful when the view is attractive; heavier mesh shuts out an unseemly prospect. Large panes of glass in windows of awkward size may be divided into the interesting small panes of a colonial house by means of narrow strips of black gummed paper marking off the divisions. Narrow glass shelves built against wide windows give a gay display of your collection of decorative bottles and vases of varying shapes and colors, with small pots of trailing green ivy.

The planning of kitchens for convenience, comfort, and attractiveness has taken a new step forward with the introduction by several manufacturers of kitchen units which, upon assembly, make up not only the drawer cabinets, counters, and cupboards but the walls of the room as well.

These units are available in various sizes to meet a wide variety of kitchen layouts, but commonly are about two feet wide and consist of a base cabinet containing drawer space, a counter over the base cabinet, and a back wall supporting a double cupboard above. Any number of these units may be assembled side by side or special units containing kitchen sinks, dish washers, ranges, and refrigerators may be worked into the assembly wherever desired, thus providing upon completion of the assembly a complete, attractive, properly designed kitchen with all the conveniences made available that the home owner wishes included.

These new kitchen units are available in either steel or wood, and various color combinations are possible. Often special lighting devices are built into the units to provide better illumination where it is most needed, right over the counter. Counter tops are finished in a wide variety of materials ranging from specially processed wood to bakelite and the various stainless metals.

The assembled-unit idea has been extended to the bathroom as well as the kitchen, and now wall units are available which make up complete bathroom walls, providing for the attachment of the various fixtures and medicine cabinets, towel cabinets, and other conveniences at the same time. Here again various combinations of color and finish are available, with the final assembly an attractive bathroom, conveniently arranged, of durable, water-resistant materials.

Storage closets to hold the winter clothes in summer and the summer clothes in winter are the greatest sort of convenience for the housewife who had to put these clothes away and are much kinder to the clothes than are trunks. Almost every house has a place where such a closet can be built.

Sandblasted wood, properly finished, gives some odd and beautiful effects. A simple attractive finish is obtained by first dusting off the surface thoroughly to remove all fine sand which may have been left in the pores. After that a stain is applied—preferably a penetrating, transparent oil stain. This should be wiped off immediately to produce an even effect. Two thin coats of stain should be used. A very thin coat of shellac may be applied after staining. Then a final finish should be given with a coating of flat varnish.

Dry Lumber Important

The importance of dry lumber for building cannot be overemphasized. All lumber will shrink somewhat in time, but lumber that has not been properly dried will not only shrink excessively but may twist and warp and cause all kinds of trouble.

Great care should be used in buying lumber to ascertain the percentage of moisture it contains. If the moisture content is high, the lumber is not ready for use. Lumber purchased in the dull season is more apt to be thoroughly dried than that bought when the mills are rushed, and that is one reason that winter is an advantageous time to start building.

Guest Room.

A pleasant guest room may be built around an old four-poster mahogany bed with matching chest of drawers. Walls were papered with a fine silver and white stripe, and the ceiling paper had an old English chintz design of pink roses. Window draperies of soft pink and a wing chair covered with chintz matching as near as possible the ceiling design completed the room, which was charming in appearance and comfortable as well.

More Light.

For the most light and longest service from electric light bulbs, have their voltage correspond to that of the electric current used in the community.

QUESTIONS BEFORE THE HOUSE

Q. In following directions for painting I notice that sometimes raw linseed oil is specified and sometimes boiled. What is the difference? CLARENCE J.

A. Boiled linseed oil dries more quickly than the raw.

Q. I am ready to paint my kitchen but hear that I must first use benzine after using paint remover. Is that correct? And does one saturate the woodwork with it or merely wipe it off? Another advises using a thin coat of shellac after applying benzine. Must that, too, be done? How many coats of paint are necessary to make a good job? I would like to use a good enamel as the last coat. MRS. CHARLES V.

A. Benzine or gasoline may be used to wipe down the woodwork to remove all traces of paint remover. Care must be taken to keep fires away from the vicinity because both materials are highly inflammable. Wipe the woodwork down with a rag that has been wet with either benzine or gasoline. When the woodwork is completely dry, use a priming coat (this is flat paint which has been thinned with turpentine) for the first coat. Apply a coat of flat paint after the first coat has dried and then finish with a coat of enamel. Be sure to see that the preceding coat is perfectly dry or the paint will blister and wrinkle. If you want an especially good job you might go over the surface with fine sandpaper before applying the enamel.

Q. Lately we have installed a new stove in our kitchen with hot-water coils to the hot-water tank immediately back of the stove. What makes the waterpipes pop and crack like they were going to break when the people downstairs draw water? WEEKLY READER.

A. At times pounding in the water lines is due to a loose rubber or an old washer in the faucet. Have them checked and replaced as needed. Also, check the new tank for excessive air. The placing of a short length of pipe over the faucet connection gives an air seal that tends to eliminate hammering.

Q. I have a lot with a 55-foot front, sloping from the rear toward the front. Please give me a few points on how you would fix or grade or build up a lot that slopes from the rear toward the front. I am thinking that the type of house that would look best would be one that is not so long. I am therefore contemplating building a house about 31 by 31. W. W. D., Jefferson City.

A. Many interesting houses are possible on a lot such as you describe. You might use an exposed basement in the front with a kitchen and dining room on this floor, reserving the first floor for living room and bedrooms. An architect can do very interesting things with a lot of this kind without grading and we suggest that you consult your local architect, who, we are sure, will give you complete satisfaction. Many home builders prize these hillside lots because unusual houses are possible on them.

Halting and Stumbling Continue To Feature Market for Securities With Leaders Meeting Sales on Rises

Listlessness of Bullish Efforts and Interest Attributed to a Variety of Factors, Including Apprehension Over European Situation.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The stock market the past week was unable to detach itself from the halting and stumbling which marked its performance during most of November.

Traders operating on the long side had little success except in a few groups, like the oils, aircrafts, and low priced rails. The Standard leaders drew selling with every attempt at advance.

Listlessness of bullish effort and interest was attributed to a variety of factors, including concern over developments in Europe, mistrust of the market's technical position and fears that the latest steps of the SEC toward controlling the trading of members might make for narrowness and inaction.

Reports concerning the state of trade and industry added some new bright colors to the general business picture. Operations in the steel industry expanded to a new peak for the year at 76 per cent of capacity, with the prospect favoring a further advance this month, "Iron Age" reported. The trade journal also said conditions in the trade resembled those of 1920 and 1929, both boom years.

Heavy Industry Stimulation.

The prospects of new stimulation for heavy industries in connection with expansion and modernization programs continued a matter of favorable comment along with fresh estimates pointing to a record volume of holiday trade.

Prospects of a large reduction in inventories were seen by analysts after study of buying potentialities in the light of wage increases and special dividends awarded during the past few months.

The week brought a fresh budget of extra dividend announcements. Standard Statistics Co. reported 164 extras and a number of increased and initial disbursements. Counting these payments the dividend flow was estimated as having placed around $900,000,000 in the pockets of shareholders since late October.

Stock sales during the week amounted to 11,872,470 shares, compared with 9,649,450 a week ago (5 days) and 12,611,240 corresponding week last year. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 457,128,045 shares, compared with 349,485,539 a year ago and 308,919,598 two years ago.

Specialties Up at Week-End.

Specialties ran the gauntlet of light selling in week-end market for gains of fractions to two or more points, but most recent leaders were unable to get far out in front.

Encouraging business news and less worry over foreign happenings tended to brace market sentiment, but many traders seemed to find their positions on the side lines fairly comfortable.

An assortment of low-priced issues again was quite lively. A few oils, aircrafts and rail equipments pushed up briskly for a time. Offerings in most cases, however, were sufficient to keep the so-called "blue chips" in a comparatively slim groove.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 70.4. Transfers for the two-hour session totaled 1,000,580 shares, against 1,434,280 last Saturday.

More friends appeared for petroleum favorites following the lifting of crude prices and expectations heavy consumption demand would offset any possible step-up in production.

War preparations abroad and defensive measures at home prodded aviations to another moderate upturn. Carrier equipments continued to reflect expanding orders from transportation systems.

Bonds were quiet, although a few substantial gains were recorded here and there. Cottonseed oil, raw hide and rubber futures scored new highs, the latter reaching the 19-cent level for the first time since November, 1929. Wheat at Chicago was unchanged to off ⅝ of a cent a bushel and corn was ⅜ lower to up ¾. Cotton lost 15 to 40 cents a bale. Foreign currencies were down a shade in terms of the dollar.

Seat Price Rebounds.

Among active gainers were Curtiss-Wright at 7¼, Ohio Oil 16¼, Hupp Motors 2½, International Hydro-Electric 9, Texas Gulf Producing 8⅜, Baldwin Locomotive 9½, Houston Oil 11½, North American Aviation 12½, Douglas Aircraft 76½, Barber Co., 32¼, International Paper & Power "B" 12⅞, Pure Oil 19⅛, United States Industrial Alcohol 40⅞ and Deere 94.

Fractionally improved were United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, General Electric, Consolidated Edison, United States Rubber, Texas Corporation, North American, Santa Fe and New York Central.

Despite brisk increases in Bell System stations, American Telephone dropped 1⅝ at 187¼. Lower also were Westinghouse at 144½, Anaconda 47⅞, Kennecott 57, Air Reduction 77⅝ and Public Service of New Jersey 48¼.

Although Wall street is somewhat concerned regarding new governmental regulations which, it is feared, will restrict stock trading, an exchange seat was transferred today for $97,000, up $8000 from the last previous transaction which was a low mark for the year.

BRITISH POUND SAGS ON POLITICAL CRISIS

Canadian Dollar Goes Under the 100.00 Cents Mark First Time Since Sept.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—European currencies continued their moderate climb against the dollar during the week, although the movement appeared checked at one time, most units were generally at higher net levels at Saturday's close.

Sterling, from a rate of $4.89⅞ last Saturday, rose to a high of $4.90 13-16 and hovered above the $4.90 mark most of the week. French francs improved from 4.65 13-16 cents to around 4.66⅛, and the Netherlands guilder gained better than .10 of a cent to around 54.40 cents. The Swiss franc held to narrower limits, but was slightly higher in the neighborhood of 22.99½ cents.

Effects of the British political crisis were felt in a sag of the pound late in the period, although the movement was not pronounced. Traders said offerings of the unit were fairly liberal on Thursday and Friday and the discount on the forward rate had a tendenc yto broaden.

Canadian dollars got under the 100.00 cents mark for the first time since Sept. 5, due, it was said by bankers, to movement of funds to this country to pay interest and dividends to be made in December.

Gold imports amounted to around $8,000,000, about half the sum coming from England. The Federal Reserve Bank of New York disclosed that since devaluation of the gold bloc currencies Sept. 25, a total of more than $330,000,000 in the yellow metal had flowed into this country of which more than $129,000,000 of it originating in England.

Moderate declines against the dollar were recorded for most foreign currencies today.

Reports of new difficulties between Japan and China influenced the Japanese yen, which dropped .12 of a cent. The pound sterling was off ¼ of a cent, French francs slipped .00⅝ of a cent and the Netherlands guilder was down .02 of a cent. Swiss francs were quoted .01 of a cent down, while the Canadian dollar pushed up 1-16 of a cent.

Engagement of $1,500,000 in gold in Switzerland and $70,000 in England for American account were reported.

In London the dollar closed at 4.90 to the pound, up ½ cent. It finished in Paris at the equivalent of 4.658 cents to the franc against the New York overnight rate of 4.661 cents.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 5.—After reacting a penny from Friday's closing, wheat futures rallied partially and finished the day with losses of ½d to ⅝d. Offers of new Argentina wheat were cheaper and there was a continued Italian demand for grain.

Trading in cotton futures was dull, aside from some foreign buying. Traders were awaiting the American crop report, which will be announced next Tuesday. Light trade calling met hedging nad prices closed unchanged to two points lower.

London and Paris—Closed on Saturday.

BANK OF NORWAY INCREASES ITS RATE

OSLO, Norway, Dec. 5.—The Bank of Norway today increased its bank rate from 3½ to 4 per cent effective Monday.

More Stock Listed.

The St. Louis Exchange announced the listing of an additional 472 shares of Laclede Christy common stock, making the total 128,438.

Saturday Closings Continue.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—The bourse continued its Saturday closings today and will not operate during the remaining Saturdays in December.

WHEAT MARKET RULED LARGELY BY WEATHER

Wet Condition Over Much of Domestic Belt Brings Price Down—Close Is Unsettled.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—More than a cent a bushel setback of wheat prices at times today resulted largely from wet weather over much of the domestic crop belt.

July wheat, representing the 1937 harvest, displayed more of a downward price tendency than did old crop months, December and May. A reason given concerning relative strength of the nearer-by deliveries was continued active demand for Argentine and Australian wheat to go to Italy and Great Britain.

Moreover, it was estimated Italy has bought 1,200,000 bushesl of Canadian wheat in the last 24 hours.

Chicago wheat futures closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅝ lower, December $1.24¾ @1.24⅞, May $1.20⅝@1.20⅞, July $1.07⅜@1.07½, Corn ⅜ off to ⅜ up, December $1.07⅜@1.07½, May new 98⅜@98⅞c, oats at ⅛ decline to an equal gain, May 46⅛c and rye ¼ to 1 cent down, May 95¼c. The provisions outcome varied from 15 cents setback to 5 cent advance.

July Wheat Comment.

A steadying factor on the wheat market as a whole was widespread attention given to the circumstance that July wheat at today's close in Liverpool, $1.19⅞, stood 12 cents over Chicago and 16¾ cents over Kansas City. Harvey S. Williams, a leading trade authority here, said that considering the quality of American hard winter wheat, this price difference should mean a full export basis.

The United States, Williams pointed out, has not heretofore been anywhere near such a basis since 1929, when the Farm Board at Washington inaugurated official steps toward attempted control of grain prices. Assertions were added by Williams that the present price situation holds more promise for American agriculture than do political panaceas.

Domestic milling demand here for wheat today was not so good as of late. Some notice, too, was taken of reports that recent purchases of cash wheat here would be loaded into vessels, and held for winter storage.

Disappearance of wheat in the United States was officially estimated as at the rate of 15 per cent more than last year. Traders deduced that if this continues during the remainder of the crop year the total disappearance will be 764,000,000 bushels, against 660,000,000 last year.

Weather a Factor.

Unfavorable weather in the corn belt made corn prices average higher. The open interest in December corn contracts remained large, and country offerings to arrive were small. Oats trading lacked feature.

Profit-taking sales weakened rye. Increasing stocks on hand gave an easier tone to provisions.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 35,796,000 bushels, corn 9,653,000. Open interest in wheat was 94,617,000 bushels, and in corn 52,346,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Dec. 5.—Wheat and corn futures were unquoted at outset.

Winniped wheat opened unchanged to ⅛c higher. The close was ⅛c higher to ¾c lower.

Liverpool wheat opened ⅛@⅝d off and closed ⅛@½d lower.

On the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was ⅛@1c lower. Supply was rather small. Mills showed the interest. There was a light inquiry for hard wheat mainly from mills, but nothing was offered. Corn was unchanged to 1c higher. Demand improved and a clearance was effected. Mills, elevators, industries and outside order buyers were in the market, with the latter taking special billing grain. Oats were unchanged. Available supply was small and cleared quickly. An elevator bought the offerings.

Local wheat receipts which were 21,000 bu, compared with 21,000 a week ago and 10,500 a year ago included 7 cars local and 7 through. Corn receipts which were 108,000 bu, compared with 108,000 a week ago and 93,000 a year ago included 61 cars local and 11 through. Oats receipts which were 14,000 bu, compared with 12,000 a week ago and 16,000 a year ago, included 6 cars local and 1 through. Hay receipts were 5 cars local and 2 through.

LITTLE ALTERATION IN CATTLE MARKET

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, East St. Louis, Ill., Dec. 5.—(U. S. Dept. of Agriculture)—Receipts Saturday: Hogs, 5000, 2500 direct; cattle, 3000; calves, 2000; sheep, 100.

The Hog Market.

Porker values advanced most of this week with the exception of one day when a slight reaction was registered, in the face of moderately increased supplies here and elsewhere. Weights above 180 lbs. finished 25 to 35c higher than the close of last week, sows sharing the upturn, while lighter weight material gained 10 to 25c. Supplies here totaled 78,400 compared with 62,916 last week and 52,027 same week last year. The highest point of the week was registered near the weekend when a practical top of $10.15 was paid. A part load scored $10.25 on Saturday which appeared a little out of line. Bulk of 190 to 300-lb weights finished at $10@10.15, 170 to 190 lbs, $9.75@10 and better 140 to 160-lb light lights $9@ 9.50. Better 80 to 130-lb pigs ranged from $7 to $8.65, lighter weight and plainer quality from $7 downward. Packing sows finished mainly at $9 to $9.35 at the close.

Cattle, 300; calves, 200; compared with close of last week: steers steady to strong; heifers and mixed yearlings steady to 25c lower; vealers, 25c lower; cows, bulls and stocker steers steady; stock calves and heifers, 25c higher; tops for the week: 1101 and 1054 pound steers, $12; 641-pound mixed yearlings, $10.50; heifers, $9; beef cows, $6.25; sausage bulls, $5.25; vealers, $11.25; stock steers, $9.25@10.25; bulks for the week: steers, $7.50@10.50; mixed yearlings and heifers, $5.50@8.50; beef cows, $4@5; cutters and low cutters, $3@3.75; stock steers, $5.25@6.50.

Sheep—Receipts, 100; compared with Friday of last week, fat lambs 50@75c lower; yearlings, 25@50c lower; sheep steady to 25c higher; top lambs for the week, $9.25; packer top, $9; bulks for the week, $8.25@9.00; closing bulk, $8.25@8.50; a few to outsiders up to $9; throwouts, $5.50@7.00; weaned yearlings, $7.50@8.00; clipped yearlings, $6.50@7.25; clipped spring lambs, $7.50; fat ewes, $3@4.25.

HORSES AND MULES.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Dec. 5.—The horse market received good support here the past week under a commission run of approximately 300 head. An active demand appeared from the South for young mares with a good hair. Rough haired stock on the other hand, was hard to dispose of. Desirable fillies moved readily at somewhat firmer values.

Sales in first hands totaled around 350 head this market did not receive quite the support accorded horses. Good qualitied young material held up, but offerings of plainer grade did not average as well as the week before. There appears an increased call for cotton mules with good mouths and good hair.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $125@160; medium to good draft, $100@125; good to choice chunks, $100@125; smooth-mouthed chunks, $80@110; large farm mares, $90@135; medium farm mares, $90@110; fillies, yearlings and twos; small, common, $30@50; good size, $60@85; extra size and quality, $120@160 (horse colts sell $15@25 per head less than fillies); good Southern mares, $75@100; small, Southern mares, $40@50; small cheap, $30@50.

*NATIVE MULE QUOTATIONS.

Farm mules, 15.2 to 16 hands, $110@150; colt mules, good size and bone, $100@150; colt mules, small, $60@85; drafty mules, $150@200; mine mules, 15.3 to 16 hands, $120@140; mine mules, 14 to 15 hands, $75@100; choice cotton mules, 15.1 to 16 hands, $165@200; choice cotton mules, 14.2 to 15 hands, $125@150; small cotton mules over 3 years old, $50@85.

*Quotations are for average animals and not for cream of the offerings or outstanding quality or the very cheapest grade.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY STOCKYARDS.

CATTLE—For the week, most sales were steers, mixed yearlings and heifers of the fair to good kind worked a little closer to choice kinds, most offered this week were of a kind to sell $6.50@8.50, while choice kinds were quotable $9.50 and better. Grassy descriptions, $4@7. Better beef grades sold $4@5, with choice kinds up to $6, while the commoner and cutter grades moved $3@3.75. Top stocker bulls, $5.25. Early in the week, calves advanced 50c to top of $11.25, best since last February. But all gains were erased and closing sales topped at $10.50, 25c under Friday.

SHEEP—Lamb price declined 25@50c after last Friday, while sheep were steady to 25c higher. During the week lambs sold $8@8.75 to packers. Shippers and stock killers took choice kinds from $8.75@9.25. Fate ewes were only in limited number and sold $3@3.75.

HOGS—Receipts Saturday 100. Market ready to 15c higher; 190-220 lbs, $10@10.15; a few $10.25; 140@160s, $9@9.50. Compared with last week market 25-35c higher.

SUGAR QUOTAS NEARLY FILLED BY ELEVEN MONTHS' RECEIPTS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The sugar section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration today announced that 1936 quotas for Cuba, the Philippines, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Hawaii had been nearly filled by entries in the first 11 months.

These were reported at 4,912,720 short tons, raw value, against a total quota of 5,052,910, leaving a balance of 140,190.

Quotas and amounts charged against them for 11 months were:

Cuba, 2,085,022 tons with 2,043,774 tons charged; Philippines, 1,000,829 and 975,780; Puerto Rico, 901,839 and 887,296; Hawaii, 1,059,294 and 1,002,174, and Virgin Islands, 5926 and 3696.

Refined sugar ready for direct consumption, included in the above totals but with separate quotas determined, showed 636,616 and 8587; and Philippines, 80,214 and 14,645.

The AAA said 10 months totals charged against quotas for continental areas were 176,046 short tons for sugar cane and 1,064,101 short tons for sugar beet.

PRE-BUREAU LIQUIDATION, SOUTHERN SELLING OF COTTON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Cotton was generally lower today under pre-bureau liquidation and Southern selling. March declined from 12.03 to 11.98 and closed at the low, with final prices 3 to 8 points net lower.

Despite steady Liverpool cables, the market opened 2 to 5 points off under hedging and week-end liquidation. Demand was limited principally to trade sources, with outside interest held back pending publication of the Government crop report Tuesday.

While the selling was not aggressive, buyers were cautious and hesitated to follow March much above the 12-cent level. Foreign offerings continued in next October.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the close of the week was estimated at 252,000 bales against 206,000 last year and 99,000 two years ago.

Spot steady; middling, 12.56.

SALESMEN WANTED

MEN

What may seem to be the end of the trail may be only the forks in the road. No man is through as long as opportunity is still being developed. Men are coming into this unusual business from every trade, profession, and business, and are making good. They find that character and consistent work will accomplish results which constantly increase. You will meet men in this office who are making BIG MONEY who once were in these lines: a grocery clerk, teacher, bank clerk, a salesman, restaurant proprietor, an opera singer, etc.

Our success, which is world-wide, is based on supplying a definite need at an acceptable price. Our product is unique. 1936 is our biggest year; 1935 was our fifth consecutive record sales year.

You do not invest or buy anything in joining our company. Nor are you bound down to seasons. It is important and imperative that you do a full day's work regularly and not incidentally. We prefer men 25 to 45, with family responsibilities. While men in this business often make from $4,000.00 to $8,500.00 a year regularly, you probably will start on a more modest basis—perhaps from $100.00 to $135.00 or up to $175.00 your first month—slightly more your second month, and so on upward. You spent years learning your past occupation. Are you willing to spend weeks learning one as good or better that pays from the start? But don't come looking for a miracle. Come expecting something unusual, based on definite superiority.

If you are sincere and wish to start in on a new outlook and broader prospect of success, call for personal interview Monday between 9:15 A. M. and 3:15 P. M., 512 Paul Brown Bldg., 9th & Olive Sts.

has a program to open many new department stores in their twenty branch stores, and offers unusual opportunities to several energetic men (25 to 40 years) to start in the registrar department in St. Louis and learn business towards positions of field managers, studio managers, department managers, and others. A rare opportunity to build permanent futures with "The world's oldest and largest music house." Attractive basis to start. Apply Monday after 9 a. m., R. Wurlitzer Co., 1006 Olive street.

FACTORY REPRESENTATIVE

of new commercial, heavy duty beverage cooler, will interview men tomorrow; want salesmen for city, also sales manager for surrounding territory; capable of organizing sales force to call on restaurant and taverns; men chosen for executive positions must be willing to work with men in territory and also personally qualify as salesmen themselves. Be in St. Louis till Jan. 1st; exceptional opportunity to get ahead with this fast growing company. Apply CHAS. EDWARDS, HOTEL JEFFERSON.

EXPERIENCED — CAPABLE — COMMERCIAL

LEASING MAN

Good leads and deals immediately available. A high class man familiar with downtown industrial and commercial values can greatly increase his present income. A splendid opportunity for a moneymaker.

MONEY TO LOAN

NO SECURITY — NO ENDORSERS

LOANS ON THE Promise-to-Pay Plan
ARE AS SIMPLE AS THEY ARE REVOLUTIONARY

So unbelievably simple that many refuse to believe that we actually loan money—as much as $300 in cash—with no security whatsoever except our faith in your promise-to-pay. Any single person or married couple who can make regular payments can borrow on just a plain note without any mortgages, endorsers, or wage assignments. If you have any doubts—check our reputation the past fifty years and see if we do not back up what we say. Better still, stop in our office and make us prove it! Also auto financing and other types of loans.

What Our Customers Say:

Joseph E. Burger, President — 1017 Lynch Street

A machinist at the American Car and Foundry Co. writes:

"I have bought my last two used cars from South Side Chevrolet, Inc., and had very good service from them. My first car I drove over 100,000 miles and had only one rebore job, and that was done at South Side Chevrolet. I am very well pleased with their service and work, also my dealings with your Mr. Louis Carpenter."

TULSA, Dec. 5.—The Tulsa Oilers broke the winning streak of the St. Louis Flyers in the American Hockey Association tonight when they held the visitors to a 2 to 2 tie in an overtime contest.

Previously the Flyers had won nine successive contests, since they were tied by Kansas City the opening night of the season at the Arena in St. Louis.

Pete Mitchell shoved in the tying goal for St. Louis when there were less than five minutes left to play in the third period.

Tulsa counted first and after the Flyers had tied it, the Oilers took the lead before the close of the first session. The two teams then battled without result until Mitchell's tally.

Oilers Score First.

The Oilers drew first blood at 8:28 when Maracle, the Tulsa coach, doubly assisted by Wakeford and Riley, rifled the puck into the nets to put Tulsa ahead after a bruising first few minutes of play. The surprised Flyers fought back and evened the score at 15:15 at the Oilers own expense when Wakeford and Riley accidently knocked the puck in the cage while striving to break up an attack. Hansen was given credit for the goal.

The Oilers came back as fast as had the Flyers and went to the fore again at 17:53. The score was made by Riley who took a short pass from Wakeford out in front of the cage.

Play in the second period was marked by the rough tactics of both teams. McKinnon led attacks which gave the Flyers numerous scoring chances. But Pringle and Bellemer, Tulsa's giant defensemen, kept the situation well in hand and each St. Louis scoring try was nipped.

A freak play gave the Flyers their tieing score at 15:15 in the third period. Mitchell took a pass from Ingram and rifled the puck past Levine, who didn't attempt to stop it, believing a face-off should have been called. There was heated controversy between Levine and the referee, but the goal counted.

The game ended with no further scoring and, after more discussion of the tieing play, play advanced the overtime.

The extra period was hard fought with play about even. The Oilers came the nearest to scoring in the last half minute when Lever skated in fast and shot, the puck barely missing the cage when Nelson dived in an effort to catch it.

Minneapolis Wins, 2-1.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 5.—The Minneapolis Millers counted twice in a furious third period tonight to edge out St. Paul 2 to 1 in an American Association hockey contest.

St. Louis Awarded National Junior Boxing Tourney

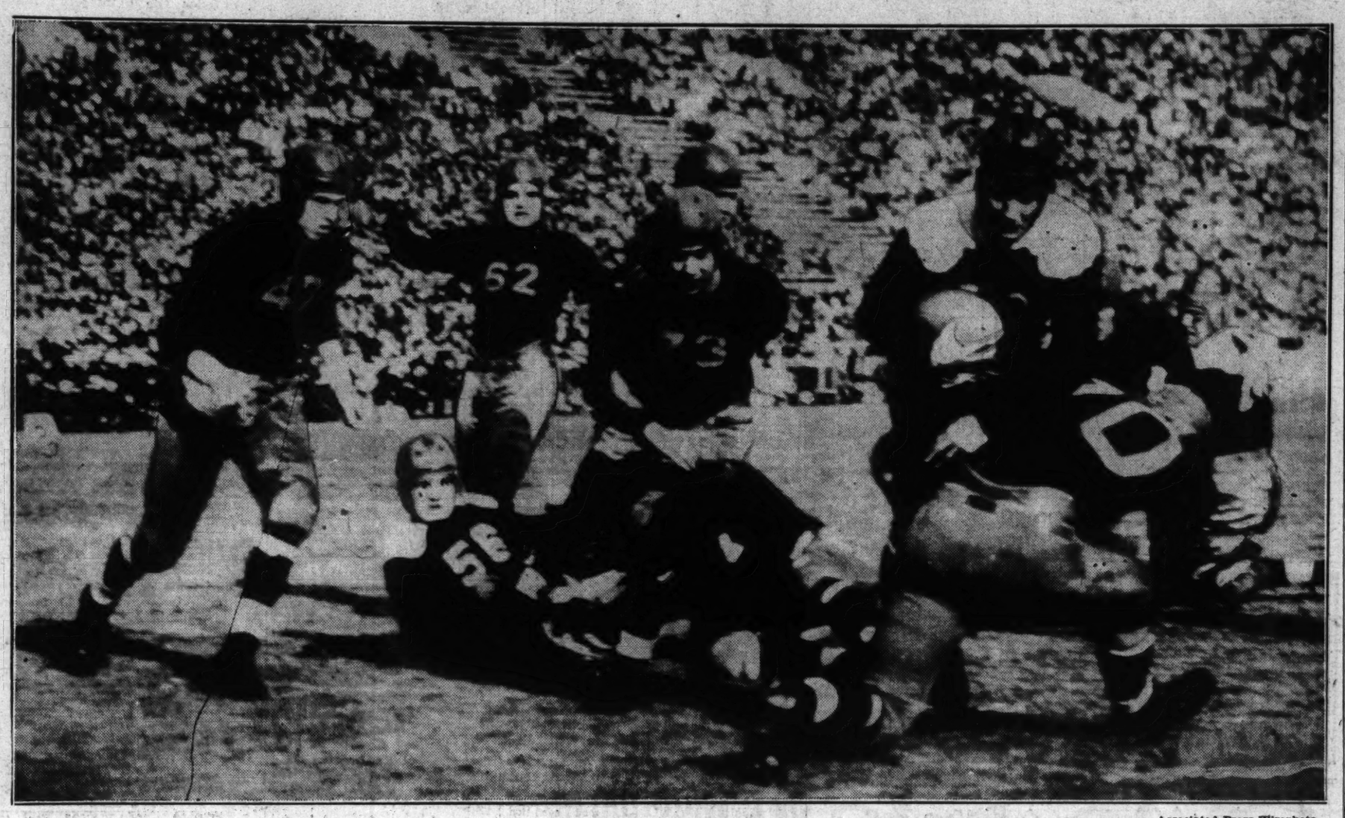

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 5.

THE Ozark Association was awarded the national junior amateur boxing championships today.

Boxing chairmen from almost every district in the country promise to send fine teams to St. Louis and make it one of the greatest junior events ever held. Only the eight winners of senior championships are ineligible.

A date will be definitely set when the delegation returns to St. Louis by the board of managers.

BEFORE THE IRISH LUCK RAN OUT—Wilke Makes First Score

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

When Notre Dame's halfback, Robert Wilke, crossed the goal line after a 68-yard march in the first period, the game appeared to be a walk-over for the Irish. But Southern California scored twice and the game ended in a tie. Wilke is shown plunging over Homer Beatty (70), Trojan halfback. Joe Kuharich (56), Irish guard, is on the ground at the left. U. S. C. players are, left to right: McNeill (47), tackle; Hibbs (62), end, and Joe Wilensky (73), guard.

LAYTON WINS OVER HALL AND INCREASES LEAD IN CUE EVENT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5. — Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., tightened his grip on first place in the world's three cushion billiards tournament tonight by defeating Allen Hall of Chicago 50 to 44 in a slow, 47-inning duel. The win gave Layton a record of five victories against one defeat.

Layton had a high run of six, ending the game with this cluster after it had been deadlocked at 44-all. The Sedalia (Mo.) sharpshooter led most of the way, al-

Billikens Defeat McKendree Five in Opening Game, 37-27

By James M. Gould.

St. Louis University's basketball "five" which, last night, happened to consist of 15 players, got away to an auspicious start under their new coach, Eddie Davidson, by defeating McKendree College of Lebanon, Ill., 37 to 27, in the opening game of the 1936-37 college season. Perhaps the bad night had something to do with it but there were no more than 500 present to usher in the new campaign.

Just what kind of a basketball team, Coach Davidson is to have this season is still in doubt. He ran in as many substitutes as the football coach, Cecil Muellerleile, used to use in a football game and it was difficult to guage the power of the team as a unit.

In the first half, when the regulars were in, they showed accuracy in shooting and plenty of speed but the young army of reservists in the second half served only to clog up the floor and the proceedings. Against the regiment of Billikens, the Lebanon collegians pitted only a squad of eight and they gave a good account of themselves. At the end of the first half, the score was 17 to 13 with the Billikens holding the advantage. This advantage chiefly accrued because Captain Frank Keaney of St. Louis scored 10 points.

Keaney High Scorer.

Keaney, the high scorer of the evening with 12 points, was aided by some nice work by Bobby Bohn and Sid Mudd each of whom accounted for nine points during the pastime. Strotheide, with 10 points and Bise, with nine, neither of whom was in the starting lineup, led for McKendree.

St. Louis began with a rush and, after nine minutes of play, led 14 to 3. Then, after an old Spanish custom, the Billikens eased up and were scoreless for seven minutes during which interim McKendree counted 10 points and were trailing by only a single point. Keaney and Bohn then contributed three points to give the Billikens their four-point margin at half-time.

In the second half, St. Louis again started nicely. McKendree scored only on a free throw in the first four minutes while St. Louis picked up six points. A bit past midway in the second period, the Billikens held a 35-19 lead.

At this point, reserves were sent in in platoons and near-pandemonium and little scoring ensued. In the last six minutes, St. Louis managed to score two more points while McKendree made eight to make 37-27 the final score.

Regulars Smooth, at Times.

Had Coach Davidson kept his regulars in or sent in only his first line of reserves, the game probably would have revealed a squad faster than that of last year and with a bit more scoring punch. In the first half, the ball-handling by the Billikens was nothing to get "het up" about but, in the second period while they were in action, the regulars worked much more smoothly.

McKendree battled every minute of the way and Coach Blanchard probably will be heard from in his Conference competition.

Co-Captain Martin Rossini of the Billikens was not in uniform. He re-injured an ankle in the Thanksgiving Day football game but will report for basketball duty Monday.

The Billikens will have but a short rest before playing their next game which is scheduled here with the Missouri Tigers next Tuesday night.

Gorman Talks.

Len Gorman, center on the football team and a sophomore, played a nice game at guard for St. Louis. Len, not known as a loquacious football player, was heard often last night and probably said more

SEVEN MAJOR LEAGUE CLUBS TO SEEK TRADES AT NEW YORK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The baseball market shifted from Montreal to Forty-second street today as officials rolled their hopes and problems south for the major league meetings.

Officially the meetings do not start until Tuesday, but most of the club owners and managers were around singing the praise of players they want to get rid of.

The possibility that Commissioner Landis would declare Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians a free agent and that the St. Louis Cardinals would trade Dizzy Dean still dominated the conversataion.

A Slight Difference.

A difference of around $150,000 was holding up the Dean-to-Cincinnati deal, according to one high official. It seemed evident Dean would be sent to the Rhineland if and when the Reds are willing to add $150,000 worth of ball players to their offer of $200,000 in cash.

As for the Feller case, the general opinion was that Landis' decision would rest on the action the majors take on the "Baltimore amendment." This amendment, already passed by the minors, permits scouts and representatives of all ball clubs to recommend players to teams of lower classification without losing the right later to buy these players.

This ruling, in spirit though not in letter, relaxes the much-discussed major-minor league agreement which the Cleveland club is alleged to have broken in signing Feller.

If the majors also pass the amendment the experts predict Landis will uphold the Indians' right to keep Feller.

Trading probably will be dominated by the Giants, Cubs, Pirates and Reds in the National League and by Cleveland, Chicago and Detroit in the American.

The Giants, needing support in the infield and behind the bat, are dangling Hank Leiber before the other National League clubs. They already have offered Leiber, Gus Mancuso and Hal Schumacher to the Cubs for Frank Demaree, Bill Lee and Ken O'Dea, without getting anywhere.

The Reds hope to get Dean without giving up their present ace pitcher, Paul Derringer. They may use one or two of their three catchers, Ernie Lombardi, Gilly Campbell and the recently acquired Vi

TROJANS SCORE ON RUNS OF 80 YARDS AND 100 YARDS TO MATCH IRISH TALLIES

Layden's Eleven Outrushes Howard Jones' Team 223 Yards to 24 and Make 18 First Downs to One for Californians.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—The luck of the Irish deserted Notre Dame today and University of Southern California's Trojans scored once on a 100-yard sprint and again on a 65-yard dash to tie the famed Green of South Bend, 13 to 13.

Seventy-five thousand fans at the Troy homecoming saw fullback Dick Berryman run 65 yards for the opening Trojan score. A moment later they went into hysterics when Bud Langley, a substitute halfback, intercepted a Notre Dame pass on his own goal line and ran the length of the field for another tally.

Coach Elmer Layden's decided favorites made their touchdowns on smashing, battering football, and outgained the men of Troy in top-heavy fashion. Southern California made only one first down—on a holding penalty. Notre Dame made 18 and outrushed U. S. C. 223 yards to 24.

Headman Howard Jones lived up to his promise that the Trojans would not lose prestige in this, the eleventh annual intersectional clash between the schools.

Notre Dame's starting team took the opening kickoff and paraded 78 yards for a touchdown, halfback Bob Wilke passing 32 yards to Bunny McCormick en route, and Wilke cutting back over tackle for the final three yards to score. Puplis failed to convert.

It looked easy for Notre Dame, and the first stringers were replaced by reserves.

Capt. Gil Kuhn, in his last game for Troy, intercepted a pass on his own 20-yard line and Sophomore Quarterback Ambrose Schindler picked up five yards. Schindler tore off 10 yards more through guard and, shanking free from Notre Dame's secondary, tossed the ball in a half-lateral, half-tumble to Dick Berryman. Berryman grabbed it off the ground, eluded the safety man and ran 65 yards over the goal line. Jim Henderson failed to convert.

Back came the Notre Dame regulars, and down the field they plowed, reaching the nine-yard line and first down. Puplis tried a pass, Bud Langley, a substitute back, speared it on the goal line and, tearing down the sidelines, ran the length of the field for the score that put Southern California in the lead. Henderson's place kick for the added point was good.

In the third, Notre Dame mixed a lateral from Fullback Laurence Danbom to McCormick, good for 39 yards and marched 88 yards in 12 plays and scored on a 15-yard pass from Wilke to McCormick.

That ended the scoring. In the final period Notre Dame got close enough to the Trojan goal line for Puplis to have a field goal attempt blocked from about the 25-yard line, and Southern California reached the Irish 25 on passes by little Davie Davis, midget quarterback, before being forced to punt. Notre Dame had the ball on the Southern California 44-yard line when the gun sounded.

ARKANSAS WINS SOUTHWEST TITLE, BEATING TEXAS, 6 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 5. — Dwight Sloan, slim University of Arkansas junior, drove his passing Porkers to their first undisputed Southwest Conference championship and a 6 to 0 victory over the University of Texas here today on a field reduced to a morass by a cold driving rain.

Approximately 7000 madly cheering fans braved the elements to witness a game drab throughout with the single exception of Sloan's sensational scoring drive that culminated in a touchdown pass across the goal to Jim Benton, all-conference end.

Texas had every advantage in statistics except forward passing. Arkansas completed eight out of 16 forwards for 71 yards.

The scoring break in the game of punts and fumbles came late in the third period. Texas had the ball on its own 45-yard line. Halfback Wallace Lawson dropped back and heaved a long forward intended for Collins. Sloan, took the ball on his own 30-yard line. He dashed back across the field through the disorganized Texans before he was finally smothered on the 44-yard line.

Sloan then shot a forward to Martin for eight yards and another neat pass to Benton for 10 more giving Arkansas a first down on the Texas 25-yard line. Faking a pass, Sloan drove through the line for five yards and then heaved another pass to Benton for a first down on the Texas 13-yard line. Sloan again ran with the ball, slashing seven yards through the mud to the Texas six-yard line.

On the next play he shot a hard, fast one across the goal to Benton who came up between two Texas backs to fold in the forward and stumble on his face, safe with the winning touchdown. B. A. Owens' attempted placement was blocked.

First downs were evenly divided six each. Texas netted 70 yards rushing compared to 30 for Arkansas.

LARRY KELLEY TO PLAY ON ALL-EAST ELEVEN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Larry Kelley, Yale's all-American end, and John Handrahan and Carl Ray, Dartmouth's veteran fullback and center, today were selected by Andy Kerr to play on the all-East eleven which will face an aggregation of Western stars in the annual grid clash at San Francisco New Year's day.

Kelley, who captained the Yale team this season, is regarded one of the greatest pass receivers in football history.

Handrahan, 185-pound fullback, and Ray, 200-pound center, have played on three successive Dartmouth elevens.

Announcement of Rose Bowl Game Booed By Fans

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.

THE announcer at the Notre Dame-Southern California football game today told the crowd of 70,000 that tickets were on sale for the Washington-Pittsburg battle in the Rose Bowl New Year's day.

A tremendous thunder of boos greeted the announcement.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Ups and Downs of Our Olympic Oak.

THE OLYMPIC OAK, emblematic of our U. S. women's relay team victory at Berlin, is back in the greenhouse. Last Sunday, with civic ceremony, it was planted in Forest Park. At least the mould was shoveled about its roots and the gesture of planting completed.

A few hours afterwards it was disinterred and taken to winter quarters, where it will be safe from hungry rabbits, thoughtless reactionists and even the winter frosts. You see, this oak was entirely too young to be let alone for five months. It was a mere sprig, hardly more than a withe. Under the circumstances it hadn't a chance to survive in the earth and so it was placed under cover.

It will flourish next spring when the sap begins to rise.

Over in Germany Ilse Doerfeldt probably is still, in the quiet of the night, shedding tears enough to water our oak through another summer.

That oak spelled minor tragedy to Ilse, whose error cost Germany a victory both in the relay and in a majority of the women's Olympic events.

What Might Have Been.

ILSE was the anchor girl of the German relay team. When her third teammate arrived with the baton, she was yards ahead of her American rival. Victory seemed certain for Germany, although the record-breaking Helen Stephens was anchor girl for our side.

All Ilse had to do was to take the baton and run her race. Der Fuehrer would summon her to the stand for congratulations; she and her three companions would mount the tribune to receive the Olympic Oak, that went to America; the band would strike up: 100,000 hands would be outstretched in the Nazi salute; 100,000 voices would thunder "Deutschland Ueber Alles" . . .

And then—Ilse dropped the baton! Right in front of Hitler. The blow was too great for her. She did not even attempt to retrieve the baton. The flying form of Helen Stephens sped past her and finished with no German girl running against her. Ilse stood still, staring aghast at the baton lying on the track.

America won. Ilse wept. The tears would have offset many drouths, no doubt.

We have often wondered what has happened tto Ilse since. In Japan hari kari might have been the answer. In Germany—well,

HORTON SMITH LEADS GULDAHL A STROKE IN MIAMI GOLF

CHICAGO STAR SHOOTS 69 TO TOTAL 137 AT HALFWAY MARK

St. Louisan Has a 68 for Second Round After Shooting 70 for the First 18 Holes.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Dec. 5.—Horton Smith, pallid Chicago professional, retained the lead in the $10,000 Miami Biltmore golf tournament today with a 72-hole score of 137.

His putter clicked again, giving him a snappy 69 to lead the field for the second straight day. He had a 68 on the opening round.

Right behind him was Ralph Guldahl of St. Louis, who scored a 68 today—thanks to his chip shots—for a two-day card of 138.

Jimmy Hines of New York, third with 139, had a 67 today and W. Lawson Little of San Francisco, making his winter debut as a money golfer, tied the competitive course record with a 66 to take fourth place with 140.

The field was trimmed to the low 75 pros and ties for the final 36 holes to be played tomorrow and Monday.

Guldahl had a weird round. He was on only three greens as he should have been but his chip shots were dead to the pin and he needed only 22 putts for the 18 holes, even though he missed a five-footer on the tenth.

Eagle for Little.

Smith, who won the $2500 first prize last year, and Little, playing in a threesome with Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., attracted a big gallery and rewarded it with a brilliant exhibition.

Smith had five birdies and was over par on three holes. Little, known for his long wood shots, scored an eagle three on the 480-yard eighteenth hole and birdied five others. Picard took a 72 for a two-day 145.

Chick Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich., took the lead of the amateurs away from Bob Servis of Dayton, O., with 74-72—146. Servis had a 76 today for a total of 149. Carl Dann Jr., of Orlando did not defend his trophy.

It took 151 to come in under the wire for the pros.

Tied at 141 were Harold "Jug" McSpaden, Winchester, Mass., Gene Sarazen, New York; Jimmy Demaret, Houston, Texas, and Leonard Dodson, Springfield, Mo.

SAN FRANCISCO AND NEW YORK BID FOR 1939 A. A. U. TOURNEYS

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 5.—Rivalry already has developed for the award of A. A. U. championships or tournaments for 1939 as a result of the slated openings of expositions that year in San Francisco and New York.

On behalf of the combined Pacific coast delegations to the current A. A. U. convention, Lorrin Andrews of Los Angeles issued a sweeping invitation.

Maj. Patrick J. Walsh, president of the Metropolitan Association, quickly countered with notice that New York will be in the bidding.

ALABAMA WILL NOT PLAY POST-SEASON GAME

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Dec. 5. — Henry "Hank" Crisp, University of Alabama athletic director, announced today the Crimson Tide will participate in no post season football game.

The announcement eliminated Alabama as a possible contestant in the New Year game in Miami's Orange Bowl.

LAYTON WINS OVER HALL; INCREASES LEAD IN BILLIARD EVENT

though Hall constantly threatened. Hall's high run was five.

Bozeman Victor.

Jay Bozeman, young Detroit star, won his third game in six world's starts, defeating Art Thurnblad of Chicago 50 to 30 in 40 innings. Bozeman ended the match with a brilliant high run of nine, while Thurnblad's biggest cluster was five.

Thurnblad had the ivories clicking at the start and in the eighth inning held a lead of 20 to 3. Then Bozeman, who has played the most brilliant all-around billiards of any tourney entry, started picking up points so consistently he soon held command.

Earl Lookabaugh of Chicago won his second victory, defeating Otto Reiselt, Philadelphia veteran, 50 to 44, in 68 innings. The victor had a high run of five to eight for Reiselt.

Lookabaugh, who now has played seven games, built up an early lead and then withstood a late rally by the Philadelphia expert. Reiselt's defeat was his fourth in six starts.

Save the Gizzards.

IT'S wild turkey time in the Ozarks. We wish you luck of killing one—it's no job for a city boy or even a country one, in these days of scarcity.

But, just in case you bring down your bronze beauty, remember to save the gizzard. And the crop! Harold L. Blakey wants them.

Mr. Blakey has his reasons. He also has his title which is: "Assistant Conservationist, Food Habits Section, Division of Wildlife Research, U. S. Biological Survey."

Write that on your turkey gizzard and send it to 719 Federal Building and you will be doing Missouri and the wild turkey's future a favor.

The following letter from Mr. Blakey will explain:

"Dear Mr. Wray—In all of the requests for assistance of the Post-Dispatch you never received this one before—an emergency appeal for help in collecting wild turkey gizzards and crops.

"At first glance this may strike you as having a humorous slant but please let me assure you it is about the most serious problem encountered in a study of the Ozark wild turkey being conducted by the U. S. Biological Survey. . . . The movement has as its goal the restoration of the wild turkey as an abundant game bird. . . ."

It seems, according to other references in the communication that you're welcome to the liver, heart, wishbone, etc., but that Mr. Blakey needs the gizzard in order to learn just what kind of a diet Meleagris Gallopavo Silvestris needs to prosper.

Owing to the present scarcity of wild turkeys it is not practical for the department to send out its own hunters to kill large numbers of turkeys for the sole purpose of research. So, Nimrods, Mr. Blakey asks that you aid him as to the gizzard of any wild turkey you MAY shoot.

Emphasis on the "May."

IN this particular we fear the emphasis as to the shooting of wild turkey will have to be on that "May." Our own experience leads to the belief that wild turkey in Missouri are about as plentiful as web-footed roosters.

In the course of several years' campaigning for turkey we have seen quite a number, been present when half a dozen were killed, over scattered intervals, have shot at several and have yet to bring down one.

Probably the nearest we ever came to killing a wild turkey was one Christmas week out near Gascondy. There was a heavy snowfall and this writer was walking down the railroad track to flag a train for the section gang, which was busy repairing a switch.

Passing through a shallow cut a wild turkey flapped right over me. Did I crack down on him? I did not—I had no gun with me!

We Learn About Turkeys.

THE next season I went back to the same place hunting turkey. Hugh Patterson, proprietor of the railroad eating house, told me he had heard of turkeys over at the farm of a trapper named Nick Schuhe. But when I got there Nick had nothing but tame ones. He said he thought he'd heard of some "using" over around Buck Elk. So next day we tagged out to Buck Elk.

Nothing doing. But there we got a red-hot tip that birds had been in the region of Pay Down where the old carding mill stands. Near Pay Down we found an old geezer poling along in a dugout running his trap-line.

"Hear of any turkey hereabouts?" we asked him.

He meditated as he released a muskrat from the trap, spat, and then slowly replied:

"Waal, stranger, seems to me I did hear 'em telling about a big flock roosting over that hill thar in a ravine."

Boy, did I get hot.

"Can you take me over and show me where—I'll be glad to make it all right with you."

"That's mighty nice of you, but I can't no ways do it."

"Why not?"

"Well, you see it's been nigh on 10 years since I heern about them birds."

Turkey Hunters Plentiful.

TWO years ago we drove 250 miles to Gainesville in Ozark County, where rumor had it the bronze beauties were numerous.

We reached a farmer's house in the hills about dusk the day before the season opened. We rose in the dark at 4 o'clock, wore our backs out over the hills for hours and the only thing that even suggested a wild turkey was about 50 other hunters, all of whom had the same hunch as we.

Not a gun was fired that day, at least not at a wild turkey.

OLE MISS HOLDS TENNESSEE TO SCORELESS TIE

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 5. — The Mississippi Rebels halted Tennessee's great comeback campaign today by fighting the Vols to a scoreless tie before 16,000 fans.

They battled valiantly but there wasn't enough steam in the attack of either to bring any serious scoring threats until the final minute of the game. Then Mississippi drove to Tennessee's six-yard line in a desperate passing attack that was cut short by the final gun.

Neither the Vols' Phil Dickens or the Rebels' Ray Hapes could crack the stubborn defenses of the forwards, and every drive that began to click bogged down with a fumble or an intercepted pass.

There was nothing to choose between the teams, both made seven first downs. Total yardage gained with Tennessee 172, Mississippi 162.

Three times in the second quarter the Vols had scoring chances with first downs in deep in Rebel territory, but they were balked twice by the fighting Mississippi forwards and the third time by an intercepted pass.

Babe Wood, Vol substitute quarterback, electrified the crowd in the third quarter. He took Dave Bernard's punt on his 20-yard line and reeled off 55 yards before being brought down, but the gain was nullified when the Vols were brought back to their 37-yard line for clipping.

The final seconds brought the biggest thrill when Hapes intercepted Wood's pass on his 45-yard line and ran to Tennessee's 34-yard line. Peters picked up three yards at left tackle and Baumstein passed to Poole who lateraled to Bernard for five yards. Bernard whipped a pass to Graham on Tennessee's 15-yard line, and then Baumstein tossed one to Bernard on the Vol six-yard line as the game ended.

FLYERS TO PLAY CHICAGO TEAM IN EXHIBITION HERE DEC. 16

By W. J. McGoogan.

The Chicago Blackhawks of the National League will meet the St. Louis Flyers in an exhibition hockey game at the Arena, Wednesday night, Dec. 16.

Chicago still has the lineup with which the Hawks have been a power in the National League for some seasons but they have had rough sledding this season, winning one game, losing four and tying four for a total of six points.

They are last in the American section of the National League.

Former Eagle to Play.

Included in the Chicago lineup are three former Flyers, goalie, Mike Karakas, Harold Jackson and Bill Kendall. Also Glen Brydson, former Eagle, is with the club as is Art Wiebe who played defense for Kansas City some seasons ago.

Johnny Gottselig, clever stick handler, who St. Louis fans will remember from the time when major league clubs played at The Arena is one of the stars of the club as are Tommy Cook, center, and Mush March, right wing.

The other players in the party will be Marty Burke, Levinsky, and Earl Seibert, defense; Paul Thompson, left wing; Doc Romnes, center; Wildor Lorochelle, right wing; Blair, center; Trudell, left wing.

Against this array the Flyers plan using the best lineup possible because they want to make a good showing against the major league outfit.

Previous Exhibitions.

Twice previously National League teams have played exhibitions. The very first year league hockey was played here, the Hawks played and won from the Flyers at the Winter Garden in a pre-season game, while the New York Americans played the Flyers at The Arena some seasons later before the schedule opened and won.

However, this time both teams have been through their conditioning sessions and have played enough games of their respective schedules to be somewhere near top form.

There has been a demand by St. Louis fans since the Eagles were here in the National League to see the Flyers in action against major league competition and this will be their opportunity.

Continue A. A. Schedule.

Meanwhile the Flyers will continue their play in the American Association with a game at The Arena tonight against Wichita. Then they go to Wichita for a game Tuesday, and at Kansas City Thursday after which they return home to face Kansas City at The Arena.

Wichita made a good showing against the Flyers the only time they were at The Arena this season although they lost to the league leaders. They are tied for second place in the league standing.

Mike Goodman is coach of the Skyhawks and with him will be Paul Goodman in goal; Galbraith, Halderson and Simm, defense; Campbell, Ranger, Papike, Deleeuw, Maloney and Barr forwards.

Illini Baseball Schedule.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—The 1937 Illinois baseball schedule, arranged today:

April 23-24, Ohio State, at Illinois; April 27, Illinois at Chicago; May 1, Illinois at Northwestern; May 5, Purdue at Illinois; May 8, Illinois at Michigan; May 11, Chicago at Illinois; May 15, Michigan at Illinois; May 18, Illinois at Purdue; May 21-22, Illinois at Wisconsin; May 26, Northwestern at Illinois.

SPORTS by L. C. Baris

Elegy in a Country Boneyard.

THE curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The magnates pull their freight from Montreal;
And now the scene will change to old Broadway,
A meeting of the major leagues to call.

Now fades the glimmering landscape on the scene,
The trade winds indicate a coming storm;
The burning question is, will Dizzy Dean
Wear Breadon's or some other uniform?

While the temptation doubtless must be great
To wave aside a goodly bunch of dough,
To part with Diz the boss will hesitate
Until he gets the well-known quid pro quo.

Thanks.

In compiling its All-America football team the A. P. gave Hafeli of the Washington Bears honorable mention. Well, as the feller says, that's sump'n.

See where Coast football addicts are not taking kindly to the Panther Rose Bowl bid. Not that the choice might not have been the same, but it emphasizes the fact that both teams should be chosen by the committee.

We note with interest that the International and American Association pulled a Finnegan and the little world series is on again.

Burleigh Grimes, making his major-league debut in the role of David Harum, got four for two, which is not bad trading in any man's league.

He also shipped Stanley Bordagaray, goatee and all, to the Cardinals. Just who will be the goat and who the goatee remains to be seen.

In getting English, Henshaw, Lavagetto and Birkhofer for Frey and Brandt it looks as though Burleigh knows his way around the marts of trade.

However, all the men involved in the deal were good performers and everybody is happy and satisfied. That's the way it should be.

The Yales not only placed Larry Kelley, but Clarence Frank, the only Junior on the A. P. All-America team. Nice going, Eli!

Princeton got Toll on the second team, but Harvard didn't place or show. However, the Big Three is definitely on its way back.

Two holes-in-one on the same day on the same links in the same tournament by Jack Forrester and Abe Espinosa is what occurred in the Miami Biltmore open. They must be playing aces wild down there.

Vincent Di Maggio, brother of Joe, was purchased from San Diego by the Boston Bees. It works out some times. There are the Dean boys, the Waner boys, the Ferrell boys, the Delehanty boys and the High boys.

Time Will Reveal.

IF VINCENT is as good as Joe of New York Yankee fame.
The Bees will not have spent their dough
For just another name.

Avery Brundage says the A. A. U. must stick to amateur ideals. Nessutor ultra crepidam. Or, as the feller says, let not the shoemaker go beyond his last.

Three St. Louis Players Are Ranked in First 10 by the Missouri Valley Tennis Body

By Davison Obear

Howard Stephens Jr., St. Louis District champion, was awarded the No. 3 position in the official men's singles ranking of the Missouri Valley Tennis Association for 1936 according to the findings of the ranking committee of which Karl Hodge of this city is chairman. The brilliant play of the Yale University star during the past season enabled him to move up from the No. 9 position last year.

Richard Tindall, district junior champion, and Frank Keaney, University City winner and municipal titleholder, were two other members of the younger group to gain positions in the Valley first 10. Tindall was awarded No. 4 and Keaney the sixth place.

Wayne Smith, former Washington University player, was named in the second group. The St. Louis players who were not ranked on account of insuffcient data were Karl Hodge, McNeill Smith and Herbert Weinstock.

Coggeshall Ranked No. 1.

The top honors in the singles went to Harris Coggeshall, Des Moines veteran who won both the Iowa State and Des Moines district titles and reached semifinals of the Missouri Valley championship in Kansas City last June.

Gerin Cameron, Tulsa player, was named No. 2 in the singles list. He won the Kansas State and Oklahoma State titles as well as the Arkansas Valley honors. Coggeshall and Cameron each moved up one place in the first 10 ranking as compared to last year. William Kiley of Kansas City, No. 1 last year, was not ranked on account of insufficient data.

In order to qualify for a ranking a player must have participated in at least two sanctioned events within the Valley territory during the season, provided, however, that one of these events was held away from the home city of the player. A number of players competed in two or more events in such cities as St. Louis, Des Moines and Wichita, but did not journey to some other city for tournament participation.

15 Tournaments Figured.

The Ranking Committee made its selections this year from the records of 15 sanctioned championships in addition to the Missouri Valley men's singles event. A total of 26 players were named, while nine were listed in the insufficient data column. The ranking lists for women and juniors will be announced during the coming week.

The rankings:

FIRST TEN.

1. Harris M. Coggeshall, Des Moines, Ia.
2. Gerin Cameron, Tulsa, Okla.
3. Howard Stephens Jr., St. Louis, Mo.
4. Richard Tindall, St. Louis, Mo.
5. Fred Kenker, Topeka, Kan.
6. Frank Keaney, St. Louis, Mo.
7. Arthur Voss, Lawrence, Kan.
8. Wallace Swank, St. Joseph, Mo.
9. Ed Lorling, Kansas City, Mo.
10. Ray McSpaddan, Tahlequah, Okla.

SECOND GROUP.

(Alphabetically arranged).

Crawford Bennett, Oklahoma City, Okla; William Brinson, Wichita, Kan.; Jack Carpenter, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Warren Christner, Topeka, Kan.; George Counts, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Bryce Harlow, Oklahoma City, Okla.; John Hartigan, St. Joseph, Mo.; Ed Lindsey, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Howard Loschke, Kansas City, Mo.; Hubert Manire, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Tom Mcfaddden, Tahlequah, Okla.; Vance Mcfadden, Tahlequah, Okla.; Walter Pearce Jr., Muskogee, Okla.; John Pierpont, Wichita, Kan.; Wallace Smith, Tahlequah, Okla.; Wayne Smith, St. Louis, Mo.

NOT RANKED BECAUSE OF INSUFFICIENT DATA: Charlie Davis, Oklahoma City, Okla.; W. F. Coen Jr., Kansas City; Sterling Cutlip, Kansas City; Lindsay Franklin, Topeka, Kan.; Karl Hodge, St. Louis; William Kiley, Kansas City; McNeill Smith, East St. Louis; Hal Surface, Kansas City; Herbert Weinstock, St. Louis.

Indians and Browns.

The Cleveland Indians seem to hold the key to the American League trading ring. Cyril Slapnicka, assistant to President Alva Bradley, did not attend the minor league sessions, but is expected here next week. A deal between the Indians and the Browns, in which Rollie Hemsley, Outfielder Julius Solters and Shortstop Lyn Lary would go to Cleveland for Outfielder Joe Vosmik, Frankie Pytlak and Roy Hughes, is said to be under consideration.

The Tigers are said to be using Outfielders Al Simmons and Goose Goslin in their trading conversations, and there is a rush for the contract of Johnny Whitehead supposed to be on his way out at Chicago. The White Sox have their eyes on Gerald Walker of the Tigers and Chet Laabs of the Milwaukee Brewers.

The American League meeting is also expected to reveal which clubs will play night ball against the Browns in St. Louis next season.

A. A. U. DELEGATES DEFEAT PROPOSAL FOR OLYMPIC TAX

BRUNDAGE PLAN IS KILLED WITH ONLY ONE VOTE FAVORING MOVE

New York Recommended for Indoor Track Championships — No Action Taken on Susvension of Eleanor Jarrett.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 5.—The Amateur Athletic Union's forty-eighth convention, due for a complete shakeup of administration before it closes tomorrow, battled today through a broken field of arguments that brought into the open, for the first time, echoes of the stormy 1935 split on Olympic issues.

Despite warnings at the outset from President Avery Brundage against "bickering" and "sniping" that threatened to wreck the organization, the delegates wrangled most of the day over subjects ranging from a sharp factional fight over the seating of the District of Columbia's representatives on the board of governors to furious debates over new legislation barring backhand punches in amateur boxing.

Olympic Tax Beaten.

During the double barreled session that found Brundage constantly wielding the gavel to halt shadow boxing or verbal passages at arms, the convention accomplished the following results:

1. Defeat of the administration proposal for an "Olympic tax" on admissions to athletic events by an overwhelming vote.

2. Retention of the metric system of measurement for national track and field championships, with "local option" prevailing otherwise for club or sectional competition.

3. Adoption of numerous technical rules—changes in swimming, boxing and track and field sports—all designed to bring American regulations into conformity with international standards.

4. Partial lifting of restrictions against the amateur eligibility of life guards with retention of the so-called "90-day clause," for probationary purposes and with discretionary power resting in the hands of district registration committees.

5. Retention, for the time being, of proposals to establish a new definition of active and associate membership in the A. A. U. because of numerous border-line cases developed by the effects of the depression years.

The convention's "harmony program" came close to being tossed out of the window during the height of the day's most acrimonious discussion. This centered around the election of District of Columbia delegates to the board of governors. It was touched off when Charles L. Ornstein of New York, floor leader for the forces backing Jeremiah T. Mahoney for the presidency, challenged the nominations submitted by Winfree A. Johnson, secretary of the D. C. association.

Inasmuch as Johnson was the only one of the four official nominees present, Ornstein prosoped the substitution of another Washington delegate, Edward Rosenblum, for James Sullivan, an absentee, with written approval from the latter as well as from A. Earle Weeks, president of the District of Columbia Association.

While the convention nearly sidestepped a decision and Johnson agreed to Weeks for authority to allow his stand, Ornstein quickly became the storm center of the meeting.

Only a handful of delegates, most of them from the Metropolitan District, were on hand for participation in the verbal fireworks. Others who had taken time off to see the Rice-Southern Methodist football game came hustling back as soon as the word spread that the "lid was about to be blown off."

Before the turmoil subsided, Ornstein drew a sharp retort from Patrick Wortmann of New York, while Major Patrick J. Walsh, president of the Metropolitan Association and rival of Mahoney for the national presidency, seized opportunity to challenge the status of German Obertubessing, here on behalf of the National Cycling Association and a Mahoney adherent.

The upshot appeared to be that both Johnson and Rosenblum would be seated tomorrow on the Board of Governors, thereby splitting the vote of the Capitol delegation.

Developments otherwise strengthened the prospect that Mahoney, beaten on the Olympic issue a year ago and replaced in the chair by Brundage, would be returned to office by a decisive vote, thereby putting the 1935 opposition party back in power. Ornstein's prediction today that Mahoney would have a fairly two to one backing among the delegates was not challenged by Walsh's supporters, who included Brundage.

Another Hockey Fight.

The tipoff on the convention trend came early with the defeat of the "Olympic tax" proposition. Brundage, elaborating on the original five-cent "contribution" idea, suggested a substitute plan calling for collection of five cents on all admissions to athletic events up to $1 and 10 cents for tickets of higher price.

Opposed by Thomas T. Reilley, of New York, who described it as another "nuisance tax," opposition was based largely on the ground the plan would nullify present sources of Olympic revenue or contributions. Reilley suggested it was not up to the A. A. U. to take the initiative but urged that the new administration consult other sports-governing bodies on a general fund-raising plan for the 1940 Olympics.

Fred L. Steers of Chicago, chairman of the legislative committee, drew a sharp retort from the veteran Bostonian, George V. Brown, after decrying "chiseling" in connection with the promotion of amateur hockey. Brown expressed resentment over the charge, denied he was a party to any sharp practice, and contended many clubs were failing to break even in their conduct of the ice sport.

On the motion of L.dI Benedetto of New Orleans, the convention defeated a move to drop volleyball from the lists of sports under A. A. U. jurisdiction.

Polo Entry Fees Cut.

The convention overrode the objections of the Legislative Committee in voting to reduce the entry fees for the national senior water polo competition from $10 to $5 and the junior fees from $5 to $3. William S. Haddock of Pittsburgh joined Metropolitan delegates in fighting for the change.

Life guards, barred from amateur swimming competition previously, will be permitted to compete after expiration of the 90-day probationary period, under certain restrictions. Brundage explained that the bars still are up against life guards who do any coaching or otherwise professionalize themselves. The new rule gives registration committees power to decide individual cases on their merits.

Demonstration punches were flying all over the room, jeopardizing sundry chins, before the convention adopted the new boxing rule, barring backhand blows. Benjamin Osthues of the New England Association, a veteran official, argued for clarification of the rule to prevent putting referees "on the spot" but his contentions received a theoretical knockout.

Another Proposal Tabled.

A legislative proposal to require at least 10 registered and competing athletes for clubs holding active membership brought the fight against so called "paper clubs" out into the open. This was linked with the idea of restricting all clubs minus such a competition roster to non-voting associate membership in the A. A. U. The entire scheme was tabled after being attacked bitterly by Alfred J. Lill of the Boston A. A., now in such financial difficulties for the time being, he said, that it did not have a single registered athlete on its rolls.

"I agree with Lill that there's plenty of gunpowder in this proposition," said James McGinley of Philadelphia, president of the Middle Atlantic Association, "but it might be what we need to wake up the member clubs to their responsibility of developing more athletes and competition."

Horse-shoe pitching was taken over after the convention was told there were two and a half million amateurs or prospective amateurs seeking the parental sheiter of the A. A. U.

Meantime it developed the National Horse-Shoe Pitchers' Association will withdraw from allied membership in the A. A. U. as a result of the disclosure of R. B. Howard of London, O., secretary, that the organization is now "essentially professional."

New York Gets Meet.

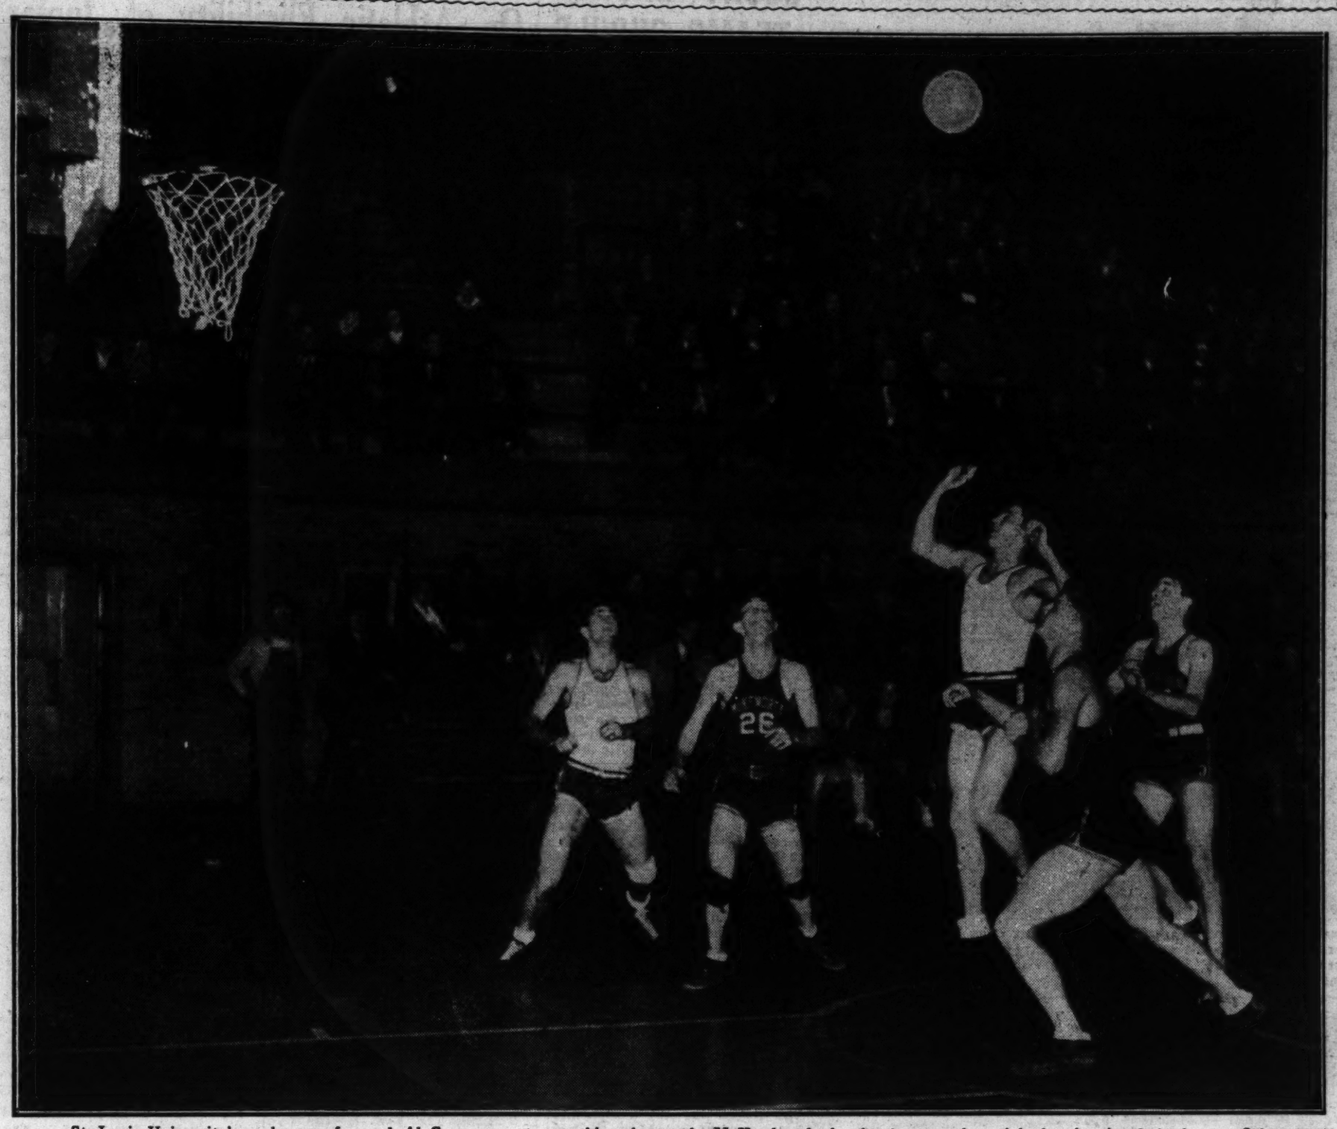

The track and field committee voted the 1937 national indoor track and field championships to New York, to be held in Madison Square Garden, Feb 27. Previously Marquette University was awarded the national outdoor meet, to be held around July 4.

The senior gymnastics championships, for men and women, will go to the Allegheny Association, Pittsburgh, and the weight-lifting tournament to the Michigan Association, Detroit, if the convention ratifies these and other committee recommendations.

The amateur status of Eleanor Holm Jarrett, backstroke swimming queen who was expelled from the Olympic team for violating training rules, was not discussed by the National Registration Committee. She is now under suspension by the metropolitan association but Daniel J. Ferris, national secretary-treasurer, said no attempt was made to make an issue of her status in the convention's committee huddles.

The charges on which the metropolitan association based its suspension of Mrs. Jarrett were, first, that she violated amateur rules by writing newspaper stories under her byline and, second, that her swimming reputation was capitalized in night clubs.

Western Reserve Wins From Case, 32-3, to Close Football Season Unbeaten and Untied

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—They still pay off on the final score. That's why the Southern California campus is cheering tonight—because Howard Jones' football Trojans, outplayed and outfought, battled Notre Dame's favored Irish to a 13-13 tie in one of the games on the season's getaway program.

Unable to make a first down until the final period—and then only getting across a 10-yard distance as the result of a penalty—the Trojans cashed in on a 65-yard touchdown producing lateral pass, and a 100-yard scoring run by substitute Bud Langley with an intercepted pass, to earn the deadlock.

That wild and woolly battle, with 75,000 fans looking on, featured the program that virtually wound up the season, leaving only a pair of games next week and the customary extra-curricular "Bowl" battles still to come.

Otherwise, the day was highlighted by Arkansas' capture of the Southwest Conference championship by downing Texas, 6-0; St. Mary's last-half rally to down Temple, 13-7; Texas Aggies' third-quarter spurt to whip Manhattan, 13-6; Western Reserve's windup to an undefeated, untied season by conquering Case, 32-3; Mississippi's "moral victory" in holding Tennessee to a 0-0 draw, and Mississippi State's surprisingly tough struggle before overcoming Florida, 7-0.

Western Maryland won the "State championship" in its home district by crushing Maryland's Terp's, 12-0, with a two-touchdown second-period attack. Texas Tech fought a favored Arizona combination to a 7-7 tie. Gonzaga scored in the last period to wallop Washington State, 13-6, and Southern Methodist's Mustangs wound up a disappointing season with a 9-0 victory over Rice.

The East intersectional "champions" of the country for the campaign, didn't fare so well in the windup. Temple, rated an even-money chance against an up-and-down St. Mary's aggregation, was unable to fight off the Gaels' last-half attack; Manhattan, run dizzy by the Texas Aggies' well-mixed overhead and ground attack, never had a chance after the Southwesterners shoved over two quick touchdowns in the third period.

in one basketball night than he did during the entire football season.

At one stage in the second half, McKendree kept the ball for 30 seconds under the Billiken basket and shot at least eight times, scoring eight clean misses.

There was this much to be said of the game. The advertised starting lineups actually started and the game began on time.

Manis, the McKendree center, is a broth of a boy standing just six feet, seven inches in height. He scored five points in the first half but was held scoreless in the second.

Old-Time Fans Pile Up Vote Against Re-Naming "Browns"

The horse-car and bock-beer set has risen to a man to protest against any change in the name of the Browns, a checkup of letters received in the contest to determine fan sentiment on the issue revealed last night.

Old timers who can still quote the batting averages on Anson, Comiskey, Latham, Clarkson and O'Neill and had speaking acquaintance with Chris Von der Ahe himself, are daily adding to the lead of those who think "Browns" is the best name in the world for the local American League nine.

Makes Him Ill.

Charles L. Coy, now living in Washington, D. C., wrote the owners that he took a cable car to Sportsman's Park on August 15, 1888, for his first look at the old Brown Stockings. "It makes me sick," he said, "to hear people say that the Browns never won a pennant. What if they were in a different league at that time? They were the Browns and they "should stay the Browns."

Joseph Sievers of Pattonville, Mo., pointed out that while the Highlanders became the Yanks, the Naps the Indians, the Browns have endured through all the years and shouldn't quit now. That's the way N. E. Burroughes of Garrison, Ky., feels about it, too. "If you have to change, though," he added, "call them the St. Louis Charlies in honor of Comiskey."

Similar sentiments are expressed by H. L. Venneman of Kirkwood who saw the "Brown Stockings" win the world championship and by O. C. Mayer who lived in the shadow of the park for 46 years and saw the players pull up to the entrance in tallyhos. Likewise Charles J. Wilhelm of 4322 Bingham avenue, who got a swell seat behind home plate for fifty cents back in 1885.

The younger generation, however, having never seen the Von Der Ahe set them up for the house, continues to deluge Donald L. Barnes and his associates with ideas for a new monicker. W. J. Essner of Springfield, Mo., for instance, brands the present name of the team as "colorless, unimaginative, silly and senseless," and calls for a new deal under the banner of "St. Louis Citizens."

Two-Edged Nickname.

Eugene W. Buckley of Alton, Ill., suggests "Crowns," adding that the sports writers may call the boys "Clowns" as a joke when the going is tough. Darwin Follette of 3672 Russell boulevard suggests "The Lindbergs." R. C. Rodgers of Flora, Ill., proffers "The White Caps" and C. O. Thomas of Eldorado, Ill., "The Barnacles."

Hundreds of letters have been received in the contest which will continue until Dec. 15. Present indications are that the great majority of the letters will favor retaining the present name of the team, but season passes will be awarded to the writrs of the three best letters regardless of whether they are fo ror against a change of name. Letters should be addressed to "Browns Contest, Sportsman's Park."

AMATEUR STATUS OF WPA WORKERS UNDER QUESTION

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 5.—A question of what effect WPA employment as playground teachers or subordinates on athletic projects would have on the amateur standing of boys and girls came before the A. A. U. convention today at its first general session.

A Baltimore delegation led by Albert Wheltie brought the issue up. Harry Berman, one of the Baltimoreans, told the convention:

"Our registration committee has not seen fit to take any action as yet but in cases where such employment aids young athletes to go through school or college, meanwhile engaging in competition themselves, a question exists as to violating the letter of the amateur."

The statement drew a quick response from James McGinley of Philadelphia, president of the Middle Atlantic Association, who urged the application of "common sense" to such problems. McGinley asserted the A. A. U. could serve no worthwhile purpose by raising unnecessary issues and pointed out that colleges made a practice of certifying as amateurs many athletes who gain summer employment as playground instructors.

Schmeling May Be Asked to Post Bond He Will Defend Title in U. S. If He Wins It

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The New York State Athletic Commission may wrap up a nice little surprise package to toss into Herr Schmeling's lap next week.

When the temperamental Teuton arrives Thursday to complete arrangements for a title shot with James J. Braddock, he's likely to find that autographing a contract is only the start of the ceremonies.

If the plan of one commissioner goes through, Max will be ordered to post $25,000 as a guarantee that if he beats Braddock he'll come back to the United States within a year to defend the title.

A person close to the commission said tonight this step is planned to nail reports that if Schmeling does become the first man in history to regain the heavyweight crown, he intends to take it back to Germany and sit on it.

Paul Damski, German-born fight manager, who knows Max well and who introduced the fighter to Annu Ondra, his screen star wife, says Schmeling is thinking only of the glory of "Der Vaterland" in making his fistic comeback.

"One thing is certain," says Damski. "Max will never defend that title in America. He might do so in Germany, if Hitler insists, but as for coming over here and giving Joe Louis or somebody else a crack at it, that's out."

These reports have reached the ears of the commissioners and one of them is going to try to see that something is done about it.

Schmeling, independently wealthy, easily could put up the money from his personal funds, but since German law will not permit him taking that sum out of the country, other arrangements will have to be made if he agrees to the commission's demand.

Mike Jacobs, who has staked the German before, is willing to do so again on condition the $25,000 be the first money taken out of Max's end of the purse.

Along with Braddock and representatives of Madison Square Garden and the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, Schmeling is due before the commission Friday to sign for a June title bout.

He is expected to insist that the contract contain a clause that the champion not engage in any fights in the meantime, in which event Braddock probably will refuse to sign and accept terms for a no-decision bout with Joe Louis in February.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—St. Mary's Gaels capped an indifferent football season in brilliant fashion today with a 13 to 7 intersectional victory over veteran Glenn "Pop" Warner's light but tricky Temple University Owls.

Quarterback Davidson's weak kicks in the second and third periods paved the way for St. Mary's touchdowns.

The boys from the other side of the continent, small compared to the warriors tutored by Edward "Slip" Madigon, were outscored but were far from outclassed.

They seized an opportunity early in the second quarter to convert a St. Mary's fumble into a touchdown and, converting the extra point, led until the fourth period.

The Temple score followed a fumble by right half Hugh Sill with the ball bouncing over the goal line, where speedy Left End Ed walker fell on it. Bill Docherty, captain and left tackle, added the extra tally.

Midway of the third period, Davidson punted from his own two-yard line. The Gaels took possession on the 20-yard line. Charges at the line moved the ball to the one-foot line and Fullback Maxham smashed through for the initial St. Mary's score on third down.

The point conversion failed.

Shortly after the last period opened, Davidson punted from his own 11-yard line and the ball sliced out of bounds on the 30-yard line. Two line plays netted seven yards and left Half O'Laughlin passed to Sub Right End Austin over the goal, behind the Temple secondary. Quarterback Ferry place-kicked the extra point.

The longest sustained drive was made by Temple in a desperate last period rally of 62 yards and five first downs before the ball was lost on a pass interception on St. Mary's 26-yard line.

The outstanding individual performer was Chester Messervey, 191-pound Temple center, from Marblehead, Mass. He was in on most of the tackles and was the line bulwark which stopped much of the charge of the heavy Gael ball luggers.

The game ended the season for both teams.

TERRIERS PLAY OZE SIMMONS' STARS TODAY

With a .500 record for its two games this season, the St. Louis Terrier professional football team this afternoon will meet Oze Simmons and his Iowa All-Stars at Walsh Stadium.

Iowa's outstanding Negro halfback will be playing at his usual position for the All-Stars. He only recently turned professional, taking up pro football and basketball after finishing the season with the Iowa U. team.

Coach Arnold von Lehsten of the Terriers reported all of his players in good condition. Their season's record includes a victory over Peoria, 7-0, and a defeat at the hands of the Rock Island Independents, 14-0.

Dick Frahm and Red Sauselle, formerly of Nebraska and Washington, will probably be in the starting lineup for St. Louis.

The probable lineups:

GRANVILLE IS VOTED BEST RACE HORSE OF THE SEASON

WOODWARD ACE GIVEN 744 OF POSSIBLE 774 POINTS IN POLL

Bold Venture Second in Three-Year-Old Division and Discovery Is Next in All-Age Group.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5.—Granville, William Woodward's fine colt which won a half dozen big stake races last summer after tossing his rider in the Kentucky Derby, was named today as the best race horse of the 1936 season by the nation's turf writers.

A poll conducted by the Turf and Sport Digest listed the son of Gallant Fox not only as the best three-year-old by an overwhelming margin, but as the best all-age racer.

Pompoon, owned by Jerome H. Louchheim of Philadelphia, was named the best two-year-old colt and Hal Price Headley's Apogee was voted the best two-year-old filly.

There was no noticeable doubt in the minds of the 258 writers participating in the poll as to Granville's superiority. Scored on the basis of three points for first place, two for second and one for third, Granville received 744 points out of a possible 774 in the three-year-old division and 606 in the all-age class. Morton L. Schwartz's Kentucky Derby winner, Bold Venture, was second among the three-year-olds with 476 points and Joseph E. Widener's Brevity third with 110.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Discovery, leading money winner of 1935, was runner-up in the all-age division with 372 points, while A. A. Baroni's Top Row beat out Elwood Sachsenmaier's Roman Soldier for third place, 136 to 112.

After his misfortune in the Kentucky Derby, Granville went on to finish first in seven of his 10 starts, winning a total of $110,295. He lost twice to Bold Venture, including the Derby defeat, once to his stablemate, Teufel, and once to an older horse, Firethorn. The colt's triumphs included the Belmont Stakes, the Lawrence Realization, the Arlington Classic and three of Saratoga's classic races, the Kenner, the Travers and the Saratoga cup.

CLEAN SPORT WINS EASILY AT CHARLES TOWN

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 5.—Clean Sport, D. Shea's four-year-old gelding, son of Brown Bud-Pollywitch, made a clean sweep of the Rod and Gun Club purse today, scoring easily by four lengths over Skyride. Standout finished third, one length further back.

Capably ridden by Jockey J. Shanks, Clean Sport took the lead at the quarter pole by a head, and from then on was never in danger, increasing his advantage at every pole. Skyride was in second place throughout the running and just as easily held the place safe from Standout.

Favored in the betting, Clean Sport returned $5 for a $2 mutual and ran the mile and a sixteenth over a slow track in 1:54.

FIFTEEN PLAYERS GET UNIVERSITY CITY HIGH FOOTBALL LETTERS

Fifteen major letters in football were awarded to University City High School players by Coach Clarence "Stub" Muhl, head coach, at the annual student council dance at the senior high school gymnasium last night.

Three boys received their third major award. They were Louis Kaufman, Eugene Blades and Dick Root. Five players given their second letters of their football career were Harvey Fisher, Eugene Multin, Bill Morgan, Albert Boain and Bill Brewer.

First-year awards were made to the following: Bill Tuschmidt, Ted Liebig, Arnold Michelson, Bill Jack, Tom Matthews, Caldwell Funk and Bill Bielock. Bud Lewis received a manager's letter.

The following who played in fewer games were presented with minor letters: Bill Hoelke, Bill Colbion, Sylvester Goldman, Gene Pennington, Milford Feldman, Bill Bollard. Edward Mohme was given a minor manager's insignia.

Play 7-7 Tie.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 5.—Arizona and Texas Tech thrilled 15,000 spectators here today by closing the football season with a hard-fought tie game, 7 to 7. After trailing Arizona, 0 to 7, at the end of the first half, Texas Tech was able to come to the front through a gallant offensive and in the final minutes of play and even matters up with their Arizona opponents.

The Bears' Coach and His Bride

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Conzelman. The photograph was taken just after their marriage at St. Ferdinand's Church, Florissant. The bride was Miss Anna Forrestal, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Forrestal. "Jimmy" has been head coach of the Washington University football team for several seasons.

COUNTY BASKET TEAMS SHOULD FURNISH CLOSE 1936-37 RACE

Two county high schools will have new basketball coaches this season. Earl Greene, who has had many years of experience, will take over the duties at Clayton, while Ben Douglas, football coach, will handle Maplewood's team for the first time.

Greene was a star football player at Illinois University. After his graduation, he turned out winning teams at an Oregon High School, then went to Iowa University as freshman coach. He later had charge of all athletic teams at Winona (Minn.) Teacheds' College.

Clayton Candidates.

Greene will have John Schomogy, center and one of the best in the district last year, together with Jack Brereton and Orville Schulte, reserves from last season, as the nucleus for this year's team.

Douglas has four football players returning for basketball. They are Elmer Halbrook, Joe Hennessey, Russ Henry and John Kurtz. Oher prospects are Stuart Benson, Jack Reigert, Bud Wherry, and David Robinson.

University City will probably have another team that will measure up to that of last season which won 17 games and lost only two. Bill Brewer and Ken Multin are returning lettermen. Louis Kaufman is also back, but is only eligible until January.

Blair Batson and Bob Halliday, substiutes last year, should greatly aid Coach C. A. Muhl in building another winning team. Lester Glickman, Hubert Deutsch and Ed Jenkins are other good prospects.

Ritenour's coach, Bob Geddes, has six lettermen back, but two of them are ineligible for a time. Ralph Sacks and Joe Montalbano are the ineligibles, but Don Halloway, Ray Walters, Junior Steimke and Charles Hemphill will carry on until the others are eligible.

Prospects are good at Normandy although only two veterans are back. One of them, howevere, is the sensational scorer, Herbert van Deven, who several times last year got "hot" and scored over 25 points. Van Deven was only a sophomore last year and should be a great player this year for C. E. "Pie" Reid, the coach. Bob Waters is the other letterman.

Other prospects for the Vikings team are: Elmer Aussieker, Jack Lister, Bill Spencer, Earl Provost, Vernon Tracy, Russell Grass and Glen Schumacher.

Kirkwood Hopeful.

Kirkwood, with poor teams for the past few years, is hopeful of breaking its string of lean years. Three lettermen are back with Sherwood Hughes, sharp-shooting little forward and captain, Charles Berkley, and Donald Jensen the nucleus about which Coach Denver Miller must build. Charles Rollston and Bob Ducheck, reserves of last year, and a group of sophomore, Donald Nixon, Bob Temme, Charles Robitsch, Harold Jenkins, Ralph Kleinschmidt and Bob Beers are the other leading candidates.

Clarence Keel, coach of Webster Groves, has four lettermen back. They are Harry Pendarvis, Dan Pacey, Norman Murphy and Bob Jackson, with Sharp, Harkey, Poe and Sunger other prospects.

Wellston has but one letterman returning, Howard Hendricks, and Coach R. C. Ott isn't expecting to have a very good team. But Uthe, Nolte, Kennedy, Vance, Iten, and Hammer are the best prospects at present.

O. W. Dueringer, St. Charles' coach, has Jack Schoder, Sebacher, Frank Boschert, Bear, Duvall Weber, Wade Admire, and Leon Smith to pick from for his team.

BASKETBALL PLAYERS MUST REGISTER WITH A.A.U. BY JANUARY 4

Basketball players who are playing or expect to play with teams belonging to the Ozark district of the A. A. U. must register with C. A. Neavles, chairman of the Ozark Registration Committee, before 5 o'clock, Monday afternoon, Jan. 4.

All basketball players who expect to play in the Ozark district basketball tournament must be registered, together with the name of the team with which he is to play before the closing date. No player will be allowed to change after that date to any team other than the one with which he is registered.

Registrations may be made with Mr. Neavles at the Downtown Y. M. C. A., Sixteenth and Locust streets.

Tenpin Match.

Miami No. 1 tenpin team will oppose a Staunton, Ill., five at Schulte's Alleys, Grand and Juniata tonight in the last three games of a home and home match. In the first three games rolled at Staunton, the Staunton team rolled up a lead of 176 pins. There will be two other contests tonight also. Miami No. 2 will oppose Staunton No. 2 and the Staunton women's five will meet the Harts. The event starts at 7 o'clock.

Pyle Sued for Divorce.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Effie R. Pyle, 42, charged Charles C. Pyle with desertion in a divorce suit on file in Superior Court today. Pyle promoted the "Bunion Derby," a cross-country walking race, several years ago. They were married in December, 1934.

Big Six and Valley Take No Action On Athletic Eligibility of Junior College Graduates at Joint Meeting

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 5.—Faculty representatives of the Big Six and the Missouri Valley Conferences in a joint meeting here today to discuss mutual problems adjourned without taking definite action on a major problem—athletic eligibility requirements for junior college graduates.

The Missouri Valley Conference permits junior college graduates to enter varsity competition their first year at a Conference school. The Big Six frowns on such practices, and last spring at Lincoln the faculty group instructed directors that as far as possible they refrain from scheduling schools which permit immediate competition by the junior collegians.

It was pointed out the scheduling of such games was not definitely prohibited, however, thus leaving a loophole for continuation of such rivalries as Iowa State-Drake, Oklahoma-Oklahoma A. & M. and Missouri-Washington. Washburn, a Missouri Valley member, has football games scheduled for next fall with both Kansas and Kansas State.

The junior college problem will be discussed late this month at the National Collegiate Athletic Association meeting in New York. Dr. H. H. King of Kansas State was named Big Six delegate and Dr. F. H. Ewerhart of Washington will represent the Missouri Valley.

TEXAS AGGIES WIN 13-6 OVER MANHATTAN

By the Associated Press.

TYLER, Tex., Dec. 5.—The flying feet of Dick Todd and Bob Nesrsta ground the Manhattan College Jaspers of New York into a 13-6 defeat before a crowd of 5000 football fans here today.

The Aggies scored twice in the third period, Nesrsta leading a one-man drive from the Manhattan 38-yard line, and Todd a little later racing 76 yards around the Jasper left end. Byrne scored for Manhattan on a plunge from the one-yard line.

The game was played on a muddy field but this did not prevent both teams from trying all their plays and the backs held their footing remarkably well.

The Manhattan touchdown followed two straight Aggie penalties the last giving the Jaspers the ball on the Aggie one-yard stripe.

A. and M. gained the ball on the Manhattan 38-yard line on a fine punt return by Waylon Manning. Two short passes made a first down on the Manhattan 25-yard line. Shockey passed to Nesrsta for six yards, then Nesrsta crashed tackle for 14 yards. Nesrsta made one yard and a pass from Shockey to Seago carried to the Manhattan one-yard line. Nesrsta circled right end for the touchdown. Morrow added the point.

Things picked up in the third when Nesrsta led the smashing surge over the Jasper line. The Aggie back was injured, but remained in the game long enough to score.

Todd's long run was sensational. Shaking off several Manhattan tacklers, he outran the field for a touchdown that brought the crowd to its feet.

The Jaspers were not daunted and came back with a dash, causing many anxious moments for Texas fans.

S. M. U. DEFEATS RICE ELEVEN BY A 9-0 SCORE

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 5.—Sudden outbreaks by fiery reserves brought a 9-0 victory for Southern Methodist's Mustangs over a battered Rice Owl in the season's football final here today.

Shot into the game after the first string had missed fire on two scoring chances inside the 12-yard stripe, the reserves had a touchdown within three minutes and quickly added the field goal.

Kenneth Goodson, "goat" of the Methodist eleven in several games, fired passes and jolted the tackles for most of the gains in a 65-yard drive to a touchdown. Stapp, bulky reserve halfback, started it with a 22-yard reverse over left tackle. Goodson found Carroll on a 13-yard pass and then ran the ball three times to the six-yard line. He circled end on fourth down for the touchdown.

The defeat dropped Rice into a last place tie with the University of Texas in the final Southwest Conference standings and shoved the Methodists, undefeated 1935 league champions, into fifth place.

Big Bob Finley, Methodist kicking star, closed out his college career with a smashing exhibition of ball carrying and phenomenal out of bounds kicking.

VALLEY BASKET LEAGUE BEGINS CAMPAIGN HERE NEXT JANUARY

The St. Louis entry in the Missouri Valley A. A. U. Basketball League will open league play here against the Kansas City team, Jan. 3, Herb Johnston, organizer and coach of the local five, said last night.

The team will begin practicing at the St. Louis U. gymnasium within the next few days, Johnston said. Its first league game is away from home with the Monroe (La.) team.

A sponsor for the St. Louis team has been obtained, Johnston said, and will be announced soon, with the names of the players who will report for practice. Johnston said he will have three former Big Ten players, two from the Royal Hearts Muny League champions last year, one from University of Pittsburgh and one from Carnegie Tech. There also will be other boys who formerly played with local teams.

Johnston, who coached the Royal Hearts last year and the champion Third Baptist five of the North Side Church League the season before last, had been associated with independent basketball in Kansas since 1911.

The new Missouri Valley team will play its games at the St. Louis University gymnasium. Six league games will be played at home and six away, with other exhibition games to be scheduled.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 5.—W. H. Miller of Tulsa, president of the Missouri Valley A. A. U. Basketball League, today announced the 1936-37 league schedule of 42 games. The season opens Dec. 18 and closes March 1.

The membership this season has been increased from five to seven teams, but only two of the clubs are holdovers. The three Kansas entries last season—Hutchinson, Wichita and McPherson—have withdrawn, Kansas City and the Denver Safeways are the only holdover members.

Other members are Colorado Springs, Bartlesville, St. Louis, Monroe, La., and the Kansas City Life of Denver.

The McPherson players, who won the league and the National A. A. U. title last season, will be scattered among other clubs. Joe Fortenberry and Jack Ragland will be with Bartlesville, which on paper rates as the strongest entry; Bill Wheatley, Francis Johnson and Willard Schmidt will be with Colorado Springs, which will be coached by Alvin Twitchell. Gene Johnson, who coached the McPherson champions, will assist Twitchell and serve as business manager.

MACCABEES OF CHICAGO WILL OPPOSE FORMER U. S. CHAMPIONS

PROBABLE LINEUPS

SHAMROCKS.	Pos.	MACCABEES.
Hamm	Goal	Fisher
Robberger	L. B.	Henney
Erbe	R. B.	Davidson
Lehman	L. H. B.	Vondracek
Watson	C. H. B.	Robb
Begley	R. H. B.	Ogilvie
Straimann	O. L.	Lillie
Roe	I. L.	Perlman
Wilsen	C.	Al Waldron
Gonsalves	I. R.	Clem Cuthbert
McNab	O. R.	Mulvie

Starting time, 2:30 o'clock.
Referee, Charley LaBarge. Linesmen, Jimmy Dunn and Robert "Ribby" Murphy.
Reserves: Shamrocks—Kane, Egan, Rodrigues and Kickham. Maccabees—Art Waldron, Campbell, Turden and Harris.

The Shamrocks, former national soccer champions, will seek their seventh consecutive victory of the season this afternoon when they oppose the Maccabees of Chicago at Public Schools Stadium. Play begins at 2:30 o'clock.

The Chicagoans, with many athletes in the lineup, who have appeared here previously are expected to provide a real test for the Shamrocks. Except in one contest, that against the Slavias of Cleveland, the Irish have had things pretty much their own way. In the half dozen battles in which the club has participated, the Shamrocks have scored 31 goals, while holding the opposition to six.

All but four of the Maccabee regulars have seen action on a St. Louis field. The quartet of newcomers in the Windy City eleven's lineup are Fisher, Henney, Perlman and Mulvie.

Davidson With Chicagoans.

Hugh Davidson, who last season commuted between Chicago and St. Louis to play fullback for the Shamrocks, will be at a defensive post for the Windy City eleven. Vondracek, Robb and Ogilvie, the halfbacks have all appeared here as have Forwards Al Waldron, Jimmy Lillie and Clem Cuthbert. Cuthbert has been playing soccer for Chicago teams for years and years, but he's still regarded as a pretty useful player. Lillie is another veteran who seems to go on forever. Seasons ago Lillie was a center forward, but now he's being used on the outside.

The Maccabee's chief claim to fame this season is a 4 to 0 victory over the reserves of the Maccabees of Palestine. In this match, the Chicago attack functioned to perfection and the Jewish invaders were outplayed from start to finish. The chief duty for the Maccabee defense will be to stop the inside forward trio of the Shamrocks—Nilsen, Gonzales and Roe. These three players have scored 24 of the goals credited to the St. Louis eleven this year. Nilsen has 10, Gonzales nine and Roe five. Nilsen and Gonzales have not been held scoreless in any match this season.

Watson and Lehman Return.

Two players, out of last Sunday's match with the St. Louis League All-Stars because of injuries will return to active duty, according to Manager Alec McNab. They are Jack Watson, center half, and Bill Lehman, who will be at left halfback. Eddie Begley, the latest star of the club, will be used at right half. Johnny Hamm will remain in goal, while all the other regulars will be at their old positions.

Officials of the Shamrock club have announced that Sparta, another strong Chicago eleven, will be brought here for a game, Dec.

Mississippi State Beats Florida, 7-0

By the Associated Press.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 5.—Mississippi State lashed out with the brilliant touchdown thrust today and ended a successful season by defeating a grimly fighting Florida team 7 to 0.

Ike Pickle, playing his final game as a Maroon back, snatched a 30-yard pass from Bernard Ward in the first period and sprinted 20 yards across the Florida goal line. Then he sent a placement between the uprights for the extra point.

Some 7000 spectators watched the struggle.

Florida threatened seriously only in the third period when Mayberry broke through the middle of the Mississippi State team for a 24-yard gain and started a drive that carried to the Maroon 19-yard line. Ward stopped the march by tagging a Florida pass on his own one-yard line.

SOCCER LEAGUE WILL RESUME PLAY TODAY

After two weeks of exhibition play, during which time the St. Louis Soccer League All-Stars were handed a pair of defeats by the Shamrocks, scoring four goals against nine for the former national champions, the circuit will return to its regular doubleheader schedule at West Side Park this afternoon. Play begins at 2 o'clock.

In the opener, the Town Criers meet the Burkes, last season's champions, while the Club Lotus oppose the Harts, now known as the North Side Optimists. Changes have been made in several of the team lineups:

HARVARD ANNOUNCES 1938 FOOTBALL PROGRAM

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 5.—Harvard resumes football relations with Cornell and opens a two-game series with the University of Chicago as part of a strenuous eight-game gridiron schedule for 1938 announced today by Harvard's committee on the regulation of athletic sports.

The only games which may be a let-up for the Crimson are the opener against Brown, Oct. 1, and the contest with University of Virginia's eleven, Nov. 12, a week before the battle with Yale at New Haven.

Harvard football teams have not met Cornell's since 1916 and have never played Chicago. In 1939, the Crimson will travel to Chicago, the third time the team has gone beyond the Alleghenies. Harvard met Oregon in a Rose Bowl game in 1920 and played Michigan at Ann Harbor in 1930.

The schedule: Oct. 1, Brown; Oct. 8, Cornell; Oct. 15, Army; Oct. 22, Dartmouth; Oct. 29, Princeton; Nov. 5, Chicago; Nov. 12, Virginia; Nov. 19, Yale.

Minnesota Gets Award.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 5.—Minnesota was awarded today the annual trophy of the National Italian-American Civic League as the "most outstanding university team in the country." Dr. D. M. Nigro, executive vice-president, announced. Louisiana was runner-up and the University of Washington took third place. Minnesota also won last year's trophy. Fred A. Ossana of Minneapolis is president of the league, which selected an "All Italian-American" team.

BOBBY JONES SUES FOR $53,000 REFUND IN U. S. INCOME TAX

By the Associated Press.

MACON, Ga., Dec. 5.—Bobby Jones Jr., former international golf champion, today sued Internal Revenue Collector W. E. Page for a refund of $53,338.84 paid in income taxes on receipts from his work in the movies.

Jones asked return of $27,396.80 paid the Federal Government in 1931 and $25,942.14 paid in 1933. The suit will be heard in the March term of Federal Court.

Money assigned to the Jones estate by Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., for moving picture shorts made by the golfer, is at issue.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue listed in the income for 1931 an item of $101,000 from Warner Brothers, the petition said. The golfer contended the sum was not paid to him.

In the second count Jones, an Atlanta lawyer, contested an item of $55,200 from Warner Brothers.

Jones contended that his real income for 1931 was $43,893.99 and that he paid a proper tax of $3395.44. He said that his real income for 1933 was $53,638.69 and that he paid a proper tax of $10,108.08.

Muny Basketball League Campaign Opens This Week

Seven teams, and possibly eight, will begin the twenty-third annual season in the Men's Municipal Basketball Association race at Sherman Park this week.

Recreation Superintendent Frank D. Sullivan declared last night that he had been informed a team would file entry Monday to round out the Tuesday night division and bring the total enrollment to eight, two more than were in action a year ago.

The Tuesday night program will open at 8 o'clock between the Young Men's Hebrew Association squad of Coach Harry Reget and Our Redeemer team. At 9 o'clock, the Bill Binigs of Dan Graville and the North Side Y. M. C. A. of Ray Sahders. Pat McCann has been appointed referee for both games.

On Wednesday night, the opening contest at 8 o'clock will be between the Polish Falcons of Ted Buczkowski and the Food Center Stores of W. Stanley Stuart and George Cameron. The 9 o'clock game will bring together the United Service Cars of W. H. Schubert and the Royal Hearts of Chester B. Franz.

Last year the Royal Hearts, in their first season of Muny competition, won the championship and represented the Muny in the National A. A. U. tourney at Denver, finally being put out by the ultimate champions, the Tulsa Oilers. Another Muny teams, the United Service Cars, won the Ozark A. A. U. tourney and also competed in the national.

Lorenzo Pack Knocks Out Texas Boxer

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Lorenzo Pack, promising young Detroit heavyweight, knocked out Jack Van Noy of Dallas, Tex., in 54 seconds of the fourth round of the eight-round feature bout at Rockland Palace tonight. A crowd of 3500 saw Pack pound his opponent around almost at will. Pack weighed 206 and Van Noy 205¼.

The Detroiter belted Van Noy freely through the second and third rounds, cutting him above the left eye and around the mouth before he ended the contest early in the fourth with a right to the jaw.

Yustin Sirutis, 206, Brooklyn, came back after being knocked down for a five count and knocked out Jack Rose, 199, New York, in 2:27 of the second round of the eight-round semifinal.

Dan Monroe, 189¾, Morristown, N. J., outpointed Tom Williams, 204¾, Chicago, in a six rounder. Tom Ponte, 191¼, Roseland, N. J., and Bill Merritt, 185¾, Brooklyn, fought four rounds to a draw.

Handball Final Today.

The final match for the championship of the Forest Park Handball Club's annual doubles tournament will be played this morning starting at 10 o'clock. Charles Whitworth and Hyman Goldstein play Glen Weidner and Harvey Leiberstein for the title.

TEN LEADING ICE SKATERS OF U. S. ARE INVITED TO ARENA CARNIVAL

Invitations were sent out yesterday by Ted Young, secretary of the Missouri Skating Association, to 10 of the leading ice skating stars of the country to compete in the annual Silver Skates at the Arena, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 27.

In addition to these individual bids, Young also mailed invitations to every skating association in the United States and Canada, asking each to send its outstanding star to the huge winter sports carnival.

Previously invitations had been sent to the four members of U. S. Olympic speed skating team, Eddie Schroeder, Del Lamb, Leo Friesinger and Bob Petersen.

If a majority of these stars accept the invitations, the event this year will not only be the most elaborate ever staged here, but will also embrace a cast of stars equalled indoors only by the North American championships.

The 10 individual skaters invited yesterday included five women blade artists and as many male stars. The feminine contingent, includes Maddy Horn of Oconomowoc, Wis., national outdoor women's champion; Dorothy Franey of St. Paul, Great Lakes women's champion; Edna Schwartz, Minneapolis women's champion; Eleanor Thiel, Chicago women's champion, and Rose Mary Brady, Detroit women's champion.

The men stars are Marvin Swanson of Minneapolis, national outdoor men's champion; Dick Beard of Minneapolis, national intermediate champion; Bud Wright, Detroit men's champion; Joe Bree, New York men's champion and leading Eastern skater, and Eugene Lamb of Milwaukee, Wisconsin men's champion.

The Board of Control of the Missouri Association, in charge of the carnival, is composed of Henry Kemper, president; E. J. Wallace, chairman; Young, Earl Reflow, manager of the carnival and Art Willow, Charles Gevecker and Edward Ottsen.

Gonzaga Trims Washington State Eleven, 13 to 6

By the Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 5.—Gonzaga's one-touchdown jinx over Washington State College held for the third successive year today as the Bulldogs snatched a 13-6 victory over the Pacific Coast Conference runner-up.

The game, on a splippery gridiron, was a brilliant duel between two great backs—George Karamantic, all-Coast fullback, for Gongaza, and Ed Goddard, Washington State's all-Coast quarterback.

Washington State scored first in the third period. Goddard whipped a bullet pass to Walt Zuger, substitute halfback, who dashed 30 yards untouched for a score. Rodger Dougherty's placekick was wide.

Karamantic sparked the Bulldog's 70-yard touchdown drive a few minutes later after recovering a Cougar fumble. He scored after a 27-yard dash to the three. His try-for-point failed.

Karamantic returned a punt from the W. S. C. 45 to the 29 in the fourth period. Ray Olsen's flashy running and passing gained the two-yard line, and on the fourth down, Dick Beauregard swept around end to score. Karamantic kicked the extra point.

The lineups:

WASH. STATE.	Pos.	GONZAGA.
Bates	L. E.	Brass
Scheyer	L. T.	Madden
Farman	L. G.	Habermann
Smith	C.	Siegele
Grimstead	R. G.	Caramanica
Anderson	R. T.	Kennedy
Terry	R. E.	Ely
Goddard	Q. B.	Higgins
Littlefield	L. H.	Olsen
Sienko	R. H.	McElvain
Dougherty	F. B.	Karamantic

Score by periods:

Wash. State	— —	0	0	6	0— 6
Gonzaga	— —	0	0	6	7—13

Washington State scoring: Touchdown, Zugar (sub for Sienko).
Gonzaga scoring: Touchdowns, Karamantic, Beauregard (sub for McElvain). Point after touchdown, Karamantic (placekick).

Mark Koenig Is Handed Release By N. Y. Giants

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.

By the Associated Press.

EDDIE BRANNICK, secretary of the New York Giants, announced today the Giants had given an unconditional release to Mark Koenig, utility infielder.

The Giants also sold Leo Marion outright to Durham, N. C. Marion, a first baseman, played with Richmond last season. Both Southern clubs are in the Piedmont League.

American Team Wins New York 6-Day Bike Race

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—For the first time since 1927, an all-American team won New York's six-day bicycle race, when Jimmy Walthour of New York and Al Crossley of Boston came to the front in the last hour tonight to take the sixty-first renewal of the Manhattan grind.

They tied with two other teams in point of distance travelled, but the point total of 849 they piled up in the sprints during the week, gave them the slight margin of victory.

Torchy Peden of Victoria, B. C., and his teammate, Bobby Thomas of Kenosha, Wis., were second, with a point total of 429. Also tied in mileage covered was the reconstructed team of Alvaro Georgetti of Italy and Gerard Debaets of Belgium, whose 370 points gave them third place.

Final standings:

Team.	Miles.	Laps.	Points.
Walthour-Crossley	—2499	7	849
Peden-Thomas	—2499	7	429
Georgetti-Debaets	—2499	7	370
Kilian-Vopel	—2499	6	1007
Olmo-Piemontesi	—2499	6	723
Pellenaars-Scho	—2499	6	719
Latourner-Guimbretier	—2499	6	445
Audy-Hill	—2499	5	379
Rodman-Yates	—2499	0	314
Ignat-Diot	—2498	0	414

Laps stolen during the last hour 2, total laps stolen 779, spills last hour 2, total spills 27. There were 41 lap penalties during the week.

W. Maryland Wins, 12-0, Over Maryland U.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5.—The football machine of Western Maryland College rolled down from the hills today, flattened the University of Maryland by a score of 12 to 0 and surged into the State championship in a game that had 15,000 fans in a continual uproar.

The passing powerhouse of the Green and Gold drove 70 yards for its first touchdown, with Cliff Lathrop plunging over for the score. Frank Sadowski scored the other from Maryland's one-yard line, where a pass interference penalty had placed the ball.

All the scoring came in the second period, but the play was vicious throughout. An unusual number of pass interceptions at crucial moments, especially in the final period, when there were four such plays in the danger zones, kept the crowd at fever pitch.

Maryland's offensive got under way at times, but the fighting Western Maryland line and an alert secondary defense stood off every threat. Maryland's All-Southern halfback, Bill Guckeyson, was completely covered. Western Maryland made 15 first downs to Maryland's 12.

Good Shooting in Arkansas.

FROM all reports received during the past week it is unfortunate indeed that hunters of Missouri can't suddenly become residents of Arkansas. The waterfowl season, which opened there at approximately the same time it closed in this state, seems destined to be one of the best in years for our southern neighbors.

The cold snap that hit Iowa and Missouri the last four days of our season drove the ducks into Arkansas in great flocks and very few nimrods missed their limits the first days out.

The Southern Illinois district seems to be having its share of good luck also.

Doves and quail seem to be very scarce in comparison to early expectations of Arkansas experts. The same difficulty is confronting those hunters that confronted Missourians during our season.

Summer pointed to nothing but an abundance of quail and a great year of upland shooting was expected. However, late fall, lack of frosts and brisk winds tending to keep the birds in the woods with escape made easy was the actual case.

The Hunting Cat.

In order to protect old birds as well as young, squirrels, rabbits and other small game, why not exercise an active open season to stray house cats? This ordinarily domesticated house pet, when allowed to roam about and obtain its food by fresh kills, becomes a top-ranking predator. Foxes, wild dogs and crows are mere amateurs compared to this slinking professional killer.

As a hunter and killer of small game the stray cat is relentless throughout 365 days of every year. Estimates by experts point to the fact that one such animal kills as much game as 100 hunters.

There have been numerous reports of these homeless cats being seen in the vicinity of the upper Meramec and in other districts in this vicinity.

Within the next few years there is no question but what, if Missourians allow the cats to have the run of the woods and game fields, they will be confronted with the same problems as Pennsylvania, Iowa, Michigan and other localities where hunters finally had to band together to do away with this type of predator.

25 States for Conservation.

Wildlife restoration and conservation was given a tremendous push last February when the North American Wildlife Conference was held in Washington, D. C. Since that date 25 states have definitely formed state-wide organizations for the promotion of better hunting and fishing conditions.

Missouri is one of the 15 states to have a definite plan in effect.

Of course, all details will not be worked out until Governor-elect Stark appoints his non-partisan committee, next summer, but the procedure of this committee is too well defined for many hitches to occur.

Illinois, Kansas, Indiana, Arkansas and Iowa are all in working order and before many more months elapse should have their plans perfected and thus assure the Mid-West of an excellent hunting preserve.

About Gun Cleaning.

Although many old-timers claim that, like a good briar pipe, your gun will do better when it is dirty, there comes a time when the trusty weapon must be taken down and cleaned if, for no other reason than to add anticipation to the rapidly approaching hunting season. That time is here, and, likewise, here are a few suggestions to those non-professional gunsmiths.

According to a recent conversation with Jack Peterson, a widely known professional who attended the National Skeet Championships here, there is no more danger of your gun rusting on the inside than on the out, if you stick to up-to-date ammunition.

Try Boiling Water.

In case you are one who does a minimum of hunting and are still using some old shells that have been resting in the dresser drawer for two or three years, the best and surest method of cleaning rust spots caused by the shells is to pour boiling water through the barrel.

But avoid getting water on the gun's action. The boiling water probably will heat the barrel sufficiently to dry of its own heat, but be sure that it is dry.

If you are one of those unfortunates who has allowed so much rust to accumulate that a wire brush is necessary, you must exert a maximum of care. First, select a good steel rod with revolving handle and a brush that fits your bore. Don't choose one simply because it is "tough" in appearance. Those usually take part of the barrel along with the rust. By far the best type of brush is one over which a gauze-like piece of bronze is placed. Don't resort to this type of cleaning unless it is absolutely necessary and only after other less severe methods have failed.

Use Oil Sparingly.

It might be well to add for the benefit of those who are prone to believe that in order for a piece of machinery to work well, it must be saturated in oil, that oil really attracts water, causing rust over a period of time. Also, it slows up the action considerably. Never place more than a drop of the finest gun oil on your action, and run the oil rag through the bore just once or twice.

The old idea that the BB size pellet was the only thing for geese has been pretty well exploded. Too few shot to make a pattern of any size and a heavy load, calling for a .10-gauge gun are the drawbacks of the BB. If you are an expert marksman using a .10-gauge Magnum gun with a two-ounce load you will be able to get the honker, but, according to Capt. Paul Curtis, "there are not over 12 men in the United States who can use the Magnum .10 to an advantage," so we mere average huntsmen had better stick to our light artillery.

Use No. 2 on Wild Turkey, etc.

For the .12-gauge use no pellet larger than the No. 2. These are good for geese, wild turkey, fox and other of the larger birds and animals that should be hunted with a shotgun.

Maurice Decker of Fur-Fish-Game is positive that he would never use any pellet larger than a three for ducks, and would use threes only in a .10-gauge. With such a combination you would be able to bring your bird down at 80 yards providing, of course, that you had the physical strength to swing the heavy weapon on your fast flying target.

No. 4 pellets are only for long range, 55 to 60 yards. No. 5 is the largest that should ordinarily be used in a .12-gauge for ducks, although they are not as ideal as the sixes. However, if you are shooting in a strong cross wind, they will not veer from the target so readily as a six. Sixes will not tear up the duck, or splinter any bones, unless you are right on it. For average shooting, from 25 to 40 yards, where 90 per cent of the shooting is done, you won't go wrong on sixes, according to Capt. C. E. Crossman.

An albino rabbit, a wild one not a tame one, was shot by John Roy, 7325 Virginia avenue, last week while hunting with Elmer DeLarber, 2021 Chippewa, near Olney (Mo.) in Lincoln County.

Roy came upon the rabbit in the woods and was so startled when he saw the white animal running away that he failed to shoot at it. He called to DeLarber and after he came up with the dogs, they set the dogs on his trail and easily brought him within shooting distance, Roy making the kill.

The rabbit was small and had the little ears of the wild rabbit. No one in that vicinity was known to have tame rabbits.

BIOGRAPHY OUTLASTS BANISH FEAR AT FAIR GROUNDS

SHOWS SPEED ON SOFT TRACK TO HOLD LEAD ALL THE WAY

Woodlander Is Third — Shatterproof Wins Fairmount Handicap With Thrilling Finish.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5.—Biography, owned by Norman Hernandez of New Orleans, made every post a winning one to take the mile and a sixteenth handicap that topped this afternoon's Fair Grounds program. Showing fine speed over the soft, slow track, Biography carried his 112 pounds cleverly to steal a long early lead and to have something left at the finish to hold R. T. Watts' Banish Fear safe.

Banish Fear had been in closest pursuit all the way. Woodlander, Biography's stable mate, came from far out of it to take third place, and Mrs. B. Franzheim's Silas was fourth.

The Handicap topped the best program since opening day and a large crowd attended. The Fairmount Handicap, sixth race on the card, carried a larger purse, but it was for two-year-olds and the aged event was accorded more attention.

The Fairmount Handicap was at six furlongs and it furnished a thrilling finish in which the filly Shatterproof, owned by Miss T. Letellier of New Orleans, came from behind in a sparkling effort to win her second race of the meeting. Joe Cowley had the mount and it was his second winner of the afternoon.

Outrun at Start of Race.

Shatterproof was outrun while Girl's Chance, Little Upset and Viajero dominated the running the first half mile. Little Upset raced Girl's Chance into the ground and moved into a clear lead as they straightened out in the stretch. Then Mrs. H. Torriente's Miss Marlboro from far back on the inside, passed Little Upset and looked the winner inside the last furlong. But Shatterproof rushed and was strongest. Palan, from the T. Marshall stable, held on with determination to be third.

Shatterproof paid $19.20 for $2.

High Diver, owned by O. H. Reed, accounted for the fourth race, which brought a field of eight platers to the post at a mile and 70 yards. Coming from behind under a well-timed ride by Cowley, High Diver ran over the leaders in the stretch and outstayed Snobeedo. Rutland was third. Sand Baby, favorite in the race, was moving up strong after half a mile, but broke down badly. High Diver paid $18.40 for $2.

Three-Horse Picture Finish.

A three-horse picture finish decided the third race, which was at six furlongs. Flying Justice, owned by Mrs. R. Rutledge and ridden by E. Deprang, got up in the last few strides to pass out Pennant Bearer, which had set the pace, and from out of the clouds came Dunfox to almost catch Flying Justice. Flying Justice was in the "field," which paid $6.20 for $2.

The second race, at a mile, was a scramble among a capacity field and Swap, which, owned by F. Weller and ridden by Ray Hightshoe, outstayed Spanish Art to win by a neck. Notice Me was third. The winner paid $6 for $2.

Crestonian, five-year-old mare owned by S. Workans and ridden by Leo Canfield, won the six-furlong opening event. Ladino was second and The Darb third.

BUDWEISERS TO BOWL IN DES MOINES TODAY

The Budweisers departed for Des Moines this morning to compete in the Midwest Bowling tournament in that city this afternoon. The Classic League, to which the Budweisers belong, will be idle today because of their absence.

Next Sunday, the Hermanns and the Silver Seals of the Classic League will go to Des Moines to take part in the same tourney. The Classic League will also be absent that day. All teams in the league will go to Indianapolis, Dec. 26, to take part in the Central States tournament.

CARL DANIEL ELECTED ALGONQUIN PRESIDENT

Carl P. Daniel was elected president of Algonquin Golf Club at the annual election of officers with Fred E. Briner named vice-president. Harry E. Davis was elected secretary and treasurer and Collins Thompson continued in office as executive vice-president.

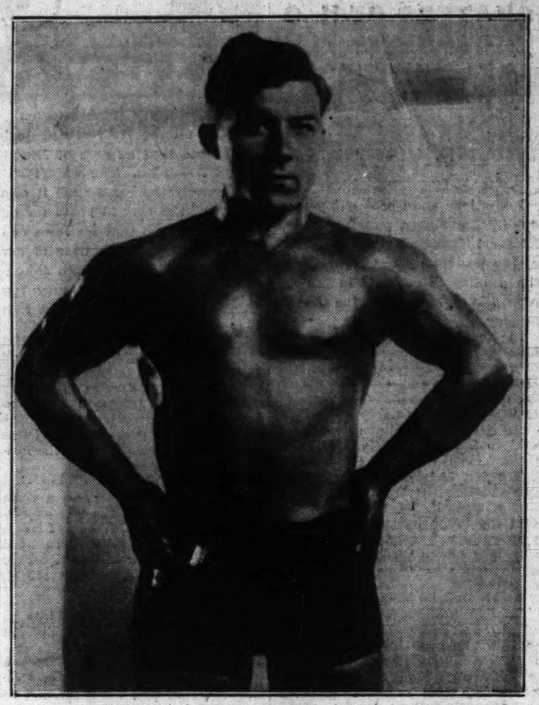

C. B. Singleton, Roscoe Anderson and P. A. Harris were were elected to the board of directors. William T. Deacon was re-elected to the board and Daniel also is on the board of directors.

Algonquin recently completed the equipping of the course with a watering system which is ready for operation.

SARNIA WINS CANADIAN FOOTBALL CROWN

TORONTO, Dec. 5.—The Sarnia Imperials withstood a great rally by the Ottawa Rough Riders in the closing minutes today and won, 26-20, in a game that decided the Eastern Canadian football championship.

A "Growing Concern"

Harold Morgan, North Side "Y" amateur wrestler and holder of the Missouri "Y" and Ozark A. A. U. championships, who will compete in the invitation tournament at North Side Dec. 11. Morgan, a normal light-heavyweight, is concerned about his weight. He is finding difficulty keeping under the 175-pound limit and is still growing. It may force him into the heavyweight division against his team-mate, Isadore Beilenson, weight 235 pounds.

Cleveland Wins Its Second Match In Rifle League

Cleveland won its second victory in the Greater St. Louis Junior Rifle Club League by defeating Ben Blewett, 677-668. John Burroughs and Webster Groves won their first matches to remain in a tie with Cleveland, neither having taken part in last week's matches. University City, victor in its first match, was idle this week and remains in a percentage tie with the other three with one victory and no defeat.

John Burroughs won the closest match of the season so far when it was awarded a victory over Country Day after the four-man teams had tied on points for the four position, prone, sitting, kneeling, and standing with 660 points each. John Burroughs had a better record in the standing position and so was given the victory.

Christian Brothers High defeated Western Military Academy, 643-594 to bring its average to .500 with one victory and one defeat.

The results:

Cleveland.	Total	Ben Blewett.	Total
Lenney	185	Bothman	173

Tie, but the match was awarded to John Burroughs since it had the highest team score in the standing position.

TULANE OR L. S. U. BASKET TEAM TO BE INVITED TO TOURNEY

NEW YORK.—An invitation to the international basketball tournament to be held at Havana during the Cuban National Sports Festival will be sent to either Tulane or Louisiana State University, Carlos L. Henriquez Jr., Cuban sports commissioner, announced.

Henriquez stated that there is a possibility that both southeastern conference teams would be invited to the National Sports Festival, which opens Dec. 26 and concludes on New Year's Day with an intersectional football game between two American teams.

Columbia University, Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League champion, the University of Mexico, Olympic third place victors, and the winner of the Cuban national championship, will compete in the tournament. If plans to include a third Latin-American team materialize, both Louisiana State and Tulane will be asked to the Cuban Sports Festival.

GOLFERS TO DISCUSS TRIP TO BILOXI

Members of the St. Louis District Golf Association will meet at Coronado Hotel Tuesday night to discuss a proposed winter trip to Biloxi, Miss.

Bill Taggart, president of the Association said it had been proposed to have a party of 25 or more go down there for a week of golf on the city's five courses.

State Champion Enters Amateur Wrestling Meet

One of the heaviest and strongest amateur wrestlers in this district, Isadore Beilenson of the North Side Y. M. C. A., has entered the invitational tournament to be held at North Side next Friday and Saturday.

Beilenson is State "Y" champion. Weighing 235 pounds, he usually is able to overpower his opponents with his strength and weight, although he has been defeated once this year. He lost to Bert Kleeman of Alton in the Ozark A. A. U. tournament. For the past three months, however, he has trained seriously and is seeking another match with Kleeman.

Among 13 other men already entered from the North Side "Y" is harold Morgan, also a champion. He won his first title in the 155-pound class of the Ozark A. A. U. tournament at the Boys' Club last year. He now weighs around 175 and is present champion of that division in State Y. M. C. A. and Ozark A. A. U. competition.

More than 100 entries are expected for the event. Three were received recently from South Side "Y." The entries will close next Wednesday, and word has been received that Hannibal, Mo., will send a team and several unattached wrestlers from Columbia will enter.

Another outstanding boy to represent North Side will be Elwood "Red" Roberts of Ferguson High School, who holds the St. Louis County and Missouri high school championships in the 126-pound class, and also the 1935 Ozark A. A. U. title in that class.

Entries to date are:

South Side Y. M. C. A.—Ivan Omerdan, 155 pounds; Stephen Cann, 135; Larry Horras, 155.

North Side Y. M. C. A.—Reavis Montrey, 126 pounds; Pat Moore, 118; Roy Scharfenberger, Vincent James, Kendeall Moore, 135; Wilfred Brueseke, William Sisco, 145; Howard Morgan, 155; Kenneth Bauer, Emil Uhly, John Hoffman, 165; Harold Morgan, 175; Larry Woldman and Isadore Beilenson, heavyweights.

WRESTLING AND BOXING WILL FEATURE MAYOR'S XMAS DINNER BENEFIT

Plans for Mayor Dickmann's benefit entertainment, that is to be held in the Convention Hall of the Municipal Auditorium on Tuesday, Dec. 15, under the direction of the Public Employes' Welfare Association, got under way yesterday.

One of the features of the entertainment will be a team composed of eight amateur boxers of the city selected from the Golden Gloves and Ozark A. A. U. champions to oppose a team selected from the Golden Gloves and A. A. U. district champions of Missouri and Illinois.

The firemen's 1937 wrestling championship tournament will have a place on the program with Otto "Whitey" Brexler of Engine Company No. 11, the 1936 champion, being the first to enter.

Stockham American Legion Post will be responsible for an outstanding professional wrestling match, possibly two, between well-known wrestlers.

Benny Kessler of the Ozark A. A. U. is co-operating with the committee in arranging the amateur portion of the program.

The entire proceeds are to be used to help defray the expenses of Mayor Dickmann's fourth annual Christmas dinner for the underprivileged.

Tickets will go on sale and ready for exchange on Thursday, Dec. 10, at the Municipal Auditorium ticket office.

Trains Away from Home.

Big league clubs often have trained at San Antonio, Tex., but the San Antonio team goes away from home, picking Laredo for 1937.

BOLD VENTURE, BREVITY AMONG NOMINEES FOR $50,000 STAKE

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 5. — Two thoroughbreds which battled to a hair line finish in the Kentucky Derby—Bold Venture, the winner, and Brevity—were among 79 nominations announced today for the $50,000 added Wiedner classic to be run at Hialeah Park March 6.

Joseph E. Widener, owner of Brevity and president of Hialeah and Belmont parks, has offered a challenge trophy for the classic, to be won twice for permanent possession.

Mantagna won the initial running of the Widener last year, for which only 55 were nominated.

Bold Venture is Morton L. Schwartz's only entry but Mrs. Emil Denemark of Chicago and De Witt Page of Bristol, Conn., have nominated four horses and Col. E. R. Bradley, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable, Millsdale Stable and F. A. Carreaud three each.

The Hirsch family is well represented. Mary Hirsch has entered No Sir and her brother, Buddy, has filed Columbiana. Their father, Max Hirsch, trains Bold Venture.

NORVAL BAPTIE AND GLADYS LAMB MAY BE IN SPORTS CARNIVAL

Norval Baptie and Gladys Lamb, long noted as one of the world's greatest figure skating teams, have been invited by Mrs. Nat S. Brown, to take part in the Welcome Inn winter sports carnival which will be staged at the Arena Jan. 14 and 15.

Mrs. Brown is chairman of the St. Louis society relief station and is arranging this as the third carnival under the supervision of Welcome Inn.

Invitations also were sent out yesterday to Eric Waite and Bobby Duffy, two of the most famous comedians and acrobats of the professional skating world.

Previously Mrs. Brown had sent a bid to Evelyn Chandler, for years the international figure skating champion, and hopes to receive an answer from her this week.

NEW 'ROUGHOUSER' TO BE ON COLISEUM CARD

The four wrestlers to be principals in the two finish bouts that feature Promoter Bill Schwabe's wrestling card at the Coliseum Thursday night are scheduled to arrive here Tuesday to go through two days of training prior to their matches.

The main event on the card brings together Eddie Newman, New York Hebrew, and Tommy O'Toole, Texas Irishman. It will be the first meeting of the two wrestlers and follows a series of challenges each has been hurling at the other.

The semi-windup features the new 'roughhouse menace" of the wrestling world, Tuffy Cleet of Detrait, in a finish match with George Sauer, brother of Ray Steele.

Three other preliminary bouts will be signed by Schwabe early this week.

Promoters Denied Writ Against Mrs. Jarrett

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Justice Valente of the Supreme Court today denied Samuel Snyder and Fred Waible, owners of the National Professional Swimming Tours, a temporary injunction to restrain Eleanor Holm Jarrett from appearing professionally under any other management.

The plaintiffs asserted they had discussions with Mrs. Jarrett in the presence of her husband, Art Jarrett, and her agent, Mark Hanna, or Oct. 15. They said she agreed to accept a minimum of $1250 a week, or 12½ per cent of the gross, if the percentage was higher than $1250. She was to receive also all traveling and hotel expenses and have control over the publicity concerning her appearances.

"Their claim is based upon an alleged contract, which is oral," Justice Valente ruled. "Defendant denies hte contract and shows that a written paper was submitted to her which she refused to sign. A temporary injunction based upon a negative covenant should not be granted where the claim is based upon an oral contract, the existence of which is disputed."

The temporary injunction was sought by Snyder and Waible pending trial of their suit for a permanent injunction and for damages they claim to have lost as the result of Mrs. Jarrett's refusal to join a group of Olympic swimmers on a professional tour.

BIG TEN TURNS DOWN PROPOSAL OF FINANCIAL AID TO ATHLETES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—The proposal to give financial aid to athletes of the Western Conference fell on deaf ears today.

Faculty representatives of the conference, after listening to an impassioned plea by Prof. Robert L. Reynolds of the University of Wisconsin for adoption of the "Reynolds Plan," rejected the proposal for a modified subsidization of athletes by a vote of 9 to 1.

The faculty representatives turned down the suggestion because it would be a definite violation of Big Ten rules. Prof. Reynolds, 35-year-old teacher of history at Wisconsin, had proposed that athletes of high scholastic attainment be rewarded with $400 yearly scholarships after attendance at a six-weeks summer institute, provided they maintained suitable grades. He presented his plan in two parts, the first involving the $400 scholarships and the second proposing the institute idea.

Violation of Rule.

The faculty representatives agreed that the proposal would violate definitely this long-standing rule:

"No scholarships, loans or remissions of tuition shall be awarded on the basis of athletic skill and no financial aid shall be given to students by individuals or organizations, alumni or otherwise, with the purpose of subsidizing as athletes or promoting the athletic success of a particular university."

It was the opinion of the representatives that both sections of the Reynolds plan were undesirable. The only vote cast favorably was by Dr. William F. Lorenz, Wisconsin factulty representative.

After turning down the plan, the faculty representatives tightened rules concerning football and loosened them as applied to baseball. They voted to stop the practice of inviting freshmen to report at the same time the varsity football candidates report for grid practice Sept. 10. They declared it was inconsistent with the freshmen spirit to organize and arrange for freshmen football candidates to report for football training prior to the regular registration of students as fixed by the regular institutional calendars. In some instances, they said, freshmen were invited to college Sept. 10, at which time varsity members report, and football equipment was issued to them for immediate training.

Baseball Bars Lowered.

The bars in regard to summer baseball were let down with the announcement that college students could particiapte in amateur games even where admission is charged, provided they played no more than three games a week and no more than 30 a season and only after they had obtained permission from their director of athletics and from their college baseball coach. The games, however, will be restricted to playing on teams participating in an organized community sports program.

The Big Ten representatives moved to restore the compensation paid basketball and football officials to its former standard of $75 for each football game and $50 for each basketball contest. Previously football officials have received $60 and basketball coaches $40.

The eligibility of two Illinois football players, Thomas Murphy and Dwight Roland was cleared. Murphy's standing was jeopardized by playing on a basketball team outside the university. Roland's case involved playing in a softball game to which admissions was charged.

The all-conference swimming meet will be held March 12-13 at Indiana University. Michigan's splashers will make the longest trip of any university. The Wolverines will meet the New York Athletic Club in New York Feb. 11 and stops two days later at Colgate University.

Five Games on "Y" Basketball League Schedule

Five games are carded in the Y. M. C. A.-Industrial Basketball League at the Armory Wednesday night. In division No. 1 the Foukes will meet Monsanto of East St. Louis and the Internationals will tackle the Wagners.

Games played last week in this division would indicate another battle for supremacy between Fouke and Wagner with both International and Monsanto much stronger than they were last year.

In Division No. 2 Monsanto of St. Louis, which won a comeback game last week from Stix, Baer & Fuller, 36 to 29, with the sharp shooting of G. Robinson, red-headed center who scored 21 out of the 36 points, will tackle Wabash club. Laclede-Christy will meet the Browns, and Wohl A. C., the defending champions, will meet Stix, Baer & Fuller. It is early to predict the strength of the teams in this division but last week's winners will undoubtedly find plenty of opposition from the other three teams, as most of these have improved over last season.

Scholarships for Athletes O K If Student Standing Is Kept Up, Vanderbilt Dean of Men Says

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 5.—Dr. Charles Madison Sarratt, dean of men at Vanderbilt University, said today colleges could avoid evils of recruiting and subsidizing athletes by demanding "serious and successful work" from players, in an article in the Birmingham News.

The article said "subsidizing may mean no more than finding somewhere help for a boy who needs it. The remedy for unwise recruiting "lies in the hands of the college faculties."

"If they never allow a boy to enter without the full requirement," it said, "or to remain in college without keeping up a creditable performance, there will be little harm done no matter who foots the boy's bills. . . .

"There are thousands of boys in American universities today doing splendid work who could not be there but for help of some sort—loans, scholarships or jobs. Many of them are athletes; many are not.

"At Vanderbilt we are continually asking our friends to contribute to loan funds and to establish scholarships to help worthy boys. Certainly the athlete has as much right to share in these as any other student.

"No college need worry about charges of recruiting and subsidizing if the faculty of that college hews to the line on the admission of every student before he enters and demands serious and successful work from him while he is in college.

"Beyond this there is little that the college can do."

MUNY FOOTBALL TITLE AT STAKE IN GAME TODAY

Two championships will be at stake this afternoon at the Public High Schools Stadium, when the Municipal Football Association elevens meet in a doubleheader.

The first game, between the Sublette Trojans and the Republican Trojans, will start at 1 o'clock and will determine the championship of the South Side Division. The second contest, at 2:45 o'clock, will involve the Food Center Stores and the Weber-Deibels, with the title of the Forest Park division at stake. There will be an admission charge of 25 cents.

Managers of the teams are expecting close, hard-fought battles. The two Trojans clubs are undefeated, untied and unscored upon with the exception of their only meeting last week when the result was a 0-0 deadlock. Brought together again through a Shaughnessy system of play-off, the Food Centers and Weber-Deibels have met three times this season, one result being a 6-6 tie, the other two block-kick victories for the Foods, 6-0 and 2-0.

CHAMPION LEWIS IS SUSPENDED BY DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA BOARD

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The District of Columbia Boxing Commission, through Secretary Harvey Miller, announced today that John Henry Lewis, world's light-heavyweight champion, had been suspended by commissions affiliated with the National Boxing Association.

The suspension stands until Lewis has satisfied his obligation to Promoter McDonald of Washington. The N. B. A. charged Lewis failed to keep an agreement with McDonald.

Democrats Will Stage Benefit Show on Tuesday

A benefit boxing and wrestling show to be held under the auspices of the Twenty-fourth Ward Regular Democratic organization at the Missouri Stables Arena, 5200 Berthold avenue, Tuesday evening, was announced yesterday by Eddie (Kid) Bandy, head of the committee of arrangements.

With all of the boxers and wrestlers donating their services, all of the proceeds will be used to purchase Christmas baskets for the poor of St. Louis. Last year the organization distributed over 1500 baskets and the club is hoping to double that number this year.

Among the boxers who have already signed to appear Tuesday are Davey Abad, Joe Ghnouly, Joey Parks, Pete Malone, Babe Davis and Tuffy Thompson. Tommy Sullivan, Harry Cook and other local referees, together with State Athletic Commission judges and timekeepers, will work free of charge. A special three-round bout between Bobby Abel and Young Rooney, 90-pound youngsters, will be an added attraction.

The four wrestling matches will bring together local mat artists who have been featured on local cards. Whitey Brexler, champion of the Fire Department, will take on Eddie Plesit, another member of the department. Another match will bring together Warren Bockwinkel, local truck driver, and Ray Eckert, a member of the club sponsoring the show. The third encounter pits Rollie Pickett against Tiger Klein. Mannie Margulis and Tuffy Truesdale will face each other in the first bout. Fred Voepel and Joe Sanderson will officiate in the mat bouts.

WARRENSBURG FIVE TO MEET STANFORD IN EXHIBITION CONTEST

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 5.—The Warrensburg (Mo.) Teachers College quintet and Stanford University will meet in the headline attraction of a one-night basketball carnival, Dec. 22, which will mark the debut of the cage sport in the new Kansas City Municipal Auditorium.

Plans for the event, which will be known as "Civic Night," were announced today by Dr. J. A. Reilly, Missouri Valley A. A. U. official, and George Goldman, auditorium manager, who are in charge of the event.

The Kansas City Missouri Valley A. A. U. basketball league entrant will play one-half of a game against Baker University and the second half against another school, probably Rockhurst, as another feature of the program.

ATHLETICS SELL OGLESBY TO KANSAS CITY TEAM

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—The Athletics announced tonight the outright sale for cash of Jim Oglesby, rookie first baseman, to the Kansas City Blues of the American Association.

Oglesby, star first-sacker of the Pacific Coast League in 1935, was drafted from Los Angeles for last season. In an early game in Boston last April his left hand was spiked. An ensuing infection forced him to retire for the year.

Twenty-eight years old, Oglesby batted .365 and fielded .994 in 1935.

Local observers said the sale indicated Connie Mack's satisfaction with Chubby Dean, former Duke University athlete, who finished the 1936 season at first base for the A's.

BRIDGES, TIGER HURLER, ON WAY SOUTH TO BEGIN EARLY TRAINING

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 5.—Ace tie Tommy Bridges, strikeout king of the American League, headed for Florida today to begin conditioning himself for next season which he believes will see the Detroit Tigers return to supremacy.

His comeback predictions, he said, are based on the 'return to active duty of Manager Mickey Cochrane and Hank Greenberg, first string catcher and first baseman.

"The reappearance of these two stars," the modest Tennessee hurler explained, "who were injured last season should put us back where we started.

"I think we'll be able to give the Yankees all they're asking for.

"Frankly, I believe the Detroit team of 1935 could have beaten out the Yankee club of this past year. We couldn't match their hitting, of course, but I think we were too well balanced for them."

Bridges, accompanied by his wife and baby, will go to Lakeland, Fla., to start getting his arm in shape for what he hopes will be another top-notch season. He was slow getting into condition last spring and got a late start in the league campaign.

But when his true form returned Bridges, weighing about 155 pounds fed his baffling curves and speed to one and all with consistent success, winding up with 23 victories and the most strikeouts in the league.

Greenberg, the slugging first baseman, and Cochrane, sparkplug of the Tigers, were out virtually all of last season, robbing the club of much of its offensive punch and fire.

The Tigers are to report at Lakeland, March 7.

Siebert Won Batting Honors In A. A. Playoffs

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Dick Siebert, Indianapolis first baseman, won batting honors for the American Association playoffs with an average of .500 in 10 games, official circuit statistics showed today.

The Indians won five and lost five games in the series captured by the Milwaukee Brewers. Siebert got 20 hits in 40 trips to the plate, six of them doubles. He struck out only once.

George Detore of the Brewers also hit .500, but got into only six games and was at bat but 10 times. Bob Boken, St. Paul, batted .476 in five games and Oscar (Ox) Eckhardt of Indianapolis had an average of .385 in 10 contests.

The club batting title was won by Indianapolis with a mark of .311, the Indianan pounding out 109 hits in 360 trips. The Brewers finished second with a team average of .303. In team fielding, Kansas City, which won no games in four starts, topped the four clubs with a mark of .967.

Luke Hamlin of Milwaukee and Vance Page of Indianapolis topped playoff hurlers, each holding a record of three victories and no defeats. Clyde Hatter, Milwaukee, won two games and lost none, as did Art Heving, also of the Brewers.

Go in for More Color.

American Association baseball clubs will go in for more color next year. The clubs will use these colors in their uniforms: Columbus, cardinal red; Indianapolis, scarlet; Kansas City, sky blue; Louisville, green; Milwaukee, maroon; Minneapolis, royal blue; St. Paul, orange and Toledo, black.

Josephine Lamy Makes Her Bow At Dinner Dance

THE blue of the sky and the sapphire of the sea combined with snow white and pastel blue smilax were employed as a decorative theme for the debut dinner dance for Miss Josephine Lamy at the St. Louis Woman's Club last night. Miss Lamy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Oscar Lamy, 1 Forest Ridge.

More than 300 guests dined beneath an azure draped ceiling secured by heavy garlands of chalk white foliage extending the length of the Colonial dining room. The east wall was concealed by a mural showing a balcony overlooking the sea, where freecy clouds were reflected in sea-blue water. Great Grecian urns lined the balcony. These painted pedestal vases, an important part of the picture, were cleverly cut out at the top to hold large clusters of fresh snow flake chrysanthemums. At each side of the long room a series of white fluted pillars—lighted from within—was topped by pale blue smilax and entwined by more of the tinted vines. The ceiling high triple mirrors, at the south of the room, were deeply framed by giant white chrysanthemums, opaque bridal wreath tendrils with a touch of the blue smilax. At each side of the mirrors stood stately dead white woodwardia fern trees.

The debutantes and their escorts, numbering 100, were seated with the guest of honor at a table arranged in three large ovals connected by two long narrow tables. The ovals were centered by solid circles of white chrysanthemums, white snapdragon and pompons from which grew tall rose trees bursting into more than 500 white blooms. Between the rose trees were bouquets of white chrysanthemums and snapdragon. The same white flowers were used to decorate the tables seating the remainder of the guests. White tapers flickering in silver candelabra cast a subdued glow over the scene.

Mr. and Mrs. Lamy, their daughter and her out-of-town guests, Miss Helen Sewell, Albany, N. Y., and Miss Sue Crawford, Chicago, with whom she attended Sacred Heart Convent, Noroton, Conn., received in the lounge. They stood before the mantel which was covered with yellow roses against greenery. The reception rooms of the club were decorated with many baskets and bouquets sent the debutante.

Miss Lamy wore a Vionnet gown of pale blue slipper satin designed with a low, square neckline and the new puffed butterfly sleeves. The wide skirt fell from the slim bodice into stiff folds, sweeping into a train. She carried an armful of white lilacs. Mrs. Lamy wore pink orchid satin fashioned with a V-neckline and draped over the shoulder into rhinestone rings. A similar ring fastened the belt and the fitted skirt terminated in a train. She wore white orchids arranged in a shoulder corsage. Miss Sewell was gowned in white brocade and Miss Crawford was in a gown of pale green and silver brocade. Both wore corsages of purple orchids.

Two orchestras were engaged for the party. During dinner, strolling players entertained the guests and the orchestra played and sang a song composed in honor of the debutante. Dancing in the ballroom followed dinner. Here woodwardia ferns were banked about the orchestra stand and a profusion of greenery decorated the room. The guests returned to the dining room for breakfast at 3:30 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Lamy entertained 50 guests at a large table. Their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Davis Gunter and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lamy, were at other tables with groups of their close friends.

The dinner dance was preceded by a cocktail party given by Dr. and Mrs. Louis Anthony Reuter for debutante niece, Miss Emma Lucy Stuever, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Charles A. Stuever, 7018 Lindell boulevard. A hundred guests were present.

Miss Lamy received her education at convents conducted by the nuns of the Sacred Heart. She attended Villa Duchesne, St. Louis; Manhattanville College, New York, and was graduated from the Sacret Heart Convent, Noroton, Conn. Last winter she traveled abroad with Miss Susan Thompson, Miss Ahden Knight, Miss Florence Fleishel and Miss Stuever, debutantes, under the chaperonage of Mrs. Atwell T. Lincoln. She was a maid at the Veiled Prophet ball early in the season and previous to her formal debut has been the guest of honor at several social affairs.

Carroll Taussig To Make Debut at Party Tonight

"EARLY to bed, early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise," although scarcely a debutante's favorite adage, will provide the theme for the debut party to be given tonight by Mr. and Mrs. Garfield J. Taussig for their daughter, Miss Carroll Wright Taussig, at the University Club. In keeping with the practice of ending parties early on week nights, midnight will be the closing time for this supper dance.

Guests, invited for 7 o'clock, will be received in the hall outside the large dining room by Mr. and Mrs. Taussig, Miss Taussig, her two aunts, Miss Bella and Miss Charlotte Taussig, and an uncle, J. Clarence Taussig.

The dining room, decorated to conform to the famous old proverb, will be arranged with large tables for 10 persons, each table holding a centerpiece of autumn leaves, in which little owls will be perched. Scattered among the leaves will be small gold mesh bags, containing gold-covered chocolate dollars.

Miss Taussig will wear a black taffeta dress, made on bouffant lines, and ornamented with large gold dots. Mrs. Taussig is also wearing black, her dress being made of crepe with a beaded lace top. Her flowers will be gardenias.

The debutantes and their escorts, numbering about 100, will dance to an orchestra seated in front of the east wall. In the small dining room, Mr. and Mrs. Taussig will entertain, in addition to Mr. Taussig's two sisters and brother, Mrs. John A. Haskell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coit Day, Dr. and Mrs. James Archer O'Reilly, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Gable, Mrs. George Ryan and James Taussig Jr.

Junior League Lecture.

"Van Gogh and His Period" is the subject of the lecture to be given by Walter Pach tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the Junior League clubrooms, 4932 Maryland avenue. Recently appointed to teach painting at Columbia University in New York, Mr. Pack has lectured at many of the principle museums and colleges in the United States. Several of his own paintings are hanging in American museums and his murals have contributed to the new movement in fresco. He is the author of books on modern painting and this year he has published two books on Van Gogh.

Mahaffeys Give Gay Tyrol Party For Debutantes

ONE HUNDRED AND TEN Tyrolese, in leather breeches and feathered hats or gaudy flowered aprons and peasant frocks, slid (literally, down "Die Rodelbahn," a sled slide) into "Mahaffenhaus," the home of Birch Oliver Mahaffey, 9 Portland place, Friday night. The occasion was a debutante "Saengerfest" given by Mr. Mahaffey's elder daughters, "Frauleins Katrina und Adelheid," for a younger daughter, Miss Betsy; Miss Josie Conant, Miss Grizelda Polk and Miss Nancy Bascom.

Snow-capped Alps rose in cardboard majesty back of the white satin-covered staircase down which snow sifted from the ceiling onto bare fir trees lining the large reception hall. Doors opened wide past the padded end of the ski landing, through wintry blue walls over which snow fell softly from icy friezes above, into the rooms of a mountain tavern.

One door admitted to "Das Restaurant," which in reality rambled all over the house, the guests dining on steps and floors as well as from tables covered with red and white checked gingham in library and dining room. Food was served from a long buffet heavy with roast pig, sausages and red cabbage, German cheeses and kohlrabi and potatoes prepared in Austrian fashion, with apfelstrudel and custards for dessert. Waitresses in Tyrolean peasant costumes carried trays of drinks to the diners.

Another sign on a snowy poster proclaimed the hall an Eisbahn, or skating rink, and another, swinging in a doorway from a tall bracket, pointed the way to "Die Gastwirtschaft," or bar, where fascinated revelers watched beer streaming into tall steins from an electrically controlled keg without benefit of spigot.

No sooner was dinner over than guests, attracted by a costumed Bavarian orchestra playing Tyrolean

Anne Woolsey Is Married to E. L. Pearce Jr.

MISS Anne Beck Woolsey and Eugene Lovick Pearce Jr. of Atlanta, Ga., were married late yesterday afternoon by the Rev. Dr. Karl Morgan Block, assisted by the bridegroom's stepfather, the Rev. Dr. Luther O. Bricker, at the Church of St. Michael and St. George, of which Dr. Block is rector. The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ross Arlington Woolsey, at whose home, 6350 Waterman avenue, a small reception was held after the wedding. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Luther O. Bricker of Atlanta and Miami, Fla., and of Eugene Lovick Pearce of Clearwater, Fla.

Elaborate decorations of woodwardia fern, in which many candles stood, filled the chancel, and clusters of Easter lilies marked the chancel steps and adorned the altar itself. Thick candles, lighting alternate pews, formed an illuminated aisle through which the large wedding party walked to the altar.

Shades of copper and bronze predominated in the costumes of the bride's attendants. The yellow bronze worn by Miss Margaret Beck of Dallas, Tex., maid of honor, harmonized with the coppery tones of the bridesmaids' dresses and their bouquets of shaggy autumn-toned chrysanthemums mixed with pompons. The gowns were of slipper satin, made with square necklines, short, puffed sleeves, and long skirts flaring into demi-trains. Their hair was covered by Juliet caps bordered with stiff wimple veils. The coppery-gowned bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Hunkins Cave, Miss Dorothy Leggett, Miss Mary Marshall Metcalfe and Mrs. George Norris Henson, all of St. Louis; Mrs. William Alden Little of Chicago, and Mrs. W. Duncan Owens of Miami Beach, Fla., the bridegroom's sister.

The bride, who entered the church on Dr. Woolsey's arm, was gowned in ivory wedding satin, an empire model with distinctive long sleeves quilted at the top to a square broad shoulder effect with tiny seed pearls. The high neck was tightened into a band at her throat, where she wore the bridegroom's gift, a diamond brooch. The long skirt, flaring into a four-yard train, was overlaid with illusion net arranged from a coronet of seed pearls to match the sleeve trimming. A face veil fell to her shoulders. She carried an armful of white lilacs.

Mrs. Woolsey's costume was flesh-tinted and gold applique lace with a brown skirt and accessories, with which she wore brown orchids. The bridegroom's mother was in sapphire blue velvet and a hat of the material, and her flowers were purple orchids.

Rhodes Perdue of Atlanta was best man for his brother. Ross Arlington Woolsey Jr., the bride's brother, and Mr. Henson of St. Louis; Sam Dorsey, James A. Robinson Jr., Mack Tharpe and Knowles Davis, all of Atlanta; Dr. W. Duncan Owens, the bridegroom's brother-in-law of Miami Beach, and James E. Wall Jr. of Tampa, Fla., were ushers.

A canvas marquee inclosed the porch to provide additional entertaining space for the reception of guests. Smilax hung in tendrils in the enclosure and through the lower floor of the house. Dr. and Mrs. Woolsey and Dr. and Mrs. Bricker stood with the bridal party in front of the fireplace at one end of the long living room, where snapdragon was banked in palms and ferns.

Later the wedding party sat at dinner at a long table in the dining room on which all white pompons and bouvardia were combined with other blossoms in angel dishes set on mirror centerpieces.

Guests from out-of-town, in addition to the bridegroom's parents included Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Perdue, wives of the bride grooms' attendants; James O. Lewis Jr. of Atlanta; Mrs. Catherine Beck Jones, the bride's cousin, of Chestertown, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. William S. Walker of Ottowa, Ill., Mrs. Woolsey's uncle and aunt, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Strupper, the bridegroom's uncle and aunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearce will sail Thursday from New York on a Caribbean cruise, and will reside in Atlanta.

After graduation from Mary Institute, the bride spent a winter in Europe with Mrs. Atwell T. Lincoln, and attended Smith College for a year. In the fall of 1934 she made her debut at a reception and served as maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball.

Mr. Pearce is a graduate of the Asheville (N. C.) School for Boys, and Yale, class of 1929.

Anna Forrestal Becomes Bride of J. G. Conzelman

THE marriage of Miss Anna Forrestal, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Forrestal, and James G. Conzelman, head football coach of Washington University, took place yesterday morning in St. Ferdinand's Church, Florissant. Father William Bowdern, S. J., performed the ceremony preceding 9 o'clock mass, with the bride's aunt, Miss Anne Brennan, with whom she has made her home at 3633 Cook avenue, and the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Margaret Conzelman, 7270 Lindell boulevard, as the only guests.

The bride wore a gray wool ensemble trimmed with krimmer, a long krimmer fur coat and a gray antelope hat, and blue accessories. Her flowers were orchids, arranged as a shoulder corsage.

Following the ceremony the families were invited to Miss Brennan's home informally to greet the bridal pair before they left for a short visit in Chicago. Honeymoon plans have been delayed until the Christmas holidays. They will live at the Chester apartments, 4943 Lindell boulevard. Both are alumni of Washington University.

Mahaffeys Give Gay Tyrol Party For Debutantes

airs in the drawing room, began to dance.

They started quietly enough, with ballroom numbers, the smooth rhythm interrupted only by modest hopping, but later turned to strenuous German folk dances. Spectators sat on the floor, on camp chairs around the room, or swayed in long groups on the window ledges as a pre-arranged "Schuhplattler" was danced by Miss Miss Betsy Mahaffey, her sister, Miss Adelaide, Miss Grizelda Polk, her brother, William Julius Polk Jr., and Robert Smith, with their amateur instructors—Leo Bierling and William Koetteritz, Bavarians living in St. Louis.

Then, in response to applause, the teachers danced a "finger-haken" which looked like a tug of war for the favor of a girl, one of their friends, and the "Steirer Dance," in which there is a good deal of face slapping.

The entire company soon gained courage for hitherto untried dances and floors quivered and chandeliers shook with the vibrations.

The mood for folk songs grew, and "Du du liegst mir in herzen" was followed by "Prosit," sung to swinging steins, and "Schnitzelbank," the illustrated chart held high by stalwart peasants.

Tourists and contemporary natives mingled with medieval travelers and feudal lords and ladies, who went at intervals to the hall to demonstrate their prowess in sliding or to sing popular German ballads. Many of the costumes had been bought in the Tyrol by their weirers and thus were authentic in every detail. Miss Polk's, for instance, and Miss Nancy Bascom's, were brought back last year when they traveled abroad with Mrs. William Julius Polk. Miss Bascom's frock of blue, with black banding, was worn with a hand-embroidered basque and tiny hat trimmed with broad streamers and forget-me-nots of the sort worn to religious services. Miss Polk's was blue brocade, with a gaily flowered apron edged in gilt braid, and a tall embroidered coronet tied on with pale blue ribbon.

Some, who did not take their costuming seriously, wore amusing outfits, such as Dan Schlafly's—a long flannel nightshirt with a sign, "Tyrolean Night Scene," hung on the back. Others were pretty peasants, some with their braids hanging over stiff organdy blouses, below which fell striped aprons over red skirts. Jackets of homespun, worn by most of the men, topped leather shorts held up by elaborately embroidered suspenders joined in front by leather. Peaked Tyrolean hats were by all odds the favorite headgear. All had feather ornaments, some the long turkey feather significant of unusual accomplishment.

Garneau Weld went as a mountain climber, with warm coat and a coil of heavy rope as "props," while Mrs. Weld was a Tyrolean boy. Dr. and Mrs. I. D. Kelley, uncle and aunt of the hostesses, were tourists —Mrs. Kelley in complete skiing woolens. Miss Mahaffey herself changed during the evening from a well dressed Austrian girl, with velvet basque and apron, to a boy, for comfort in dancing.

There were several out-of-town guests. Miss Betty Bole of Tulsa, Ok., arrived yesterday to visit Miss Mahaffey. Miss Helene Lee, who came for Miss Miquette Magnus' debut party a week ago, was there, as were Miss Helen Sewell of Albany, N .Y., and Miss Sue Crawford of Chicago, who are visiting Miss Josephine Lamy.

Cleverly written acceptances to the party, many of them in German, and some sent by telegraph, were displayed on a large screen in the library.

Thanksgiving Services For Americans Abroad

PARIS, Nov. 24.

PLANS have been made by American clubs and organizations in the various capitals for special church services and dinners for the Thanksgiving celebration.

In Paris a special service will be given Thursday morning at the Madeleine. Cardinal Verdier, Archbishop of Paris, has invited Americans of all denominations to attend this service, which has become a yearly custom since the war.

The American Legion will have its Thanksgiving dinner at the Hotel Continental.

The American Society in London have planned a dinner and ball, to be given at the Dorchester Hotel. Ambassador Robert Worth Bingham, who is honorary chairman, will preside, with Lincoln Ellsworth, the noted Polar explorer, as honorary guest. The decorations and menu follow along traditional Thanksgiving lines.

In Berlin, the American Women's Club will have a Thanksgiving party for members and their families.

Nelson Dean Jay returned to Paris yesterday, having crossed from America on the Queen Mary. He and Mrs. Jay are at their apartment on Avenue d'Iena.

Billy and Caroline Taylor, young grandchildren of Mrs. Rufus Lackland Taylor, are at school at the Chateau de Bures at Orgeval, near Paris. Their mother, Mrs. Edmond Taylor, is in America on a short visit.

Mrs. Charles A. Madill and her daughter, Miss Delphine, returned to Paris last Friday from London, where they had been visiting Mrs. Madill's daughter and son-in-law, Lieutenant-Commander and Mrs. Henry S. Jerome. The Jeromes left last Friday for South Africa where Commander Jerome will be stationed for the next three years.

Mrs. Madill's sister-in-law, the Marquise de Mattei, formerly Miss Georgette Madill, is expected in Paris the first part of December.

Outdoor Party Today at F. B. Eiseman Home

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK B. EISEMAN, 6463 Cecil avenue, and their daughter, Miss Eleanor, will entertain 40 debutantes and their escorts at an outdoor party today at their country home, Lagniappe, near Antonia, Mo., in honor of Miss Marjorie McCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ross McCarthy, and Miss Betty Hitchcock, daughter of George C. Hitchcock. The guests have been invited for 1 o'clock, at which time luncheon will be served buffet style.

In the afternoon, the guests will ride horseback, hike and play out-

Beahn-Forrest Wedding Invitations Are Issued

INVITATIONS are in the mail for the wedding of Miss Helen Forrest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Forrest, 1805 South Spring avenue, and Francis J. Beahn, son of Vincent Beahn of Philadelphia. The ceremony will take place at 9 o'clock the morning of Dec. 28 at St. Margaret's Church, Father Sullivan officiating, and a wedding breakfast will be served afterward in the French room of the Coronado Hotel.

Miss Forrest will be attended by her cousin, Miss Audrey Forrest, as maid of honor; by Miss Rose Marie Gertken as junior bridesmaid, and by Mrs. George Hayes Springmeyer as matron of honor. Mr. Beahn has chosen his brother, John, as best man, and Eugene B. Collins and Louis R. Padberg as groomsmen.

After the breakfast, Mr. Beahn and his bride will go by airplane to New Orleans and on their return will live temporarily with the bridegroom's uncle, John F. McFadden of the Chase apartments, with whom Mr. Beahn has been making his home.

Miss Forrest is a graduate of Loretto Academy and attended the Educational School of St. Louis University. Her fiance attended the University of Pennsylvania and St. Louis University.

Last night Mrs. Springmeyer gave a lingerie shower for the bride-elect at her home, 5803 Cabanne avenue.

Club to Hear Talk on Hindu Mysticism

Mary Harford and F. Burton Sawyer To Wed Dec. 28

MISS MARY HARFORD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Marvin Harford, 440 Belleview avenue, Webster Groves, has announced plans for her wedding to Frederick Burton Sawyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Sawyer, 440 West Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves. The ceremony will be performed Monday evening, Dec. 28, at 8:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. David M. Skilling of the First Presbyterian Church of Webster Groves. Only members of the two families, including Dr. and Mrs. Carl Harford of New York, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, and a few intimate friends will be present.

Miss Harford has chosen Miss Irene Honig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis O. Honig, 645 Clark avenue, Webster Groves, as maid of honor and Mrs. Carl Harford as matron of honor. Richard Bromeyer will return from the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., to be Mr. Sawyer's best man. His other groomsman has not been chosen.

Pre-wedding parties for the prospective bride began yesterday when Miss Lois Simcoke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Simcoke, 342 Sylvester avenue, honored her at a luncheon and shower. The guests were Miss Eloise Megginson, Miss Edna Birge, Mrs. Ralph Barksdale, Mrs. Fullerton Luedde, Mrs. George Bradbury, Miss Irene Honig, Miss Jane Patterson, Miss Jane Scholz, Mrs. William Henry Dittmann and Miss Mary Evelyn Fox. Mrs. Myron Dayton King of Pittsfield, Ill., will compliment her at a luncheon Wednesday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Thomas F. Steele, 123 West Jackson road, and Miss Fox will give a luncheon in her honor next Saturday at her home, 226 South Elm avenue. Another party, the date for which has not been set, will be given by Miss Ruth Rosborough, 423 Park road.

Season Opens At Florida Resorts

By the Associated Press.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 5.—THE Breakers Hotel opened informally Tuesday. For many years Mr. and Mrs. Otto Stahl of Stamford, Con., had been the first to register. Although present for the opening, they were preceded this season by Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. McQueston of Boston.

The Sea Spray Beach Club is proving popular. The Bath and Tennis Club, which has been receiving members informally for some time, celebrated its official opening Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock of Chicago are among the late arrivals. Mrs. McKinlock is president of the Garden Club, which sponsors Palm Beach's famous flower show held each February in the Poinciana Conservatory. Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury are spending a few days aboard their yacht, Nedeva. With them are Miss Beatrice English and Miss Margaret Conell of Philadelphia. Joseph P. Kennedy is at his Ocean boulevard villa. Mrs. Kennedy and the children will arrive for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry, Irvington-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., will occupy the villa of Mrs. Arthur Somers Roche this season, Mrs. Roche having leased a house in Major alley. Mr. Perry is well known as a publisher in New York and Florida. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth G. Smith of Chicago have opened Pino Torcido on Via Del Mar for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. William Russel Huntley of Buffalo are at Jungle Nest. John Barry Ryan Jr. of New York will be joined soon by Mrs. Ryan. Mr. and Mrs. Douglas W. Paige of New York have joined the house party of Mrs. Margaret Emerson of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar P. Lawson of Southport, Conn., are here on their yacht, Montego. Before her marriage in October, Mrs. Lawson was Ann Orr McNeil, formerly the wife of Archibald McNeil of Bridgeport. As Ann Orr she was popular in musical comedy. Clifford Vail Brokaw of New York has opened his Ocean boulevard villa, which was transformed last summer from Spanish to tropical colonial.

Arthur Hammerstein, New York impresario, is here and will be joined soon by his wife and daughter, Carol. In the days of silent movies, Mrs. Hammerstein was known as Dorothy Dalton.

Small informal parties have enlivened the week. Mrs. Nathan D. Bill of Springfield, Mass., entertained 12 at luncheon. Mrs. Bernard Kroger of Cincinnati had guests for luncheon and bridge. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. King of New York gave a small dinner. Dr. Edmund Leroy Dow entertained with a stag luncheon, followed by cards, at Casa Pequena.

Many attended the opening tea of the Society of the Four Arts Saturday afternoon. In the receiving line were Mrs. Frederick Johnson of New York (Mary Mackinnon, society portrait painter), Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. McCarthy of Philadelphia, Mr. C. Percival Dietch, Old Saybrook, Conn., and William Greene of New York.

Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, chairman of the Board of Directors, has recently arrived from Easthampton and is at Quinta Marina.

Miss Virginia D'Arcy's Engagement Announced

THE engagement of Miss Virginia M. D'Arcy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry D'Arcy, 7250 Lindell boulevard, and Dr. Robert A. Harris Jr. was announced at a dinner given last night by Mr. and Mrs. D'Arcy for the immediate families.

Miss D'Arcy is a graduate of St. Joseph's Academy of Fontbonne College. The bridegroom-elect is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert A. Harris, 7200 Lindell boulevard, and a graduate of Washington University School of Dentistry and the Forsythe Dental Infirmary, Boston, Mass. Plans for the wedding are indefinite.

Lucile Gustafson and Richard Coe Wed At Webster Groves

MISS LUCILE GUSTAFSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Ernest Gustafson, 441 Newport avenue, Webster Groves, and Richard Edward Coe, son of Mrs. Edith C. Coe, 5834 Westminster avenue, and Harrie F. Coe, 3514 Dodier avenue, were married yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the First Presbyterian Church of Webster Groves. The Rev. Dr. David M. Skilling performed the ceremony. A semi-circle of greenery, at the center of which was a single large basket of white chrysanthemums flanked on either side by seven-branched candelabra, decorated the chancel.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white suame crepe made with an Empire waistline and full skirt which swept into a train. The bodice, buttoned down the back with covered buttons, had a square neckline edged with an upstanding collar of delicate lace and long tight sleeves, gathered into the armhole. Three gardenias placed high above her forehead held her knee-length veil in place, and her bouquet was also fashioned of gardenias. The maid of honor, Miss Jean Augusta Konetzky, 7537 Stanford avenue, University City, wore a period dress of white moire with a bouffant skirt and tight-fitting bodice fashioned with a heart-shaped neckline and full puffed sleeves. Silver lame bows ornamented the front of the gown and her white moire Mary Queen of Scots bonnet. She carried a large bouquet of red poinsettias tied with silver ribbon. Mrs. Gustafson's costume was of black crepe and Mrs. Coe's of wine-colored velvet, with which they wore corsages of gardenias.

The best man was L. G. Fink Jr., and his ushers were Thomas Hartrich and Karl E. Gustafson Jr. and Wayne Gustafson, brothers of the bride.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, after which the pair departed for Memphis, Tenn., to live. Out-of-town guests at the wedding included the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert March of Chicago.

George Mechalson in Recital.

Theta Chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon, National Musical Sorority, will present George Mechalson, baritone, in a recital tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. C. S. Gentry, 7109 Washington boulevard. The recital is open to members and guests. Mr. Mechalson, baritone of Pilgrim Congregational Church and director of music in the University City High School, will give a program consisting of songs by Grieg and Sinding in their native tongue and folk songs of Scandinavian countries.

Jane Quinn Becomes Bride of Englishman

THE wedding of Miss Jane Quinn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Quinn, 5511 Easton avenue, and Capt. M. P. Conroy of the Indian Medical Service took place Oct. 17 at a nuptial high mass at Westminster Cathedral in London. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Alec Robertson, assisted by the bridegroom's cousins, the Rev. Michael Pius, prior of the Carmelite Order in Gerards Cross, Buckhamshire, and the Rev. Thomas Kieran, prior of the Carmelite Order in Church street, Kensington, London.

Following the ceremony Capt. and Mrs. Conroy left for a wedding trip in Paris and sailed from Marseilles for India, where he is stationed.

Mrs. Conroy is a graduate of the Academy of the Visitation here. Two years ago she visited relatives in Boston, and at that time met Capt. Quinn. She left St. Louis Sept. 12 for England, where she was the guest of Col. and Mrs. Leonard Wright, brother-in-law and sister of Capt. Conroy at Farnham, Surrey. The marriage took place on the arrival of Capt. Conroy from India.

Washington Parties and Christmas Plans

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.

CAPT. and Mme. Boege Rohde are timing their sailing for Denmark in order to arrive in Copenhagen for Christmas.

Since their marriage, Capt. Rohde and the former Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, who resigned as American Minister to Denmark shortly after her wedding, have been seeing America on their honeymoon. They spent last week-end in Washington as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Armstrong Jr.

Count Guerino Roberti, secretary of the Italian Embassy, and Countess Roberti, will spend Christmas in Rome. They will leave Washington soon for a two months' holiday.

Countess Roberti, the former Mary Hammond, is spending this week-end with her sister, Mrs. Hugh Fenwick in Bernardsville, N. J.

The Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnik have cards out for one of their famous Sunday beer parties tomorrow evening.

The reception given Monday afternoon by the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Alfaro, was one of the most brilliant parties of the year.

In the ballroom, adjoining a huge buffet, were laid great clusters of yellow chrysanthemums alternating with bowls of fruit, dishes of a wide variety, molded salads, sandwiches and cakes.

The scene somewhat resembled a night club, with dancing to Spanish and Cuban music, and guests sitting about at little tables at the edges of the ballroom.

Lecture-Recital Friday.

"The Spirit of Christmas" will be the subject of the third in a series of lecture-recitals by Miss Grace A. Holmes to be given Friday night at 8:15 in the pine room of the Winston-Churchill Apartments. Edward Gleason has arranged a musical setting for the lecture.

Miss Marjorie Wells Wed to H. B. Connor

THE wedding of Miss Marjorie Alicia Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burton Wells, 416 South Gore avenue, Webster Groves, and Harry Blake Connor, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Connor, 230 Simmons avenue, Webster Groves, took place Saturday, Nov. 28, at 9 o'clock in the morning, at the Holy Redeemer Church. The Rev. Walter J. Tucker officiated. About 300 guests were present.

Miss Junea Doerr was maid of honor and Miss Caroline Wells, sister of the bride, and Miss Eleanor Connor, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. John Benedictus was best man and William Heleler and Hastings Walsh were groomsmen. The ushers were Elliott James and Maurice Kastner.

The bridal party stood before an altar decorated with white roses and chrysanthemums and banked with palms and ferns. The bride wore a gown of white satin made on Empire lines. The draped neckline and long sleeves were trimmed with Venetian lace. More of the lace edged her tulle veil which was held in place by orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of brides roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor wore gold satin with gold slippers and coronet of gold flowers. She carried a bouquet of red roses. Miss Caroline Wells was in powder blue satin and Miss Connor wore coral toned satin. They wore silver slippers and silver flowers in their hair and carried bouquets of yellow roses and talisman roses, respectively.

The ceremony was followed by a breakfast at the Gatesworth Hotel for the families and a few close friends. Mr. Connor and his bride flew to Texas for the honeymoon and on their return will live in Webster Groves.

Brennan-McNamee Wedding Solemnized

THE wedding of Miss Helen McNamee, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McNamee, and John A. Brennan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Brennan, 5124 Terry avenue, took place Saturday morning, Nov. 21, at 9 o'clock, at the Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church. The bride has been living with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Compton, 5148 Palm street.

Mrs. Brennan was escorted to the altar by C. M. Compton, and was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Mary Catherine Brennan, a sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Alma Voepel. Her niece, Betty Ann Compton, was flower girl. James P. Brennan, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and Bernard F. McNamee, the bride's brother, was groomsman. The Rev. James P. Johnston performed the ceremony.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Brennan will be at home at 4888 Farlin avenue.

Thanksgiving Bride

Webster Groves

MISS MARY KATHERINE HARVEY, daughter of William A. Harvey, 365 South Maple avenue, and the late Pauline Graham Harvey, was married yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Emanuel Episcopal Church to Robert Warren Yost, son of Mrs. Robert G. Yost, 619 West Lockwood avenue. Only close friends and relatives were present. The Rev. J. Manly Cobb performed the ceremonies.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was dressed in an afternoon gown of coronation blue velvet, fitting tightly over the hips, where it flared into a full skirt. The neckline was cut high and round and the long sleeves were full at the armhole. A gold kid belt and a row of covered buttons up the back were the only ornaments. She wore a corsage of lilies of the valley and a black hat trimmed in blue suede to match the dress. Miss Dolly Ann Yost, sister of the bridegroom, who was her only attendant, wore a gold-colored crepe skirt with matching blouse of metallic cloth with a Peter Pan collar and short sleeves. On the front of her dress were rhinestone buttons. Her hat and slippers were brown and her corsage was of gardenias. Thomas Etter was best man. Out-of-town guests at the reception at the Harvey home after the wedding included the bride's brother, Dr. George Graham Harvey of Boston, Mass., professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The bride is a graduate of Washington University where she was a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority, and Mr. Yost was graduated from the Washington University School of Law. After a honeymoon he and his bride will live in Clayton.

Miss Elizabeth Siegmund, 225 East Swon avenue, gave a luncheon Friday in honor of Miss Sara Ashley of Dayton, O., who will leave tomorrow after a visit of three weeks to Miss Jean Brigham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Brigham, 411 Yorkshire drive. The young women were classmates at Ward-Belmont College last year. Miss Ashley was guest of honor at a dinner party given last night by Miss Mary Stevens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Stevens, 138 Jefferson road. Miss Brigham entertained for her at a dinner party last Saturday night at the Missouri Athletic Association. Miss Martha Ann Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Smith, 30 Mason avenue, gave a luncheon for her last week.

Miss Betty Jehle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Jehle, 634 Sherwood drive, had as her guest last week end Miss Beth Bennett of Ponca City, Ok., who is attending Monticello College, Godfrey, Ill. Mrs. Jehle was hostess to her bridge club at a dinner party last evening at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. William Chapman, 210 Hawthorne boulevard, and their sons, John and Bobby, will leave next month for Tulsa, Ok., to make their home.

Mrs. Fanny Woodward Mabley, 300 South Gray avenue, and her daughter, Mrs. Leonard Hall, with whom she makes her home, will depart Dec. 19, by automobile, for Burlington, Ia., to visit Mrs. Mabley's daughters, Mrs. Frank Schramm and Mrs. Warren Clark. Mrs. Mabley will remain a month, but Mrs. Hall will return in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Booth, 60 Joy avenue, returned recently after a motor trip through Florida, along the Gulf coast and to New Orleans. Miss Nancy Edwards, who makes her home with them, recently visited in Kirksville and Moberly, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Willard Wright, 112 Gray avenue, had as guests last week-end Mr. Wright's niece, Miss Frances Bryant, and Miss Louise Breaky of Detroit.

Dr. and Mrs. Melvin A. Thorpe, 23 Algonquinwoods, entertained eight guests at a dinner party Thursday evening at their home.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Gardner of Lyme, Conn., left Wednesday after a visit with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Elkins, 339 South Gore avenue.

Mrs. Philip H. Gore, 419 Belleview avenue, gave a luncheon bridge party Tuesday at her home.

Mrs. Billy Birmingham of Kenosha, Wis., who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Leonard Woods, 7148 Maryland avenue, entertained Webster Groves friends at a party Monday evening. Those present were: Mrs. Charles Manter, Mrs. T. J. Brownlee, Miss Helen and Miss Winifred Toner and Mrs. I. J. Newsome.

The Wednesday Club, a reading group, was entertained Wednesday by Mrs. E. H. Clayton, 131 Plant avenue.

Mrs. Elbert Beeman, 39 Algonquinwoods, returned last week from Chicago, where she went to spend Thanksgiving with friends.

Mrs. William C. Waggoner, 60 North Maple avenue, and her daughter, Mrs. William Henry Bryan of Clayton, drove to Little Rock, Ark., Monday and returned Thursday.

Miss Mary Myrtle and Miss Martha Jane Fall, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Fall, 454 West Jackson road, and Miss Jean Lucas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Y. Lucas, 412 Sherwood drive, who are attending William Woods College, have as their guests Miss Carol Gates, Miss Eleanor Johanning and Miss Betty Jean Miller of Webster Groves.

Mrs. William B. Tim Lytton, 300 East Big Bend road, was hostess to her bridge club at luncheon Wednesday.

Mrs. Oscar J. Conrad, 214 Spencer road, entertained her bridge club at luncheon Wednesday.

THE St. Charles Lindenwood Club entertained the faculty and administration staff of Lindenwood College at tea from 4 to 6 o'clock on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. M. Salveter, 620 Jefferson street. More than 150 guests and members were present. Receiving at the door were: Mrs. Salveter and the following officers of the club: Mrs. Leland Cunningham, president; Miss Viola Karrenbrock, vice-president; Miss Verna Bredenbeck, treasurer; Miss Liv Udstad, secretary.

Mrs. Emil Weil, 211 North Third street, held a reception for 150 guests at her home last Sunday evening honoring the engagement of Miss Celeste Stein, daughter of Mrs. Samuel Stein of St. Louis, to Mrs. Weil's son, Joseph. The wedding is to take place in June and was announced Thanksgiving evening at a party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Stein in St. Louis.

Mrs. Alfred M. Olson, 430 North Sixth street, held a dinner party in honor of her mother, Mrs. George W. McElhinney Sr., at 6 o'clock on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester I. Duncan, 1606 Watson street, entertained at an informal party for 12 at 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening.

The following members of the local post and auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars went to St. Louis Saturday, Nov. 28, to attend the joint installation of the Fred Carter Post and Auxiliary: Mr. and Mrs. Sam Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grote, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gray and daughter, Earline, and Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Gage.

The marriage of Miss Christine Suedmeyer, daughter of Mrs. Christian Suedmeyer and Marvin Wiedey, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wiedey, took place Thanksgiving day. The ceremony was in the Orchard Farm Church, the Rev. H. Mangelsdorf in charge. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents after which the pair left on a short honeymoon trip.

The bride wore conventional white satin, her dress attached to a yoke of white lace, the full sleeves caught into tight cuffs at the wrist. Her veil trailed the floor and formed a cap for the head with a bandeau of seed pearls and orange blossoms. She carried white chrysanthemums. Her first bridesmaid, Miss Leona Wiedey, a sister, wore pink taffeta and carried pale yellow chrysanthemums, while the other bridemaid, Miss Ruth Schoene, was dressed in blue taffeta, her bouquet also being of yellow chrysanthemums. The flower girl, Marvalea Wortman, wore yellow crepe. Attending the bridegroom were: Leo Wiedey, Walter Suedmeyer and John Wiedey Jr.

Celebrating their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. August Bloebaum Jr., 212 Reservoir street, were entertained at a reception and dance at Knights of Columbus Hall on Saturday evening, Nov. 28.

The American Legion Auxiliary gave a benefit card party at Memorial Hall on Friday night to raise funds for the organization's Christmas Charities. The Auxiliary also distributed cigarettes to the veterans at Jefferson Barracks Hospital Thursday afternoon, under the direction of Mrs. W. G. Poser, Ninth District Rehabilitation chairman.

Mrs. Ronald M. Thomson, 427 Kingshighway, spent last week with relatives in Chicago, Ill.

A style show was held in Roemer auditorium at Lindenwood College at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening with students in the Home Economics class, directed by Miss Ada Tucker, modeling dresses they made. Thirty-six new members were recently taken into the Home Economics Club, a national honorary society.

The Junior-Freshman tea was held in the library's social rooms at 4:30 o'clock on Thursday afternoon.

The Sunday night Vesper service in the chapel of the college tonight will have Heluiz Washburn as lecturer. His subject will be "Around the World."

The dramatic department of the college will give a play, "Craig's Wife," on Friday afternoon.

Miss Margaret M. Stookey, head of the physical education department at Lindenwood College, will take a party of Lindenwood girls abroad next summer. The group is to sail on the Normandie June 30 and return in September. The party will go to Farnce, Italy, Hungary, Sweden, Denmark, England and several of the smaller countries of Southern Europe.

The Nature Study Club held a second discussion on "Bees" at their meeting at the City Library on Tuesday evening. Herman Insinger of Cave Springs, Mo., led the discussion on the production and types of honey. Miss Lois Karr of Lindenwood College presided.

The American Association of University Women held its December meeting at the home of Miss Mary Ethel Burke, 219 North Kingshighway, Thursday evening. Miss Julia Thomson was in charge of the program and told of her trip last summer to New Zealand and South Sea Islands. Assisting Miss Burke as hostesses were: Miss Nina Jewell Lemen, Miss Mildred Clarke, Mrs. Ralph Case and Mrs. Theodore C. Bruere Jr.

P. E. O. is to meet on Wednesday afternoon at Mrs. George M. Null's, 1502 Watson street, at which time Mrs. John Thomas will give a program on "Periodical Glimpses of Fashion." The Christmas party of the club will be held Dec. 16 at the home of Mrs. T. L. Hardin, 220 Madison street.

Social Affairs in Churches

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY to the Goodwill Industries will give its annual party for children of the Goodwill Day Nursery and the workers in the industrial departments of the institution Dec. 23. This was announced at the luncheon of the auxiliary held last Wednesday at Hotel Castlereagh. Four hundred persons are expected to be present. Baskets will be given the older guests and the children will have gifts and a Christmas tree.

Children of the Goodwill Day Nursery, 1910 North Thirteenth street, will be guests of honor at a Christmas party to be given next Saturday afternoon by students of the Principia College at the nursery. Several students in the sociology department of the Principia work one day a week in the nurseries as a part of their class work.

The Benton School Mothers' Club held a luncheon meeting at Goodwill Day Nursery, 1910 North Thirteenth street, Friday and gave a Christmas shower for the children.

Woman's Day will be observed at Compton Heights Christian Church, Spring and Flad avenues, today. Mrs. L. M. Omer of Faith Mission at Perryville, Ky., will speak in the morning on "A Challenge to Greater Faith." Tea will be served at 5 p. m., complimenting Mrs. Omer, and members of the church will bring her gifts for people of her district. A Christmas tree, from which the gifts will be distributed, will be sent to the mission.

Mrs. Omer will also take part in the program to be given from 6:30 to 7:30 p. m. by the Educational Department.

The Virginia Asher Council will hold its regular meeting Thursday at 6:15 p. m. Miss Lena Smith will give the Bible lesson.

Miss Lena Smith will speak this evening at the vesper service at the Young Women's Christian Association sponsored by the council. The service will be held at 5 p. m.

Chief Machinist's Mate Murdock M. MacNeill of the United States Coast Guard, will speak at 6 o'clock this evening at the December tea of the young people of the First Congregational Church, Wydown boulevard and University lane. He will also show talking pictures of the duties, work and equipment of the United States Coast Guard service. This program will follow one at 5 o'clock at which Prof. Howard Kelsey will speak on Wagner and Liszt, especially in their relation to Bach. Eden Seminary choir will sing the choruses, and Mrs. Elvira Diamond will sing the solos.

The Woman's Association of the Second Presbyterian Church will close its year with a luncheon at the church Tuesday at 1 p. m. A report of the recent bazaar will be made by the treasurer, Miss Martha Dyer, and Mrs. J. Sumner Buchanan will conduct a devotional service. Mrs. Ella Zopf Woods will sing. Mrs. Charles E. Schwarz will be hostess at the luncheon.

The Christmas distribution of toys by the Toy Shop Guild of the Board of Religious Organizations opened Nov. 30, and will continue until Dec. 15. Mrs. Clifford Zell, chairman of the Toy Shop, has announced that there will be at least 30,000 repaired toys and books to be distributed to 12,000 children of unemployed parents who are being helped by welfare agencies. Sixty-five volunteer workers repair the toys during the year, and the paint and materials necessary for the work are donated.

Mrs. E. E. Hartzburge, chairman of the American Legion Auxiliary Committee, is in charge of transporting the toys to the shop, and churches and civic organizations, including the Practical Arts Club and the American Legion Auxiliaries, aid in the distribution. Mrs. Hugh McKittrick Jones, first vice-president of the St. Louis County Welfare Association, is directing the collection of toys in the county. The latter are to be brought to the County Welfare Building, 107 South Meramec avenue, Clayton.

The Lutheran Ladies' Mission Aid Society will meet tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. at Concordia Publishing House. Luncheon will be served after the election of officers.

Mrs. Clark Cox will review "Drums Along the Mohawk" at Pilgrim Congregational Church, 320 North Union boulevard, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the Young Women's Guild. Mrs. Fred Werremeyer is chairman of the committee in charge, and the following women will preside at the silver tea to follow: Mrs. Ella Peters Lauman, Mrs. Robert J. Crossen, Mrs. Truman B. Douglass and Mrs. Delos G. Haynes.

The Congregational Unit of the Board of Religious Organizations will meet tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. at 4474 McPherson avenue. Mrs. Guy Randall will conduct the meeting of the Institutions Committee tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. at 4474 McPherson avenue and the Methodist Unit will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. at the same place. has become established as a trustworthy mark of FUR QUALITY!

JUST a year ago we announced that Kessler's, as reputable furriers of long standing, had been selected to be the "Home of Heart o' the Pelt* Furs" in Saint Louis.

In one short year, women have learned to recognize that Heart o' the Pelt* takes all doubt out of fur buying. To deserve this label a garment must be fashion right. It must be made of only the choice portions of superbly matched prime peltries. Craftsmanship must meet rigid standards.

We list a few typical Heart o' the Pelt values. Their attractive price is proof that you pay no premium for the assurance of quality: Karakul $133 . . . Jap Weasel $265 . . . Hudson Seal (Dyed Muskrat) $165 . . . Persian Lamb $265 . . . Jap Mink $365 . . . Ermine $465 . . . Eastern Mink $790.

Schools and College Life

THE John Burroughs School Dramatic Club will open its season with the production of a comedy, "The Torchbearers" Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at the school theater. This play will be followed by two others, "Berkeley Square" and "As You Like It." The cast is composed largely of students of the tenth grade. Those in the cast are: Dick Hume, Robert Kerwin, Richard Frazier, Powell Adams, Jeffris Williamson, Jack Green, Miss Hope DePew, Miss Phyllis White, Miss Edith Vorhaus, Miss Virginia Christy, Miss Mary Armistead, and Miss Shelia Fraser. The play will be directed by Mrs. Chester Williamson.

Two graduates from John Burroughs have been recently awarded honors. Edward P. Lebens, son of E. H. Lebens, 4432 Washington boulevard, has qualified for the no course plan of study open to high-ranking seniors in the second term at Princeton University. He was a substitute back on the football squad this season and played in the game against Rutgers. He was graduated from John Burroughs in 1933 with the honor of First Citizen. Miss Cordelia See, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. See, 41 Kingsbury place, is one of three freshmen selected for the Little Magazine board at Vassar College. Miss See was graduated from John Burroughs last June where she was co-editor of the "Review," school literary magazine.

Mrs. John L. Roemer and Miss Ruth Anderson of the faculty of Lindenwood College served at the junior class tea Thursday afternoon in the college club rooms. Members of the freshman class were guests. Miss La Verne Rowe of Kirkwood, president of the hostess class, was assisted in the receiving line by Miss Mary Elizabeth Baptist of Shawnee, Ok., Miss Lois Null of St. Charles, and Miss Sue Smith of Dayton, O. Officers of the guest class are: Miss Joyce Works, Humbolt, Kan.; Miss Marguerite Dearmont, Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Miss Margaret Brickey Casey, Potosi, Mo.; Miss Mary Shelley Ingalls, Atchison, Kan., a granddaughter of the late U. S. Senator John J. Ingalls; and Dr. Kate Gregg of the faculty.

A style show was given Thursday night in the auditorium of Lindenwood College, with girls showing garments they had made. Miss La Verne Rowe chose coronation blue for her silk dress, made with a silver vest. Miss Eleanor Finley showed a child's dress in navy blue. Miss Jane McBee wore a green two-piece sports dress and Miss Helen Margaret Shank modeled a red two-piece street dress. Miss Cloy Shelton wore a gray and red tweed mixture suit. The dresses cost $7 on the average.

A student's recital will be given in Roemer Auditorium at Lindenwood Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Piano numbers will be played by Miss Jennie Vie Anderson, Fort Dodge, Ia.; Miss Lorraine Pyle, Haviland, Kan.; Miss Mary Alice Harnish, Raton, N. M.; Miss Charlotte Yocum, El Dorado, Ark.; and Miss Alice Belding, St. Charles. Miss Margaret Hull of Anaconda, Mont., will sing two numbers, and Miss Kathryn Mayer of Indianapolis, will play a violin solo.

A reunion banquet was held by the Lindenwood College Conference Club Thursday at the Kirkwood Presbyterian Church. The club consists of young people who attended the Presbyterian Conference at the college last June. After dinner at 6:30 o'clock Miss Alice Umbarger, a faculty member of the conference, gave an address. New officers were installed by Jack Ogden, retiring president. They were: Bud Barbee, president; Miss Grace Taylor, secretary; Randlord Warfield, treasurer. Plans for the coming year were discussed. A wedding supper followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Kick, 7012 Greenway avenue, Beverly Hills, for members of the bridal party, their immediate families and 25 guests.

Schlattmann-Kutz

The marriage of Miss Lois Kutz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aloys Kutz, 3658 Connecticut street, and George Schlattmann took place Thanksgiving morning at 10 o'clock at St. Pius Church, Grand avenue and Utah place. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward B. Schlattmann, a brother of the bridegroom, who was also the celebrant of the solemn high mass. He was assisted by the Rev. F. J. Schlattman, an uncle of the bridegroom, and the Rev. R. G. Kutz, a cousin of the bride, as subdeacon. Wilfred Schlattmann of Kenrick Seminary, a cousin of the bridegroom, attended as master of ceremonies.

During the mass Miss Rose Del Gaudio sang two solos, while Prof. Thiesing played at the organ. The church was decorated with autumn flowers and foliage and the center aisle was lighted by tall candles attached to the pews in white holders held in place by smilax and white ribbon.

The three sisters of the bride attended her. Mrs. William J. Schlattmann, the former Miss Aurelia Kutz, the matron of honor, wore a floor length dress of petunia velvet. It was made with a high fitting waistline and full short sleeves, while the hem of the dress, the bateau neckline, and the sleeves were trimmed in self-cording. Her hat of the same material was a beret type. She carried shaded chrysanthemums, tied with a large bow of ribbon to match her dress.

The bridesmaids, Miss Mildred Kutz and Miss Claudine Kutz, wore gowns alike, the former made of gold velvet, and the latter of Chinese peacock velvet, with full sleeves, close fitting waists, floor-length skirts and bateau necklines. Their hats of the same material, were small off-the-face models. All three of the attendants' dresses were finished with clips and buckles of rhinestones set in gold. They carried shaded chrysanthemums, tied with the matching bows.

The bride entered the church with her father and was gowned in cream transparent velvet with a full bodice gathered into a round neckline and finished with pearls. Her skirt fitted snugly to the knees, flaring slightly into a long train. The sleeves of the dress were full at the armhole, but fitted from the elbow to the wrist, ending in a point over the hand. The bride's double veil of tulle was bordered by lace and held by tiny orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of St. Joseph lilies and lilies-of-the-valley.

William J. Schlattmann served as best man for his brother and Ronald Brunner, Jerome Dirnberger and Paul Hoelscher were ushers. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Schlattmann, 4311 Gibson avenue.

Sigel-Schneider

Mr. and Mrs. William Schneider, 1157 Walton avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Bess Schneider, and Harry Sigel, 1157 Walton place, which took place Thursday, Nov. 26. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Jacob Mazur in his study. A dinner followed for the immediate family.

BE PRACTICAL
AS WELL AS SENTIMENTAL
THIS CHRISTMAS

Sentimental gifts have their place, of course, but why not combine sentiment and practicality? A modern gas range is a practical gift, because it makes good cooking easier. It's a sentimental gift because it gives the housewife more leisure hours in which to enjoy life. It's practical because it will last for many years. It's sentimental because its beauty and modern appearance appeal to woman's pride.

THIS MODERN GAS RANGE is the choice of thousands of up-to-date housewives

THE neat, simply designed, streamlined gas range shown here is very popular with modern housewives because its simplicity means ease of cleaning. But that's not all. It has numerous features that are universally praised.

One of these features is the separation of the broiler and oven burners. These burners are entirely separate and can be operated independently of each other. This permits a hot broiling fire and a slow baking fire at the same time. When you bake you heat only the oven, not the broiler, too. And when you broil you don't waste fuel by heating up the oven. The new broiler is higher and more convenient to use as it eliminates stooping.

St. Louis gas range dealers now have the most gorgeous array of modern gas ranges ever shown in St. Louis. Many makes, types and sizes to serve your most exacting demand. Watch the newspapers for your favorite dealer's announcement of gas range bargains! Liberal trade-in allowances! Easy terms!

MAN, 87, HIT BY AUTO LAST WEDNESDAY, DIES

Driver Says Edward Jacquemin Stepped Into Path of Machine.

Edward Jacquemin, 87 years old, died yesterday at City Hospital of injuries suffered last Wednesday while crossing the street near his home, 2134 St. Louis avenue.

The driver, John Waters, 2208 Sullivan avenue, told police his vision was obscured by snow and that Jacquemin stepped into the path of his automobile. Jacquemin suffered a compound fracture of the leg and internal injuries.

TRAFFIC SURVEY IN STATE TEMPORARILY SUSPENDED

40 WPA Workers Reconsider Protest to Mayor When Need of Reorganization Is Explained.

Temporary suspension of the WPA traffic survey was announced to about 40 employes on the project yesterday when they reported to work at the WPA employment office in the Buder Building.

Joseph A. Amend, district director of the WPA, said he expected the survey, a State-wide program, would be resumed within a week. Orders for the lay-off, which was thought to be for reorganization purposes, were received from the State WPA offices in Jefferson City, he said. The survey is being made to ascertain the volume of traffic at various intersections.

After learning of the lay-off, the workers remained at the outer office of the employment bureau several hours, considering a protest to Mayor Dickmann. They decided not to visit the Mayor's office after being told the layoff was temporary and that they would be notified when the work was to be resumed.

Bankruptcy Action on Sally Shops.

Joseph D. Schaefer, doing business as the Sally Shop, a women's ready-to-wear store, 7312 Manchester avenue, Maplewood, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy Friday in United States District Court. Schedules accompanying his petition listed liabilities of $2558, consisting mostly of unsecured debts, and assets of $1905, representing stock in trade, equipment and insurance policies.

Sale! CULTURED PEARLS

Starting Monday
Very Special at $7.95

Pearls that are in every sense "real" . . . except that their growth was started by the hand of man instead of by accident of nature . . . for Cultured Pearls are grown in the shell of an oyster, exactly as real pearls, each one requiring from 7 to 12 years to develop. It takes infinite pains and patience for pearl experts to grade the matured pearls, assemble them, graduate them into perfectly matched necklaces to grace your loveliest frocks. So this is obviously the opportunity of a lifetime to own or give priceless cultured Pearl Necklaces! Each comes in a smart container . . . for exquisite gifts to hold among your proudest possessions!

Other Cultured Pearl Necklaces, $10 to $1000

In our window you will see a fascinating display, showing the painstaking development of cultured pearls.

With every purchase an insurance policy for the entire value of the necklace will be issued . . . covering you against loss for a year.

In the HOLLYWOOD WHIRL

by

Margaret Post Niemeyer

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 5.

WITH Thanksgiving and all of the football games except the New Year's day Rose Bowl affair—in which, unfortunately, Los Angeles plays no part this time—out of the way, the Hollywood contingent is turning its eyes to two events, Christmas and the opening of the Santa Anita race track. As to the Christmas plans of the stars, there is enough news, of a sort, to warrant a story all to itself, and I'll leave that telling for next Sunday. And just a word or so now about the racing season. A good many of the male stars have stables, you know, ranging from Clark Gable's one-horse affair up through Joe E. Brown's more pretentious collection and up to Bing Crosby's most pretentious flock of two-years-old and "grown up" gee-gees.

BING CROSBY

But the movie boys are not going to have the field entirely to themselves this season. Constance Bennett has had a race horse on her expense account for a couple of years and found that its upkeep cut down her income tax considerably. Now Barbara Stanwyck is preparing to break in on Connie's game in a big way. Barbara and one of the Marx boys — I think it's Harpo—have purchased a ranch out in the San Fernando Valley and will really breed horses and race them, too. And here is a secret. Carole Lombard has been bitten by the horse fly, or whatever the germs is, and will have a stable of her own. So far she has acquired just a single horse, but it is said to be a good one and she has named it Mr. G. If you can't guess what Mr. G. stands for, I would advise you to remember that Carole's latest boy friend is none other than her rival "badge horse" owner, Clark Gable.

—o—o—

LET ME digress, just for a minute, to tell you the latest Hollywood mot: The postman always rings twice—at Simone Simon's. Ouch!

—o—o—

I had just finished reading the latest gossip from England in an afternoon paper when I bumped into another Edward. Not Wally's Edward, of course, but Edward Stevenson, head designer for RKO. We fell to talking about coronation styles and this Edward tells me that a great many current movie styles are being influenced by the big event of next May.

—o—o—

HE CITED AS examples the tiara headdress which features one of the bridal costumes he created for Lily Pons to wear in "That Girl From Paris," and the hats worn by bridesmaids in the same picture. The bridesmaids' hats are modern adaptions of those in favor in English court circles during the Fifteenth Century.

Eddie also mentioned a hat he had just designed for Louise Latimer. This is a feminized adaption of an English sailor's cap. King Edward, it will be recalled, once served in the Royal Navy. Colors, too, are reflecting the coronation spirit. The hues of royalty and pageantry are very much in evidence, notably the deep golds, reds and blues.

—o—o—

Learning about Louise Latimer's hat made me decide I'd like to see Louise, and I found her on the set of "We, the Jury." Louise is still on the lookout for that gorgeous diamond ring her husband Erwin Gelsey gave her, which she lost about three weeks ago. The tiny actress has hardly had time to think about the ring, though, of late, because she and Erwin are playing fond parents to two pups, one a cocker spaniel and the other a German shepherd. The acquisition of "Red," the spaniel, makes a trjumvirate of carrot-tops in the Gelsey menage, because Louise's hair is titian, with Erwin's even brighter.

—o—o—

BUT BEFORE dismissing the subject of the coronation entirely I think I should mention that we had a little parade out here of our own this past week. The annual one which officially opens "Santa Claus Lane," as the most important mile of Hollywood's shopping district is known at this season of the year. And it seemed quite fitting that Bette Davis, who rode on the chief float beside Mr. Santa Claus himself, should have worn a regal cape of white ermine which enveloped her from throat to toes. A few minutes before mounting the float Bette had turned on the switch which lighted the Christmas trees which line this "lane."

—o—o—

HAD LUNCH the other day with my next-door neighbor, Helen Broderick, and she threw something of a bombshell of by saying that she didn't like acting, never had, and wanted to get into some other line of motion pictures, preferably cutting. And although Helen usually is fooling—she is about the screen's best comedienne—she really wasn't this time. She wants to make a study of the technical end of the business, but I have an idea the studio heads will laugh her out of any such plans. She has been on the stage most of her life and is likely to stick to acting for a long time to come.

THE CHIC MRS. SIMPSON

By Prunella Wood

CAPTAIN MOLYNEUX DESIGNED FOR MRS. SIMPSON THE THREE COSTUMES SKETCHED IN THE ACCOMPANYING LAYOUT.

PORTRAIT of an unknown lady; today the most talked of woman in the world: lovely Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Portrait of the woman who once was Bessie Wallis Warfield—Baltimore debutante, with flying hair, heavy eyebrows and frocks cascading yards of ruffles, balloons of chiffon. Not so long ago, either.

Today she is that most glamorous of all-femininity—central figure in a royal romance that has stirred feminine hearts throughout the world. And you can take the word of Capt. Edward Molyneux, fashion creator to royalty, that Wally was glamorous when she was Mrs. Ernest Simpson, that her native taste, her splendid carriage, her modern, streamlined figure made her tops in chic long before Lady Thelma Furness ever introduced her to Davy Windsor, later to become Edward VIII. Life didn't begin at forty, for Wally.

When Wally was strikingly pretty, old-fashioned Bessie, her glamour hadn't stirred. Her heavy eyebrows were plucked to a hazardous pen line; her not so full lips were slashed harder and narrower with rouge; her now famous coiffure, with its center part and precise waves was stiff as your maiden aunt's, in the daguerreotype album.

But the unknown Wallis who has moved today into Bessie's narrow, high-heeled, always simple pumps, boasts brows smooth and graceful as swallow's wings. Deft touches of eye shadow and mascara have made her hazel eyes larger and more luminous. Her lipstick has discovered that the Simpson mouth has that provocative Garbo mismating — a thin upper lip delicately curved over a riper, lower lip. The famous symmetrical coiffure is softer, and looped over the ear tops. There is a little bun of hair twisted into the nape of the neck, too. Could it be saving itself to support Court feathers, or even a regal crown?

Her complexion is fair, with that clear, white transparency which so often is seen with black hair and hazel eyes. There is a rumor that her voice has that come-hither, Southern drawl, with "you all" and "honey" sprinkling her conversation. But the fact is that Wally Simpson's voice is low pitched and crisp, a truly cosmopolitan voice that can't be identified with any particular country or locality.

Mrs. Simpson is average height, but dressmakers delight in her slim, boyish figure, topped off by square, magnificent shoulders. Her legs are long, very American, and Wally sees to it that her skirts don't obscure their line. "For Mrs. Simpson, skirt not so full," is almost always scribbled in the fashion sketches submitted for her choice, when she accepts them.

As Davy Wales, and as King Edward VIII, Wally has taken her royal companion dress shopping, and "we" admired black with a touch of bright color, or "we" chose a pale blue or a bright green to show off Wally's dark hair and changing hazel eyes. "We" like nothing but tailored clothes for daytime—short skirts and jackets, often in two-color contrast. And at night, even in the most elegant ensembles, the tailored, clean-cut, perfectly streamlined ideal dominates. The subtle difference is that by day, Mrs. Simpson is crisp; by candlelight, she is slinky, devoted to clinging, long skirts.

Brilliant nail enamels, with the entire nail covered to the tips by the polish, accent the eloquent Simpson hands. Photographs show that she is fond of rings, that a whole cuff of bracelets amuse her, that she apparently doesn't think she's completely dressed unless she is wearing button earrings. In Dalmatia, this past summer, she wore slacks and pullovers, and a kerchief bandeau tied around her head in a fashion that we over here associate with the revolutionary White House riding habit. In all accessories, in silhouette, color schemes and make-up, Wally Simpson has a conspicuous flair for the modern, an indifference to style for style's sake.

—o—o—

EVEN Antoine, that Paris hairdresser of willful ways, didn't attempt to change her slick coiffure, for the Simpson hair-do is as T-squared and individual as a Donald Desky chromium design. And Capt. Molyneux, usually as much a consultant as a creator for his clientele, works out the Simpson inspirations when he makes Simpson clothes.

That's the way it goes with the lady: Mrs. Simpson knows what she wants, and just the way she wants it. That's why her individuality is so marked, why she sets styles instead of following them.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.

IT isn't so long ago that about the nastiest crack you could hand one of your girl friends was to remark, with a derisive snort, "She dresses just like a movie actress!" For those were the days before good taste descended on Hollywood like a sunlit fog from the Pacific — when the film ladies, proud in their ignorance, felt that the most spectacular and costly clothes were perforce the best.

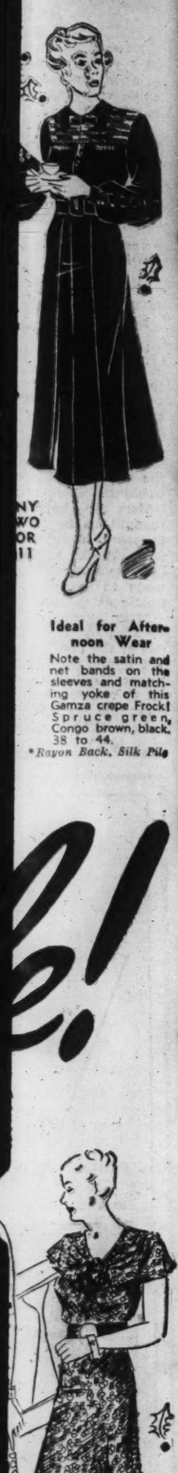

It took Hollywood a long time to change all this and to live down its lingering reputation as the worst dressed town on earth. An infusion of smart Broadway actresses arrived with the talkies, and their clothes example did a lot to calm and soothe the cinema babes. Then the studios began hiring young men of great ingenuity and excellent style sense to design the duds for their expensive chattels—with the result that such screen dolls as Kay Francis are among the best dressed women in this, and probably any other, world.

This was hammered into my consciousness the other day when I attended a very uppity afternoon party in honor of Marion Davies. A couple of hundred girls of the press were in the throng to greet the blonde star. Realizing it would be a fancy affair, they dressed to the limit, and beyond—while the guest of honor was beautifully and simply togged out in a black ensemble trimmed with mink, with a Russian-type matching toque. I therefore beheld the ironic sight of a lot of reporters and fan mag geniuses dressed as movie actresses, being led up to shake hands with a screen star dressed as a tasteful lady. It was an amusing spectacle, and I

MY OPINION

by Martha Carr

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE been observing the conduct of my former wife. She lives with a sister who is older than herself. She has had good training, but, for some reason, she had an association with a man whose record shows that he has not worked for about four years. He is of the type who seeks a woman with a salary and preys upon her to such an extent that she will give up her money to him with the expectation of matrimony, which never happens. In other words, he is a male gold-digger.

I am not jealous, but out of sympathy for her, I should like to warn her; yet I am sure she would misunderstand me, so I hesitate. She is employed, but like some other women, in order that she may have an escort, she is willing to support this lounge-lizard. The worst of it is she has known him not two months, yet he boasts of her assisting him financially. Her friends are discussing it and all seem to know he does not work and that she is paying his bills.

I am afraid, if this continues, she may lose her position and she will regret it. I still care for her and would like to save her this embarrassment. I read your column regularly and you offer such wholesome advice that I believe you may be able to offer a helpful suggestion which I shall appreciate.

"TEENIE."

I believe there is truth in what you say about this modern custom. The economic conditions of the few years past are probably responsible for some of it. Women who have been employed have men friends, and some of them, through no fault of their own, have been unable to get work. Women, being naturally sympathetic, have reached out a generous hand and have meant through this, to tide them over. Some of the men without principle or pride have taken advantage of this situation and the girls and women who have done this have sometimes found themselves in a complicated and embarrassing situation.

Some women sometimes have less opportunity for such contact as brings them normal attention and companionship of the right kind of men. But it would seem that no attention at all would be preferable and the money spent would be much better invested in charity and the diversions (and there are many) among their own sex. Time and effort wasted, is the least one can say about such a condition.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

● TWO YEARS AGO a friend told me that my passport was counterfeited. I came here in 1921, with my sister and her sister. My sister is married and so am I. I have five children and a good job. I want to be a good American citizen and I would like to know if we could be deported. I never have been arrested and have no criminal record. Recently I heard a man's story over the radio. He confessed that he came here illegally and the Judge told him that any person who came here in 1921 illegally, but has a good record would be an American citizen. Please tell me what can we do, as we thought our passport was legal.

ONE WHO WANTS TO BE AN AMERICAN CITIZEN.

Foreigners must be naturalized before they can become American citizens. The passport does not make you an American citizen; though your residence here for a certain length of time may make a difference. It will be easy for you to go to the Naturalization Bureau or telephone them and ask for information and suggestions for the best course. This bureau is now in the new Federal Building at Twelfth and Market.

—o—o—

My dear Mrs. Carr:

Through your column, please give me the name of a good book on life for a 14-year-old boy. Yours truly,

STUPID.

"Growing Into Manhood," by Roy E. Dickerson, and "The How and Why of Life" by Emma Wheat Gillmore.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● YOU HAVE HELPED so many and I only hope you can help me and the young girls and boys who read this. My son reads your column.

My son will not be 21 until March. I have just found out that he is buying an engagement ring. Although it is a cheap one, (he doesn't make enough to buy an expensive one) he has been paying a dollar and two dollars on it. And now he says he is going to get engaged at Christmas.

My boy does not know what work is, Mrs. Carr, for he only works two and three nights a week; he has never had a steady job, and could not, to save him life, keep a wife. He has never paid any board. When you say anything to him about this, he flies up in the air. He says that he is just getting engaged and will not marry for a year or two. I don't want him to get married to anyone until he can make a home for them.

I have done almost everything for him and he knows the trouble I have had. I surely know that you can give good advice on it and everyone will understand. WORRIED MOTHER.

Probably, like too many mothers, you have done too much for this boy and so have not allowed his initiative to develop. You should, if you are not well off, and perhaps even if you are, require him to pay board when he is at work. Evidently you have given him little incentive to work and have spoiled him about having his own way about everything.

If the boy is determined to become engaged, and feels that the wedding may depend upon his ability to get more work and make more money, this may speed him up and make him use his energies. As long as he does not threaten immediate marriage, perhaps it would be well not to make too much fuss about the engagement. But you can remind him, after the engagement is a fact, that this means responsibility for him and should make him more energetic. Say to him that it might be well for him to start his responsibilities by paying his own board, as later he will have to pay it for two. Tell him in order to appreciate the responsibility, he might begin now to try to achieve economic independence gradually, by this method. This is the right thing for him to do anyway. For, if he hasn't the stamina to begin now, I think you may be sure that the engagement will not result seriously.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

BUSINESS CONSIDERS The WIFE Who WORKS

One St. Louis Concern Drops Them From Rolls—There Are Two Sides to the Problem.

By VIRGINIA IRWIN

CARTOONS BY BILL STACK

"SHOULD married women work?" is not exactly a new question. There have been flare-ups on the subject for years, but right now in St. Louis, at least—the argument is enjoying a more lusty revival than it has ever had before.

Recently, the Union Electric Light & Power Co. made public the announcement that "effective at once it shall be a company policy that women will be required to leave our service within six months after marriage." As for the women in their employ already married, the company announced that each would be given an opportunity to "show why she continues to work."

The Union Electric ultimatum was the signal that started the present excitement. Married women with other companies had visions of swapping a mission-oak desk for a kitchen stove. Girls with engagement rings from beaus who couldn't afford to marry unless the little woman "worked for a few years" put the tulle veil back in the mothballs and resigned themselves to the hope that the boy friend would get a raise. Feminists howled that it was the first move in a campaign to deprive woman of her hard-earned rights. Men with wives who do not work snickered and said they guessed now the weak-spined guys who allowed their wives to pay part of the household expenses would buck up and amount to something. Ladies supported in leisure, if not in luxury, by well-meaning husbands who objected to their working said they guessed now that Mrs. So-and-So was about to lose her job she wouldn't lord it over the rest of them with extra-swell clothes and expensive knicknacks purchased with her pay check.

During the past week, it has been this reporter's amusing privilege to invite an assortment of folks to air their views on the question "Should married women work?" A question which gained even new heat when the Union Electric Co.'s announcement was followed by the publishing of results of a poll taken on the subject which showed that 82 per cent of the 100,000 people questioned decidedly did not approve of a married woman working if she had a husband capable of supporting her.

—o—o—

"I DON'T care if 100 per cent voted against married women working," one young lady said as the figures were cited. "Married women have as much right to work as married men do. What would the men say if a law were passed making it some kind of an offense for a man to work if his wife were capable of supporting him? They wouldn't like it, of course, and they'd argue that men were in business first and that that's their place and that a woman's place is in the home. Bosh. It just happened that way and they've kept women believing it a long time, but if anybody thinks they're ever going to see me sitting home knitting and putting up pickles, they're all wrong."

The above conversation happened to take place at a luncheon table at which sat the unmarried girl who objected to putting up pickles, a widowed mother employed in an executive position and a young married woman who holds a secretarial position in a firm employing hundreds of women.

When the unmarried girl had finished her heated declaration about preferring office work to knitting and putting up pickles, the widowed mother who holds the executive position answered her.

"My dear," she laughed, "the trouble with you is that, like so many other young women of this day and age, you have come to believe that marriage as a profession is inferior to a job. I can remember before I was married that I, too, had a fine contempt for women who embroidered and knitted and put up pickles. I was working in those days but then I got married and did all the things I thought I, for one, would never do and I discovered that marriage can be as big a career as you care to make of it. And argue as you like, every woman owes it to the world to be a wife, a homemaker and a mother. And I think that if the time ever comes when no married woman is allowed to work if she has a husband capable of supporting her, it will be the best thing that ever happened to the female sex in general."

It was then the turn of the young married secretary to air her views.

"Well," she began, "it might be the best thing that ever happened to the female sex to prohibit a married woman working if she has a husband capable of supporting her, but not because it is going to put us married women back to rocking cradles. The benefit to our sex is going to derive from the fact that men will then have to start being men again instead of the jelly-spined imitations that make up a good part of the crop today."

In conversations with both men and women during the past week, this reporter discovered a number of people of both sexes who subscribed to the amusing theory that the male of the species might someday be wearing a house dress and burning the steak, unless women are prohibited from holding paying positions after marriage. Men who complain that they are unable to find employment because women are holding down too many jobs in this country, claim that the ladies have done a thorough job of pushing a lot of them out on the limb.

One man who has been out of work for years grew quite voluble on the subject.

"THEM that has gets," he opined. "And I'd bet if you took a survey you'd find that the women with the best jobs are married to men with the best salaries. Sure, a man's got a high job and he pulls strings to get his wife a position and the two of them make more money on two jobs than four people would in four other jobs. It ain't fair. That man's missus has swell clothes and makes all the other gals feel like 10 cents. Believe me, there ought to be a law against married women working if they have husbands who can half-way keep them."

Another man, husband of a non-working wife, and father of a brand new son, thought just the opposite. He believed in the first place that there is a negligible number of married women working who do not actually have to, and he gave the gals in general, credit for having sense enough to know that when men marry they want a girl who thinks that home-making is a career and not just a sideline to be worked at after office hours.

"You can't tell me that there are so many women working just for pin money," said this married man. "There are few women who wouldn't rather stay home and be a wife and mother than just another time-clock puncher. It's against woman's nature to want to be independent. Every woman that was ever born wants to be dependent on some man and have him take care of her. So all this talk about revolutionizing industry and pitching out the married women who work just to be working is just another scare. It will die down shortly because there aren't enough married women working just for pin money, and husbands who will let them, to make much of a difference."

There are no figures available to show the exact number of married women who have husbands capable of supporting them working in St. Louis but several heads of personnel departments in concerns employing large numbers of women voiced the opinion that the number is not as great as agitators would have us think. And more than one man voiced the opinion that although there is a married woman who vaguely thinks she would like to "do something" and make "a life of her own," woman in general is smart enough to know that it is better to be her man's "better half" at home than his "equal" in the business world.

THE BERT TAYLORS crashed open the first party of their season a few nights ago in honor of Bert's sister, the Countess Dorothy di Frasso, who was Hollywood's leading party-tosser last winter. The gay Dorothy and the Taylors like movie actors, and vice versa, and this very lively crowd is chiefly responsible for making Dream Men and Wonder Girls of the films' prominent social figures in this town. Bert's own pretty daughter, Mary, appeared in a movie last year, and is one of the leading photographic models of the town.

SEQUINS sparkle everywhere, as unexclusively predicted here some time back. I saw Florence Weicker, Squibbs toothpaste heiress, in a ravishing sapphire sequin get-up, at a night club the other night—and that sort of money can keep a girl in sequins for all her nine lives.

. . Beauty note—Frank Fay, radio comedian and former husband of Barbara Stanwyck, is said to have had his face raised recently. Barbara's romance with Pretty Bob Taylor, by the way, is said to be colder than a Pom's nose.

—o—o—

I KEEP seeing funny things, for a teetotaler, practically. I rubbed all the mascara off the other night, as I watched a gal trotting around a dance floor. She was wearing a huge diamond star right in the middle of her head, and if she'd been carrying a couple of lighted candles, she could easily have been a Christmas tree. . . .

The store Santa Clauses, by the way, are now busily failing to fool the kids in the department stores. I suppose it is the same with you. The favorite stunt of local 6-year-old cynics is to yank the poor blokes' whiskers clean off. There's no reverence any more, somehow!

—o—o—

THE LOCAL she-fops try their little best, but they still find it hard to top Mrs. Harrison Williams when it comes to looking swell. I beheld Mrs. W. at the Colony a few moons ago wearing a brown high-necked wool dress with two diamond clips at the throat. Over this was a deep burnt-orange cloth coat, fur-trimmed. She looked perfectly magniloquent and gorgeous—yes, I will go so far as to say she looked simply fine. La Belle Williams not only knows her stuff, but can afford to buy it, and does.

—o—o—

WITH OUR Sheila Barrett, ace mimic, now delighting Chicagoans at the Drake Hotel, her spot at Mr. Rockefeller's cloudland saloon, the Rainbow Room, has been filled by a pretty Italian singer named Milly Monti. Milly is dripping with personality, and the place has been filled with many of our most social spaghetti-demolishers since her debut. It was at Milly's first night that I saw Bette Davis up there, looking ravishing in a blue damask frock which perfectly adorned her blonde prettiness. . . Well, at last I know the whereabouts of that DEAR Mr. Alexander Woolcott. He's signed another radio contract, for 13 weeks and again that dulcet voice will come soothingly over the air waves.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

THERE are a number of things about the duties of firemen which have always seemed nice but slightly unreasonable to us in our juvenile grasp of metropolitan organization. One of them is the receiving of toys to be turned over to the Toy Guild of the Board of Religious Organization. Sometimes the firemen spend their spare moments touching up make-up on faded baby dolls and replacing spare parts on locomotives, and sometimes the board does that, distributing the toys later to poor children at Christmas. The firemen advertise their interest in the charity with signs in every station, which say specifically that toys will be received here, nothing about sending for them. One woman we know got some playthings together after fall house-cleaning and telephoned for the fire department to come get them.

An overzealous clerk at the other end of the line didn't listen beyond her name and address, hung up feverishly. In a few minutes a pumper company and a hook and ladder roared up to her front door. Visibly disappointed, the firemen sulked back to their station, with a sack of broken toys.

—o—o—

ANOTHER occupation in which firemen and their trucks engage regularly is the testing of new fire hose at the lagoon at the foot of Art Hill. The men detailed to the job display no particular interest in it. They just stand around and watch the hose suck up the water and spit it out again in what seems to us an unmannerly fashion.

We thought you ought to know what was behind the procedure, so we went around the other afternoon to talk to Deputy Fire Chief Larry Cornoyer in the offices of the fire department on the fourth floor of the City Hall, and we ran smack into a fire alarm.

The first inkling we got was in the elevator when the operator said to us, "Sorry, Miss, but you'll have to come along with me." Up to the fourth floor we sped, admitted Fire Chief John J. O'Boyle as he struggled into his uniform coat, and delivered him promptly below.

When we got back up to the fire department offices we found the force as excited as small boys when the engines go past. They were calling the location to each other as it ticked off a paper tape—it was that fire at the John C. Roever Feed & Milling Co.—and they hurried to the windows to catch a glimpse of the Chief's car. When someone shouted, "There goes the third," even Cornoyer showed signs of interest. With the Chief out on a call, he was acting head but took it lightly, so we got right down to business.

YES, THOSE were new pumpers in Forest Park, testing out their hose. It was a 12-hour or more examination, supervised by representatives of the Missouri Inspection Bureau. Sometimes the testing goes on at the levee, if there is a barge handy, but it's really more convenient in the park, Cornoyer said. For one thing, there's a hard surface near the lagoon, where the new trucks can park without getting all muddied up.

They have to prove that they can lift water 10 feet and demonstrate how many gallons per minute they are capable of handling. The test in the park is not quite accurate, really, because there the pumpers have to do all the work, while at a fire they get a "head of water," that is, some assistance in pressure from the hydrant.

Once a year all 51 pumpers in the city Fire Department are checked by the Missouri Inspection Bureau, by the master mechanic of the department, the Lieutenant of Engineers, and the Fire Chief.

—o—o—

WE ALWAYS supposed that every engine house was equipped the same way, but that turned out to be a mistaken idea. There are these 51 pumper companies we've been talking about. Then there are 23 hook and ladder companies. Some of them have aerial ladder trucks, that is, trucks on which the ladders are mechanically raised. This is necessary when the "main stick" is as tall sometimes as 85 feet. Smaller ladders, the Bangor type, with only 40 or 50 foot sticks, are carried on what are called city service trucks.

Three companies in the Fire Department house only high-pressure turret wagons, which carry 1000 feet of three-inch hose and tanks of chemical extinguisher.

There also are two water tower companies which run to every call in the congested district on the first alarm, to perform the function their name indicates.

To serve the pumpers at a fire, the city has four gasoline tank wagons, which stand by, ready to lubricate and refuel. These companies cover the city from points in east center, west center, north center and south, and two are kept in reserve at the repair shop.

Most remarkable of all fire-fighting

Extra Women x x x

By MARJORIE HILLIS

THE MAIL I've been receiving lately, mostly from Extra Women, has made me realize what a lot of us there must be. Apparently, we total up to a really staggering number. And we're not just in the large cities—we're all over the country, buying our own pastries and pearls.

At first, it seemed to me that we were a modern phenomena—something that hadn't existed a comparatively few years ago. But on second thought, I suspect that we're just more conspicuous. We now have establishments of our own, instead of attaching ourselves like barnacles to our relatives. In the good old days (which, thank heaven, I didn't have to live in), if you didn't land a husband there was practically nothing to do but settle down with your married brother or sister or cousin and become a maiden aunt—which must have been about as pleasant as being sentenced to Devil's Island. The life of a maiden aunt—if you can call it a life, and if literature reports it accurately—must have been so dully inconspicuous as to be practically invisible. I'm afraid that can't be said of the life of the Extra Woman of today. We get around so much that you can't miss us!

Today, there are even some who are Extra Women from preference—though, of course, the men won't believe this. I don't mean that we aren't just as sentimental as ever or that most of us wouldn't prefer romance to being Brave Little Women on our Own. We're still looking for a good proposition, just as much as we ever were—but it really has to be a good proposition. We don't have to get married in order to avoid becoming maiden aunts. We can wait for what in the good old days used to be called Mr. Right.

The point is that we really do wait. We don't take on a dull husband or a stingy one or a pompous one or even a drunken one because nothing better presents itself. That is, we don't if we have any sense.

We can even turn down quite attractive men for whom we don't happen to feel a grand passion. And this, I think, is one of the great steps forward in the progress of civilization and perhaps more important than flying or the use of radium.

Among my mail, I find a letter from a man who complains bitterly about the menus in "Live Alone and Like It." "Cream sauces," he says—"how could I? And creamed mushrooms, or crabflake newburg! And peaches with raspberries over them! Ugh!"

He didn't notice, apparently, that the menus were planned for women who lived alone. He didn't consider that if such a lady ordered a roast, she'd be eating it for weeks, and that even a nice juicy steak would be an extravagance.

Besides, there are few things more definitely masculine and feminine than tastes in food. Most women like fixed-up dishes with delicious sauces. Most women love salads, and desserts with trimmings. They actually prefer a casserole dish to a large platter with an enormous ham or prime ribs of beef or a circle of pork chops. The fact that, every day, thousands and thousands of women order meals made up of a thick beefsteak, mashed potatoes, corn on the cob, and apple-pie, is a tribute to their unselfishness towards the men who will eat the meals with them. The women themselves—most of them—would much rather have sweetbreads and artichoke hearts with a good rich sauce and a strawberry mousse for dessert.

But tastes in food are not merely masculine and feminine. They are a giveaway of the type of person you are. Dine six days a week with a man or a woman and notice what he or she orders, and you can make a pretty sure guess as to background, sophistication, and the amount of travel accomplished—to say nothing of health! Unimaginative people order trite meals; narrow people order dull meals. And dullest of all people are those who eat what is set before them without noticing much, if anything, about it.

I, for one, prefer the man who wrote me to complain about my menus.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.

AMBASSADOR NORMAN DAVIS' daughter, Sarah, will be married to J. Stirling Getchell, her ex-boss, next month. . . . Max Schmeling just cabled fight officials here: "No American represents me." Meaning that his Joosh manager (Joe Jacobs) is out, no doubt. . . . Irene Kuhn, editor of "The New York Woman" until last issue—will sue the publishers for breach of contract. . . . Medora Roosevelt, barred by Sherman Billingsley from his Stork Club, sent him an invite to her wedding! . . . Lillian Emerson's name is listed three different times in the new Social Register—and they haven't spelled it correctly once! . . . Mary Rogers (Will's daughter) and Edmund Grainger are constant pals, but they deny merger plans—for now, anyway. . . . The Jesse Livermores will go to the courts again soon to war over the custody of the younger son, not the one who was shot. . . . Sylvia Gould, deb daughter of the Kingdon Goulds, and J. Wade are a new merger threat. . . . That duel-challenger in Yurrop is swapping cables with his friends (Harrison and Fisher, dancers in the Follies) about public appearances here. . . . Martha Raye's father, an ex-performer, is readying a flash involving her and his wife. . . . Donald Novis and his ex-wife, Thelma Lockhart, did the Bali together and other spots. Reconsealing? . . . Sam Hearn's version of a celeb's career: 1. Broadway. 2. Hollywood. 3. Reno. 4. Denver.

PLAYING SAFE at CHRISTMAS TIME

Apparel Which Falls Within Luxury Classification Gives Recipient the Most Satisfaction

By SYLVIA STILES

SOME PRACTICAL CHRISTMAS GIFT IDEAS FOR THE MAN OF THE HOUSE. THE TRAVELING CASE COMBINING CANVAS AND CALFSKIN HAS A ZIPPER FASTENING EXTENDING ALL THE WAY AROUND, AND AN INNER CANVAS COMPARTMENT. THE SMALL TRAVEL KIT IS COMPLETE IN ALL ITS DETAILS. THE NECKTIE AND HANDKERCHIEF ARE BOXED TO PLEASE HURRIED CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS. PAJAMAS OF FINE BROADCLOTH COMBINE TWO SHADES OF BLUE. THE SOCKS ARE WOOL AND SO GAY THAT ONLY A ZERO DAY OR A SKATING SPREE WILL EXCUSE THEM. THE DESK SET AT LEFT HAS A MINIATURE COBBLER'S STAND OF MAPLE. THE GLASS ASH TRAY AT LOWER RIGHT IS "MAN-SIZED."

THIS PAJAMA ENSEMBLE COMBINES THE OLD WITH THE NEW. THE QUILTED COAT LOOKS AS IF IT WAS INSPIRED BY AN OLD-FASHIONED "HUG-ME-TIGHT" BUT THE CHANCES ARE IT WILL BE USED AS A SMOKING JACKET. IT IS DULL RED IN TONE TO CONTRAST WITH THE BRIGHT BLUE CREPE OF THE ONE-PIECE TAILORED PAJAMAS.

ANYONE who thinks that the best way of playing safe at Christmas time is to concentrate on gifts to wear had better beware of the treachery of Old Man Style Trends disguised as the bewhiskered gentlemen familiarly known as "Santa Claus."

It might have been all right back in the good old pioneer days to give dad a pair of coonskin mittens or mother a warm gray shawl but the dad of today has been reading up on the vogue in gloves and mother is a bit particular about the sort of stitch displayed in any knitted article. Even Great Aunt Myra, who may cling to her old-fashioned rocking chair, wants her feet encased in fur-lined slippers and she likes a frivolous comb in her hair. As for the younger members of the family, their tastes in clothes have been so influenced by the people of the far-off Tyrol country, by the goings-on in Hollywood, and by the swanky ways of Palm Beach that it takes a Guide to Juvenile Chic to outfit them satisfactorily at the Christmas season.

To further complicate the gift-clothes problem no one rule can be found which applies to every member of the family. A little girl may be convinced that a certain printed frock is exceedingly pretty when shown a photograph of Shirley Temple wearing the same design but tell mother that the "ten best-dressed women of the world" like diamond bracelets and she'll be certain to want rubies or emeralds instead. The Young Heir who is in his first year at college likewise may be persuaded to accept a sports jacket if it's a Robert Taylor style, while one who ranks as a senior will scoff at the garment for the very same reason.

So the best advice to a generous soul intent on giving clothes to relatives at Christmas is to know your victim, be certain of the size and don't overlook that all-important "Exchange" provision on anything you buy.

—o—o—

GENERALLY speaking, apparel which falls within the luxury classification and a person could very well do without, brings the greatest amount of satisfaction. A little girl with holes in her shoes thinks you are a fairy godmother if you forget to repair the soles and supply her with a vivid cap and scarf, while a woman on the sunset of life will be more proud of a scented boutonnaire than a warm pair of gloves. Masculine tastes likewise lean toward self adornment, so don't think that because grandfather always scoffs at lounging coats and for years has called them "sissy," won't like to set before the fire in a comfy woolen robe and read his evening paper.

There's a mistaken idea that girls and boys are harder to please with apparel gifts than are their elders but if you remember back to last Christmas it wasn't Junior who squawked about his Christmas neckties but it was his usually amiable father. Give a girl in her early teens a taffeta party dress and you won't hear any comments as to the color but try to select a pair of stockings for her mother without getting some snappy comeback about the sheerness or the shade.

Starting with the child who is having a first Christmas to great-grandmother who won't be having very many more, there are many suggestions for wearable gifts in the St. Louis shops. For the baby you will find a handsome collection of knitted sweaters, caps and bootees as well as elegant robes and blankets. Especially attractive for the girl from two to six is a knitted snow suit available of white, pale blue or pink that has a knitted poke bonnet to match. Mittens also are provided as part of a four-piece set.

Muffs are designed for every age and are as certain to please as any item of feminine apparel, especially this year when these old-fashioned accessories have returned to fashion importance. Created for the tiny tot is a teddy bear muff, the white wooly bear attired in pink velveteen overalls and having a slit through the middle so hands can be thrust inside and kept warm. Next in size is a white fur muff looking like a curled up white kitten. Its eyes are bright and its tail is long and silky. A pocketbook is an added feature.

Although fashion critics frown upon the fur coat for the very small child, Santa Claus has some miniature coats of bunny fur that a doting granparent will find hard to resist. They are similar in appearance to the bunny capes and jackets which high school and college girls welcome as much as an older sister welcomes an ermine wrap.

Snow suits for boys and girls are designed so similarly that it makes little difference whether you purchase a girl's suit in the boys' or girls' shop. In fact, girls seem to like the boyish appearance of their ski clothes. Many of this season's suits are equipped with hoods. The suit which has its own cap or hood, scarf and sweater in addition to ski pants and jackets is a favorite.

The helmet type of cap which formerly was reserved for tiny tots is featured this Christmas for older boys and girls. It is ideal for skating or other outdoor sports. Sets that have scarf, mittens and cap are shown in abundance and in a variety of color combinations. Leather coats are continuing their popularity as are the lumber jacket type of sports coats made of heavy blanket woolens. Zipper fastenings and roomy pockets add to their popularity.

DRESSING robes for boys and men pay little attention to the difference of ages. It's only a matetr of size when it comes to a good-looking flannel garment. Those striking plaid robes are available for the small boy as well as for his father. Smart alligator grained slippers also can be obtained in small sizes as well as larger ones. A new robe for men is made of a material which looks like wool challis but is reallya synthetic. It may be had in the short cocktail coat or the regulation robe length.

When a boy reaches the age where he demands a dinner suit he is as eager as his sister for gifts to contribute to his evening wardrobe. You can't please a high school or college lad better than to outfit him with a tuxedo and all the "trimmings" but you'd better let him help you do the choosing, because he knows what he wants and styles are changing rapidly.

Shirts that display very gay plaid designs are included in gift merchandise this year, and because they are so difficult to combine with neckties, many shops are offering Christmas boxes which have shirt, tie and 'kerchief to harmonize. Perhaps this will save the women of the family some embarrassment, after all the wisecracks that have been made about their taste in choosing cravats. Sports socks also are included in some gift sets as are stocking "wardrobes," so called because there are a half dozen pairs of socks in different colors and textures included in one box.

Fancy vests have become the vogue and while most of them look as though they were intended for sports wear, conservative dressers often surprise you by appearing in a blatant version during business hours. If they are that gay before Christmas, certainly the Christmas melee can't be blamed for their taste in dress.

The subject of gifts for a woman to wear covers so much territory there is space only for a few highlights here. Boudoir apparel always heads the list of gift wearables and since we are in the midst of an elegant era there are exquisite creations from which to choose. College girls and many older women prefer the tailored sort of things—initialed pajamas, quilted smoking jackets, flannel house coats and leather slippers. However, the lover of frills will find satin nightgowns with bias skirts that have the swinging hemlines, rich brocades cut into hostess gowns of unusual beauty, bed jackets and capes combining ostrich and marabou, feather and fur-trimmed boudoir boots, and plenty of velvet frou-frou.

In the accessory field there is everything that a feminine heart desires from hand-embroidered chiffon scarfs and matching 'kerchiefs to hand-blocked linen scarfs for sports; from necklaces of pearls and brooches of rhinestones to bracelets of leather or noise-making charms; and from bags of brocades, that are rich and beaded, to London calfskin pouches for sports.

Culottes in Vogue At Winter Resorts

ADVANCED collections of winter resort fashions that are arriving in St. Louis shops indicate that the culotte will continue as the most important cosume for acive sportswear. Realizing that it will meet with greater success if presented with some new sort of feature, the designers are offering it as part of a complete costume. A redingote type of coat covers the divided skirt so that the wearer can go about her shopping in a dignified costume, and by discarding the coat is ready for a game of golf or tennis.

All sorts of handsome linens, heavy silks and peasant cottons are being employed for the culotte ensembles. Many of the coats are edged with a contrasting color or fabric, which not only borders the hemline but finishes the fitted front.

Tan Colors to Front

Now that women are becoming accustomed to the return of beige as a fashionable shade, the creators of smart costumes are becoming boider and referring to some of their newest brain children as commonplace "tan" in color. Judging by the enthusiasm for the light and neutral hue, everyone will have at least one tan coat or tan suit in her wardrobe six months from now.

The separate woolen coat that is suitable for the average daytime needs is being advocated for spring in several different tints of beige or tan. Suits are being made of a light putty tone and trimmed with leather buttons and belt of a darker, luggage shade. Dresses, footwear, hats and accessories are likewise repeating the trend—or will be when the next season's style leaders are launched.

High Coiffures Next Spring?

IF the London fashion authorities have their way, women will be letting their hair grow in order to have tresses piled high on their heads by next spring. Some of them in looking back to 1911, the last coronation year, for their inspiration have studied the profiles of that date and discovered that high coiffures were the vogue. Perhaps the off-the-ears movement of the current season is merely a hint of more startling headdresses soon to appear.

What happens to hats when wads of hair return to favor is something for the milliners to worry about. There's plenty of room for plenty of hair in the high crowns of the winter but rumor has it that a hat must perch high on the head in the regulation Queen Mary fashion, so width as well as depth of crown is considered important.

THE long-awaited scrapbook chronicling the legend of Jack and Charlie's "21," called "The Iron Gate," has at last made its appearance and really is an important item for collectors of Manhattan lore. A few naive souls imagined in advance that this compilation of the Fifty-second street saga was a sort of altruistic gesture on the part of the Brothers Kriendler, a monument to the lit'ry and artistic talents of their professional friends and patrons, but in a word, no; it's chock full of advertising copy that is almost as good reading matter as the contributed copy.

The names of the contributors alone would make the editors of, say, "Cosmopolitan" green with envy: Russell Patterson, Arthur William Brown, Robert Benchley, Morris Markey, Ed Sullivan, Bill Corum, Stanley Walker, Ben Hecht, Louis Sobol, James Montgomery Flagg, George Jean Nathan, McClelland Barclay, Lois Long, Frank Buck and Damon Runyon, to name only a small fraction of the index. And it isn't bottom-of-the-drawer stuff, either, rewritten with a new lead, to make it suitable to the occasion. It is costly and carefully considered copy.

Bob McManus has a swell piece, hymning the glories of the old Matt Winkle-under-the-clock-at-the-Blitmore days; Mark Hellinger has a lovely item called "The Rover Boys of '21," and Quentin Reynold has a scholarly monograph on the history of the hot-foot called "They Burned Rome, Didn't They?" In the field of art there is Stephen Etnier's familiar full-length portrait of Stanley Sackett called "Cocktail Time," a sketch of Henry, the chef, by James Williamson, and the celebrated layout of photographs from the 1933 issue of "Fortune," taken when the house was still subrosa, legally speaking, but already one of the town's most distinguished institutions. You can't buy "The Iron Gate"; it's just for the friends of the house and in a short time should be very much of a book collector's item.

THE SKIING madness, what with the alliance of Averell Harriman and Saks Fifth Avenue in the name of snow down the neck, is going to be something terrible this season. The following frightening dispatch quoted from "The Idaho Daily Statesman" will give some idea of what is going on in the remoter reaches of the Union Pacific's empire.

"KETCHUM (Special.)—Natives of Ketchem were puzzled Saturday by the latest development at Sun Valley Lodge, Union Pacific winter sports place. Two hundred and seventy bathtubs, a mountain of porcelain and some miles of pipes were unloaded. The hotel plan provides for only 200 rooms, and workmen suggested that some rooms would be equipped with twin tubs as well as with twin beds."

—o—o—

THE PROBABILITY that New York will be a ghost city by the time they get around to coronation week in England is heightened every time Mrs. Grace Ansell goes out to dinner. And who's going to be left to man the town, what with every bus driver, janitor and steam fitter planning to be in London for that parade, nobody seems to know.

Anyway, Mrs. Gracie Ansell is an Englishwoman of middle years who seems to have secured the coronation week flat-renting concession for the whole United States, its independence and territories beyond the seas, and she is what can only be described as awash with business. She'll rent you a flat facing the line of march, "a marvelous place, right next the Duke of York's house, overlooking both parks," or a single room, where you will doubtless be able to hear the bands by leaning well out over the window ledge, if you don't fall to what the British call the footway 10 floors beneath.

The rent will stand you from $1500 for the several days of coronation ceremonies up to $10,000 for the entire month of imperial doings, and in the higher brackets you get Rolls Royces, footmen and keys to the wine cellars thrown in. Mrs. Ansell's oldest friend is Violet, Duchess of Rutland, and it's pretty well understood that anybody in the $10,000 class can count on having Violet, Duchess of Rutland, in for tea one afternoon. You see, the best of everything!

THEY ARE telling about the aged actor who was a notorious touch artist and who a short time ago approached a friend in a Longacre Square bar with a tearful appeal for funds. He hadn't been able to afford a new suit for years, and what with winter coming on and all—anyway, he got the price of an outfit.

A few days later an excited friend came up to the touch victim in the same bar and cried, "Migosh! Have you heard about poor old Freddy Footlights? He just fell dead!" The pal was gravelled and reached for

The House You Live In

LET ME SUGGEST

by Josephine Walter

SCARCELY in the category of burning questions and yet one of those little problems that puzzles many a housekeeper is the use of doilies, runners or scarfs for the tops of tables or chests of drawers. Are they essential, are they permissible or are they frankly outmoded?

Well, we don't want to lay down any hard and fast rules or be pedantic about the whole subject but in most instances they are extraneous and should be eliminated. They are pretty much a hang-over from the Victorian era, along with such other dust-catchers as anti-macasars which were little "tidies" to save the upholstery, and voluminous draperies, when the stuffy "parlor" was in vogue.

Today, with our gleaming surface tops of either finely polished wood or mirror and glass and our many new and charming decorative accessories, there is little need for these favorites of a by-gone era. Dining room tables are usually done with a mirrored plaque and bowls of fruit or flowers, increasingly of the artificial type. Dressers and chests of drawers in bedrooms frequently have mirroret tops or an interesting bit of garniture such as a make-up box or a set of bottles. And living room tables, usually quite small today, are apt to hold merely a lamp and smoking accessories.

—o-o—

● IF, HOWEVER, your house is done with treasured Victorian pieces and you feel that these doilies will add an authentic touch or if you are wedded to them in spite of present fashions, do, at least, have scarfs with some originality of design. Embroidered organdy or mull, bought at the dress goods counter, would prove attractive for a bedroom. Bindings of fringe such as is used on curtains might be effective. Simple monogrammed ones would be in good taste and, for a quaint country house, the name of the place might be embroidered on.

—o-o—

Around the holidays, when much entertaining is being done, comes a grand new idea for an attractive table set-up. Ensembled china and linen is something new under the candles which should prove most popular. In these sets, which are quite modern in spirit, the design on the china and that on the linen is identical as to pattern and coloring. The linen comes in both clothes and place mats with napkins to match. It might sound as if it were an extravagant idea but one lovely set, reserved for festive occasions, would not be prohibitive and would make even entertaining the boss's wife a pleasure.

—o-o—

● AND WHILE we're on the subject of eating, here is a note addressed to those luxurious souls whose day is never quite complete unless they start off with breakfast in bed. Instead of even making the effort to balance a tray on your fragile little knees, why not have a table which is of the glorified hospital type, which fits over the entire bed? A table of this type is not only a boon to the breakfast-in-bedder but is also a grand thing to have around for those times when you have a convalescent in the home.

Addendum: The French custom of having a little table in the bedroom or boudoir is one that might be incorporated to advantage in our American homes. Breakfast for two on Sunday morning in such a spot might be a pleasant way of avoiding childish prattle until you feel able to face it and also evade gazing upon the debris of Saturday night entertaining.

NOT MANY years ago, practically everyone was a print collector or at least had a few prints to hang upon the wall. Now prints are really very nice, and so inoffensive that scarcely anyone could make a mistake in the selecting of them. Today's prints are a decided improvement over some of the terrible oils that used to be hung in the name of art. But even prints do not fit into all types of rooms, unless you happen to be a real print fancier and demand that your collection be hung around you.

There are now a wealth of charming and inexpensive pictures which would provide a focal point of interest in any room. Among the newest and most delightful are some delicately done water colors in pastel tones with a Jane Austen flavor to them.

● DECORATING Term for the Week: Treads and Risers—the parts of a step or stair. The tread is the upper or level part which is stepped on and the riser is the vertical part that supports and spaces the treads.

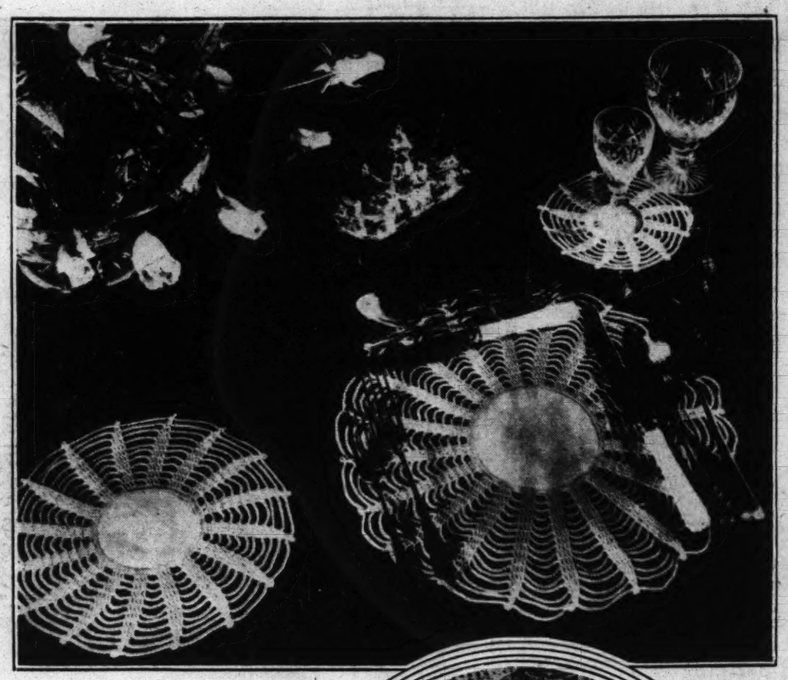

—o-o—

QUESTIONS: The apartment I am in has a very glossy finish on the woodwork which I very much dislike. Is there any way of removing this gloss from the paint without harming the finish?

MRS. R. L. M.

Answer: Try rubbing the gloss off with powdered pumice and water. If this does not work it will be necessary either to give the present paint a coat of dull varnish or to repaint with one coat of flat paint.

THINGS FOR the HOME

THIS DOLIE PATTERN CALLED EMPIRE ISN'T HARD TO MAKE.

WHAT TABLE WOULDN'T LOOK FESTIVE WITH AN ALLOVER LACE TABLECLOTH LIKE THIS TO FRAME YOUR CHINA WITH DELICACY?

By Elizabeth Boykin

IF you have a heart of gold, then no doubt you are engrossed with thoughts of hand-made gifts for the extra special names on your Christmas list. Because certainly nothing is nicer than some of the beautiful handwork that is so fashionable today. But we personally don't feel quite so generous, so we're busy these wintry evenings making things of colors to match our own living room, thank you!

Whether you're going to do your handwork for yourself or for somebody else, you'll be interested in the perfectly marvelous things there are to make. The crocheted table sets, for instance, are as pretty and smart as you please—doilies and mat sets in either circular or rectangular shapes in combination, with linen or all of crochet lace. There are ever so many new novelty stitches in either coarse or fine weaves. Ecru is the most fashionable color, but white is always good, too. In deciding on the tone, keep in mind the china they will be used with. These doily and mat sets aren't hard to make and go fast, which is an added inducement.

But, if you're really ambitious—try your hand at a banquet cloth—there are some crocheted ones that are very gorgeous. Gossamer and intricate, they set off a table and make any occasion seem very festive. You will find a choice of patterns available; these, too, are most modish in ecru, which gives them a rich antique effect. An all-over lace cloth isn't really so hard to make, but it takes time and stick-to-it-iveness. If you don't feel quite up to that right off the bat, try a cloth that combines crochet lace with linen insets.

—o-o—

ANOTHER piece of handwork that is really something is a crocheted bedspread. That's a gift we'd bless a friend for to the end of our days—we're struggling over one ourself right now but we'd adore another for our guest room. Any woman with one crocheted bedspread—not to mention two of them—would have an heirloom worth talking about. It would dignify most any bedroom and, of course, would last forever. There are many patterns to choose from, both old-fashioned and modern.

A thoughtful gift is an afghan, that most useful of household luxuries. There are the grandest colors, the most sumptuous weaves and stitches.

The afghan we're partial to this year is a Victorian design in panels of alternating dark and white rather close weave with a substantial body. Then on the light panels are cross-stitch garlands in color—the effect is quite unusual and distinctive.

If you still prefer the block type afghans, there are plenty of different designs that you or a best friend or relation will like. Much nicer if you make the afghan in a color scheme to contribute an accenting note to the room the afghan is to be used in. That means for some rooms afghans in two tones of the same color will be better; in other rooms a combination of two or three different colors is the thing; while in still other rooms, the multi-colored afghans are just right.

When all is said and done, needlepoint is probably the most cherished of all hand-work. A classic flower and fruit still-life grouping, after a famous painting in an art gallery, would be a very wonderful Christmas gift for someone to whom you're especially devoted. Such a picture of needlework would be appropriate to frame for the wall. There are also portraits and scenes available in needlepoint, not to mention ships, Godey pictures, animals and Currier and Ives designs. In more utilitarian pieces, such as chair seats, you'll find fruit designs newer and more interesting than flowers. Among the novelty small things to make of needlepoint are albums, book-ends and tray tops (to use under glass). Needlepoint is generally offered in partially worked pieces with the design finished but the background left for you to fill in in any color you like. Your favorite department store will have a wide selection.

If you're really big-hearted, make a rug after some of the handsome patterns the art needlework departments in the stores are showing. There are lots of new gadgets that make rug making easier and pleasanter—the latest is a needle that clips the loops as you make them and also spaces the stitches so that the pile will be level and uniform.

Vivid Touches May Be Added To Costumes

Conservatives, However, Stress the Importance of Black and White.

WHILE the conservative element in fashion circles preaches about the importance of black and white for winter frocks and complete daytime costumes, there's a more radical element advocating the introduction of bright color even though it be confined to a scarf, a flower or a handbag.

Evidences of these vivid touches of a costume are found more often in evening attire or in sports clothes that are designed for the winter resort season. There are those bright flannel jackets, for example, which look as though they belong on a golf course, but are created for dinner wear. Soft of texture, fitted of line and extremely tailored they are exceedingly attractive when worn to the right places by the right person. The addition of a matching felt rose perched on the top of the head is guaranteed to create a sensation.

A turban made of vividly colored chiffon that wraps the head like a Turkish headdress is another illustration of the vogue of color. It may be of any one of a half dozen different shades, all exotic and a trifle wild. Incidentally a scarf to match isn't such a daring idea.

As for footwear, color steps along to keep pace with that on heads and shoulders. We've heard a lot of talk about bright kid slippers for evening, and have seen some evidences of the trend around St. Louis, but wait until those bright reptile "flats" make their appearance. They are most startling when tinted bright red or green, although bright navy and beige are being advocated.

Disposal of Bulbs

Are you careful about the disposal of burned-out light bulbs? These should be taken care of conscientiously. They have been known to burst, sending flying particles of glass in every direction and injuring the sight of children. Save the containers the new bulbs come in, and put the burned-out bulbs into these. Then you can give them to the trash collector. The cardboard container may save some one's eyesight should the bulb burst.

Easy Silver Cleaning

One of those chemically treated cloths which you may purchase from the jeweler is a grand thing to keep in the house for emergency silver cleaning. Furnaces being what they are, and St. Louis air being what it is, silver must be cleaned regularly. But in between polishings, there are many occasions when it can stand a little extra shining. For this, the jeweler's cloth is the answer to the housewife's prayer.

GIFTS in NEW STYLES

CHRISTMAS GIFT SUGGESTIONS FOR EVERY MEMBER OF THE FAMILY ARE INCLUDED IN THIS COLLECTION, WHICH RECOGNIZES THE IMPORTANCE OF STYLE AND NOVELTY

Changing Trends Are Shown in Latest Displays.

WHETHER you are seeking a Christmas gift for young or old, sophisticated or demure, there's something in the collection illustrated to solve your problem. The group has been assembled to take consideration first of all of the element of changing style trends, an element which affects toys and household items as it does clothes and accessories. Each article has a certain newness about it that stamps it definitely as Christmas, 1936.

On the glass shelf you see first at the left a child's lamp that has a parchment shade and a novel base formed of blocks painted red, white and blue. A gray elephant, a brown squirrel, a bright bird and a red "A" are decorative notes. The red velvet dachshund below might go to the same child or it might adorn a college girl's couch now that stuffed animals are going to college. The dachshund is long and low swung, and it wears a jaunty white felt beret to match its white wool eyelashes and harness. The other animals wrapped in cellophane are Black Beauty and Baby—a black velvet horse with white markings and a red velvet colt also marked with white. Both have amusing white yarn tails and manes, and again have that air of sophistication that grown-ups as well as children like.

TWO FITTED cases are included in the group, one designed for a man and the other for a woman. The larger case shown at lower right is made of pigskin with an oiled silk lining. It is fitted with eight pieces: hairbrush and clothes brush with blond wood backs, matching celluloid containers for razors, soap, and toothbrush, comb and nail file. The women's case with its swanky striped lining is made of lizard grain leather and is fitted with bottles and jars having tops to match the outside covering. Available colors are black, brown and London tan.

Illustrated at the lower center is a complete leather desk set. It is made of top grain russet saddle leather, hand stitched. A pad, inkwell, blotter and letter opener are included. Although intended primarily for men, the set is equally suitable for a sportswoman. A leather sports picture frame mounted with saddle straps and buckle ensembles nicely with the desk set. Frames of this type are used for pictures of horses, dogs and hunting scene as well as for pictures of persons in sports clothes.

A CONVENIENT writing pad with walnut base and clamp, aluminum strip and square paper scratch pad is ideal for use at the telephone, in the pantry or in children's rooms. Another household item shown attractively boxed at lower left is a thermometer set. This is arranged in a convenient oil cloth container and includes three thermometers, one for candy-making, one for deep fat frying and one for roasts.

A pair of "gossips" to contain jam or marmalade will brighten up the breakfast tray. They are of pottery ware painted in natural color, one with a blue trimmed costume, the other costume with orange trimming. Also new is the can of gum to place around the house in a handy location to sweeten the breath and kill odors of onion, garlic or liquor. The gum is attractively boxed in a tin can with a tan braided covering and a brown top.

Several new jewelry items are included in the collection. There is a three-strand gold bead necklace which fastens with an exaggerated hook-and-eye clasp. The beads are hand-brushed and 24-karat gold plated. Another necklace of twisted beads, six strands in all, shows the new combination of pearl with turquoise, pearl with coral, and turquoise with coral. A bracelet and necklace of branch coral illustrate a revival in jewelry, while a bell-shaped clip pin set with rhinestones and constructed so that it may be separated to form two clips typifies a new trend. A novelty in sports jewelry is the leather bracelet consisting of squares of brown leather set in gilt metal rims. This fastens with a small buckle and strap.

Home Handicraft Presents

By HAROLD T. BODKIN

EVEN though you have delayed until now to make up something for somebody on your gift list, don't give up the ship! There's still plenty of time to get out the two novel and attractive little projects detailed here. Both are easy coping saw or jigsaw jobs, which means that you can saw out several at the same time from the quarter-inch thick plywood used as material, if you care to do so.

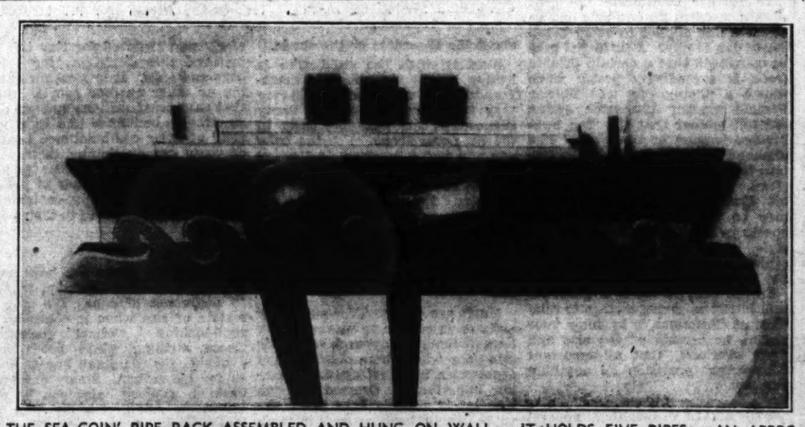

Speaking of ships; the sea-goin' pipe rack displays a simplified, modern ocean liner as one of its units. This isn't a true ship model, as to detail, but the form is accurate enough to carry out the general idea intended. Your friend should be very pleased with it!

Handicraft Plan No. 52 shows both of these projects full size. You'll save time if you obtain this plan because all you must do then is to place a piece of carbon paper on the plywood and trace directly over the Plan. In this way, all the curves, color areas and other details will be located exactly as on the original design.

When the different parts are sawed to shape, they are sanded smoothly to make ready for painting and assembly.

The front board (conventional waves) is nailed and glued to the pipe board, at right angles and flush with the bottom of the latter. The pipe board should be solid hardwood, because plywood does not hold well when glued and nailed into its edges. Of course, this board is drilled with the five ¾-inch holes first. After assembly, the entire unit is enameled a deep blue color.

The hull is next. You may first enamel it black and red, as shown. Then, you may either "spot" in the portholes with white enamel, or drive and countersink small flat-headed brads at these locations. When countersunk, the brad heads give the effect of glass ports. Now, taper a meat skewer or a lollypop stick to the size shown and glue and nail into place, giving this mast the proper rake aft. The mast is then colored black and white as shown. Note that the lower ends of the masts and stacks are flattened and half-lapped to the hull and upper works.

THE SEA-GOIN' PIPE RACK ASSEMBLED AND HUNG ON WALL. IT HOLDS FIVE PIPES. AN APPROPRIATE GIFT FOR A PIPE SMOKER AND ESPECIALLY FOR ONE WHO IS ALWAYS MISLAYING HIS PIPE.

The part of the upper works that shows above the hull is white enameled. Don't bother to put in cabin windows and doors. The deck lines can be indicated by straight black lines, with a slightly heavier gray line drawn under each one, flush to the back.

At this point, you may decide to leave the enamel on all parts bright, or, to rub it dull with fine pumice and linseed oil, cleaning off the oil later with cold water. Either finish is attractive.

Final assembly of all parts is made with nails (from the back) and glue. Two brass or wire loops are then tacked on at the back to hang the rack to the wall.

The general method of drawing the outline and sawing out the parts of the candle bracket is the same as described for the pipe rack. For decorating, you may again use bright enamels, leaving them bright or rubbed down dull as you prefer. The original was finished in a rust-red color and hand-decorated with flowers around the sides. Such brackets are attractive in plain colors but, if you want added decorations, you can buy decalcomania designs of different kinds from a paint or wallpaper store. The usual price is between 10 and 25 cents each, according to size. These are applied with cold water, as directed on the package. Following application, they are brushed over with thin clear varnish. These brackets are hinged to fold flat and are usually made up in pairs, being given in neat, flat gift boxes.

ing equipment, it seemed to me, was the foam wagon. Three of these are on call for all fires, which have to be put out with a chemical foam compound generated by a machine of some sort.

And the most versatile of the trucks is certainly the "squad." It is fitted out with electric light generators, floods and spots, manually operated for night fires; air blowers and smoke ejectors for the relief of victims trapped underground or in a smoke-filled building; self-contained oxygen masks; power jacks that can lift 20 or 30 tons; acetylene cutters; block and tackle and wall hooks to pull over walls that would be likely to crash anyway; and all sorts of first-aid equipment, such as inhalators, resuscitators, stretchers and salve.

Companies move up to keep the city protected when a big fire draws out a number of pumpers and ladders. It goes on in a complicated way, according to a ledger kept for reference in the fire alarm office, which is a separate department, also on the fourth floor of the City Hall. The move-ups are all figured out in advance, but they can't be automatic, because some of the companies that were counted on to move up might be out at a fire of their own.

All alarms, including those called "still" — which are alarms telephoned in or set off by automatic sprinkler systems and privately owned fire boxes—come into the fire alarm department. The wheels start moving rapidly. For instance, if you turn in an alarm at one of these red fire boxes on the street corner, you start a buzz and a flash opposite a certain number on an electric board in the fire alarm office.

The operators in the office then set the transmitter at that number which communicates it to every engine house. Men on duty there listen for the signals and if the number appears on their running card which hangs above the "joker", or fire alarm instrument, they are off at once, guided by the street corner number. On the second alarm, when there are moves to "cover up", operators in the fire alarm office strike signals instructing the various companies what station to take over.

If anybody tries to tell you he turned in the second alarm for that spectacular fire back in oughtie-ought, when so many tons of coal went up in smoke and so many lives were lost, you may know he's spoofing, according to Cornoyer, because only an officer at the scene of a fire can turn in a multiple alarm. They have to be done in code.

CAULIFLOWER SALAD

COOK ONE large head of cauliflower broken into flowerets in boiling salted water with the juice of one-half lemon until tender, but not soft. Drain and plunge in cold water for just a moment, then drain and wipe dry. Place the flowerets in center of ring and pour over the following dressing:

Two tablespoons of dry mustard
One teaspoon of tumeric
One-half cup sugar
One-fourth cup flour
One tablespoon white mustard seed
Salt

Mix the dry ingredients, add one cup of vinegar and place over hot water and cook until thickened. Cool and add one-half cup of minced celery.

LUNCHEON ROLLS

One cup milk
One large tablespoon each of lard and butter
One cake yeast, dissolved in one-half cup of luke warm water
One large teaspoon of salt

—o-o—

SCALD THE milk, then add the butter, lard and sugar and when cool add the yeast and salt and beat in four cups of hard wheat flour. If necessary add enough more flour so that it will not adhere to the hands. Knead for about 10 minutes. Let rise in a warm place free from draughts from two and a half to three hours. Roll out one-fourth inch thick and cut with a small biscuit cutter. Brush with melted butter and top with another round. Place on the pan in which they are to be baked and let rise again for an hour or an hour and a half, depending on temperature of room. Bake in a hot oven about 15 minutes.

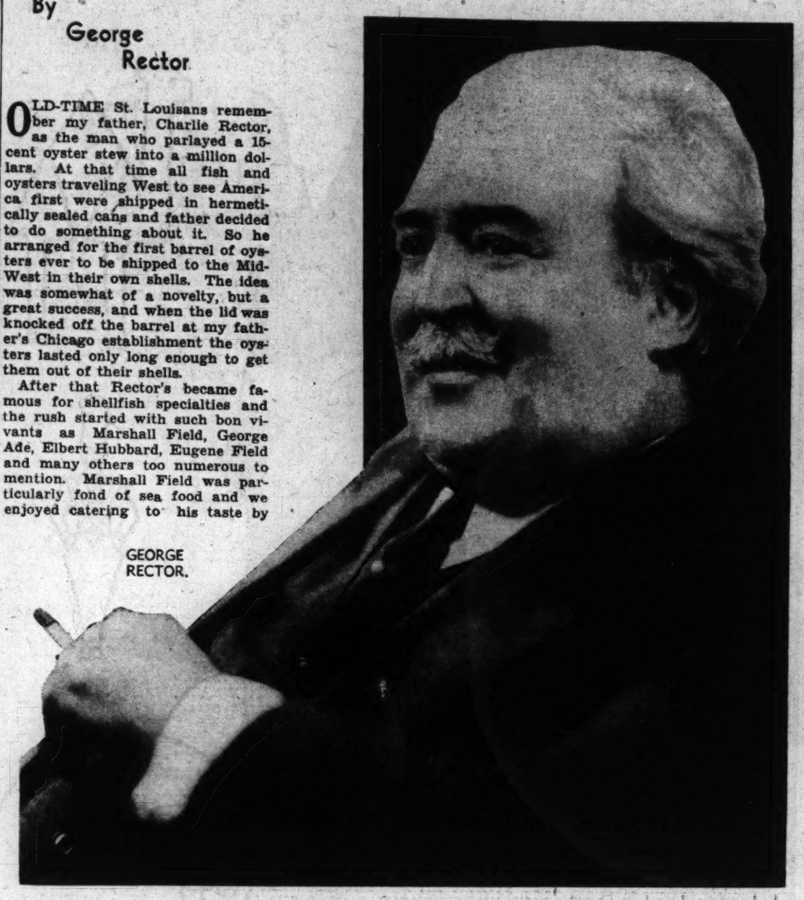

CHOCOLATE VELVET CREAM

Add eight ounces of milk chocolate to one and a half cups of milk and beat in the double boiler. Soften one and a half tablespoons of gelatin in one-half cup of cold milk. When the chocolate is melted beat with a rotary beater until well blended. Add the softened gelatin, two-thirds cup of sugar, a pinch of salt, and stir until the gelatin and sugar are dissolved. Cool and add one and a half cups of heavy cream. Chill over a pan of ice water and beat with a Dover beater until very light and fluffy. Pour into a cold rinsed mold and chill. Unmold and fill center with sweetened and flavored whipped cream and over the cream shave a generous amount of sweet chocolate.

RECTOR'S OWN DISHES

By George Rector

GEORGE RECTOR.

OLD-TIME St. Louisans remember my father, Charlie Rector, as the man who parlayed a 15-cent oyster stew into a million dollars. At that time all fish and oysters traveling West to see America first were shipped in hermetically sealed cans and father decided to do something about it. So he arranged for the first barrel of oysters ever to be shipped to the Mid-West in their own shells. The idea was somewhat of a novelty, but a great success, and when the lid was knocked off the barrel at my father's Chicago establishment the oysters lasted only long enough to get them out of their shells.

After that Rector's became famous for shellfish specialties and the rush started with such bon vivants as Marshall Field, George Ade, Elbert Hubbard, Eugene Field and many others too numerous to mention. Marshall Field was particularly fond of sea food and we enjoyed catering to his taste by originating new dishes and preparing the ones he liked. One of his favorites was "oyster casino," and here is the recipe:

Select large oysters and allow six for each portion. Have individual shallow baking pans for each service. Cover bottom of pan with rock salt and imbed the oysters, which have been opened on the deep shell, in the salt. The bed of salt is used to steady the oyster, thereby holding the liquor in the shell. On each oyster sprinkle one-half teaspoon finely chopped green pepper and one-half teaspoon finely chopped pimiento. Season with salt, a few grains of cayenne pepper and a dash of paprika. Then on top place a piece of sliced bacon which has been cut into one and one-half inch pieces. Broil under moderate flame until bacon is cooked and the edges of the oysters curl or shrivel slightly. Serve immediately and right in the pan in which the oysters were cooked. Clams may also be cooked the same way.

ANOTHER DISH that has remained popular all through the years and one which is simple to make is "Finnan Haddie a la Rector."

Cover a finnan haddie with two cups of milk, add 10 whole black peppercorns, one bay leaf, one pinch of thyme and one slice of onion. Let soak for one hour, then place over low heat and slowly bring to boiling point and let simmer for 10 minutes. Flake fish into pieces, discarding all bones and skin. Strain the milk that the fish cooked in and add one-half cup heavy cream to it, as this is to be used for the sauce. Melt four tablespoons butter, blend in four tablespoons flour and gradually add the hot milk and cream, stirring constantly until smooth and thick. Season with a few grains of cayenne. Add flaked fish to sauce along with one tablespoon chopped pimiento and one tablespoon chopped green pepper which has been blanched. Serve garnished with chopped hard-boiled eggs.

We were the first also to show the amazed citizens of the Mid-West their first live lobsters shipped direct from Maine. Then we topped that off with the first live green sea turtle shipped from the West Indies which found his or her way into soup and other epicurean dishes. The turtle weighed over 300 pounds and celebrated its debut in the Middle West by knocking over a lamp in the freight depot and setting the building on fire. The blaze didn't reach the magnificent proportions of the conflagration started by the left hind foot of Mrs. O'Leary's cow, but it was not so bad for a turtle's first effort.

Getting back to the lobsters, it is only fair to give them a credit line, too, as they contributed in no small way to making our restaurant a popular rendezvous. They were served hot, cold, plain or fancy, but there was always one on the menu with an a la Rector attached to it. Chicago ate and talked lobster for days on end, so it was up to us to keep the interest aroused and the appetite tempted. "Enough oysters and lobsters arrived in the following years to satisfy all, and if mid-Westerners felt grateful for receiving their iodine in palatable form, we filled our part of the contract by keeping them well supplied, as we did not know at the time whether shellfish was a fad or a firmly established institution.

AM AWARE of the fact that the average housewife has many cook books and hundreds of recipes to avoid monotony or sameness of food day by day. We were compelled to scour the four corners of the earth for foods that would provide rare and fancy dishes to avoid repetition of menus, and in so far as I have some space left, I can think of no better purpose to put it than tell you of a good lobster story told me by Augustus W. Mott of the Mott Iron Works.

Mott was the guest of Wilson Marshall on board the two-masted schooner yacht Atlantic and while cruising off Rhode Island the yacht was left becalmed very close to a thicket of lobster pots. Mott asked his host if he could leave the yacht, taking the motor launch and two sailors. Marshall agreed to the request and was astonished to see his guest direct the launch to a lobster pot buoy and order the crew to pull up the pot. This almost caused mutiny, as such an act is punishable in dollars and jail. Nevertheless, Mott had an idea and he intended to see it through. The pot was pulled up and six of the liveliest beauties were withdrawn. He then took his calling card and, with a piece of wire, wrapped it around a bottle of fine old bourbon, lowered it in the pot and sailed away. A few weeks after he returned to his residence at 130th street and Fifth avenue, he received a letter postmarked Rhode Island. It read: "Dear Mr. Mott: Thanks. Call again."

MINCE MEAT PIE COMES INTO ITS OWN IN WINTER

MINCE MEAT, that time-honored favorite, is being groomed as the variety queen of the pie family. Blackberries and huckleberries, apples, cranberries, prunes, apricots, canned cherries and pineapples are just a few of the fruits that have become tasty pie allies of mince meat. This variety in spicy delicacies is especially popular now because modern mince pie is on the "made in a jiffy" list.

Here is a splendid recipe that combines apples and mince meat. Break a nine-ounce package of dry mince meat into pieces. Add one and one-half cups of water. Place over heat and stir until all lumps are broken up. Bring to a brisk boil and continue boiling for one minute and allow to cool. Line a nine-inch pie plate with pastry and fill with mince meat mixture. Spread two cups of fresh cooked apples or apple sauce over the top. Spread upper crust on filled lower one and pinch eggs together. Trim off surplus and bake in hot oven 35 minutes.

A VARIATION of this pie, that is seasonable all winter long, is made with dried prunes. One cup of stewed prunes, drained, is used, and prune juice is substituted for all or part of the water, in which mince meat is boiled for a minute. The prunes are pitted and placed evenly over the top of the mince meat. Then proceed as with the apple mince pie.

Mince meat cranberry pie is a tempting treat to be kept in mind for Thanksgiving and Christmas because it combines these two essentials to a holiday menu. Break a nine-ounce package of dried mince meat into pieces and add one and one-half cups water. Place over heat and stir until all lumps are gone. Bring to brisk boil and continue to boil for three minutes. Remove from fire, and, when cool, mix well with one and one-half cups cooked, sweetened cranberries. Line a nine-inch pie plate with pastry and fill with mince meat mixture. Spread upper crust on filled lower one, pinch edges together and trim off surplus pastry, or cover filled lower crust with criss-cross pastry strips three-quarter-inch wide.

—o-o—

THEN THERE'S a pie containing mince meat and custard. To make it, break up the nine-ounce package of dry mince meat, add one and one-half cups water, place over heat and stir until lumps are broken. Bring to brisk boil, then continue for one minute. Allow to cool. Blend together one-half cup sweetened condensed milk, two well-beaten eggs, two tablespoons molasses and the cooled mince meat. Line pie tin with pie crust and bake in hot oven for five minutes and cool. Pour in custard-mince meat filling and bake about 30 minutes, or until set, in moderate oven.

Cheese Souffle

Ingredients:
Four teaspoons butter.
Five teaspoons flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half cup cheese.
Three eggs.

Method: Melt butter, add salt, and combine with flour. Add grated cheese. Cook and stir until melted. Cool. Add beaten egg yolks, then egg whites which have been beaten until stiff. Set baking dish in pan of hot water and bake at 350 for about an hour. Serve at once.

Many Simple Foods Again Fashionable

Writer Lists Several Recipes for Sturdy, Substantial Fare.

By Alice Lynn Barry

STURDY foods are in fashion as well as in season once more. Among the simple foods that have become smart are steaming piles of flapjacks, Boston baked beans, scrambled eggs and kedgeree. So this collection of recipes is devoted to simple but satisfying fare, whether it be served in mansion or hut.

To be in character, we'll start off with "society hash." Into a stew pan put one cup each chopped cold cooked beef, cooked rice, milk, one teaspoon each salt and pepper and two teaspoons butter. Stir for one minute, then add one well-beaten egg. Add a minced garlic clove, if desired. Turn into baking dish and bake in moderate oven for 20 minutes.

—o-o—

RICE, cooked with some red beans, is a most satisfactory dish. Soak one pound beans over night. Cook the beans, one-half pound salt meat, one chopped onion and seasonings, with enough water to cover, until beans are cooked. Add enough water to cover, until beans are cooked. Add enough water from time to time so that there will be plenty of rich gravy. Boil one cup rice in two quarts boiling, salted water 12 to 25 minutes (until a grain pressed between finger and thumb feels soft). Put in colander and run hot water through the rice, then place strainer over hot water and steam until grains are fluffy. Arrange on platter and over all top with bean mixture. Pour gravy

Bananas with bacon is a dish that is simple enough yet elaborate enough to appear at any table. Peel six bananas and cut in half crosswise; roll half lengths of bananas in strips of bacon and secure with toothpick. Broil or bake in hot oven about 15 minutes or until bananas are tender and bacon is crisp. Baste at least once during baking.

SELECT large Greening apples for a most original dish, onion-stuffed apples. Wash cover and cut through the skin midway between stem and blossom ends. Fill cavity with raw minced onion and put in baking pan; pour one-quarter inch water into pan; cover and bake in moderately hot oven.

A peanut butter pie is bound to please even the most carping critic. Blend well one cup sugar, three eggs, one cup white corn syrup, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla and one-third cup peanut butter. Pour mixture into a nine-inch pie tin which has been lined with chilled, uncooked pie crust. Cover with another pie tin, inverted, and bake in hot oven for 10 minutes, then reduce heat from 450 F. to 350 F. After 50 minutes remove cover and continue baking until silver knife inserted shows firm filling and slightly crisp top. Serve in small portions.

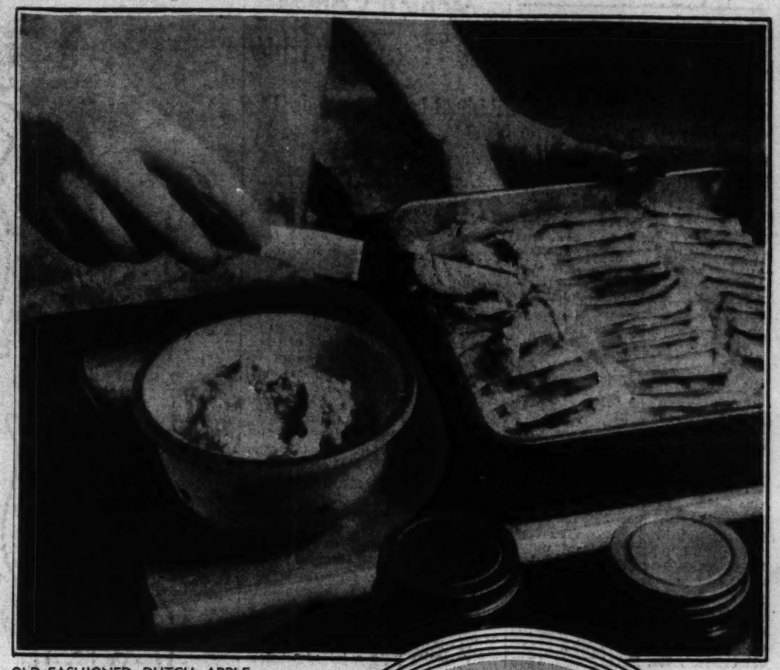

Creamy Fudge

Note: This fudge contains no butter or cream and if directions are followed explicitly, will never become granular. It will keep indefinitely in a pan in the icebox, maintaining its texture. It can be cut as needed.

Ingredients:
Three cups granulated sugar
Three squares baker's chocolate
One cup milk

Method: Grate chocolate into the sugar, add milk and bring to a boil. Use egg beater and beat as it cooks until the mixture is smooth. Continue to cook until it will form a soft ball in cold water. Remove from fire and pour at once onto marble slab. (Any flat, cold non-absorbent surface will do, such as a porcelain table top.) Work with a spatula, smoothing out and piling it up until it becomes firm enough to work with the hands. Pat out into square pan and allow to become firm in icebox. Cut as wanted.

APPLES ALL WINTER

OLD-FASHIONED DUTCH APPLE CAKE IS A FAVORITE DESSERT WITH EVERYONE.

By Marie L. Casteen

APPLES have the distinction of being not only the most democratic but also the most aristocratic of fruits. They have been grown in numerous countries, cultivated by many races and eaten by all classes of society. Their lineage can be traced to dimmest antiquity.

But, notwithstanding the fact that apples were grown and eaten by the ancients, we still consider them one of our own native American fruits.

American cookbooks are brimful of recipes calling for apples. Many of these recipes were published in very old cookbooks, but their popularity with succeeding generations have made them an accepted American dish; and they are featured with equal prominence in our modern cookbooks.

Fried Apples.

Four medium-sized apples.
Two tablespoons butter.
Three tablespoons brown sugar or white karo syrup.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
One tablespoon boiling water.

Wash and slice apples, but do not pare. Place butter in frying pan. When hot add apples, sugar, seasonings and boiling water. Cover and cook slowly for about 10 minutes; remove cover and continue cooking until apples are tender and golden brown in color. Approximate yield: six portions.

Glazed Apples.

Four apples.
Two cups granulated sugar.
Two-thirds cup water.

Wash, core and cut apples into eighths; place in shallow baking pan. Make a syrup of sugar and water and boil for 15 minutes. Pour syrup over apples, cover and cook slowly in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for 20 minutes or until apples are transparent. Just before serving, pour several tablespoonfuls of syrup over apples. Approximate yield: Six portions.

Candied apple rings are made by the same method used to prepare glazed apples except that the apples are cored and cut crosswise.

—o-o—

THE NEXT recipe is a main course, apple dinner dish. It is a complete course and since it is baked in a casserole, is easy to prepare.

Pork Chops, Apples and Sweet Potatoes.

Six pork chops, one-half inch thick.
One teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
Four medium-sized sour apples, peeled.
Four medium-sized sweet potatoes, peeled.
One cup water.
One teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
Few drops tabasco.
Four strips bacon.
One medium-sized onion, chopped.

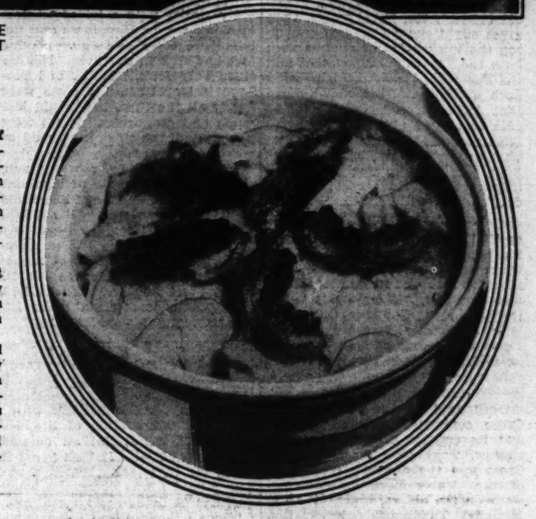

Brown pork chops. Place in casserole. Sprinkle with half the salt and pepper. Slice and core apples. Slice sweet potatoes. Place in layers on pork chops. Sprinkle with remaining salt and pepper. Add water combined with Worcestershire sauce and tabasco. Fry bacon. Brown onion in bacon fat. Add to casserole. Arrange bacon strips on top. Cover. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) 1½ hours. Approximate yield: Six portions.

Crisp slices of apples with meat make an appetizing fall sandwich.

Sliced Lamb and Apple Crisp Sandwiches.

Six slices of cold roast lamb.
Twelve slices of sandwich bread.
Butter to spread on bread.
Two medium-sized tart apples, white meat with red skin.
Four tablespoons lemon juice.
One tablespoon olive oil.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-quarter teaspoon powdered sugar.
Few grains cayenne pepper.
Pinch of white pepper.
Four or five leaves of mint.
Sprigs of watercress and mint.

Make a plain lamb sandwich. Slice apples and let stand in salt water until ready to use. Make a dressing of the next six ingredients. Add four or five leaves of mint, chopped. When ready to serve sandwich, remove apples from salt water and dry thoroughly. Arrange evenly over top of lamb; shake dressing until thoroughly mixed and pour about a teaspoonful over apples; cover with second slice of buttered bread. Place a sprig of watercress, and mint on plate beside sandwich. Approximate yield: Six sandwiches.

AN APPLE PORK CHOP CASSEROLE IS A ONE-DISH MEAL.

Dutch Apple Cake.

Three cups sifted flour.
Four teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-third cup fat.
One egg, slightly beaten.
One cup milk.
Three apples, sliced thin.

Topping.

One-fourth cup butter.
One-half cup sugar.
One-fourth teaspoon nutmeg.
Three-fourths teaspoon cinnamon.

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Cut in fat. Add combined egg and milk, stirring quickly until a soft dough is formed. Turn into greased loaf pan (eight inches by eight inches). Press apple slices into dough, forming three rows. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees) 30 minutes. Mix butter, sugar, nutmeg and cinnamon. Beat well. Spread on top of apples. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes longer. Approximate yield, one cake. Serve hot with lemon egg sauce.

Ginger Snap Piecrust.

Two cups ginger snap crumbs.
One-third cup granulated sugar.
One-half teaspoon ginger.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Three tablespoons fat.

Mix dry ingredients. Cut in fat. Turn into nine-inch pie pan. Press into shape with fingers. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) five minutes. Cool.

Cranberry and Apple Pie.

Three cups raw cranberries.
One and three-fourths cups granulated sugar.
Two cups apples, cut into slices.
One-half cup water.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
One recipe pastry.
One tablespoon heavy cream.

Grind or chop cranberries and cover with one and one-half cups of the sugar. Let stand for four hours. Add apples to water and cook for 10 minutes. Add remaining sugar and salt and cook for five minutes. Combine cranberries and apples, and fill unbaked pie shell. Cover with top crust. Brush with cream. Bake for 15 minutes in hot oven (425 degrees). Reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees) and bake 30 minutes longer. Approximate yield, one nine-inch pie.

THE STAMP REVIEW

By John Chamberlain

THE Postoffice Department announced a few days ago that a booklet containing photographs and descriptions of all United States postage stamps issued from 1847 through Dec. 31, 1936, would be made available by the Government shortly after the first of the year.

The postage stamp illustrations in this new booklet will be in black and white, it having been determined that since the Government has the right to issue stamps, it also has the right to reproduce copies of its own postage stamps in this form.

This booklet will also contain a complete list of plate numbers for all cemmemorative postage stamps that have been issued by the Postoffice Department.

Copies of the new stamp booklet will not be available for free distribution, but may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. The price per copy has not been announced.

—o-o—

THE POSTOFFICE Department also announced that efforts are being made by the department to have the present law changed so that newspapers, magazines and philatelic publications may also be permitted to illustrate United States postage stamps.

The comment of Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, is awaited by philatelists with greatest interest, for, if favorable, Congress might change the law regarding the illustration of stamps with both the Treasury Department and the Postoffice Department favoring such a change. This would mean that American collectors would be able to import philatelic literature from abroad at the publishers' rates plus an import duty, instead of the high rate charged for the same literature "carried across the border."

—o-o—

● THE 1936 Christmas seal made its appearance Thanksgiving day when the National Tuberculosis Association launched its annual Christmas Seal sale. Although this is the thirtieth sale of penny Christmas seals, 36 varieties have been issued. There were two designs in 1907, four in 1913, and three this year. This year's seal shows Santa Claus gone modern.

Until 1919 the American Red Cross conducted the annual sale and its emblem was used on the stamps. That year both the Red Cross and the double-barred cross of the Tuberculosis Association were on the stamp. Since 1920 the National Tuberculosis Association has held the sale.

In 1903 Einar Holboll, a postal clerk in Denmark conceived the idea of a non-postage stamp for charity to be used in addition to regular postage on letters and packages. A half-cent sticker was issued the next year and enough money was raised to start a sanatorium for tubercular Danish children. Later issues of these stamps came to the attention of Americans and the idea was adopted in the United States with great success.

These stamps, while merely stickers of no value, are collected by philatelists to such an extent that they are listed in the Specialized United States Catalogue, and the first one is valued by collectors at around two dollars.

—o-o—

● THE FIRST two stamps of the long delayed Army and Navy hero series will be placed on sale in Washington Dec. 15, according to a bulletin issued by the Post Office Department. General sale, including St. Louis, will begin the following day.

The first two stamps to be issued will be the one-cent Army, honoring George Washington and Nathanael Greene and the one-cent Navy, showing the portraits of John Paul Jones and John Barry, rival candidates for the title of "founder" of the United States Navy.

Both stamps will be of the size of the current special delivery stamp, arranged horizontally. They will be printed by the rotary press process in green ink in panes of 50 subjects.

Collectors wishing first-day cancellations may send self-addressed covers to the postmaster at Washington, together with a money order to cover the cost of the stamps required. At least three stamps will be required to obtain the dated cancellation.

Because of the heavy Christmas mail which rises to a peak at this time of the year, prompt forwarding is necessary. Normally 30 days' notice is given collectors, but Superintendent Robert E. Fellers of the Division of Stamps, in this case, has felt that this notice was unnecessary as every collector should know that the stamps were to be issued. Already some 20,000 covers have been sent to the Washington postmaster for servicing.

To remove stains of claret wine, cover spot with salt. Let stand for few minutes, then rinse in cold water.

The Happiness Which Comes From Within

Right Mental Attitude Decides What Life Is to Individual.

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

"WHAT you said about happiness recently has made me think a lot," writes a woman, "and while I may not be able to cope with the question, I have decided one thing at least. It is plain enough that no one can be very happy for any length of time.

"If one is selfish, he cannot be happy when he sees others more happy than himself; and if he is unselfish, he cannot be happy when he sees others less happy than he is. Still less, if he sees others suffering. That is the crux of the matter as I see it.

"Personally, I am of a happy and contented disposition, but when I see or hear of the troubles of others, or walk out on the street and meet a blind man with a white cane and a tin cup, or an old lady, dressed in tatters, trying to sell shoe-laces, whom I immediately picture in her youth as light-hearted and happy, can I possibly be happy?"

My reader puts a lot of wisdom in a few words. Happiness and unhappiness come and go, playing hide-and-seek in our lives. Neither stays very long, usually, and perhaps it is better so. If we were happy all the time, life would lose much of its meaning. If we were unhappy all the time, life would be bereft of its music.

Light and shadow, rain and sunshine, happiness and unhappiness make the medley of our lives; and so it was intended. "All sunlight makes Sahara," say the Arabs. All shadow would make life a nightmare. It is the variety of moods and experinces that gives life its interest and surprise. Otherwise, a deadly sameness would make life a terror.

—o-o—

"ONE THING I have learned," writes another reader, "and that is that happiness is not something added to us, but something within us. It is not a state of life, but a state of mind; not an outside, but an inside job. It took years to teach me that fact. Which shows how stupid I was about the whole business of living—and I still am.

"Once I thought that things could make people happy—money, a good home, books, comfort, friends, work and the like. Well, by good luck, I got all those things, all that life can give; but they did not make me happy. Sitting down to take stock of myself, I found that the trouble, the secret of restlessness, lay somewhere inside of myself. I was looking for a magic wishing ring, when what I needed is an understanding mind.

"Then, by ill luck, nearly everything by which I had set so much store was taken away from me. Yet my loss did not make me unhappy. By that time, fortunately, I had learned a certain secret—that a right mental attitude decides what life is to us, whatever ups and downs may befall us. It has made all the difference."

Exactly. We are not responsible for what happens to us—not often, at any rate; but we are responsible for the way we take things that happen. Whether we take a blow on the chin with a grin, or on the ground with a growl, is what really counts.

Three qualities, said a statesman, the other day, make for happiness—interest, enthusiasm and purpose, and I should add gratitude; since no ungrateful person can be happy, or ought to be. It is a wise recipe, as much for what it omits as for what it includes. Ponder it a moment, and see how it clears up the matter.

One may have everything that life can give—health, wealth, home, hobby, work, friends and all the rest—but if he has no interest, no enthusiasm, no worthy purpose to serve, he will not be happy. I have known five very rich men in my time—known them intimately, and loved them—but only one of the five was really happy.

No one can be happy until he finds something to awaken interest and enthusiasm, and give him something to serve besides himself—no, not if he goes to the ends of the earth and back again. I've known many poor people in my time—even invalids, too—who were truly happy, and a source of happiness to others.

After all, happiness is not necessary. We can get along without it, and do a good work in the world. Lincoln did. No one could call him a happy man—some strange melancholy haunted him. "A man is about as happy as he makes up his mind to be," he said; but he was never able to make up his mind about it. Yet he did a noble work in the world.

One can be unhappy and yet make others happy. Mark Twain did. One doubts if he was as unhappy as he claimed to be—one must allow for his gift of exaggeration. But he made millions happy—made the world rock with laughter. No, happiness is not necessary.

If you have a porch light or any light outside of the front of your home, be sure to light it when you expect guests. It not only makes the house easier for them to find but seems like a beacon of welcome before they have even crossed the threshold.

CREATING GIFTS for YOUR FRIENDS

TRACING THE PATTERN OF THE TOY ON WOOD.

Youngsters, With Right Tools and a Little Help, Can Make Simple Toys for Their Companions--- How It Is Done

By LAURA HOLMES MACDONALD

"WHAT can I do now, Mommy?"

How many times during the day does a mother of small children hear that question—and doesn't know what to answer. For lack of something new to do, the blocks are brought out, the beads are restrung, and old magazine pictures are cut out once more. The little, restless hands are busy for a time, and then the same old question is asked: "What can I do now?"

Children have energy, enthusiasm and considerable ability; and with a little help and the right tools, they can make many worthwhile playthings. They will welcome the chance to make wooden toys for their little friends, wrapping papers for all the family, and scrap books for children who may be spending Christmas in a hospital room.

First of all, they will need a suitable room where they can saw, paint, and cut out pictures without much interference. A playroom, nursery, attic or basement may be turned into a worshop if there is good light; or if space is limited, a special corner of almost any room may be screened off for their purposes.

Making wooden toys is a fascinating occupation for children of all ages. Even sawing a straight line will keep the little five-year-olds interested and busy; and when they find that they can follow a line which will eventually turn into an elephant or a camel, their enthusiasm knows no bounds.

It is important to choose toy designs of simple outline; use soft wood (pine or white wood) about ¼-inch in thickness; and a coping saw with a medium coarse blade. The teeth of the blade point in the direction of the handle and outward. The designs are transferred up and down with the grain of the wood.

Place the wood in a horizontal position, on the edge of a table or bench, and work the saw in a vertical position with the handle pointing toward the floor. Use long, regular strokes following the outline of the design; and move the wood to feed the teeth of the saw. A little practice is necessary to turn corners, but the wood is very soft and works easily.

When the toy is sawed out, sandpaper it well to take away any sharp corners. Cut a base of wood ¼ to ½ inch in thickness, 2½ inches wide and as long as the toy. To this, nail two ¼-inch dowel strips, far enough apart to allow the toy to stand up firmly. Sandpaper well.

—o-o—

THE toy is now ready to be painted. Trace the design on the sandpapered toy, carefully drawing eyes, ears, blankets, etc. Use poster or show card paint, which is an opaque water color. This is easier to use than oil, as the soft wood readily absorbs it, and there is very little waiting for the toy to dry. Use separate brushes for each color, varying their sizes for large and small areas.

When the toy is thoroughly dry, give it three coats of white shellac, allowing each coat to dry before applying another. This gives a good, hard, glossy, waterproof finish. If a softer, duller finish is perferred, use steel wool on the surface and then polish with a furniture wax.

There are three kinds of decorative papers that children enjoy making—marbleized, crackled and block printed. They are all simple to make.

The marbleized paper is the type used for the end papers of old manuscripts. Marbling paper is an old craft that has never lost its charm. The paper used may vary from the cheapest to the finest of drawing papers. For children who will make many sheets of it, the cheapest is unprinted newspaper, which may be purchased in rolls of 100 or 200 sheets. This, by the way, is the kind of paper for children to use when they paint on easles, with large brushes and jars of paint.

Buy a few tubes of oil paint. Thin a little of two or three colors with oil, in separate dishes, until the point is fairly thin. Next, fill a large, rectangular pan with water. Float these oil colors over the surface of the water to get the swirling effects we sometimes see on oily water. It may be necessary to stir the water slightly or blow on it.

Now lay a piece of paper on the surface of the water. The swirling design will be deposited upon it. Try different combinations of colors and spot in a little gold if you have it. The results are so interesting and varied that children will want to make papers for many different uses.

Crackled paper is nothing more than a sheet of waxed paper (the ordinary kitchen variety) carefully crushed in the hands to get a fine weblike pattern through it. Dip a sponge or soft cloth into a combination of oil paint and turpentine and rub it over the surface of the paper. The color will deposit itself in the cracks of the paper and make an interesting crackled design. Place the waxed paper on a newspaper and remove most of the wax with a medium hot iron. The result is a soft, semi-transparent crackled paper.

A MORE advanced step of this craft is to take a square or rectangle of light-colored silk for a scarf. Thumb-tack it to a drawing board and paint the surface with a coat of hot paraffin and beeswax (in equal amounts). Now crumple this in the hands to get the weblike lines and then immerse in a strong, cold, dye bath. The cracks will color while the wax resists the dye. Iron the silk on several thicknesses of newspaper until the wax is removed.

Block printing ranges from simple, stick printing designs to elaborate all-over patterns. For young children, stick printing is advisable. Little, wooden blocks are cut in the shape of diamonds, squares, circles, triangles, stars, etc., and then pressed on a saturated pad of color. Then they are stamped on paper in various combinations.

One very simple way to make the blocks is to cut them from a raw potato with a sharp knife. These little potato blocks are pressed into poster paint and stamped on the paper. With a little practice the right consistency of paint will be found. Cellophane makes an interesting background for these prints, also.

A child who enjoys cutting and saving pictures from magazines will like to make a scrap book. The cover of the book is made of oil cloth; the inside pages of cambric or starched, thin cotton. The edges of the cover and pages are pinked on the sewing machine. The whole is bound together with yarn or heavy mercerized thread.

The pictures, in a miscellaneous assortment, or separated into special kinds (animals, children, boats, etc.) are carefully pasted to the cambric. If the children collect pictures daily, and have an objective in view, many scrap books may be made that will make Christmas a little happier for sick children in hospitals.

Esquire Lists Popular Gifts For Christmas

Electric Razor Mentioned in Selection of Possibilities for Men.

By Esquire.

WE'VE set forth herewith a few suggestions that may save you some moments in making up your Christmas gift list. Men invariably are pleased with the practical, particularly when the gift is a little finer than what they would buy for themselves.

Shaving electrically is no longer in the experimental stage. Electric razors make the fur fly with no more preparation required than plugging into the receptacle.

For those men who are always just on their last good blade, this attractive gift box full of blades is a natural gift. The box becomes a cigarette case when the razor blades are removed.

Badger hair shaving brushes of unusually fine quality make luxurious gifts for men who appreciate the best.

Newest note in fashionable billfolds is alligator leather. The key container, also in this leather, protects pockets and closes with a talon slide fastener.

Good military brushes are a matter of bristle. The best ones are often made with a simple, screwed-on satinwood back and last for years—a long-time reminder of your good wishes.

Braces and belts are available in excellent qualities without being over-ornate, and few men have too many of these everyday useful items.

For travelers, toilet kits that are complete and commodious are sure to be welcomed.

Wrist watches have come a long way since the days in the trenches. They're smarter than ever, keep better time, and are a favorite gift item.

Fashionable jewelry for formal wear is a timely gift. There are smart, clear crystals for formal use, gold rim smoked pearl for tuxedo wear and a silver key chain with a formal touch.

Jewelry for daytime wear is more or less limited to the utilitarian. A personalized cravat chain and belt buckle or the ever-useful collar and tie clips make practical gifts.

Nightgown Trends

Nightgowns created to appeal to the seekers of luxurious apparel for Christmas gifts so closely resemble formal evening frocks that it is difficult to tell one from the other. Not only do these boudoir items appear in the same shades as are popular for dresses, but the same fabrics and styles. Skirts are definitely referred to as the "swing" variety and measure many yards at the hemlines. Bodices are designed with Princesse fitting and often with covered shoulders. Neck-lines are square or V-shaped and cut to the waistline at the back. Satin is a favored material, the slipper type being used almost as much as the lighter weight, and beige is regarded as a significant style shade.

Coronation Trend Reaches Extremes

THE coronation of King Edward VIII in May has the style world so conscious of royalty that every handbag, every frock and every piece of jewelry has some regal aspect. The vogue has reached such a state that a woman can't purchase simple dusting powder without having it dressed up in a coronation red leather box, or a compact without getting a crown clasp thrown in for her money. One of the latest gadgets in line with the trend is an initial pin which is a modernized interpretation of the royal crown, the initials dangling on chains from the base of the crown. Incidentally the piece may be used as a fob as well as a pin.

Ways to Save Time

Do you complain that you've no time for reading—no time for yourself? Then clear the decks and put your housekeeping on an efficiency basis. Don't tolerate lengthy telephone calls and the like. Systematize your work, make a list of your daily tasks, then stick to it. Time for your own individual pursuit of happiness will be the inevitable result.

Moulded Tomato and Cheese Salad

Ingredients:

One can tomato soup

Two tablespoons gelatin

Two packages cream cheese

One cup mayonnaise

One and one-half cup diced celery

One and one-half cup peas (very small)

Method: Hydrate gelatin in one-fourth cup cold water. Heat tomato soup to boiling point and pour over the gelatin mixture. When cool, add mayonnaise, celery and peas. Pour into ring mould and break the cream cheese (which is very cold) into the mixture, distributing it evenly. Allow to set in icebox for several hours. Dip in hot water and invert on platter of shredded lettuce. Additional salad dressing may be served with it, if desired.

Economical Soup

Since December days are here, let's not forget the value of soups on cold evenings. To keep their cost at minimum, be Scotch about your meat bones. Don't walk away leaving them on the butcher's block. Those ribs out of your Sunday roast will make a grand soup for Monday.

Calling All Dogs x x x

By ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

HERE is perhaps the very wisest maxim in all the thick unwritten volume of canine lore:

"More dogs are killed by overfeeding than by underfeeding!"

A bone-thin underfed dog may yet be in good health—or he will be if he has a chance at a few square meals. An overfed dog is a receptacle for every disease, from asthma to fatty degeneration of the heart. Soon or late—more likely soon than late—he is going to die from any one of a dozen diseases. The underfed dog—unless he be starved to the point where his strength and stamina ebb to a dangerous degree—is due to live to a ripe old age.

Naturally, the ideal treatment is to feed him just enough. But this is not always easy to determine. Best be on the under-side, rather than on the over-side, when it comes to his meals.

It is not a matter of kindness to fill your dog's feed dish three times a day and then let him forage in kitchen or in garbage can (a sprinkling of red pepper on the can's contents will cure him, usually, of the latter low habit) and to give him tidbits during your own meals. You are hastening his death-hour. And, by the way, the same sane rule applies to humans!

"It is 10 times better to underfeed than to overfeed!"

—o-o—

LONG AGO there used to be some sense in bragging: "I imported this dog of mine from Europe!" Because, in those days, we Americans were rather new at skilled selective dog-breeding. In Europe—chiefly in Great Britain—the wise breeding of dogs had gone on for many centuries. It had been developed to a fine art. And a fine imported dog usually was better than a homebred canine. But things have changed mightily since then. The boast of "My dog is imported!" is still made by too many people. But it has lost its force.

Today, in practically every breed, you can buy as grand an American-bred dog as any dog you can import from across the Atlantic. He has as fine show-points, he is as clever, he is as good a chum, he is as good for all purposes (from hunting to sheep-herding) as the best European dogs. No longer is there any need nor any sense in your sending to Great Britain or elsewhere abroad for a dog. You can do every bit as well—if not better—right here at home. Moreover, here you have a chance to see and to study him before making the purchase. You don't buy sight unseen. You are not at the mercy of a foreign breeder's honesty.

Part Score Bidding

By Ely Culbert

WHEN there is a part though a player m opening bid of mo than are needed for game part-score, it is not a slam general, all preemptive forcing bids keep their us ing even when there score.

For example, if you ha score of 60, and your part an opening bid of four sp not a slam try but a out bid, just as though y part-score. An opening still is a two-way bid, an ing two bid, or a jump t a new suit still shows hands and both are forci

But when there is a bids which ordinarily a to game become forcing round only. Thereafter a new suit by either forcing again, but rebids which previously was bid trump, may be passed.

Part Score Bidding

By Ely Culbertson

WHEN there is a part-score, although a player makes an opening bid of more tricks than are needed for game with the part-score, it is not a slam try. In general, all preemptive bids and forcing bids keep their usual meaning even when there is a part-score.

For example, if you have a part-score of 60, and your partner makes an opening bid of four spades, it is not a slam try but a regular shut-out bid, just as though you had no part-score. An opening three bid still is a two-way bid, and an opening two bid, or a jump take-out in a new suit still shows powerful hands and both are forcing bids.

But when there is a part-score, bids which ordinarily are forcing to game become forcing for one round only. Thereafter any bid in a new suit by either partner is forcing again, but rebids in the suit which previously was bid, or in no trump, may be passed.

—o-o—

● WEST'S OPENING lead in today's hands was pretty much of a lucky "stab," but his subsequent defense based on that lead, was skill, not luck.

North, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable; North-South 20 part-score.

	♠AJ ♥Q8 ♦K983 ♣AKQ93
	♠K8543 ♥K1095 ♦J ♣J76

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	1♠	Pass
1NT	Pass	2♥	Pass
2♠	Pass	3♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

North should have bid two no trump, but even had he done so South probably would have played the hand at three spades.

With both of the major suits bid against him, West virtually tossed a coin between the two minors. It was true that North had started with a club bid which, in the minds of many opening leaders, would have dictated a diamond as the only alternative, but this particular West player was one who has a strong aversion to leading from queens (not a bad aversion by the way—it is shared by many players who are acknowledged brilliant opening leaders). On this particular hand, however, West hardly could have foreseen how beautifully his selection of a club would result.

● DECLARER won with the jack, and led a spade toward dummy, taking the jack finesse. When it held, he cashed the ace, and then he had to consider ways and means of reentering his own hand. Not knowing who had the heart ace, he laid down dummy's queen, but since West could imagine declarer's difficulty he held off this trick. At this point declarer would have been wiser to to have led to his singleton jack of diamonds, but he continued with hearts, and his nine lost to West's jack. West promptly threw the dummy ba on lead with a club.

Declarer could count, of course, that a third round of clubs would be ruffed, and therefore did what he should have done before. He led a low diamond from the king. East ducked and West won with the queen. A third club followed, and East ruffed. A heart return, won by West's ace, and the lead of West's last heart did the trick. East ruffed with his last trump and the contract was defeated.

—o-o—

QUESTION: Is the European form of contract bridge just the same as the American form?

Answer: Yes. In France, however, both contract and a similar game called plafond are played.

The Prices of Canned Foods Reflect Drouth

Crops Far Below Those of 1935, Home Economics Workers Point Out.

A SLIGHTLY changed vegetable diet from that which families have been accustomed to is in prospect this year mainly as a result of the drouth, it is pointed out by home economics workers of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Homemakers who will have to supplement cellar stores with commercially canned foods may find themselves doing a right-about-face, and using foods formerly only on the "company" list.

While no radical departures will be made from the usual routine of garden vegetables, wise housewives will put more nickels into lima beans and the prized asparagus, tomatoes and tomato juice, it is said. A 15 per cent increase is seen in canned supplies of these crops, while the ordinary meal stand-bys, peas, corn and sauerkraut, sail down in quantity and up in price. The current packs of these three vegetables are down one-third, according to reports received by the college from the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Spinach and beets, while not turning up missing, are also on the moderately reduced list. String beans show a minor decline in quantity.

—o-o—

DROUTH TAKES the prime responsibility for the situation. Canning peas tumbled 93,000 tons below last year's 268,000-ton crop, while sweet corn, generally running third behind tomatoes and peas as a canning crop, is only two-thirds as plentiful as it was last year and 22 per cent below average.

Asparagus may aid the lowered spinach supply which was severely hurt by the drouth, and lima beans are expected to "pinch hit" for string beans to some extent.

Sauerkraut seems to have suffered the most from dry weather, reaching this year at its top only two-thirds of its 1935 level and running 28 per cent below average.

Why Grow Old?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

THERE is perhaps no one thing which so quickly steals beauty and youth as the expenditure of more energy than we have. The tired, drawn, faded look women so often possess has its source in this insidious practice.

Every day nature balances her books and you must replace the energy you have spent that day or you can never make it up later. If we took frequent, short rest periods each day we would not need a vacation except to give us a change from a routine of which we are tired.

Every person has just so much energy, and how that person uses it is his own business. The main difficulty is that most people do not know where this precious possession goes. Rexford B. Hersey has made some interesting experiments on the causes of fatigue in the average worker. These facts are the results.

	Units Energy.
Outside activities, things done outside of working hours for purely social or pleasurable end	1040
Physical activity on job	517
Emotional tension	430
Bodily tension	287
Mental activity	237
Colds	200
Malnutrition	133
Boredom	121
Physical environment	119
Climate	110
Unsuccessful effort	100
Too much sleep	49

—o-o—

IF YOU ADD the things you do for pleasure and social life to emotional and body tension you will see that in those three ways we spend more energy than in all other activities put together—a full-time job included.

Never in history has it been so essential that women learn the art of relaxation. Never before has so much been demanded of them. A great many modern women are supposed to be wives; pals, sweethearts, perfect mothers, expert cooks and champion golfers, all in one. Some hold down a job to boot.

Modern life has formed in us the habit of driving ourselves until the women who plan short rest periods during their day are as scarce as cooling systems in Greenland.

The average woman, when approached on this subject will immediately say, "I haven't time." The answer is simple. "Lady, you won't have nearly as much time if you don't."

This column is not advocating that you relinquish the duties for which you are responsible, or the pleasures you like, to rest all day on a rosy-hued satin cushion—but it is suggesting that, if you are clever and wish to accomplish many things, you will plan several short rest periods during your day and will also learn to "got at things" easier.

Unlax—Unlax while you read this. Can't you feel the nerve ends uncoil and the tension leave your mind and body?

Everything you do, you can do better if you are relaxed. Even your golf game will improve if you won't push yourself. Make a solemn pledge with yourself that you will never again FEEL hurried. It is a stupid waste of energy.

—o-o—

THIS ABILITY and the practice of relaxation is a vital thing for the woman in the home. It is an unfortunate fact that we see those we love best when we are at our worst—at the end of a day that too seldom includes a period of rest before the family assembles.

This rest time before dinner, for both the woman and the man in the family, would do more to straighten out domestic troubles and problem children than all the psychologists and switches in the world.

Watch the cat! I don't mean the kind you are thinking about—I mean a real cat. Notice how it stretches, and how elastic its muscles are that it moves rhythmically, not jerkily. Our bodies get tense and tight through lack of use. Most of us have bodies which are dead and we carry them around like a tortoise does its shell.

If you don't want to have that "you'll never climb a fence" look, keep your body limber, the muscles elastic, and the tenseness away by exercise.

Quills on Daytime Hats

Brightly-colored quills give point to daytime hats, while flowers are favored for afternoon models. Black felt, combined with black Persian, is the delight of the milliners. Velvet and plush are also in favor. Youthful and charming is a cap of black velvet, trimmed with a wreath of twisted velvet that forms a brim and extends to the back of the neck, where it is tied. In front it is held by a cluster of flowers over the forehead. Charming for dinner wear is a hat fashioned of two rolls of velvet, drawn round the head like a coronet and twisted in a knot in front. The top of the head is bare, and the velvet coils hold a veil that casts alluring shadows over the eyes.

Fur on New Hats

All-fur hats and hats with fur trimming are receiving wide indorsement. One of the successes is Suzy's hat of black or red felt or velvet, with a handsome silver fox head making the crown. Hats of brown antelope or velvet, with pompoms of mink are nice with mink-trimmed suits. Very smart is a model in paprika red broadcloth with a visor and extended sides of black or gray Persian lamb. Then there is an all-fur hat, done in caracul with visor and cocardes of grosgrain. Slated for popularity is a fez of caracul and felt with green quills. A green velour hat has mink tails and a black velour model has an ornament of white caracul.

Intelligence Tests Aren't Always True

They Give Only a Faint Glimpse of Child, Patri Writes.

By Angelo Patri

INTELLIGENCE tests, achievement tests, all the tests that are so fashionable today, are useful tools for the teacher's use. They are not the actual child, nor the actual state of the child. They are but the faint glimpse of some phase of that child at a special hour, in a special circumstance. He may be that child again, and he may never be. Tests, to be anywhere near accurate and useful in judging a child's ability or lack of it, his powers and his weaknesses, or their absence, must be given by experts, and repeated over a period of time, before their results are in any degree dependable. And then, one must remember, they show only a part of a phase of the child.

There is always a side of the child that a test does not reach. That is the actual child—that hidden, intangible being who eludes all effort to fix him and draft his pattern upon him. Nobody ever sees the real child. Nobody ever knows his actual strength, ability and possibilities. These are hidden from any investigator, even from the child himself.

THIS IS why the child with the high I.Q., fails and the one with the ordinary one, succeeds, at times, and so upsets the scheme of education and training provided for them. The test that gave the children their standing did not touch some hidden quality in each. But that quality was so strong that it influenced all that the child did, and the results showed in the failure of one who was expected to succeed, and the success of one who was expected to fail.

Tests are informative, but they ought not to be absolute. Experience with the children at work, ought to count as much because any test is always open to proof, and the proof is shown in what the child does to verify or disprove the findings. If a child with a low I.Q., gets high marks in school work with regularity and ease, his intelligence is unquestioned regardless of the marks for the test. Teachers accept this and proceed accordingly.

The trouble comes when the teacher or parent is shocked by the poor showing of a high I.Q. pupil. "You have the finest intelligence in the class," says the mother. "Why don't you do the finest work? You could, if you would, make me the proudest mother in town, but instead you disgrace me. Why do you behave like this? Why don't you work?" The child can say only, "I do the best I can."

—o-o—

THE TEACHER, anxious to hold to the strength of the child if it is possible, tries again and again to bring him up to the standard of the I.Q. When she fails repeatedly she knows that the fundamental qualities of the child are making themselves felt, and sets about helping him adjust himself to them.

If parents would accept the I.Q., for what it is, a tentative suggestive, rating of a phase of a child, and not demand that a child live up to the highest rating he can receive, it would help a good many worthy children who are charged with genius when they have ordinary ability. And if they would do the same for the slower child they would lift a load from their shoulders, too. Read the I.Q., and say, "Maybe."

Planning For Guests

THE final triumph of your dinner depends entirely on the way it is thought out. A St. Louis woman who is known for the ease and distinction with which she entertains, told us her formula. First, she shuts herself quietly in her room, with paper and pencil and writes every detail of the procedure. Then she makes a copy and tacks it up in the kitchen, or in the butler's pantry. Everything is checked against this list, and nothing is forgotten. It isn't so much what you do, but how you do it that sets your home apart as one of gracious hospitality.

Plum Pudding For Holidays

CHRISTMAS and New Year's Day will soon be here and we'll be thinking about plum puddings. If the two outstanding holidays pass without the traditional plum pudding, most of us are disappointed. Here is a variation of the traditional recipe, however, for frozen plum pudding that will delight every one, and some may even prefer it to the old-time hot pudding:

Three tablespoons flour.
Two-thirds cup orange juice.
One and one-half cups raisins or currants.
Rind of one-half lemon.
One and one-half teaspoons cinnamon.
Three-fourths teaspoon mace.
One-half teaspoon ground cloves.
One-fourth cup English walnuts, chopped fine.
Two-thirds cup brown sugar.
One-third cup maraschino cherries, quartered.
Two cups crumbs of plain cake, ginger cake, spice cake, or graham crackers.
One and a half cups cream (plain).
One and a half cups whipping cream.

Soak raisins in boiling water for one hour. Mix sugar, flour and raisins, then add orange juice and cook in saucepan directly over the fire, stirring constantly. When the mixture comes to boiling point, add lemon and orange rind and cook about 15 minutes longer. Stir constantly to prevent scorching. Remove from fire and add spices. Heat again just a minute. Remove from fire and add chopped citron, stir well, then cool. Add sherry wine flavoring and plain cream and stir well. Pour into tray of freezing compartment of refrigerator. While this is freezing chop nuts and prepare the cake crumbs. Whip cream and place in refrigerator. When pudding is frozen to a mush, turn out into a mixing bowl, add nuts, cherries, cake crumbs, then fold in whipped cream. Return to inset pan and finish freezing without further mixing or stirring. It is then ready to serve.

Modern Moth Preventive

The vacuum cleaner is a modern moth preventive upon which the housewife can rely. Larvae cannot long stay in a rug against the suction of the vacuum. By that same token, an attachment or one of the efficient new hand vacuums is a wise investment for use on upholstered furniture. Chemical moth preventives are a necessity, but the removal of dust and foreign substances by the vacuum method is the housewife's best aid.

Boots in the Snow

Give the little boy's boots a good olling before the snows come and then you won't have to worry so much about wet feet. Soak the oil in where the soles are attached to the uppers, for that's where the water enters. Good boots have water resistant soles, but it is along the stitching that the damage is done. Boys hate rubbers and galoshes. So take care of the boots and help your boy to enjoy the winter weather in his own way.

Corned Beef Ring

Ingredients:

Two tablespoons granulated gelatine
One-half cup cold water
One and one-half cups clear brown stock or bouillon
Two tablespoons lemon juice
Few grains cayenne pepper
Two cups cooked corned beef
One-half cup sliced stuffed olives
Two tablespoons chopped green pepper
Two tablespoons minced onion

Method: Dissolve hydrated gelatine in hot stock. Add lemon juice. Chill mixture until thick but not set. Fold in cayenne, chopped corned beef, vegetables. Pour into ring which has been rinsed in cold water. Chill till firm. Unmold. Fill center with cabbage or potato salad. Surround with lettuce cups holding asparagus tips or deviled eggs. Serve plain or with horseradish mayonnaise.

To remove grass stains from cotton goods, wash in alcohol.

Hoods on Sweaters

Hoods have attained a new sophistication since lovely ladies have them attached to their evening wraps and sportswomen wear them attached to their sweaters. The latter style is the newer and evidently has been patterned after the hooded snow suits which little girls are wearing. Both hand-knitted and machine-made sweaters are adopting the head covering. When not worn as a hood, the new accessory is draped over the shoulders in the suggestion of a cape collar.

Black Lace Frock

The black lace frock which has a tiered skirt made of three or four flounces that flare like ballet skirts is sufficiently arresting to attract admiring attention on any dance floor. One that was seen on a recent evening was made of Alencon lace, each flounce edged with a wired band of net. The bodice was low cut and unadorned except for a corsage of gardenias. A cape-like bolero patterned after the flounces on the skirt contributed to the attractiveness of this ensemble.

There's Danger In Day Dreams And Memories

By Elsie Robinson.

MORE and more, in these difficult days, you find yourself wanting to look back . . . giving yourself up to memories or to day-dreams. Well, why shouldn't you? What's so wrong with dreaming or remembering?

What's wrong? Just this—THEY MAKE A BUM OF YOU.

To live today . . . to adjust yourself to the present, and the people and the problems of the present . . . there's the first duty of every regular citizen. There's YOUR first duty as a wife or husband, child, friend or worker—to live NOW.

But living now isn't fun. Today packs a mean wallop and you're right up against that wallop. You can't duck it. Every second in today carries a challenge. You can't just drift along. You've got to step lively—meet competition, face criticism. Or else!

Today, I repeat, isn't easy to take. But yesterday or tomorrow—they're different. There's no challenge in memories; the criticism and competition have all vanished. Only the pleasant and proud pictures are left.

And day-dreams — they're all brightness, too. You can be what you please in your day-dreams—do what you please. No man ever was a failure in his own day-dreams. No woman ever was a flop.

Yes—yesterday and tomorrow are happy havens for the folk who can't take it. If, as a wife or mother, you're too lazy to keep current, you can shut out the hateful present and drift back into the lovely past, when you were the village belle. You can live over each thrilling romance, and wallow in an orgy of self-pity over the Might Have Beens.

—o-o—

OR IF, as a man, you're too stupid or conceited to make good on the job, you can retract into the future and console yourself with visions of what you'll do some day. Your mean boss—your spiteful fellow workers—they think you're a washout, do they? Snicker behind your back . . . pass you up when the promotions come along? Yeah?

Well, you'll show them all—some day. Some day, when you have time to get around it you'll do some of those things you've been planning to do for so long. Then maybe they'll wish they hadn't been so smart!

Why are memories a menace and day-dreams a deadly trap? That's the reason—because they provide a hideout for our laziness, cowardice and conceit. We can't in our bodies, run away from the problems and the pressure of today. But we can, in our minds, duck the present by surrendering to memories or day-dreams.

Every day—everywhere—you see people doing it. Men and women seemingly busy with the duties of the present moment but actually as far removed as though they were on Mars. They move. They speak. They answer your remarks. Yet, all the time, they are living in another world. An easier world. A world all smoothed and padded to fit their weaknesses.

—o-o—

AND OFTEN it is the only world these people know. They have never really been born into the real world. While they were still children they stumbled upon this secret method of escape into a happier kingdom. And so they have never been initiated into actual life; never made the essential adjustments to it. They are as remote from reality as a baby or a madman.

Why are we struggling with increasing numbers of unfortunate creatures who can't make a success of their lives? That's why. This modern world of ours is a high-pressure place—the most difficult challenge which human beings have ever faced. And millions simply won't face it—won't even try to face it. They dream, instead—or drift in memories.

to match her very smart coat. Marguerite's reddish bangs curled up affectionately all around the front of the cap and in the back her longer curls escaped beneath it.

Dolores Del Rio has one of these mitered caps in black antelope which she wore recently to the Brown Derby with a black tailored suit. At either side of Miss Del Rio's cap there were rhinestone clips but they were almost hidden by the soft curls which framed her face. Quite an unusual hair-do for Dolores it was, too.

Joan Crawford also has one of these funny little caps and she told me that the first evening she wore it, just as she and Franchot were going out the door, he turned to her and said, "Aren't you going to wear a hat?" "I've got it on," Joan told him, but she had to turn around to prove it.

What with the depression over and skirts going up along with everything else, a great deal of attention is being paid to footwear and hosiery out here. At the premiere of "Lloyds of London," which was a very grand affair, practically everyone was wearing kid sandals of some sort. Olivia De Havilland wore cherry red ones which had two wide straps across the toes, ornamented with square rhinestone buckles, and another plain strap went across the ankle. Miss Del Rio in an Alix creation of white silk net, cut with daring "harem" influence, wore Alix sandals of white kid skin trimmed in gold.

—o-o—

AND WHILE it may not be tout a fait for you to stick out your tongue the smart slipper, oxford, or sandal may do so to almost any length, it appears, for I have seen many of them extending fully an inch or two above the side of the shoe.

—o-o—

STOCKINGS, too, have gone natural, meaning that they are out at both heel and toe. For what with the open toed and heeled footwear they are showing—and wearing—stockings that are finished with only a strap going under the center of the foot. Stockings with lace toes, the lace looking in many cases rather like perforation, are also on display. They are very perishable and Marie Wilson, who uses them pretty generally for evening wear, tells me that she always carries a "spare" or two.

JOAN BENNETT goes in for sandals most of the time, also. One morning this week I had to run into see her on an errand and found her curled up in a big chair in the living room, laboriously studying the plans for the new home which she and her husband are engaged in building. Joan had on a cunning little two-piece pyjama outfit of coral sharkskin. The tuck-in shirt, and trousers as well, both buttoned straight up the front with white pearl buttons. On the breast pocket Joan's initials were embroidered in her own handwriting but not with her own needlework, she admitted. And on her feet were dainty coral colored sandals of linen.

I would like to tell you something about Joan's home, but think I will wait until she gets into her new one. But I will tell you that she is extremely fond of silver, and has quantities of it all around, so I was not surprised, when she said she wanted to show me a Christmas gift which she had bought for one of her friends, to have it turn out to be of that ware. It was the most fascinating cocktail shaker I have ever seen. It was made in the shape of a penguin, the cocktail poured out through the beak, and two small, folded gold wings stamped it as ultra-modern, for silver and gold, used together, is very swank, I am told.

—o-o—

RETURNING to the fad of adorning one's clothing with one's own initials, I met Maureen O'Sullivan at lunch a few days ago and she was wearing a slate-colored blouse with a suit of duvyten, which had narrow stripes of burgundy and mustard running through it. Around the top of the high neckline of the blouse was a tiny piping of burgandy which traversed the collar and, running down on the blouse, traced out, in small letters, Maureen's initials just below the throat line. It was really a novel idea. Miss O'Sullivan wore a slate-colored beret of felt with this costume.

—o-o—

ANITA LOUISE, who has been on several trips East recently, is now back at work at Warner's and today, when I lunched with her, she was dressed in a faultlessly tailored suit of gray wool and wearing a Lily Dache hat of black felt pierced with a long red felt quill. Over her clear soup and a baked apple, she told me that she and her mother have rented the Rod La Roque mansion in Hollywood and that they had given a Thanksgiving dinner party to some of their friends as a sort of housewarming. Remembering my pleasant visit to her former home I said I hoped the new house was as charming as the other one, to which Anita replied that I must come and see for myself. I certainly will look forward to it.

JANE WYMAN, one of the newer younger players, who is coming steadily to the front, and who has a featured role in "The King and the Chorus Girl," came on to the set when I was there one day this week. Jane was not in the scenes being shot that day but she had come over to the studio just to watch Fernand Gravet, the French cinema idol, who had just been imported to play the lead in this picture. Mr. Gravet is a very personable young man and, as he was educated at Oxford, he speaks his lines with a decided English accent. This voice Jane finds quite fascinating and to hear it was why she had come to the studio on her holiday.

But she had had plenty of fun too, for she had spent most of the day riding horseback, which is her favorite pastime. She made an attractive picture in her beige jodhpurs, henna wool shirt and green vest, and dark curls showing beneath her green beret. As we talked it developed that little Jane is writing a novel and was feeling very distressed over the fact that someone in the publicity department had let it out, for it was a secret. It's funny how these movie people always seem to have so many different talents when most of us are struggling trying to coax one puny flame to blaze into life.

—o-o—

MARGOT GRAHAME is going to have some of the most beautiful and unusual clothes in filmland if she goes through with her present idea of purchasing most of her screen wardrobe of "Michael Strogoff." The period of the picture is in the time of Czar Alexander II in the 1870s, with Margot wearing some breath-takingly beautiful things. Among the garments that will find their way into her closets is a claret red velvet floor-length coat with a great collar of kolinsky, bordered all the way down the front in the same fur. It is gored from shoulder to floor so that it fits closely at the waist, flaring out into a graceful wide skirt. There is also a sapphire blue velvet negligee trimmed in black fox. With it goes a glamorous pale icy blue satin night dress trimmed with sapphire blue lace.

WHILE at Metro the other morning the telephone rang as I was sitting in the publicity department, and as the receiver was picked up I could hear an unmistakable voice announcing, "I will be over at 11:30 to have some portraits made, please have everything ready."

That was all. The publicity man said that Garbo always does things that way.

"She is the only one who tells us when portraits will be made," he said. "The others, we tell. But I'd better hurry and get things in motion. When Garbo says 11:30, she means 11:30 to the dot."

After that nothing could have induced me to leave the studio before 11:30, and as a reward of a long vigil, all I got was a fleeting glimpse of the Swedish star as she stepped from her limousine into the quarters reserved for her exclusive use. Just a blue, as it were, of a figure dressed in a black and white shepherd's plaid suit with a coat of the same material over it.

EGBERT THE SWAN, a notorious bird which dwells upon that section of Toluca Lake which abuts the home of Mary Brian, and injured his wing in a fight with a stray dog several weeks ago, was unable to make his usual winter flight to warmer climes.

Fearing the bird would freeze to death out on the lake, Mary packed it up and shipped it by express to an aunt in Dallas, where it will stay on for the winter and be shipped back to Hollywood in time for the spring season.

UNTIL

"I used to try a new medicine every time I had a cough. None was satisfactory until I found REM."

—Hester Woodward, 55th & Broadway, New York

The Reason:

So often, users of REM, like Miss Dorr, report it to be the most satisfactory cough medicine they've ever used. There are very definite reasons, however, why REM brings relief so quickly:

(1) REM is a real cough medicine, not just a "tickle stopper"

(2) REM clings -- and clings -- and clings to the throat, soothes the irritation, quiets the cough.

(3) REM works two ways . . . not only in the throat, but also systemically. That's what makes it so very much more effective.

So if you have a cough, resulting from a cold, don't fool around with it! Go after it with a real cough medicine like REM.

What Is MRS. SIMPSON REALLY LIKE?

Do you think the King will marry her? Isn't there some way of getting real facts about her . . . her clothes, characteristics, habits and background?

These questions have been asked by millions. To answer them Edwina H. Wilson has obtained from those who know her best the story of the American woman who has captured the fancy of the world's most popular monarch. It is a story, interspersed with comments by Mrs. Simpson herself, comments clever enough to be remembered by her friends. Included among the illustrations are many authentic pictures which have never before been published.

You'll want to read this delightful story of romantic history in the making.

Here Are Some of the Questions Answered in This Interesting Story

What actually was Wallis Simpson's birthday?
How tall is she?
Who was her first beau?
What is her outstanding characteristic?
What is a dinner party like in Mrs. Simpson's home?
What are her favorite flowers? Jewels? Colors?
How does she treat her servants? How many does she employ?
What is her favorite menu?
What are her theories on entertaining?
What are the origins of her family?
What was her childhood like?
Do you know the real story of her meeting with the King?
Was it romance, infatuation or just a bad case of first love which caused Wallis to rush into marriage at twenty?
Who were the friends Wallis made in Shanghai who have seen two of her romances blossom and fade?
Did she ever have ambitions to be a business woman? What would you expect a woman of her charm to do?
Did she yearn to be presented at court?
What was the most striking accent to her court costume?
What American women were presented at the same court?

Slur on Gough Unmerited, Lloyd George Declares

Wartime Premier Says Facts Vindicate British General Who Was Recalled After San Quentin Defeat in 1918.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 5. — Eighteen years after he had been deposed following the Allied retreat of March, 1918, Gen. Sir Hubert Gough, commander of the Fifth (British) Army, has been publicly vindicated by war-time Prime Minister David Lloyd George.

"I need hardly say that the facts which have come to my knowledge since the war have completely changed my mind as to the responsibility for that defeat," the former Premier wrote the General. "You were completely let down, and no General could have won that battle under the conditions in which you were placed."

Said Gen. Gough: "I have been through hell in the past 18 years. I was deeply wounded at the time of my dismissal but I am very grateful to Mr. Lloyd George for exonerating me, following upon Mr. Churchill, the late Lord Birkenhead and others, and for allowing me to publish this letter."

Already Army circles are discussing the possibility of the General's name appearing in the next honors list from Buckingham Palace. Other war leaders, they point out, were raised to the peerage and given large grants of money.

Gen. Gough was appointed chief of the Allied Commission in the Baltic in 1919, but three years later he was put on retired pay.

But when Edward J. Williams, a Welsh labor member of Parliament asked in the House of Commons a few days ago what steps the Government proposed taking to recompense Gough, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin said he did not think "at this distance" the Government would be well advised to revise decisions taken by its predecessors.

Gen. Gough himself has never complained of the slur that was cast upon him, firmly believing that one day his military reputation would be restored.

"It has come belatedly," he said, "but that doesn't make the relief any less tremendous. Tremendous, that's the word. To be told that I had blundered was a shattering blow. It robbed me of the personal joy I gained from other awards."

(Gen. Sir Hubert Gough had been held responsible by the British Government for a share of the March, 1918, defeat at St. Quentin on the Somme. For eight days his Fifth Army, 12 British divisions, defied an enemy force of 42 divisions on a front of 42 miles. When the Germans broke through his inferior forces and the line of the Somme was lost to the Allies, the British War Office relieved the General of his command and recalled him.)

DEBATE ON SPANISH CIVIL WAR

Catholic Teacher, Associate Editor of Nation Are Opponents.

Merits of opposing sides in the Spanish Civil War will be the subject of a debate at 8:30 p. m. today at the Y. M. H. A., 725 Union boulevard. The meeting is one of the Liberal Forum series.

The Rev. James A. Magner, teacher of English in Quigley Seminary, a Catholic institution in Chicago, will speak on behalf of the rebels. The Government's cause will be defended by Maxwell S. Stewart, associate editor of The Nation.

PLANS FOR CHRISTMAS FESTIVALS ANNOUNCED

Arrangements for Celebrations by International Institute and Other Organizations.

Plans for Christmas parties and festivals have been announced by the International Institute, the Junior Clubs of the Eighth District of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs and the Young Men's Brotherhood of the South Side Y. M. C. A.

The International Institute will hold its annual Christmas festival for foreign groups in St. Louis at the St. Louis University gymnasium, 3672 West Pine boulevard, at 2:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon. The program will include dances and songs by German, Italian, Hungarian, Mexican, Polish, Jugoslavian and Greek organizations.

The annual Christmas play for the benefit of crippled children at Missouri Baptist Hospital will be given Dec. 16, at 10 a. m. at the Stix, Baer & Fuller auditorium. Admission will be toys or donations of money for the children.

The Young Men's Brotherhood of the South Side Y. M. C. A. will entertain about 150 under-privileged boys and girls between the ages of 6 and 10 years at the South Side Y. M. C. A., 2232 South Grand boulevard, Christmas afternoon. Each child will receive presents and candy.

New General Motors Cab-Over-Engine Truck Line to Be Introduced

Models Will Range in Capacity From One and One-Half to 12 Tons.

A completely new line of GMC trucks soon will be introduced, according to J. P. Little, vice-president directing sales for the General Motors Truck Co., Pontiac, Mich.

The line will comprise an array of cab-over-engine trucks ranging in capacity from one and one-half to 12 tons and including the lowest priced one and one-half ton model of this type now offered.

These models, with their distinctive streamlined appearance, will set a new standard of truck beauty," Little said. "In addition to refinements and improvements throughout, they will have a dual tone color design unique in the truck industry."

The line of standard GMSs, also entirely new, has been augmented by addition of a 112-inch wheelbase, one-half ton unit which supplements the 126-inch wheelbase model already included in the line. It will be priced at $395, chassis f. o. b. Pontiac, the lowest price ever placed on a GMC truck.

Both types of trucks are available with pickup or panel bodies of bigger than average size. The longer wheelbase chassis will accommodate a panel body eight feet five inches long or a pickup body seven feet seven inches long. In the one and one-half to two ton range, there is a GMC truck with many advanced features of design and construction priced at $525, chassis f. o. b. Pontiac.

Little said that "every indication points to record truck sales during the remainder of this year and throughout 1937. Nineteen hundred and thirty-six, to date, has been a banner year in the industry."

Ford Plans Spending $1,700,000 Enlarging Plant in Windsor, Can.

Preparing for increase of its market not only in Canada but also throughout its empire territories overseas in the next few years, Ford Motor Co. of Canada is preparing to spend $1,700,000 in expansion and modernization of its manufacturing facilities here, Wallace R. Campbell, president, announced recently.

The object will involve enlargement of its main manufacturing plant at a cost of $300,000 and the installation of $1,400,000 in new machinery to provide improved and modernized manufacturing facilities. Construction work on the addition will begin about Jan. 1. The enlarged plant should be fully in operation within a year.

"Every indication points to better times ahead," said Campbell. "To enable us to take advantage of the improved business during the next few years it was necessary for us to substantially increase our manufacturing capacity.

"The new section will provide 73,000 square feet of additional floor space and permit rearrangement of the manufacturing facilities in the plant, and installation of additional equipment. The building addition will be one-story in height, of structural steel construction, faced with brick, similar in all respect to the present building."

Chicago & Southern Revorts Best Month

The Chicago and Southern has just completed the most active month in its history, according to its president, Carleton Putnam.

November passengers exceeded by 21 per cent those carried in October, which had been the company's best month. A new high in cash sales was also established. Compared with November, 1935, the company shows an increase in sales of 293 per cent.

"Chicago and Southern and another major air line drastically reduced fares Nov. 1," Putnam said, "which is no doubt partially accountable for this air travel increase."

RULES FOR SAVING GASOLINE IN DRIVING GIVEN BY EXPERT

TEN simple rules for gasoline economy, worked out by L. K. Marshall, general service manager of the Pontiac Motor Co., are:

1. Accelerate gently. Tramping on the accelerator pumps more gas into the cylinders than can be used. Keep the foot steady.
2. Holding the car in second gear until it gets up to high speed may easily double the gas used in getting under way.
3. Always try to coast to a gradual stop. It costs money in gasoline to rush up to a stop light and jam on the brakes.
4. Keep tires properly inflated. Under-inflated tires mean extra work for the engine, which means more gas consumed.
5. Letting an engine idle for long periods when parked or waiting for a train to pass wastes much gasoline.
6. Faulty sparks plugs may waste as much as 10 per cent of the gasoline.
7. Keep the car properly lubricated at all times. It's important to take care of crankcase lubrication properly, too.
8. For constant engine temperature, keep the radiator filled to the proper level. An overheated engine uses more gas.
9. See that the pointer of the seasonal control on the intake manifold heater (of a Pontiac) is in the direction indicated for the season.
10. "Gas" can be saved by having an engine tuned up at least every 5000 miles of driving.

R. H. FOWLER,

Who has been appointed retail sales manager of L. M. Stewart, Inc, Chrysler and Plymouth distributor. Fowler, widely known as "Deke," succeeds Carroll L. Cartwright, who resigned to be distributer of Plymouth cars at San Antonio, Tex. Fowler has been a member of the retail sales department of L. M. Stewart, Inc., of which L. M. Stewart is president, for the past nine years. For the past two years he has been a member of the Chrysler 100 Club, made up of 100 salesmen throughout the United States selling the largest number of Chrysler cars in the year.

Safety Factor Said To Hold First Place Among Selling Points

The safety factor now holds first place among automobile selling points, in the opinion of Hugh Roberts, member of the 1937 auto show committee and president of the Roberts Chevrolet Co.

"There is no question in my mind," Roberts said, "that the importance of automotive safety is now fully realized by the public as well as by the manufacturers. This is shown by the increasing curiosity which prospective buyers display concerning frame construction, safety glass, effectiveness of braking equipment and so on. A few years ago, factors such as these were overlooked by many buyers. The interest was all in new body lines, fancy radiator grilles and other things that made a direct appeal to the eye.

"Of course, this is not to say that safety engineering in automobiles is something new. On the contrary, greater inherent safety, as a goal, has been constantly before the engineer. To make the advances found in this year's models, it has been necessary virtually to redesign cars, making every element stronger, more precise in action. The improvements represent, not new departures, but the refinement and maturing of existing practices.

"Today's cars are dependable, easily handled. In only a very small minority of accidents can the blame be placed upon a car."

General Motors Adds Arizona Proving Ground

A new base for testing operations, supplementing the General Motors proving ground at Milford, Mich., will be established at Phoenix, Ariz.

The base, to be known as the Argonaut proving ground, will cost approximately $100,000 and will be completed in December, according to present plans.

For years GM engineers have been taking experimental cars into the Southwest for certain testing operations impossible in Michigan because of climatic and geographic conditions. The new base is being established at Phoenix because of its convenient location to air, rail and highway transportation and the particular terrain and atmospheric conditions which the engineers desire.

Forecasts Fine Cars Occupying Definite Place in Auto Industry

Although in the last few years the lines of demarcation between automobile price-classes have undergone considerable revision, the fine car still has a very definite place in the industry, according to Guy W. Oliver, president of Oliver Cadillac Co., and member of the Auto Show Committee.

"While there is no denying the fact that the low-price cars now offer many features formerly exclusive with the high price, or so-called "fine" cars, Oliver said, "that does not mean to say that the fine car is in danger of becoming extinct. It is true that the difference in quality between the two fields has become smaller in the last few years. But it is also true that the price difference has decreased proportionately. While the manufacturers of low-price cars have improved quality and held prices at a fairly constant level, fine car manufacturers have reduced prices enormously, and at the same time kept well ahead of the low-price group in size and quality.

"Nor are the upkeep expenses far ahead of those for lower price cars. Our experience has shown that for the average driver the difference in monthly gasoline cost is less than $5. Lubrication and service policies, sold with the car, keep annual expenses in those departments within guaranteed limits.

"With improving business conditions, an increasing number of people who switched to low-price cars are again willing to pay something extra for the advantages a fine car affords."

Ford V-8 Truck Line Most Complete in Company's History

The Ford Motor Co. this year has the most complete line of trucks and commercial cars in its history. They are available with both the improved 85-horsepower engine and the new 60-horsepower V8 engine.

The new "little brother sixty" was introduced not only in all commercial car types, but in the 131-inch chassis as well. The 131-inch 1½-ton dump truck is the only model not available with the 60-horsepower engine.

By the use of the new 60-horsepower motor, M. N. Johnson, manager in St. Louis for the Ford Motor Co. says, operating expenses in many cases will be reduced as much as 25 per cent.

"Ford in 1937 has paved the way for the most inexpensive operation of commercial vehicles in the history of the automobile business," said Johnson. "Taking the case of the farmer as an instance, real transportation savings can be made by using the Ford V8 with its 60 motor. Most farmers have little need for heavy hauling. Usually, a small truck will suffice to carry produce to marketing centers and to handle trucking chores. For these farmers, the new 112-inch 60-horsepower stake truck is ideal.

"For rapid urban delivery, where heavy hauling is unnecessary, the "60" sets a new standard for economy, Johnson declared.

The improved 85-horsepower engine is available through the entire Ford commercial car and truck line, from commercial cars to 157-inch dump and stake trucks. Substantially the same as last year's models, refinements of design and advanced features of mechanics have been introduced.

Lincoln-Zephyr Body Has 'Bridge-Truss' Frame

The Lincoln-Zephyr V-12 is the first motor car to be produced in America with no orthodox chassis or frame. The single-unit all-steel "bridge-truss" body performs the function of the chassis and frame in the conventional motor car.

It combines lightness in weight with great strength.

Trailer That Stops Itself

Freight trailer of the type which automatically stopped, in a demonstration Wednesday, when cut loose from the tractor-truck by the driver. The demonstration was staged by the Fruehauf Trailer Co. for city officials and truck men.

Trailer Automatically Stops When Dropped By Tractor Truck

A demonstration of full cab control of an automatic semi-trailer was given Wednesday afternoon by the Fruehauf Trailer Co. for city traffic officials and operators of truck fleets.

On a pavement made slippery by sleet, a tractor was started out hauling the Fruehauf automatically controlled trailer. When the speed reached 35 miles an hour, the trailer was cut loose from the tractor by the driver. As the tractor-truck pulled away from the trailer, a drawbar pulled down the trailer's support wheels and locked the trailer's brakes, with the result that the trailer came to a full stop within 12 feet.

The traffic officials asked that the performance be repeated. The tractor was hooked up to the trailer, and started out. Again when the speed reached 35 miles an hour, the tractor was cut loose and the trailer stopped of itself within 12 feet.

With the Fruehauf hook-up of tractor and trailer, the driver controls, in his cab, the operation of the trailer, dropping the support wheels, disconnecting tractor and trailer and automatically causing the trailer brakes to set automatically.

The design is such that the tractor truck can not be disconnected from the trailer unless the latter's support wheels are lowered and the trailer brakes set. So a trailer can not be dropped off accidentally.

It requires less than five seconds for a truck operator to connect or disconnct a tractor-truck to a Fruehauf trailer. Also, in case a tractor catches afire, the trailer can be disconnected and it and its load saved.

H. L. Weckler Made General Manager Of De Soto Plant

Herman L. Weckler has been made vice-president and general manager of the De Soto division of Chrysler Corporation.

Weckler was in charge of building and equipping the new $5,000,000 De Soto plant recently finished in Detroit. He has been associated with Chrysler Corporation since 1932, when he became an assistant to K. T. Keller, then vice-president and general manager of the corporation.

Weckler will be in full charge of all De Soto activities at the new plant, which has been geared up to produce 75,000 De Sota cars in 1937. He will also be in charge of the new pressed steel plant, where stampings and most of the metal parts for De Soto are now being made.

4286 of Chevrolet's 10,000 Dealers With It More Than Five Years

More than 40 per cent of Chevrolet's dealers have been with the company for more than five years, a checkup of company records in connection with Chevrolet's twenty-fifth anniversary shows.

Of these, 2685 have been with Chevrolet five to 10 years; 1385, 10 to 15 years; 204, 15 to 20 years, and 12, more than 20 years.

In 1936, the company's twenty-fifth year as a manufacturer of automobiles, 99.6 per cent of all dealers showed a profit, and their combined profit was greater than in any other year in Chevrolet history, it was said. Domestic sales for the year, 1,130,000, also were higher than in any previous year.

Chevrolet's domestic production for the calendar year of 1936 passed the million mark in November. Domestic production for the calendar year up to Nov. 20 was 997,695 cars and trucks, with an additional estimated 24,991 carrying production to 1,022,686 through the end of the month. When export production of 81,871 and Canadian production of 40,439 is added, a grand total of 1,144,996 for the calendar year through November is obtained.

Since November, 1911, when Chevrolet came into being, the company has manufactured a total of 12,250,275 passenger cars and trucks.

Buick Car Deliveries Set All-Time Record

Domestic retail deliveries of the Buick Motor Co. hit an all-time record in the second 10 days of November, with 6977 cars turned over to new owners in the United States, the company reports.

This was the best November period on record, according to W. F. Hufstader, vice-president and general sales manager. It compared with 5048 cars delivered in the first 10days of the month and 4479 in the corresponding period of November a year ago.

The rate of increase over last year's volume was 55.5 per cent. Hufstader said, notwithstanding the fact that last November was a record month, following closely on the introduction of the 1936 models.

December schedules call for an output of 28,000 cars, averaging close to 1400 cars per day. The highest day's output of 1937 models to date has been slightly over 1300 cars.

New Varo-Matic Transmission Without Clutch on Gear Shift

The Varo-Matic Corporation of St. Louis, which for several years has developed a new type of automatic variable speed device, is about to proceed with the commercial introduction of the invention.

The transmission is said to be continuously automatic throughout its range of speed. It dispenses with the use of a clutch and gear shift mechanism and is operated solely by the usual application of the foot to the accelerator.

It in no way involves frictional, electrical or hydraulic devices, but is strictly of a mechanical character, using standard gears which remain permanently engaged.

Also "top speeds" of any degree desired can be provided and are automatic throughout in accordance with the conditions of travel.

The Varo-Matic principal of operation is said to make it impossible to "kill" a motor when ascending steep grades and under other conditions of excessive load.

It is said to be compact and simple in construction, requiring no more room for installation than the present transmission.

Laboratory models, now in operation at 416 N. Third street, have been viewed by local engineers. A road test will be made in automobiles within the next three weeks.

The transmission will be offered to the automotive interests through the Varo-Matic Corporation. Dan F. Hyland is president; Lon Maple, vice-president, and H. B. Seligstein, secretary.

Cadillac Co. Reports Incr'aesing Production

Heaviest production in the history of the Cadillac Motor Car Co. is planned for December, General Manager Nicholas Dreystadt said yesterday.

"Our schedule calls for 5700 cars," he said. "This volume betters the best previous month, October, 1929, when the company shipped 5160 units.

"When the high of 5160 was set, the LaSalle was built in a separate plant. The present Cadillac factory is thus producing more than twice as many cars in peak operations of 1929.

"Despite the fact that assembly is now virtually at capacity, our bank of unfilled car orders continues to mount."

Airplane Operation In Cold Weather Entails Few Changes

The adjusting of airline operations to conform with the change in seasons and preparatory to winter operations is largely in the matter of comfort for passengers. Few changes are necessary in equipment or facilities used to continue air transport operations from one season to another, according to Paul E. Richter, vice-president in charge of operations for Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc.

The one visible change in equipment alteration is the installation of de-icing units on certain of the transport plane's surfaces to prevent the adhesion of ice in extreme winter weather. This has been completed, of course.

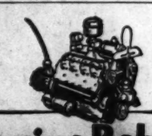

The same weight oil is used the year round. Oil, fuel and other lines are wrapped with special covering to retain heat.

The interior of the passenger cabin requires no change for heating purposes, as the ventilating and steam heating apparatus embodied in the construction of a skyliner need only to be turned on to start functioning. Temperature produced by the plane's heating plant is thermostatically controlled and can be maintained at any desired temperature.

The mobile air conditioners developed by TWA and used at the airports are convertible for use in winter as well as in summer.

Henry Ford Planning For Farm-Industrial Village in Michigan

Project Includes $2,000,000 Saw Mill, Lake Homes and Farms for 30 Families.

A model farm-industrial village will be built in the forest near L'Anse, Mich., as a part of Henry Ford's back-to-the-land movement, when re-location of a section of U. S. Highway 41 is completed.

Tentative plans call for the expenditure of $2,000,000 on a saw-mill, which already is in operation; homes and farms for 30 families and a lake to be fed by Plumbago Creek. The village will be on the banks of the creek.

Ford has contributed steam shovels and tractors to speed the relocation of the highway, which is being carried out as a WPA project for the state highway department.

Residents of the village, to be named Woodlawn, will be chosen from Ford employes in L'Anse, Pequaming and other Upper Peninsula towns where the Ford Motor Co. has vast lumbering interests. Each will be given an opportunity to purchase 350 acres, partly cleared, on a rental basis.

In the summer the men will farm their cleared land to supplement their wages. The remainder of the year, they will cut logs and convert them into lumber in the mill, which has a capacity of about 40,000 board feet daily.

The town site is not far from the Huron Mountain retreat, where Mr. and Mrs. Ford spend several weeks each summer. Ford was almost a daily visitor at the village location when at the camp this summer. He was present for the first operations of the mill in August.

The plans call for landscaping the shores of the lake that eventually is to be created on what is now swamp land between the home sites and the mill. The lake will be formed by damming Plumbago Creek, both for beautification and to provide power.

Ford has established several farm-industrial communities in Southern Michigan, but this is his first large-scale development of the kind in the Upper Peninsula.

Nash, Lafayette Cars Can Be Sleeping Rooms

Under the Nash LaFayette system for 1937, conversion of the sedans to six feet four inch beds can be more quickly and easily performed than before. The only extra equipment needed, and sold at a nominal cost, is a set of cushion leveling irons, rear seat back stays and a felt pad.

The change is made by first raising the rear seat back. Stays hold it in a horizontal position where it serves as a shelf for clothing. The pad is placed on the trunk platform immediately behind the rear seat cushion, which is slid forward and placed on a leveling iron on the rear seat floor. After adjusting the front seat to its forward position, the front seat cushion is placed in the position that the rear seat normally occupies, and leveled with the remaining irons.

The Hudson stopped from 20 miles an hour in 11 feet and one inch; from 30 miles an hour, in 37 feet one inch, and 40 miles an hour, in 81 feet two inches.

The California Vehicle Code requires a stop from 20 miles in 37 feet; from 30 miles, in 83 feet, and from 40 miles, in 140 feet.

NEW CHEVROLET DEALERSHIP HERE

E. E. FORD

S. E. BARRINGER

Appointment of the Barford Chevrolet Co., 5127-35 Delmar boulevard, as a new Chevrolet dealer is announced by Zone Manager Tom Brown. Ford and Barringer came here recently from New York, where they were in the automobile business and associated lines for some years. Barringer at one time was in business here. Ford is president of the firm, and Barringer is vice-president.

The new firm has a modern two-story concrete sales and service building, the first and second floors being connected by a two-way ramp. There is a terraced show room, an open parts store and a service customer lounge on the first floor. The second floor is given over to complete departmentalized Chevrolet service, including lubrication; motor chassis and body cleaning; painting, repairing, and day-and-night service. Of the 34,000 square feet of floor space in the building, 30,000 is devoted to service.

General Motors Institute Trains 11,067 During Year

General Motors Institute has completed its 1935-36 academic year with a total of 11,067 men and women receiving instruction in the various courses offered.

Approximately 1,060,000 man-hours of instruction, including conference hours involved in advance training, were reported, compared with 900,000 hours in the preceding year.

The institute's 1936-37 program has already opened with prospects of an even larger enrollment, and provisions for a more diversified program of training men in the industrial fields are being considered.

Among the students completing the 1935-36 year are two sons and two nephews of Rahimtoola Chinoy, who was recently knighted by King Edward in India; Bernard G. Bell of Shanghai, China, born and schooled in China; and Yuan Hao Howard Wu of Peiping, China, a graduate of a Catholic university in Peiping. Among the 38 students who finished the graduate training program, 27 different colleges and universities were represented.

Of the 11,607 students enrolled last year, 7792 were in the foremanship and executive training program under institute leadership. This is an increase of 2608 over the 5184 students enrolled the preceding year.

An additional 4927 were enrolled in the spare-time study program, an increase of 2460 enrolled in the previous year.

Riding Comfort Built Into New Oldsmobile Cushions Pillow Type

Riding comfort price in the 1937 Oldsmobile Six and Eight is based on oversize, low-pressure tires and lengthened wheelbases. Dual ride stabilizers, front and rear, prevent body sway when the car is taking curves. Improved knee action is another riding comfort factor, supplemented by double-action hydraulic shock absorbers front and rear and by a considerably lowered center of gravity.

Also there are such interior refinements as deep, pillow-type cushions on seats of exceptional width, considerably increased head-room and leg room, and Fisher no draft ventilation.

Graham Superchargers Have Worked Without Failure of Any Part

W. V. DeGalan, service director for the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation, reports that not a single working part of any Graham supercharger has ever failed in service or required replacement due to wear.

Graham is entering its fourth year of regular production of supercharger cars, and superchargers on many older Graham cars long ago passed the billion revolutions mark, DeGalan says.

The "cone" type of worm gear was adopted for the supercharger drive. These gears have the unusual characteristic of "wearing in" instead of "wearing out" in addition to high efficiency. A novel internal oiling system for the supercharger mechanism is designed so that regular engine oil is used, with complete automatic circulation system inside the supercharger housing.

For 1937 the proportion of Graham cars which will be supercharged will be double that in 1936, according to factory announcement.

Measuring Millionth Of Inch Deflection In Packard Laboratory

Experts in the bureau of standards maintained by the Packard Motor Car Co. can measure one-millionth of an inch. They use light ray devices to do it.

One of these experts once calculated an example to show graphically just what one-millionth of an inch is. Here is what he determined. If a bar of steel one-half inch in diameter should be securely fastened at one end and six inches of the bar be left projecting without support the bar would be bent one-millionth of an inch by the weight of a common house fly, if the fly were to alight on the extreme end of the unsupported part.

CHEVROLET ANNOUNCES

the appointment of

BARFORD CHEVROLET COMPANY

5127-35 DELMAR BLVD.

as dealer for

CHEVROLET

PASSENGER CARS AND TRUCKS

EDW. E. FORD
President

Forming a completely new company, with a highly competent sales and service organization, the Barford Chevrolet Company, under the direction of E. E. Ford, president, and S. E. Barringer, vice-president and general manager, has been appointed an authorized dealer in St. Louis for Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks, effective immediately.

The new company is fortunate in combining the management abilities of two men who have made a distinctive record in several fields wherein intelligent, fair-minded service to the public is the foremost consideration.

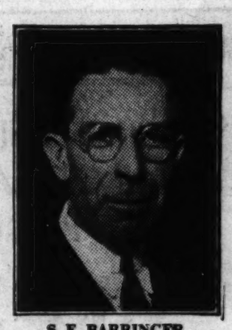

Mr. E. E. Ford has been with International Business Machines Corporation for nearly 20 years, and for the past several years he has been manager of the New York Branch. Mr. Barringer's wide experience covers the electrical field, insurance, banking, and 15 years in the automobile business, which includes valuable experience in important posts with Chevrolet.

These men have surrounded themselves with a personnel of wide acquaintance among motorists of St. Louis, to provide a high standard of representation for the fast-selling Chevrolet cars and trucks.

With a building providing 34,000 square feet of floor space, and that is modernly designed in every respect, the new company is gratified to offer motorists a service department which features 24-hour service, Chevrolet-trained mechanics, Chevrolet-designed equipment, and genuine Chevrolet parts—at low prices.

The Barford Chevrolet Company will also specialize in the reconditioning and sale of Guaranteed OK used cars.

You are cordially invited to visit this modern new establishment and inspect the complete, convenient facilities which have been provided to serve you.

S. E. BARRINGER
Vice-Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

You are Invited to Visit the New Terraced Showroom Display of the 1937 Chevrolet—the Complete Car—Completely New.

Make Sure Your Spark Plugs are

DEPENDABLE

When Ab Jenkins drove 7,134 miles in 48 hours over the Utah salt beds, averaging 148.62 miles per hour, he proved the absolute dependability of Champion Spark Plugs under most extreme conditions. This should prove conclusively to every motorist that one spark plug, and only one, provides maximum power, speed, dependability and economy.

EAST ST. LOUIS BACK ON SOUND FINANCIAL BASIS

Commissioner Connors Tells Council City's Difficulties, Serious in 1933, Are Being Adjusted.

Restoration of sound condition of the municipal finances and credit of East St. Louis, which was in desperate straits in 1933, has been reported to the City Council by John T. Connors, Commissioner of Finance.

He attributed reduction of the city's debt and improvement of its financial standing generally to three principal factors—adoption of a budget, beginning in 1934, which sharply curtailed expenditures under direct control of the Council and which set aside sizeable sums for retirement of debts; large increase in revenue from liquor licenses, and some increase in tax collections.

If the city adhered to the budget system, Connors declared, it would be entirely on a cash basis by 1939.

Debts of the city have been reduced 50 per cent, employes, with their wages fully restored to former levels, are paid regularly each month, and municipal credit is good enough to enable the city to obtain a 1 per cent reduction in interest on its tax anticipation warrants.

In contrast, three years ago the city was bogged in a financial morass, with its credit in jeopardy and its employes on reduced salaries and often unpaid for long periods.

City's Credit Once Imperiled.

According to Connors' report, the burden of debt which had on July 1, 1933, risen to $1,658,105 imperiling the city's credit, by July 1 of this year had been reduced to $828,509, with many liabilities wiped off the books entirely. During the intervening years, the debt as of July 1, 1934, had been brought down to $1,326,747 and as of July 1, 1935, to $1,096,248.

The report was submitted to the various city commissioners to point out the advantages of continuing in 1937 to operate the city on a budgetary basis, as was done in the year 1934, 1935 and 1936. The commissioners are now drawing up estimates of their needs for the forthcoming year. The 1937 budget and tax appropriation ordinance will be adopted after Jan. 1.

Bonded Debt Reduced.

Outstanding bonded indebtedness was reduced during the three-year period from $968,212 to $708,000. As a result of the 1917 riots, judgments were obtained against the city totaling $454,000, which were paid by means of a special bond issue. On July 1, 1933, $197,000 of these bonds remained outstanding, and by July 1, 1936, this debt had been reduced to $110,000.

Outstanding refunding bonds, totaling $662,000 on July 1, 1933, three years later had been cut to $583,000. These bonds represented part of a debt incurred by the city in 1888, when streets were raised and other important civic improvements were made. Only interest was paid on the debt until 1928, when, as in 1908, it was refunded. In the last refunding operation, however, the city council made arrangements to begin paying on the principal in 1932 with the result that the original debt of $712,000 has been reduced by $129,000.

Outstanding library bonds, issued when the city took over the old Elks' Club building and turned it into a public library, were reduced from $60,000 to $15,000 and public benefit bonds, issued to pay the city's share of certain paving costs, and totaling $49,212, were paid off entirely.

Old Judgments Reduced.

Old accumulated judgments confessed by the city and amounting to $176,137 in 1933 were reduced to $120,509 in 1936. The largest judgment arose from a trustee's loan of $105,250 made to the city by East Side subscribing banks and industries in 1929, when the city got so deep in debt it could not raise money elsewhere to pay off many of its judgment salaries and claims. This debt has no wbeen reduced to $84,200.

Other judgments arise from old utilities bills, reduced from $45,385 to $36,309, and damages of $25,500 caused by construction of a subway, which has been paid off entirely.

Unpaid bills carried over from 1932, added to those accumulating in the first half of 1933, by July 1 of the latter year totaled $329,312. By July 1 of this year, these obligations were paid off entirely. In the middle of 1933 there were $184,444 in anticipation warrants outstanding, and in 1934 this figure rose to $281,500, but by the middle of 1935 it had decreased to $110,000 and by July 1 of this year, all debts represented by warrants had been cleaned up. In 1935 the city obtained from the banks a reduction of interest rates from 6 to 5 per cent.

Extravagance Before 1933.

For many years prior to 1933 the city spent more than it took in, so that by July of that year a huge overhanging debt had piled up. Banks had become reluctant to honor the city's anticipation warrants, with the result that many unpaid claims accumulated and city employes went unpaid, at one time for a period of eight months. Cuts in pay as high as 30 per cent were made.

In the middle of 1933, the city council decided to place arbitrary limits on departmental expenditures for the remainder of the year, and in 1934, with the assistance of a Citizens' Committee of Seven, Connors instituted an affective budgetary system.

In a tabulation of annual operating expenses for the years 1928 to 1936, included in the report, it is shown that average annual operating expenses for the post budget period, 1928 to 1932, amounted to $683,000, exceeding by $127,000 the expenses for the ante-budget period 1933 to 1936, which were $556,000.

Because of retrenchments in the latter part of the 1933 fiscal year, the city was able to set aside $330,676 for reduction of its debts. Receipts for the year totaled $932,776, including $160,000 in sale of anticipation warrants. Expenditures totaled $897,646, including $340,040 for retirement of outstanding anticipation warrants, $150,635 for payments of old debts and retirement of bonds, and $406,970 for operating expenses.

In 1934 actual controllable expenditures under the first budget were $486,863, while available funds were $577,770, leaving a balance of $90,906 to apply to debt reduction. Total receipts for the year, including extra-budget receipts, were $1,385,080. Total expenditures, including extra-budget expenditures such as interest and principal due on bonds, police and fireman's pensions, library maintenance and litigation fees, all fixed charges, were $1,208,327. The net amount set aside that year for reduction of debt out of expenditures was $198,172.

The fact that there was a smaller amount set aside for reduction of debt in the first budget year than in the previous year is explained by the fact that during 1934 $143,000 was paid out for 1933 operating expenses.

Heavy Production Schedules Set Up By Trailer Factories

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Dec. 5.—Because it is not a self-propelled vehicle, because it bids fair to become the quasi-permanent home of many people, and because of other circumstances more or less overlooked in its sudden development, the ariler, or 'mobile home," will come in for considerable attention from State Legislatures that will convene next month.

The traielr industry has grown rapidly in the last year while most state law-making bodies have been in adjournment. As a consequence, there are few state laws controlling the merchandising and operation of the parlor, bedroom and bath on wheels. The laws that have been interpreted as applying to the vehicle lacks uniformity, and were enacted when trailers were designed for the hauling of tools and not for human occupancy.

The question of whether a trailer is, in the eyes of the law, a human domicile or an automotive vehicle continues the subject of much speculation although a Michigan Justice of the Peace has ruled it to be a dwelling and as such subject to stringent building codes in towns and other municipalities where such regulations are operative.

In some states, including Michigan, licenses as automotive vehicles are issued for trailers, so that technically they become both dwelling and vehicles, but the application of both codes presents a situation awkward to both the manufacturer and the owner.

It is to clarify confusion such as this that new laws will be sought by trailer makers. At the same time the producers undoubtedly will appeal from the ruling of the Michigan Justice who asserted the building laws that require a given cubic footage of air space for each occupants applied to the "mobile home," "trailer car," or whatever the operators chooses to call it.

Whether the trailer can be insured and financed under the classification of an automotive vehicle or as a domicile is another question vital to the producers, distributors and operators of the product of one of the newest and fastest-growing industry in the country.

All established makers of trailers have set heavy production schedules for next year. They would like to know, however, whether the "home on wheels" is to become the permanent home of a large number of people or is to be used mainly for summer camping an dtouring. The problem of future design is involved in the answer to this question.

Smallest Spark Plug Ever Used in Passenger Car Appears This Year

Declared to be "an achievement of marked significance and great promise in designing engines of the future," the smallest spark plug ever used on a passenger car makes its first appearance this year as standard equipment on some of the 1937 automobiles.

Developed by engineers of the AC Spark Plug Co., the new plug is only 10 millimeters in size.

Its introduction follows extensive development work and road tests over a period of three years.

The new plug is said to minimize carbon formation on the insulator and to improve thermal action during acceleration, deceleration and at constant speeds. Because its maximum temperature is comparably lower, it is stated, electrode wear and formation of incrustations over the insulator by combustion residuals is reduced greatly.

Spanish Conflict Is No Longer Civil War But International Struggle, Says Lloyd George

Germany, Italy and Russia Covertly Lending Aid While Fight Falls More and More Into Extremist Hands on Both Sides.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE,
War Time Prime Minister of Great Britain.
(On Vacation in the British West Indies.)

KINGSTON, JAMAICA, Dec. 5.

THE Spanish menace to European peace is becoming more and more tense and alarming.

It is no longer a civil war. It has assumed the character of an international struggle on limited liability principles. Great nations are taking sides with less and less reserve and restraint.

Three of the greatest Powers in the world—Russia, Germany and Italy—with Portugal also taking part—have already entered, or been caught, by the outer rim of the maelstrom, and are being whirled round at an accelerating speed.

They had already sent in cargoes of war material to equip the particular faction they favored.

During the last few days, or perhaps weeks, there has been a more formidable and much more dangerous development. Germany, Italy and Russia, are now dispatching large contingents of so-called volunteers to take an active part in the fighting.

This inevitable contingency was not foreseen and, therefore, not provided against by the wise men who framed the pact of non-intervention.

Portentous Development.

When it is borne in mind that these three countries are so despotically organized that none of their citizens could engage in such an enterprise without the direct authority of their respective Governments, it will be realized how protentions is this latest contribution made by each to the conflict.

It looks as if the Communist and Fascist nations of Europe meant to fight out their political and racial feuds and rivalries on Spanish ground.

It seems like a prospective repetition of the religious wars of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries which devastated Central Europe and left vast territories desolate and depopulated. Statesmanship is once more impotent to cope with the surging eddies of human passion.

The prospect of a decisive victory for either side is more remote than it appeared to be a month ago. The longer the civil war lasts the greater the danger to world peace. That is universally acknowledged.

Change in Aspect of War.

A few weeks ago military observers were inclined to believe that, at any rate, the first stage in the conflict between the left and the right in Spain would come to a speedy end, owing to the inability of the raw militia at the disposal of the Government to offer any effective resistance to the highly trained and well equipped army commanded by Gen. Franco.

The Government troops were beaten with ease whenever the insurgents made a resolute attack. Town after town fell before them; first the President, and then his Government fled from Madrid, and it was assumed on all hands that the Moroccan Legionnaires would winter in the capital without any serious fighting.

Now, the whole situation has changed. One assault after another upon the city has been beaten off, and what appeared three weeks ago to be a triumphal march of an irrestible army apparently ended in a deadlock.

Outside Aid Only Explanation.

There is a feeling that during these last three weeks the forces of the Government have received from outside reinforcement in material and, what is more important, in intelligent military direction, and that the change that has occurred in the military situation is attributable to this external assistance.

There is no other way of accounting for the complete metamorphosis in the quality, stubbornness and effectiveness of the resistance offered. The untrained Government levies are better led, they are becoming at last half-trained and some of the half-trained are on their way to become competent soldiers. Intelligent leadership has taken the place of disorganized mob tactics.

Four months of incessant fighting, facing danger and death every moment of the day, makes of the survivors better soldiers than two years on parade grounds, and recently the militia have undoubtedly been licked into shape by foreign instructors.

These factors explain the unexpected and growing stubbornness of the resistance which the undrilled and badly-equipped workers of Madrid have offered to the artillery, the bombs and the bayonets of Franco's small army of seasoned troops.

The siege is now in its fourth week. Both sides claim daily success, but the lines are practically where they were on both sides four weeks ago.

Issues Are Fundamental.

Now comes the next and much the more sinister stage. Neither side is prepared to give in. They are fighting issues which are fundamental.

Unfortunately, the conflict is passing on both sides into the hands of extremists.

President Azana is what would be known in our country as a liberal intellectual. But real authority has passed out of his hands.

As the fight has progressed the Government has become more and more dependent upon those sections of the community who hold subversive views as to property, ownership of land and the dominion of the church and its priesthood.

It is the almost inevitable evolution of events in a civil war where there is a struggle between classes.

It will be increasingly difficult to reconcile the differences between the contestants by any peaceable means, and it appears now as if they would have to be fought out to the very desperate end.

But, we are all asking what will be the effect upon the rest of Europe.

Dangers in Outside Aid.

The duration and event of the war depend largely, if not entirely, on the extent to which the rival armies are supplied with munitions and reinforcements from other countries. Therein lies the peril to European peace.

That both sides have so far been equipped with war material from beyond the seas can no longer remain in doubt. Apart from the fact that the insurgents had already secured the major part of such military supplies as Spain possessed, Italy and Germany have poured in munitions of all kinds.

France, owing to the fact that she had taken the initiative in the policy of non-intervention, considered herself bound not to sell materials to either side. The British Government also held themselves tied from the moment they intimated their adhesion to the proposal of France.

The Soviet Government has displayed great activity in re-equipping and reconstructing the Government armies in Spain and has sent material and men to Catalonia and, through Catalonia, to Madrid.

This is where the danger lies

Four Men to Every Job in Illinois: Future Dark

MACHINES CROWDING OUT MINERS

Shorter Hours at Same Pay Union's Stopgap Solution

Since Turn of Century Individual Daily Output Has Risen From 3.5 to 8 Tons, While Number Employed Has Diminished Proportionately.

With Only 5 Pct. of Available Coal in State Tapped, Working Days Average Only 112 and Top Earnings Possible in Pits Are Estimated at $1050 a Year.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 5.

A NATIONAL economic problem, occasioned by the displacement of man power by machinery, is illustrated strikingly by the status of the coal industry in Illinois, which probably will attain a production of 50,000,000 tons this year, the largest in six years.

Yet labor, as represented by the miner, has failed to profit proportionately. Daily production per man continues to increase and there is a resultant decrease in the number of men employed in comparison with total output. One mechanical loader displaces men at a ratio of 3 to 1 and the number of jobless workers, whose fathers and grandfathers were miners before them, is on the increase, with chances of ever getting a job in the mines lessening daily.

Since the turn of the century individual daily production has increased from 3.5 tons to more than eight tons while the number of men at work has consistently diminished as compared with production. In 1900, long before the introduction of machines, it took about 40,000 men to produce a little more than half the coal that 50,000 men will produce this year—and they worked 70 more days and more hours a day doing it. There are about 10,000 more men at work, but they are working fewer days and producing nearly as much coal as 80,000 men could produce under the methods in use in that era.

How Machinery Swells Production in the Mines.

Examination of the production of shipping mines of Illinois representing 90 per cent of the total tonnage produced and embracing both shaft and strip mines, shows that 32,000 men will produce about 45,000,000 tons this year while the same number produced about 40,500,000 last year. Yet working hours are virtually the same while production per man continues to mount. Last year, taking all mines in the State into account, including small non-mechanized local mines representing but 10 per cent of the aggregate production, the average miner produced 8.2 tons a day and his production this year will be higher.

But the average number of days worked was only 112 and this will not be materially altered this year, figures compiled by the Department of Mines and Minerals of the State of Illinois indicate. The number of mines operated, 1350, is approximately the same.

From 1882 until 1886 daily production per man averaged two or three tons, while the number of days worked each year ranged from 204 to 172.

By 1907 daily production averages had reached four tons, with working days remaining about the same. In 1916, a five-ton average was attained and in 1928 it was 7.8 tons with the number of days worked decreasing, falling to about 150.

Since 1929, with mechanism in the shaft mines coming to the fore and improved mechanism at the strip mines, working days have never exceeded 122 while daily individual production increased from 6.6 in 1933 to 6.9 in 1934 and 8.2 last year.

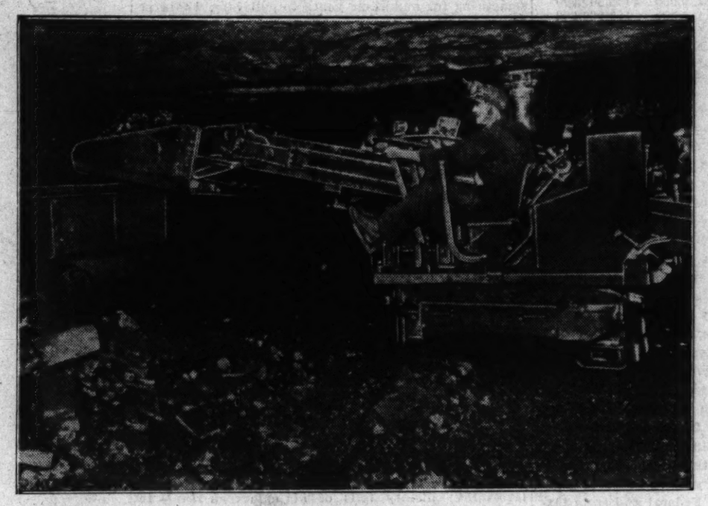

Efforts to Spread Work Fail to Give Jobs to All.

It may be observed, too, that in considering working conditions the number of days worked by men in non-mechanized mines is affected by the competition of the mechanized mines.

All sorts of work-staggering systems have been adopted by operators to endeavor to spread the work among the army of applicants, but still, it is estimated, there are four men for every job. The seven-hour day, as compared with the old 10-hour day, is already here and labor leaders now are calling for a six-hour day and five-day week, envisaging a future when it may be necessary to strive for an even shorter working day.

As recently as 1928, when mechanism in this area was just emerging as a practical factor, 65,500 men employed in 850 mines dug 56,000,000 tons of coal, worked 132 days and maintained an individual daily average of 6.5 tons.

LOADING MACHINE IN USE IN ILLINOIS MINE

Tendency Is Toward 100 Pct. Mechanization.

Since that time the progressive development of mechanism with the consequent displacement of man power is shown in the production records, reflecting an increasing tendency toward 100 per cent mechanization rather than for the use of both mechanical loaders and hand loading as at first.

In 1928, only 17 mines were entirely mechanized and but 37 mines partly mechanized. These 54 mines, using 992 machines, loaded 6,742,000 tons. Fifteen strip mines accounted for another 4,240,000 tons while hand loading in 137 non-mechanized mines produced 43,290,000 tons.

In that year, 79.8 per cent of the total output was loaded by hand, only 12.4 per cent by machinery in deep mines and 7.8 per cent in strip mines which always have used some sort of machine to cut away the surface. But last year 50 per cent of the State's coal production was loaded by machines. Hand-loading dropped to 32 per cent and strip mine production rose to 18 per cent. Thirty-three mines used machinery entirely and 21 mines were partly mechanized.

It should be observed that working conditions vary in different mines and that fluctuations in the last few years in the number of machines used, are based partly on increased efficiency of certain types.

Output Up 22 Per Cent, Working Force the Same.

During the first 10 months of this year the production of shipping mines ran 4,000,000 tons ahead of production over a similar period last year, an increase of nearly 22 per cent for that period on a five-year average. Yet virtually no more men were employed this year than last, while their working hours decreased.

So efficient are the machines that a big mechanical loader in a shaft mine can easily handle 400 tons a day. Manned by a crew of 14 men, including the motorman, it can perform the work of 52 hand diggers.

Efficiency of the loading machines is illustrated in one mine which produced about 457,000 tons last year, and worked 159 days. Thirteen loading machines loaded 357,000 tons. Nineteen conveyors loaded about 85,000 tons. Ten men, employed as hand loaders, loaded about 14,000 tons.

Mechanical undercutting devices have also displaced labor. Some of these machines which rip the coal from the seam ready for the loader produce as much in a day as 28 men could undercut before their advent.

Another machine, in use in some shaft mines, is the conveyor, which automatically conveys the coal to the cars. Men load it by hand but it serves to displace men at a ratio of 2 to 1.

Demand for Jobs And the Apprentice System.

So great is the demand for jobs, as more and more men are displaced, that an unusual problem has been created in some of the mines which still use hand methods. Young men and unskilled men, some of them born in mining communities and attempting to enter an already overcrowded field, are often accepted as apprentices against the better judgment of both operators and miners. But, as one elderly miner told the writer: "It's human nature to try to give a man who needs work and wants to work a job." So overcrowded conditions exist in certain mines. Apprentices work under the supervision of miners and after two years may appear before an examining board to seek certificates of qualification as full fledged miners. The apprentices, however, an undetermined number, are included in the roster of men working.

As for strip mining, where coal is gathered near the surface at the outcroppings of coal seams, it has developed steadily since 1866 when a firm attempted it near Danville, using hand shovels and teams and scrapers.

By 1890, mechanical drag lines were in use and now steam and electrically powered shovels, some handling 32 cubic yards at a time, are employed, necessitating fewer men. One mine last year, using such methods and employing 324 men, produced more than 1,000,000 tons.

As has been mentioned, methods of dividing the working time have been employed in many mines but there still is not enough work to go around and from present indications there never will be unless fewer men look to the mines for a livelihood. Some miners are trying to operate mines, which have fallen foul of financial difficulties, on a co-operative basis.

Shorter Hours at Same Pay Labor's Only Suggestion.

Although 4,000,000 more tons were produced last year than the year before, working time showed a decrease of 8.2 per cent and a further decrease is indicated this year, although production is even higher.

Shorter days at the same pay is the only solution offered thus far by labor leaders, who concede that such methods in view of the number of applicants for jobs and further use of machines are only stopgaps.

Ray Edmundson, president of the State organization of the United Mine Workers of America, told the writer that the five-day week and six-hour day would be necessary to take up the slack while he was inclined to the opinion that a four-day week might be necessary eventually.

William Keck, president of the rival Progressive Miners of America union, advocated four-hour shifts, two each day and said that the Government should take "strip mines out of production," just as has been done with corn and wheat acreage. Such mines, Keck said, lay waste thousands of acres and produce tonnage with a minimum of labor.

A middle-aged miner, who has worked in the mines since boyhood, Joseph Picek, chairman of the legislative committee for the Progressives, told the writer frankly that under present conditions the future of the miner is so dark that young men entering the mines "are like drowning men clutching at straws."

Top Pay of Miner Estimated At Only $1050 a Year.

Picek, as well as other miners, estimated that under the most favorable existing conditions a miner coud not obtain enough work to earn more than about $1050 a year. It was estimated that a steady worker would be fortunate to earn between $800 and $1050 a year.

Some miners, it may be observed, turn to farming and other pursuits part of the time while others, who appear unable to entertain any idea of doing anything but mining, attempt to rely solely on mining for their support. Few are successful.

The condition of the miners, like that of Farm Workers Fight for A. F. L. Charter and To End Exclusion By Social Security and Like Laws

Turned Down at Tampa, They Get Friendly Word From Lewis Group—Continue Organizing Despite Difficulties.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.

WITH an insistence that can scarcely be ignored organized agricultural workers are demanding recognition from the American Federation of Labor. Long the unwanted stepchild of the labor movement, rural workers have in recent years gained such organizational strength that they have been able to give effective voice to their demands.

And what is more they now have another place to go if the A. F. of L. will not open the door. Suggestions have come from the Committee for Industrial Organization, headed by John L. Lewis, that agricultural workers united in an industrial union—covering, that it, all phases of agricultural labor—would be welcomed by the Committee.

Sought A. F. of L. Charter.

A charter for an industrial union to include farm workers, cannery workers and packing house employes was what agricultural workers sought to obtain from the recent convention of the American Federation of Labor at Tampa, Fla. Ten delegates at the convention represented agricultural unions. But they are unions of the Federal type, reporting directly to the Federation and with far less autonomy than unions that have international charters.

What is more, the international unions pay only one cent a member each month into the Federation treasury, while the Federal unions pay dues to the A. F. of L. at the rate of 35 cents a member each month. And, equally important, the international unions are able to muster proportionately greater voting strength and therefore to wield a far more decisive influence in the affairs of the Federation.

Demand for the international charter came from groups in various parts of the country but particularly from the West Coast, where agricultural workers have during the last few years engaged in bitter struggles for the right to organize. The California State Federation of Labor at its last convention called for an international charter in the agricultural field and also voted a one cent tax on all union members to be used to pay organizers in rural areas.

"Coolie Wages" Denounced.

A resolution introduced by a California delegate to the convention declared that:

"The agricultural field farm workers and cannery workers throughout the entire country, and particularly the 250,000 workers in the State of California, are the most oppressed and exploited workers. The yearly attempts of these workers to combat vicious living conditions and coolie wages have resulted in much political strife with many innocent workers being jailed, injured and killed."

In the celery and citrus areas of California, in the onion fields of Ohio, in Arkansas and Alabama organizers have worked under almost overwhelming handicaps, including the threat of violence. Because of this threat the movement in Alabama is said to be largely underground. Having brought about a certain degree of organization under difficult conditions, agricultural workers feel very strongly that they are entitled not only to recognition but to a helping hand from the Federation.

Resolutions Shelved.

At Tampa the Resolutions Committee, headed by Matthew Woll, and made up in large part of conservatives, machine - controlled delegates, had before it six resolutions calling for a national or international charter for farm laborers. The committee recommended that these resolutions be referred to the Executive Council. Such action means, almost invariably, that nothing more will be heard on the subject. Protests came immediately from delegates of agricultural unions.

"Our industry has certain problems peculiar to agriculture which makes it almost impossible for us to organize permanent unions under the Federal local form," Delegate Lief Dahl of the New Jersey Farm Laborers' Union told the convention. "For instance, the average monthly wage of these 3,000,000 farm workers throughout the United States is something like $35 a month, without board or room. This makes it impossible for us to go out and ask a $2 initiation fee and $1 a month dues. It makes it impossible for us to organize unions and expect them to pay 35 cents per capita tax to the American Federation of Labor. As a result, in order to keep our membership, we have to pay the Executive Council on far fewer membership than we have in the field.

Helping Hand Asked For.

"And yet out of 86 international unions represented at this convention 33 have a smaller membership than the Federal local unions covering the agricultural, cannery and packing house field, now affiliated with the A. F. of L. We came to this convention, not asking for material aid, not asking for financial aid, but for the removal of certain restrictions and obstacles which make it impossible for us to organize the agricultural workers under the Federal local form.

"We also have the jurisdictional problem and that is why we ask for jurisdiction over all field workers working in the field. They work for a couple of months in the field, then they go into the sheds for a couple of months, and then go into the canneries for a couple of months, and we say unless such a broad charter is granted our members will have to join two or three international unions to protect themselves."

Marcella Ryan, delegate from a California cannery workers' union, pointed to extremely low wage levels in the canning industry and to widespread evasion of state minimum wage and eight-hour day laws. Laws were evaded, Miss Ryan said, on the excuse that the commodities handled are perishable and therefore the canners are not subject to the laws.

Children in Canneries.

"Since the most a cannery worker can make throughout the year in California is $600," she said, "it makes it necessary for the children of cannery workers to enter the industry anywhere from the age of 12 to 16 and suffer the same privations as adult workers. Many Government investigations have been made in this industry in California and to date no adequate adjustments have been made."

As with every other controversial resolution, the convention, dominated by conservative, long-time leaders, approved the recommendation of the Resolutions Committee when the debate was ended, or, rather, when the agricultural delegates had concluded their protests. For no defense of the committee's action was offered. What was surprising was the committee's approval of another resolution signed by all of the farm delegates.

Pointing out that practically all social and labor legislation excludes agricultural workers, the

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Criticism of the Courts.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ALL one need do to understand why our country is overrun by crooks and gangsters is to visit our supposed courts of justice.

Last September, I cashed a check for a man. This check proved to be absolutely worthless. The man for whom I cashed the check, together with his partner, was subsequently arrested by the police. In their possession the police found dies for printing payroll checks on two well-known St. Louis business firms; also printed checks which they had not yet cashed and blank checks not yet printed.

The Police Department was very efficient in rounding up these criminals and obtaining warrants for their prosecution. But alas! Here the efficiency came to an abrupt end. Four times have I taken time from my work to go to court in an effort to see that these men received the sentence they deserve. Four times have I heard the case continued, always because one of the defendants did not appear. This defendant had been released on bond. At the third continuance, it was implied that if this defendant did not appear at the next setting of the case, the bond would be forfeited. But when he failed to appear for the fourth time, another continuance was granted.

Must we, the citizens of this country, be taxed to maintain courts of this nature? Courts which allow criminals to run at large and go merrily about their business of swindling the hard-working people of their honest wages? Is it any wonder crime is an every-day occurrence when the would-be criminal knows how easy it is to "beat the rap"? Why can't our so-called courts of justice deal out a little old-fashioned stern justice? If we would teach these criminals that crime does not pay, instill the fear of the law in their hearts, we would eradicate forever our huge crime problem.

A DISGUSTED CITIZEN.

Advises the Mayor to Wait.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MR. DICKMANN would do well to cease his desperate efforts in furtherance of the proposed Jefferson Memorial on the river front until the grand jury investigation of the election in 1935, at which the bonds for this project are alleged to have been sanctioned by the voters, is completed.

The ballot boxes are now impounded by order of the Circuit Attorney, and no doubt the investigation will commence very soon. So why this dash from New Orleans to St. Louis and from St. Louis to Washington to hurry up Mr. Dickmann's pet scheme?

Better wait until it is ascertained whether or not the people by their votes really approved the issuing of the bonds or whether the election was fraudulent.

A VOTER.

Better Wages, Lower Prices.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN his letter of Nov. 27, William Nekola sees only "a means of spreading capitalism out thin, so that it will go further," in my offering, "Formula for Prosperity," of Nov. 15. However, the big idea is for a stable and general prosperity.

"Smaller margins of profit" simply means better wages for employes, and lower prices for consumers generally. Of course, the increased buying power of employes will result in more production and more employment. Employers will share in the general prosperity, through greater volume of business. That seems to offer a logical solution to the problem of greater production and more equitable distribution of wealth.

It is no exaggeration to say that, because of low wages, high prices and unemployment, more than half of the American people have never had half of their material needs supplied. The practical application of this policy of "full employment at fair wages and full production at fair prices," promises to supply all their needs. DEMOCRACY.

Pierron, Ill.

Mr. Head and the Boy Scouts.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHAT a sorry mess is being revealed in Chicago by the congressional committee investigating insurance firms!

Our own Walter W. Head does not appear in a very favorable light.

I believe he is head of the Boy Scouts of America. I believe he shared the radio this year with our President.

If these revelations be true, can we still look up to him as a Scout leader?

I think the decent thing would be for him to resign. Will he do it?

THE REV. P. D. O'CONNOR,
St. Lawrence O'Toole's Troop 265.

The Arkansas Peonage Case.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE recent peonage case in Arkansas is a classic example of the treatment given Negroes and poor whites in the courts dominated over by petty politicians. It is certainly time that social science students open their eyes to these great miscarriages of justice. The fault does not lie in the good people who live in the South, but in the greed and selfish interest of the few.

The same might also be added concerning child labor and the unfair factory system of the East and South. Every effort should be made to weed out this unfair and unrighteous way of stealing the other man's labor.

DOUBLE TAXATION.

The problem of overlapping taxation is one that continues to trouble officials and citizens who are concerned about economy and efficiency in government. The country's tax system was developed with no certain plan, prepared along no scientific line, but "just growed, like Topsy," as President Roosevelt has expressed it. As a result, certain commodities and certain groups of the population are levied upon by both Federal and state governments, and sometimes by local governments as well.

Solution has long been sought, but little progress has as yet been made. The matter has often been studied by the House Ways and Means Committee. This committee three years ago found 800 separate instances of duplicating taxes, and the number doubtless has increased since then.

Fresh light on the extent of this practice comes from a report by the Treasury Department, giving Federal and state revenues for 1935 from the most important types of double taxation. So difficult is it to obtain exact facts in this field that the Treasury warns that its figures should not be accepted as official, but merely as "data believed to present a substantially correct view of the situation." The figures, covering six important varieties of tax, follow:

Type of tax.	Federal.	State.
Estate and inheritance	$140,440,000	$108,800,000
Individual income	527,112,000	100,000,000
Corporation income	572,117,000	56,900,000
Gasoline	161,532,000	589,200,000
Tobacco	459,178,000	28,600,000
Liquor	411,021,000	166,600,000
Total	$2,271,400,000	$1,049,900,000

These staggering amounts mean huge staffs of tax collectors and other officials maintained by both the Federal and state governments. It is plain that the existence of two separate sets of officials for these purposes adds to the burden borne by the taxpayer. Administrative costs certainly could be reduced if some method of unification were worked out.

The citizen enjoys services and protection from both state and national governments, and therefore should pay taxes to both on his income and possibly on inheritances. But certainly some method of simplifying collections and reports, while prorating revenues to the two layers of government, is possible.

There are other fields, however, where double taxation is inadvisable. The states originally occupied the field of gasoline taxation exclusively, but the Government entered this early in the depression. The Government, on the other hand, formerly imposed the only tax on tobacco, but this field has been invaded by the states in recent years. There presumably are just reasons for both Federal and state taxation of liquor. In many cases, however, this imposes so great a levy as to complicate seriously the problem of liquor regulation.

Tax evasion and bootlegging of the taxed products are results of duplicate taxation. If the tax set-up were simplified by the Government abandoning certain fields to the states, and vice versa, administrative costs would be reduced, the tax burden would be lightened and the incentive to tax evasion would grow less.

This is a problem for the serious consideration of the next Congress, which convenes next month. In a time when the cost of government causes growing concern, when there is widespread demand for the balancing of both national and state budgets, here is a field for possible economy without reduction of any useful governmental functions. Washington and the state capitals too long have been "stepping on each other's toes," to use Mr. Roosevelt's phrase. It is time to recast the whole scheme of taxation.

NOT THE ONLY ONE.

A deserved tribute was paid to the memory of Elijah P. Lovejoy at the annual banquet of the International Mark Twain Society. There is one respect, however, in which the words of the speaker, Isaac A. Hedges of the Washington University Corporation, need correction. The St. Louis editor, whose crusade against slavery finally brought him to his death at the hands of a mob in Alton, is not "the only American to die for freedom of the press." Just 10 years ago, Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton (O.) Daily News—like Lovejoy, in his middle thirties—was killed by gunmen at his home. His was a brave and sacrificial fight, in the best traditions of militant journalism, against organized crime. If he used his newspaper as a sword against an evil of a later day, the basic issue was the same, the freedom of the press to expose and fight against wrong. Lovejoy and Mellett died under conditions strikingly similar, for the same noble cause.

LABOR HISTORY REPEATING.

History is repeating itself, to a considerable degree, in the struggle now going on within the ranks of organized labor.

With the rise of the new industrial order at the close of the Civil War, American workingmen organized to establish and maintain rights for themselves. The leading agency through which they expressed their wishes in these early years was the Noble Order of the Knights of Labor, dominated by the humanitarian Mayor of Scranton, Pa., Terence V. Powderly, who began work at the age of 13 as a switch tender. The plan of this organization was to admit everyone who worked to membership in "one big union." Kind of work or the race or rank of the worker was immaterial.

Gradually, a new organization began to gather strength. First known as the Federation of Organized Trade and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada, this rival central union changed its name to the American Federation of Labor just 50 years ago. Led by the English-born Samuel Gompers, a product of the cigar makers' union, the rising challenger reflected Gompers' belief in the superiority of labor organizations based on trade or craft groupings. The basic principle of the labor movement in Great Britain, the craft union continued to win followers from the Knights of Labor until the latter's "one big union" fell by the wayside. Powderly passed from the scene and Gompers took his place, to remain the dominant figure in American labor for more than a generation.

The challenger of a half-century ago is the challenged today. The American Federation of Labor, headed by William Green, Gompers' successor, finds itself in a desperate struggle with the Committee for Industrial Organization, whose belligerent leader is John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, for many years the largest single union in the A. F. of L. Green and his followers adhere to the old craft or trade principle with which they drove the Knights of Labor from the field. The two-fisted Lewis and his rebel unions have repudiated the craft idea and proposed instead that labor be organized on the industrial basis—all workers in an industry, whatever the nature of their work, to be members of the same union.

Thus it is that the country is witnessing once more what is essentially a fight over the structure of union organization.

AS THE SHIP SAILS HOME.

As he speeds homeward, the President may review his brief South American tour with a good deal of personal satisfaction. Rarely has a statesman's utterance been received with such sincere acclaim as Mr. Roosevelt's speech at Buenos Aires. There was also the day at Rio de Janeiro, a call of courtesy, to be sure, which hospitality translated into a memorable occasion. Again, the almost casual, neighborly visit at Montevideo, with a felicitous exchange of welcome and acknowledgement and an appraisal of President Terra's contribution to the Pan-American peace movement to stir the pride of Uruguay.

It were trite to discuss defensively the gift of oratory. It has been professionally buried as an art that has had its day. "A mere speechmaker" is a sentence that has often been pronounced, say, by the court of derision. Such an attitude is insufferably dull. The power of graceful, logical, effective speech is truly an accomplishment of great price. It is something for ambitious youth to cultivate, whatever his vocational choice.

One remark of Mr. Roosevelt's at Montevideo, of which cognizance has already been taken in these columns, may again be referred to: his regret that he had not learned Spanish, that he reads it only with difficulty, but his promise on a later visit to speak the tongue of Cervantes.

The date of that later visit was not fixed. Events must determine it. Fair inference may place it some time after Jan. 20, 1941, when, we have been assured, Mr. Roosevelt will be at Hyde Park, "having the time of his life," as his successor moves into the White House. Thus the third-term alarm which has been agitating the columns of the pundits is happily punctured. And when, as a former President, Mr. Roosevelt makes that promised visit to Montevideo, we shall hear, perhaps, this cordial prelude:

"Habla Espagnol?"

"Si, senor."

'POSSUM TIME.

It was quite a party that gay old Belshazzar threw, to be sure. There was feasting and drinking for an even thousand, and Babylon must have talked of it for days. Alexander the Great was no slouch at entertaining; history tells of his epicurean revels in both war and peace. Under the Egyptian moon, Cleopatra's banquet table spread its viands to suitors from afar. But all these winings and dinings, however bright the candles may have gleamed upon them, have been lost long since in the mists of the past.

And so saying, we find ourselves with our feet virtually under the table at the annual dinner of the Polk County 'Possum Club, scheduled for next Thursday in the little Ouichita Mountain town of Mena, Ark. The table is literally groaning with savory Polk County 'possums, fattened on mashed persimmons and warm water, and roasted as only the 'possum roasters of Polk County know how. There are sweet potatoes for decoration, but roasted 'possum, the ambrosia of the lower Ozarks, is the piece de resistance. From the limbs of the persimmon trees above some 400 guests, live 'possums look down on their chosen brethren, brown and steaming on the tables.

Marking the twenty-fifth anniversary of Polk County's 'Possum Club, the occasion is one for the encyclopedia's account of feasts and feasting. Belshazzar, Alexander and Cleo all were born too soon.

THE SHARECROPPER'S PLIGHT.

The condition of the sharecropper in the South, as described by Dr. Charles Johnson, head of the social science department of Fisk University, before a St. Louis audience, makes one believe—as to this class of the population—that the Civil War was fought in vain.

Under the old slave economy, many plantation owners were deeply interested in the well-being of their slaves, if not for humanitarian reasons, for considerations of property values. Under the sharecropper economy, the special responsibilities of the old regime no longer exist and the cotton worker is grossly exploited.

Dr. Johnson tells what sharecropping is like. For the use of the land, the sharecropper gives the landowner from a fourth to a third of his cotton. The former is paid only once a year for his labor and meanwhile receives subsistence from the land owner, consisting largely of the three M's—meat, meal and molasses.

Interest charges on the credit which the sharecropper receives vary from 25 to 50 per cent. At the end of the year, when accounts are closed, it is not uncommon for the cropper to have no money coming at all. In Alabama cotton areas, surveys show that 61 per cent of the families break even, 25 per cent owed the land owner from $10 to $500, while the remainder averaged about $90 a year.

It should be emphasized that the owner keeps the books and the tenant is not supposed to question the way in which they are kept.

So the ordinary sharecropper spends year after year at the back-breaking labor of farming someone else's land, with little or no cash reward, no future, no hope. This is slavery.

Dr. Johnson's testimony about the plight of the sharecropper is not new. It has been set forth by numerous other persons, including Norman Thomas, who has made a special study of the situation.

The situation, aggravated rather than helped by AAA, is a disgrace to America.

SALUTE.

The high honor of the Radiological Society's gold medal has been given to Dr. Edwin E. Ernst of St. Louis and Dr. Otto Glasser of Cleveland for outstanding achievement in their 11 years of successful effort to develop more accurate measurement of X-ray force in the treatment of cancer. The gold medal has previously been awarded to such world figures as Mme. Curie, Dr. Robert A. Millikan and Dr. Arthur Compton.

We salute Doctors Ernst and Glasser. Through the patient labor of such brilliant men, the world is approaching the time when the dread disease of cancer will no longer be the menace it is today.

The National Americanization League is all excited about the royal romance and regards the British Cabinet's attitude as a "reflection on American womanhood." Those leaguers, we suppose, are our blue-blooded gents.

WHAT PRICE ROMANCE?

Cordell Hull: Good Neighbor

Leader of this country's delegation at Buenos Aires conference is described as having "the mind of a highly educated student, the experience of a grass-roots politician and idealism well tempered with good sense"; Secretary of State thinks of peace in terms of economics, not of sentiment, hence his reliance on commercial treaties.

John Palmer Gavit in Survey Graphic.

IN Buenos Aires, Argentina, to attend the great Inter-American Conference for the Maintenance of Peace, is the man who more than any other, save the President himself, not only represents but in great measure embodies and has been the maker of the foreign policies which the people have indorsed. Cordell Hull is, and presumably will continue to be, the heart and brains of the administration in this field. He is not and never has been a mere catspaw for other men's ideas. More than any other Secretary of State in recent times, save perhaps William Jennings Bryan, he is a crusader for world peace and good understanding. It is the cause nearest to his heart.

All this said and true, it were a cardinal mistake to think of Cordell Hull as a sentimental pacifist. For one thing, he raised a company of Tennessee mountaineers for the Spanish-American War—there was never any question about who would be Captain—even if it did get to Cuba too late to smell any powder.

And anybody who, even at this late day, when he is 65 and white-haired, picks him up as any sort of mollycoddle will burn his fingers. Down among the Pickett County mountaineers, where he has lived all his life, there are stories of physical prowess, of dour courage, of conflicts with bare hands, of which young Hull was hero. He never told them himself; I heard some of them from his colleagues, when he was new in Congress 30 years ago.

It were a mistake, too, to think of him as a Southerner; he belongs rather to the West—the pioneer, trail-blazing, ax-skilled and rifle-expert tradition of Daniel Boone. Yes, and of Abraham Lincoln.

Precisely because he has been an intense student of economics, he thinks of peace in terms of economics. He has no illusions about the value of pious expressions and promises in treaties; little interest in military disarmament without economic disarmament; as he said the other day, regarding both together as "patently the two most vital and outstanding factors in business recovery"; believing that economic disarmament and the liberation of commerce from the shackles of ultra-nationalistic tariffs will automatically remove one of the primary incentives to waste in preparation for war.

So, while Mr. Bryan brought about a great sheaf of peace treaties and Mr. Kellogg helped achieve the "Kellogg Pact," Mr. Hull has been busy with reciprocal tariff treaties and has had his share in the currency agreement with Great Britain and France which has lowered the temperature all over the world. Consistent was his record of votes in Congress on the tariff. A member of the Senate described him once as "the only sincere Democrat on this floor" because he refused to support any tariff rate simply to benefit his own State or section.

Sincerity, steadfastness, integrity; conscience illuminated by common sense and carefully informed intelligence oriented realistically to basic facts and changing conditions; an instinct for fair play and determination to understand the other fellow's—or the other nation's—problems and point of view . . . these are inherent characteristics of Cordell Hull.

A bit shy he seems; but that is innate modesty. His best work in Congress was done in face-to-face contacts, and in committee meetings, to which he came profoundly prepared. He never has been a ball of fire as a speechmaker; tends to be cumbrous and old-style oratorical; yet under drive of deep conviction or indignation can lift his audience to their toes.

The shade of austerity, the weight of demeanor a bit on the solemn side, may be unconsciously defensive—at ease he has real humor, though he does not know how or try to be funny; his jokes are few and far between; yet he can enjoy those of other people. He seems to have no cronies; he does not play any game; his study and his work are his hobbies. Yet he is almost universally beloved.

Such is the man who heads what Charles E. Hughes, his predecessor, once called the "Department of Peace." With the mind of a highly educated student, the experience of a grass-roots politician and idealism well tempered by practical good sense, his job is his life.

There have been American delegations to international conferences nominally in the interest of peace and disarmament, military and economic, who went more or less with tongue in cheek; anything but sympathetic toward their errand; to say nothing of camp followers openly and mischievously hostile. This delegation goes blithely with a backing by the people leaving no room for misgivings or misunderstandings.

The principal expectations of the conference are (1) to fortify and implement with definite technique the "good-neighbor" relations in the Western Hemisphere; (2) to take concrete steps to liberate and augment the flow of commerce; (3) to promote good understanding and co-operation along cultural and economic lines, for mutual benefit and with hope of influence upon the rest of the world.

Incidentally—perhaps it were better to say generally—there is active desire to mollify the detestation of all Latin America toward the Monroe Doctrine as hitherto interpreted; even to redefine it, not as a theory or practice of unilateral hegemony maintained by the United States primarily, for its own benefit; but as an attitude held in common by this whole group of nations, against meddling by Europe in the affairs of this hemisphere. Which, by the way, was really all that President Monroe intended in its original declaration.

In his speech on the eve of departure, to a delegation representing the People's Mandate to End War, Secretary Hull emphasized the opportunity to evoke, not only in the Americas but through the world, "alert and responsible public opinion, insistent in its demand that war and threat of war shall cease to have a place in our civilization."

Few Americans—or Europeans either—understand as thoroughly and realistically as Hull understands the whole picture of world relations as they interplay today. His aggressive idealism is backed and buttressed by the same kind of dogged, unceasing study that he has given to every other problem. It is his informed, pragmatical intelligence that gives him his vision of the true place of his country in the world.

Bonfire of an Epoch

From the New York Times.

A LITTLE girl named Crystal clung to the hand of her father, Sir Henry Buckland, general manager of the Crystal Palace, as they watched, with tears in their eyes, the burning of the most celebrated entertainment center in Europe. Generations of other children, of all ages, in all countries, will drop a tear at the fall of the shining dome and the interminable arcades of that glass-walled world of pageant and pantomime, carnivals and great fairs.

Something of their own childhood is lost in the ruins. The Crystal Palace was a place to go on Christmas holidays, out of the sallow blur of the London fog and into the blaze of fantasy and fairy tale, solidly supported by pork pies, crumpets and butter toffee.

The steel-and-glass miracle of the mid-nineteenth century, the Crystal Palace was the lordly pleasure house of Kublai Khan as early Victorians imagined it. It was fitting that it should go up at last in smoke, making such a bonfire as has not been seen since the Great Fire of London in 1666. Perhaps it is fitting that it should go now.

In a way, it was the bonfire of an epoch, of the England of the Glorious Reign, of Dickens and Disraeli, of the Empire and the what-not, of home rule debates and the never-setting sun. That England is no more.

A good many stones have lately been thrown at the big glass house, and the impact has marred the solid glaze, the ineffable aplomb, of a people who never before felt vulnerable in their many-windowed domicile.

The Crystal Palace burns at a dark moment. It illuminates a new shape of danger abroad, the first civil war in recent history, as Mr. Eden warns, that threatens to become a general war, and the disturbing shadow of a constitutional clash at home. But also it reminds England, as someone remarked at the fire, that a good many crises have been weathered since 1854.

RELIEF FOR LANDSLIDE VICTIMS.

From the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette.

THE Kansas papers, feeling a sort of proprietary interest in the Republican party by reason of the propinquity of John Hamilton and Alf Landon to the party's recent debacle, are discussing the ways and means for rehabilitating the organization during the next four years. Paul Jones of the Lyons News, who parked and larded his corporosity on the Landon train last summer, suggests that the Republican party go on WPA relief with some boondoggling job.

Not a bad idea.

Our notion is that Roosevelt shall invent a new alphabetical setup called the GOP, and that under this setup direct indigent unemployment relief be issued to John. Alf has an oil well or two and Frank Knox has a newspaper. But John's got to be away from his office spreading the tidings of the coming Communist cataclysm and he should be properly supported in the style to which he is accustomed in his character of Paul Revere.

Certainly the Republican party is in a fell of a hix, if you know what we mean. If it is to avoid the pallbearers, relief must come swiftly and with rather more intelligence than Mr. Roosevelt has been able to assemble in caring for his other under-privileged wards in the lower income group!

CUMMINGS TALKS ABOUT CHANGES IN CONSTITUTION

Tells District of Columbia Bar Association 'Vital Questions of Interpretation' Remain.

GREAT REBUILDING MUST GO FORWARD'

'Public Irritated by Refinements of Logic Meant to Render Social Construction Sterile.'

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Attorney-General Cummings, chief law officer of the Roosevelt administration, who has been extremely guarded in his public statements on constitutional changes, told the District of Columbia Bar Association tonight that now that the election is over "vital questions of interpretation" of the Constitution remain to be solved.

These questions, he said, would no doubt be resolved in accordance with the American constitutional method—a process of adaptation and growth, following its course to the essentials of justice through the orderly ways of discussion and education. He did not touch on the subject of a constitutional amendment to carry out the objectives of the New Deal.

"The public is conscious," he asserted, "that that which was unplanned or selfishly guided in the past must take its place in an orderly governmental process and that a great cleansing and rebuilding program must go forward. It is impatient with artificial restraints and becomes irritated by those refinements of logic which are calculated to render attempts at social reconstruction sterile or abortive."

Always in State of Flux.

At another part of his address, the Attorney-General said that the law is always in a state of flux, like a river.

"Surely we must recognize," he told his audience, "that it is rather childish to assume that all our problems have been worked out for us by our forefathers. Each generation must determine its own destiny in its own way, dealing of necessity with the actual conditions which it confronts. If I may resort to physics for an illustration. I would say that the law is fluid, not solid; it moves; it flows; it passes on."

The American people, Cummings declared, are in a mood "to demand something more substantial than thin political gruel," and are not content with the languid reaffirmation of undisputed things.

"They want results," he continued. "They are entitled to results. It is not strange, therefore, that they should prefer a conception of progress that places its accent on human rather than on property rights; and they are entitled to have this choice respected. Manifestly, they think as a nation and in terms of a nation. It is idle, therefore, to assure them that agriculture is a State matter or a question for the farmers alone. They know that nature has decreed otherwise. The winds and the dust and the drouth do not heed state lines. They have unmistakable jurisdictions of their own.

"Problem of First Order."

"Likewise it is futile to assert that unemployment is merely a state or local affair. It has risen to the dignity of a national problem of the first order."

By declaring that it was idle to assume the people that agriculture is a State matter, the Attorney-General took direct issue with the majority of the Supreme Court in the AAA case which said of the agricultural subsidy that "at best it is a scheme for purchasing with Federal funds submission to Federal regulation of a subject reserved to the states."

Cummings told the assembled lawyers that the bar as a group had lost prestige with the people because it had devoted its talents to the service of private clients and had neglected the public interest.

"We are not," he admonished his listeners; "merely the advisers of those who would preserve the status quo at all hazards. We are servants of society, accredited representatives of a judicial system which has for its ultimate purpose the administration of justice in its highest sense. In these great areas of change and progress, would we not be better citizens, better patriots, aye, better lawyers, if we were a little less concerned with the technicalities which have served so well in many a strategic contest and a little more given to a broader view of that movement of society which seeks to stake out a more advanced frontier of justice."

Continuing the thought that the public resented legal complications when "statesmanship has shattered the bonds of precedent and is seeking ways to fulfill the just hopes of our people," Cummings declared that it was an anomaly that "many of the most gifted members of our profession exercise their ingenuity and their experience to break down the structure thus created."

"I am sure," he said, "that you will not think I exaggerate when you reflect upon the fact that in many quarters there has been a growing distaste for tactics of obstruction and for the ingenious devices which have been invoked to thwart or circumvent the processes by which government seeks to attain its legitimate ends. I confess to a feeling of uneasiness when I reflect upon this state of the public mind."

Asserting that questions of vast significance are mooving to their solution, Cummings said that lawyers could not abdicate their great function as statesmen without a tragic loss to America.

"Let it not be forgotten," he concluded, "that social progress, and indeed all measures of governmental readjustment may take on a legal form. When one considers the intricacies of modern business and the unexpected fashion in which a measure, apparently well conceived, may produce undesired collateral results, the difficulties of legislation are readily apparent.

"The program should not be merely the product of an administration at which the profession is entitled to take 'pot shots' after it has been formulated; it should be a program of America in which the administration, business, labor, agriculture and the legal profession generously collaborate."

METROPOLITAN CHURCH FEDERATION TO MEET

1000 Ministers and Lay Delegates Expected at Annual Session Tomorrow.

The Metropolitan Church Federation will hold its twenty-seventh annual meeting tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock at Hotel Jefferson. About 1000 ministers of Protestant churches and lay delegates are expected to attend.

The Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, prohibition leader and president of the International Christian Endeavor Union, will be the principal speaker. His subject will be "Christ or Chaos." Originally a Presbyterian, Dr. Poling now is pastor of Temple Baptist Church in Philadelphia.

Formal retirement of the Rev. Dr. Arthur H. Armstrong as executive secretary of the Church Federation after 18 years of service in that office will mark the meeting. His successor likely will be chosen at the first meeting of the new officers to be elected tomorrow night.

The Rev. Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, president, will be in charge of the meeting.

CITY CAROL SINGERS PLAN ANNUAL NOONDAY CAMPAIGN

Downtown Hotels, Restaurants, Department Stores Will Be Visited Dec. 23 and 24.

Carol singers will make their annual appearance again in the downtown hotels, restaurants and department stores at noon on Dec. 23 and 24, according to plans being completed by the St. Louis Christmas Carols Association. Mrs. J. Archer O'Reilly is chairman of the noonday singing.

Last year more than 1000 trained singers, many in costume and representing choral clubs, school glee clubs, church choirs and other organizations, took part in the downtown caroling. In addition to the usual carols, more elaborate songs were given by the groups and many had musical accompaniment.

Each group again will be assisted this year by hostesses under the direction of Mrs. Ralph L. Thompson and Mrs. Eugene S. Klein, who will collect alms for the benefit of underprivileged children. Mrs. Edward S. Dicke and Mrs. Paul I. Talbot are in charge of dressing the singers.

Among groups which will take part in the special singing are the Scottish Rite Woman's Club, Bel Canto Club, Ursuline Academy, Soldan High School, Mu Phi Epsilon, Bell Telephone Chorus, Harris Teachers' College, Musical Research, Incarnate Word Academy, Country Day School, Mrs. Julian T. Hewitt's group, Mary Institute, Rosati-Kain High School, Mrs. E. B. Simpson's group, Miss Gladys Cupples Mourton's group, Sacred Heart Academy, Cleveland High School, Fontbonne College, Webster College, St. Elizabeth's Academy, St. Joseph's Academy, Miller-Ferguson Studio, Child Conservation Conference, Loretto Academy, W. Ben Knight's quartet, Roosevelt High School, Visitation Academy, Pilgrim's Girl quartet, Maryville College, Blewett High School, St. Alphonsus High School, St. Louis University Girls' Glee Club and Phi Gamma Psi sorority.

Dress rehearsals for the play, which is under the direction of Milton McGovern, were held yesterday, more than 2000 persons being specially invited.

MAYOR TO OFFER DRASTIC BILL ON SMOKE CONTROL

Declines to Discuss Nature of Measure to Be Introduced in Board of Aldermen Friday.

CITY COUNSELOR PREPARING DRAFT

McDevitt's Recommendations for Abatement of Nuisance to Supplement Engineer's Report.

An ordinance of 'drastic" nature for control of smoke will be introduced in the Board of Aldermen Friday at the instance of Mayor Dickmann, the Mayor announced yesterday.

He declined to disclose the nature of the bill, which was being drafted by City Counselor Edgar H. Weyman.

Director of Streets and Sewers Frank J. McDevitt, a mechanical engineer familiar with heating plants, has been instructed by the Mayor to prepare recommendations for smoke abatement to supplement a recent report by Osborn Monnett, Chicago consulting engineer. In the past McDevitt has advocated establishment of central heating plants to distribute heat to domestic and commercial customers just as gas and electricity are circulated through the city.

Report Not Made Public.

Monnett's report was submitted to the Mayor about three weeks ago, but was not made public. Dickmann said yesterday that, in his opinion, the report required supplementary recommendations such as would be provided by McDevitt.

Employment of Monnett was by ordinance authority. He told reporters when here that St. Louis was naturally dependent on Illinois soft coal for fuel, but expressed belief that it could be burned smokelessly by use of proper equipment. While he did not commit himself, he indicated that general use of automatic stokers to reduce smoke from combustion of soft coal might be the solution.

He came here Sept. 15 and was aided in his inquiry by city inspectors. At the start of his work he announced the intention of studying the general situation, rather than spending time on details, and of making recommendations along engineering lines, with a view to obtaining results over a period of years. Addressing a Chamber of Commerce meeting early in October he declared the smoke problem could be solved and blamed comparatively small heating units and large apartments for most of the smoke nuisance. He was sure industrial smoke could be abated also.

Monnett's Record.

Monnett, who has been in combusion engineering since 1910, was Chicago's chief smoke inspector for four years and consulting fuel engineer for the United States Bureau of Mines for 10 years, and has worked on smoke abatement in cities throughout the country.

Under existing ordinance authority, smoke abatement here has been in the hands of the Assistant Commissioner of Smoke, Boiler and Elevator Inspection, who has 12 inspectors. Generally only one or two of the inspectors have been assigned to the smoke problem.

FRENCH MARRIED WOMEN CLAMOR FOR NEW RIGHTS

Under Law They Need Husband's Permit to Run a Business, Have Bank Account.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—Feminists have launched a campaign to free the French married woman from the restrictions imposed on her by French law.

French women in general have no vote, but the French married woman has practically no legal rights whatsoever.

Her signature is not valid on any legal document. Without her husband's authorization she cannot run a business, rent an apartment, have a bank account, get a passport, or take out insurance on her life.

A married actress, for example, must have her husband's authorization before she makes any engagement. He can, if he chooses, forbid her appearance in a particular scene which he does not like.

Evidence of a wife's unfaithfulness is a legal ground for divorce, but the wife can obtain a divorce against her husband's wishes only if it can be proved that he was unfaithful in their own home.

Mme. Kraemer Black, French lawyer and one of the leaders in the campaign for legal rights for married women, said that "children and idiots have more legal rights under English law than sane married French women under French law."

South St. Louis Bridge Proposal.

C. Arthur Anderson, Congressman- elect from the Twelfth District, will discuss the proposal for a bridge crossing the Mississippi River in South St. Louis at a meeting of the Carondelet Improvement Association Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. at the Carondelet Branch Library, 6800 Michigan avenue.

PAGEANT AT PILGRIM CHURCH

To Mark 70th Anniversary of Founding Today.

A pageant commemorating the seventieth anniversary of Pilgrim Congregational Church will be presented at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the church, Union boulevard and Kensington avenue. The performance, written and directed by Gordon Philpott, will be in six episodes. Participating will be Eugene Johnson, Murray Cabell, T. W. Van Schoiack, Wilbur B. Jones, Carleton S. Hadley, George J. Mechalson, H. Huntington Ellis, Alfred Fairbank, Miss Marie Shaver and Gordon Browne Jr. A commemoration sermon also will be given at the regular service this morning by the minister, the Rev. Truman B. Douglas.

LUNCH TO NEW LEGISLATORS

Women Voters' League Will Put Case for Four Measures.

Members of the new Legislature from St. Louis and St. Louis County have been invited as guests of the League of Women Voters to luncheon at Hotel Kings-Way Tuesday, when league members will speak of the four major subjects the league will support during the legislative session.

Speakers and their topics will be: Unemployment compensation, Mrs. R. Walston Chubb; State reorganization, Mrs. Virgil Loeb; public welfare bills, Mrs. Roscoe Anderson, and permanent registration of voters, Miss Jeanne Blythe. Senator Bennett C. Clark and the Congressmen from local districts also have been invited to attend.

Machines Are Crowding Out Illinois Miners

the operators is affected by other influences than mechanization. The miners must share in the battles of the industry as a whole and the coal industry in Illinois is fighting constantly to hold its market. Not only is it faced by competitive forms of energy, such as gas, oil and water power which have come steadily to the fore in the last 10 years, but is struggling against competition of bituminous coal from Indiana and Western Kentucky.

Cut-Throat Competition to Meet Constant Expense.

The coal industry is not a normal barometer of changing economic conditions. It is a specialized industry, confronted by conditions peculiar to itself. During the depths of the depression, for instance, some producers of cheaper grades of Illinois soft coal were relieved somewhat from the competition of other fuels. Even the drouth, with the consequent lowering of the rivers, forced some industries to turn to coal instead of water power.

The coal operator must stick to his last. His plant, unlike many industrial factories, cannot be turned to another use when a market for one product slackens. A coal mine is a coal mine. Even in slack times there is a constant maintenance cost.

The temptation to sell coal at cost to meet this constant expense is almost irresistible, resulting in cut-throat competition and a further check on the economic advancement of labor.

The very development of mechanism in mines by operators able to finance the initial outlay required for such labor-saving devices, has added to the keenness of the competitive conditions in the industry. Small operators, unable to afford machinery, attempt to sell their comparatively small production at lower rates. Thus the Illinois operator today, with only 5 per cent of the available coal tapped, is struggling to maintain the industry while modern miners are facing a future bare of opportunity to work.

'Spanish Fight No Longer Civil War,' Lloyd George

if the war goes on. It is no use minimizing it.

Italian airmen are flying Italian planes and bombing Spanish cities. There are reports of Italian torpedoes sinking Government ships. Russian experts are training Government troops and stiffening Government battalions. Thousands of German volunteers have landed at Cadiz to join Franco's forces.

If this goes on there will be sinkings of Russian ships by Italian men-o-war, and there will be a retaliation on the part of Russians against Italian ships.

That will not lead to war. It will be war.

Who is to stop it, and how?

It cannot be done by fumbling and fuming. So far, that is the sole contribution of diplomacy.

Farm Workers Fighting For an A. F. of L. Charter

resolution called upon the A. F. of L. to take immediate steps to end this discrimination. Adoption of the resolution represented a drastic reversal of policy. It means that for the first time the Federation will include rural workers in the demands it makes on Congress and state legislatures. Partly responsible for this change of policy was a report submitted to the committee by the 10 agricultural delegates.

This report showed that almost without exception every state and Federal law governing hours of work, conditions of labor, social security, women and children in industry make an explicit exception of agricultural labor. The NRA, the AAA, the Wagner Labor Relations Act, the Social Security Act, the proposed Black-Connery 30-hour week bill, all exempt farm workers.

"It is obvious," the report said in conclusion, "that America's 3,000,000 agricultural workers, their families and dependents are the most neglected and ignored class of working people in existing Federal and state social legislation. This neglect by our law-making bodies is largely due to two things:

"1. Lack of effective and permanent trade union organization among this large group of workers that would exert pressure on Congress and the Legislatures for legislation.

"2. The effective organization of large-scale employer farmers who maintain lobbies in Congress and the Legislatures and who are directly responsible for the universal exemption of agricultural labor from all benefits of social legislation."

Farm Workers Barred.

In preparing the report the laws of 31 states were studied. Twenty-nine of these states had laws governing child labor and of this number 24 specifically exempted or omitted children engaged in agriculture. "In many of these states it is the organized opposition of the employer farmers that is withholding indorsement of the child labor amendment to the Constitution."

A similar situation exists respecting workmen's compensation laws. Of 28 states having such laws, 26 specifically exclude agricultural workers. Twenty-two out of 25 states having laws governing conditions of labor for women exempt women in agriculture.

"Most of these laws," says the report, "enumerate the nature of the work to which the laws shall apply. In nearly all of these enumerations, agriculture, or the processing of agricultural products is omitted."

State laws governing wage payments exempt farm laborers and cannery workers. So do State laws providing a legal day's work and laws stipulating safety requirements. The exclusion from recent Federal law is just as pointed, the report makes clear, taking the AAA as an example.

Lost Jobs Under AAA.

"The AAA refused to include agricultural workers under its benefit program because such inclusion 'might disturb the traditional tranquility and peaceful relationships of our farming territories.' Instead the AAA reduction program resulted in throwing many hundreds of thousands of farm workers out of jobs."

What was almost as surprising as the approval by the committee of the resolution calling upon the A. F. of L. to include rural workers in legislative demands was Secretary of Labor Perkins' reference, in her speech to the convention, to the problem of the farm laborer. Speaking also of maritime workers, as another low income occupation, she told the convention that labor could not ignore any group or class of workers. It was the first time in the history of the A. F. of L. that a Secretary of Labor has referred to rural workers. A few days later Chairman John G. Winant of the Social Security Board in a broadcast from New York predicted that the Social Security Act would be amended at the coming session of Congress to include millions of farm workers and domestic servants.

Organized Farm Workers.

It is difficult or impossible to estimate the number of organized farm workers. There are more than 50 Federal unions affiliated with the A. F. of L., the largest being the Fruit and Vegetable Workers' Union of California with a membership of more than 5000.

Besides the agricultural workers enrolled in unions, there are several organizations of tenant farmers and share croppers who are not considered, technically, as farm workers. The Southern Tenant Farmers' Union, largely in Arkansas, puts its membership at 30,000, the Sharecroppers' Union, farther to the south, at 12,000. These organizations, too, have made overtures to the A. F. of L. for a charter.

It is significant, perhaps, that John L. Lewis has taken a considerable interest in the Tenant Farmers' Union. At the instigation of Lewis an investigator was sent into Arkansas by the United Mine Workers and brought out a devastating report. Following publication of this report the executive board of the Mine Workers adopted a resolution calling for general support for the sharecroppers' strike then in progress.

Lewis' Attitude.

Addressing a delegation of sharecroppers and representatives of Federal agricultural workers' unions, Lewis said: "I am aware of the problems you face, the sufferings you endure. Keep hammering away for your rights as men and as members of unions. The mine workers wish you well. From the great struggle for industrial organization you must needs benefit and we shall appreciate your regard and what support you can give."

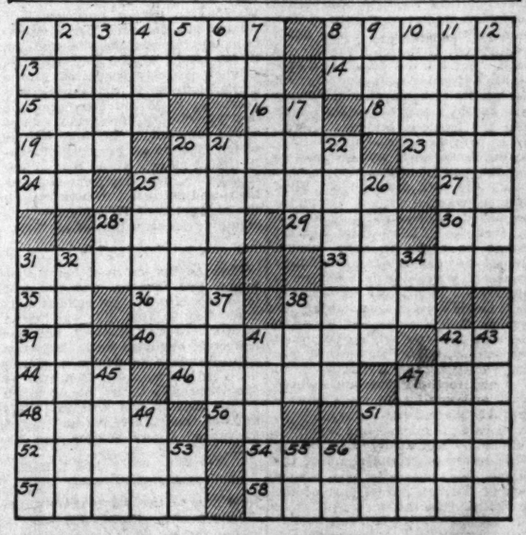

After the close of the convention at Tampa the executive council held a meeting to consider the action taken at the convention. Agricultural delegates appeared at this meeting and again presented their demands. There were indications that the council would give serious consideration to this voice from a field of labor that hitherto has been entirely outside the province of all labor organizations. Meanwhile the work of organization is being pushed, in the Colorado beet fields, in the orange groves of California, in the truck gardens of New Jersey. Slowly but none the less surely agricultural labor is being made aware of the power of organization.

"Of Making Many Books"

EDITED BY JOHN G. NEIHARDT

A Study of a Lonely Soul

FIGHTING ANGEL. By Pearl S. Buck. (Reynal & Hitchcock, New York.)

FEW people realize that their parents are human beings like the rest of mankind. Familiarity blunts understanding. Pearl Buck, however, has written biographies of her father and mother which, in their sympathetic comprehension of character, show her to be an exception to this generalization.

Oddly enough, these two accounts do not duplicate one another. The husband and wife, though they lived together for 40 years, did not really inhabit the same mental world. It is significant that each always gave entirely different versions of the same story. "The Exile" tells of Carie, who loved life and was warmly human. "Fighting Angel," the second volume, is a study of Andrew, who "never touched the fringe of human life, . . . never knew its stuff, and . . . never felt its doubt nor shared its pain."

Andrew was a member of "the preachingest family" in Greenbrier County, Virginia, a family which produced six ministers and to whom religion was "mental food and emotional pleasure." After a dogged and patient struggle to achieve an education in spite of lack of funds, the young man at length realized his ambition and set sail for China. His life from then on was one of pure happiness.

Having given himself to God, Andrew felt no lesser demands. He seldom understood the needs of his wife or children and never had any desire to spare himself. His adventurous zeal urged him ever to push on into the interior, where other foreigners never thought of going. Plagues, floods, bandits did not daunt him.

Andrew loved the Chinese, and, contrary to missionary custom, usually sympathized with the native in any dispute between members of the two races. As a result, the people felt a great deal of tolerance toward him and seldom interfered with his actions. He remained unafraid, the only white man in a large district during the Boxer Rebellion. Once in later years he was captured by bandits who spared him when they learned his identity. He preached a long sermon to them before leaving. When some grew restive, the chief admonished them, saying, "Be still! Don't you see the man is trying to get to heaven by this task he has set himself to save our souls? We must help him by waiting until he is through."

Preaching, however, was not Andrew's only interest. He was a scholar of ability, and, not satisfied with the clumsy Chinese translation of the Bible then in use, spent years preparing his own version directly from the Hebrew and Greek. With true respect for learning, he was instrumental in creating a seminary where the native clergy could receive a solid education.

This book is not only a sensitive character study of a serenely lonely soul, but is also an unusual picture of missionary life in pre-revolutionary China.

Less Than a God But Still a Giant

WOODEN TITAN, Hindenburg in Twenty Years of German History: 1914-1934. By John W. Wheeler-Bennett. (William Morrow & Co., New York.)

AN unidentified someone said to John W. Wheeler - Bennett: "Hindenburg's record is a bad one. Ludendorff won his battles for him, and he betrayed Ludendorff; the Kaiser made him a Field Marshal, and he betrayed the Kaiser; the Right elected him (Reichspresident) in 1925, and he betrayed the Right; the Left elected him in 1932, and he betrayed the Left. . . . I would not put too much faith in Hindenburg's promises."

Such was the summary of a man generally esteemed great, not only in Germany but by the world at large, that was Wheeler-Bennett's point of departure. An unusually well-informed young Englishman, Wheeler-Bennett had, of course, heard parts of it before. He recognized, as will many, that events in Germany were indeed susceptible of such an interpretation. What were the facts? He undertook to find out. At first his attention was centered, naturally, on Hindenburg. As data accumulated, he found himself engaged in writing a most interesting treatise which he might have called, "How Germany Got That Way"—"That Way" being Nazidom. His verdict on Hindenburg is: "Wooden Titan"—a titan being a giant of status less than godlike and wood a less precious substance than gold or bronze or marble.

The compact narrative exposition does not lend itself to paraphrase summary. Its jigsaw pattern of German politics will not fit into much less space than he gives it—478 pages; but the net effect is a substantial, if grudging, acquittal on all the counts of betrayal. Hindenburg was an old man when called back into the harness. Ludendorff was, in a peculiar sense, his military brains. Ludendorff was responsible for the politico-military mess that ended the war. Yet the old Field Marshal was not without blame. He permitted Ludendorff, and others in turn, to insulate him against things he ought to have known. Indeed he was seldom completely aware of what was being done in his name. To millions of Germans he was the hero of Tannenberg. He was in fact a stolid old Prussian General, not too bright, but quite respectable, whose watchword was duty—duty to the Kaiser-King, to God and to the Fatherland—whose trust and confidence were unwarrantably placed, for the most part, in more agile-minded but less dutiful men. Negatively Hindenburg will have to stand some of the blame. He appears to have been a sort of German counterpart of the American General Grant.

Gives Closer View Of Henry Adams

THE LETTERS OF MRS. HENRY ADAMS. Edited by Ward Thornton. (Little, Brown & Co., Boston.)

THERE have been few men whose desire for anonymity was more marked and sincere than that of Henry Adams. To a large number he still remains but a name despite the fact that his "Education of Henry Adams" and "Mont-Saint-Michel and Chartres" are among the permanent treasures of literature. His "Letters", published in 1930, revealed the man more clearly than did his spiritual autobiography.

Mrs. Adams, Marian Hooper before her marriage, is scarcely mentioned by her husband in his earlier books. Some mention is made of her in the "Letters," but at best she has remained obscure until the publication of her own letters. Most of those in the present volume are written to her father, Dr. William Robert Hooper, and they not only add to a knowledge of Henry Adams' private life, but bring to light a personality notable in its own right. The portrait of Mrs. Adams which emerges gradually through some seven or eight hundred letters is that of an intelligent, charming and gracious woman whose interests extended beyond the sphere of the average woman of her class and time.

While traveling in Europe with her husband, Mrs. Adams writes informally about the weather, people, churches, museums, her purchases, the theater, and in these letters the reader is given the impression of a witty and amusing person whose attempt at seriousness was not very great. In the Washington letters, however, Mrs. Adams has recorded her observations on the personalities and political issues of the day with an acumen scarcely suspected in the earlier letters. It was during this residence in Washington that the real personality of Marian Adams found expression in her letters, which disclose an integrity of spirit almost as austere as that of her husband. The contempt for pretense and pettiness, so ingrained in the character of Henry Adams, is equally evident in that of his wife.

Mrs. Adams survived her father but a few months, and the last letter to him in this collection is dated May 20, 1883. She was buried in Rock Creek Cemetery, and her husband commissioned Augustus Saint-Gaudens to design a monument in her memory. Beneath the draped granite figure, about which Henry Adams has written in his autobiography, are the unmarked graves of Henry Adams and his wife.

NEW WAYS IN PHOTOGRAPHY. By Jacob Deschin. (McGraw-Hill Book Co., New York.)

SO many new ways in photography have been found in recent years that amateurs have had difficulty in keeping up with the improvements that have been made. Jacob Deschin, who conducts the "Camera Angles" column in the Scientific American, comes to their help by setting forth the most up-to-date methods for obtaining good pictures of all kinds of subjects under all conditions. He discusses all branches of camera work that are at present little known to most amateurs.

SPENDING TO SAVE. By Harry L. Hopkins. (W. W. Norton & Co., New York.)

HARRY L. HOPKINS, Administrator of Federal Emergency Relief, Civil Works and Works Progress, describes the building-up of these immense organizations and the work they have accomplished in dealing with the millions of unemployed.

Fine Translation Of Russian Poet

THE WORKS OF ALEXANDER PUSHKIN. Selected and Edited, with an Introduction by Avraham Yarmolinsky. (Random House, New York.)

RUSSIANS regard Pushkin (1799-1837) as their greatest literary genius and his work as the cornerstone upon which all subsequent Russian literature rests. Yet Western enthusiasm for Russian literature has centered mainly around Tolstoy and Dostoyevsky, while Pushkin remains the least known of the major Russian writers. His best contributions were in verse and therefore hard to appreciate in translation. Indeed, the tonic accent—so characteristic of all Russian poetry—as well as the subtle shades of Pushkin's lyrics almost defy translation into a language as remote and different as English.

It is, therefore, gratifying to find this volume of Pushkin's work, edited by Yarmolinsky, which succeeds in overcoming these difficulties and conveying to the English reader the spirit and poesy of the Russian text.

The book is a selection of lyrics, narrative poems, folk tales and dramatic writings by Pushkin, and is prefaced by an essay on the poet's life. Most of the verse is translated by Babette Deutsch and the prose by T. Keane. In rendering the verse into English, the translators have kept faithfully to Pushkin's meter and rhyme-schemes. The dramatic selections include an excellent translation of "Boris Godunov," which is well known to the public in its operatic version with the music of Moussorgsky. "The Tale of the Golden Cockerel," which gave inspiration to Rimsky - Korsakov's opera-ballet, "Le Coq d'Or," is also well translated.

The publication of Pushkin's verse in English is especially timely since it coincides with the centenary of his death, which will be celebrated in Soviet Russia as well as by the Russian emigre abroad. That Pushkin's work has survived political and social upheaval is a proof of its enduring value.

Firm in Faith, Patient as Earth

GOD RETURNS TO THE VUELTA ABAJO. By Melanie Earle Keiser. (William R. Scott, New York.)

THE plot of this book—a slightly altered version of Beauty and the Beast—is not important. No doubt the affair between Paula and the Homely Stranger is useful in holding the story together, but otherwise it has little significance, except as it fits into and completes the general pattern. For "God Returns to the Vuelta Abajo" is a tale about the tobacco planters of the Cuban Vega, about Paula's family, their friends and neighbors—a whole rural community.

These are not the wealthy planters of romantic tradition, but peasants. Nature is a tremendous force in their lives. They move with it always, inwardly and outwardly; not by coercion, but because they are a part of it.

That intimate connection is evident also in the religion of the people. Theirs is a personal God, kindly, benovelent, leaning down toward His children from on high, a warmly human God. That primitive religion, nominally Christian, bears a strong resemblance to primitive mythologies like those of Greece and Rome. It is not so much dogma and teaching as a growth, natural and unforced, from inside, an instinct of worship and propitiation.

But the formal creed exists still, and it is that which, combined with the influence of the forces of nature, gives these people their moral strength. For they have all a certain toughness of character. When God leaves the Vuelta Abajo, no rain falls for months; the tobacco crop is ruined, the streams dry up, the cattle die; yet no one weakens. Even separated from their God, starving, tasting the bitterness of despair—they do not whine. A tremendous power of resistance to disaster seems to lie in them all They have the patient equanimity of the land itself.

The strength and simplicity of her characters is reflected in Mrs. Keiser's writing, a prose sincere and natural.

Thoreau As a Man Among Men

MEN OF CONCORD. Edited by Francis H. Allen. Illustrations by N. C. Wyeth. (Houghton Mifflin Co., Boston.)

MR. FRANCIS ALLEN, biographer of Thoreau and co-editor of of the Walden Edition of the Complete Works, has selected from the Journal those passages that give intimate glimpses of the men and women with whom Thoreau talked in his rambles. Chronologically arranged, these excerpts cover a period of 23 years, beginning in May, 1838. The result, we are told, is "a sort of cross-section of Concord life in the middle of the nineteenth century," also a revelation of Thoreau in a new light "as a man among men, a neighbor and a citizen."

The book is often amusing in a quiet, if not a dour way; and not the less so at those moments when the suspicion obtrudes, that the peripatetic philosopher is revealing rather more of himself than of those he examines as specimens, not without a hint of complacent condescension. Even an admirer of much that Thoreau has written should be able to understand how an irreverent reader, unawed by sacred legend, might often wonder in reading this book if Thoreau's sympathy for human beings was not rather stingily conceived; and certainly there is nowhere given any strong impression of love for men and a self-identification with them. Too commonly, it seems, there is Thoreau on the one side and the human race on the other.

"I sometimes reproach myself," we read, "because I do not find anything attractive in certain mere trivial employments of men—that I skip men so commonly, and their affairs. . . . I will not avoid, then, to go by where men are repairing the stone bridge—see if that will not yield me a reflection. . . . I will try to enjoy them as animals, at least."

This curious notion that anyone's "reflections" on life can be more important than the sad, glad business of living itself seems to have been characteristic. There is a passage, not a little scornful, about the common farmers around Concord: "What then could redeem such a life? We only know that they ate, and drank, and built barns, and died and were buried, and still, perchance, their tombstones cumber the ground. . . . If only a single verse of poetry or poetic prose (like Thoreau's!) had ever been written or spoken or conceived here, I should not think it in vain that man had lived here. It would to some extent be true then that God had lived here." But to have lived only as a farmer—"and in no moments as a man!"

One might infer that the Deity was a literary gentleman, did one not strongly suspect that the unknown farmer who tilled his stubborn acres, reared his family and died full of years was perhaps more of a "natural man" and even, conceivably, closer to God than one who ran away from real life and its normal burdens to philosophize —sometimes jejunely, as some of the entries here disclose.

Those who are interested will find much that is pleasing, if trivial, about members of the famous Cambridge group, and the numerous vignettes of neighborhood characters are sharply drawn.

But the 11 full-page color plates by N. C. Wyeth! They are marvelously beautiful, and more than justify the publication of the volume.

Inadequate Biography of John L. Lewis

JOHN L. LEWIS: LEADER OF LABOR. By Cecil Carnes. (Robert Speller Publishing Corp., New York.)

THE publication of this first biography of the two-fisted, hard-hitting international president of the United Mine Workers of America should not forestall the writing and publication of a second. Indeed, this book makes it all the more necessary that a second be undertaken. For the plain fact is that Mr. Carnes' 308-page report will not do.

The author's subject is one of the half-dozen leading American figures of the day. A force in labor circles for many years, John Llewellyn Lewis was swept to national power on the NRA tide, and when that ebbed, he pushed on to an even more commanding position with his sponsorship of industrial unionism and the subsequent secession of the CIO organizations from the parent American Federation of Labor. In some circles, the feeling is genuine that four years from now Mr. Lewis will run for President with a united front of laborers, farmers and middle-class workers behind him.

Moreover, this "leader of labor" is a remarkable personality. Capable of fighting his battles with fervor and flowery eloquence, John Lewis is a skillful opportunist whose methods are worthy of close scrutiny. He knows when to quit for the time being to consolidate his gains. Stocky and powerful, with unruly, graying hair, and eyes that glower under shaggy brows, he is something to watch in action in the presiding officer's chair, at a public meeting or testifying at a hearing in the national capital.

Where Mr. Carnes, a young reporter on the New York World-Telegram, misses it is in not going behind the man the public sees and hears about. The author has read the newspaper and magazine reports of the various strikes which John L. Lewis has led—there are so many it seems like one long walkout—and made these largely the backbone of his book. There are long quotations from speeches, statements and editorials, in quotation marks, to be sure, but printed as essentially part of the biography. These may be a portion of the record of John L. Lewis; they do not tell us much about him that we have not known all along.

Take, for example, the matter of dissension within the ranks of the United Mine Workers. There was the bitter fight of Frank Farrington against Lewis in Illinois and of Alexander Howat in Kansas. What really was behind these fights? Why did a large section of Lewis' miners break away from him entirely in Illinois to form the Progressive Miners of America—a "rank and file" movement which was forging to the front when Lewis received the break of his lifetime in the early days of the Roosevelt administration? Mr. Carnes not only does not answer these questions; he does not, for example, so much as mention the revolt of the Progressives in the great bituminous fields of Illinois.

Finally, the book is not an impartial appraisal, as the jacket declares. There is virtually nothing in the way of appraisal through most of it, and in the last chapter, which is supposed to be such an assessing, little if anything that Mr. Lewis will take exception to. It will require much more research than went into this book to write the story of shouting, snarling, fighting John L. Lewis against his times.

—Irving Dilliard.

A Dissertation on Emotions

THE NEW HOUSE. By Lettice Cooper. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

IN a very simple manner, without embellishment or sparkle or the faintest trace of humor, this writer tells the story of a quiet English family, cultured, staid and self-contained, whose great Victorian house is at once the center and the boundary of their lives. When forced by economic stress to move, they discover that a house can form as strong a bond as any other fixed and cherished habit, and be just as hard to change.

* * *

Natalie Powell, mother of the brood, attains her wishes in all things by a mild hysteria that wears resistance to a thread, the type of whining, pampered uselessness enjoyed by many women whose lives are centered in themselves. Her only son, Maurice, is a polite and gentle Englishman who never quite determines whether any form of discord is worth objecting to or not, and in this state of chronic indecision accepts with passive gratitude whatever Fate sends his way. The most engaging character is Delia, an energetic youngster whose opinions are her own, while Rhoda, oldest of the girls, is a sentimental introvert whose will is putty in her mother's hands. Rhoda's one and only love affair dissolved, she crawls into a shell with the comforting conviction that since her mother needs her and weeps frequently to prove it, there must be something wrong in having any purpose or achievements of her own. She eventually resolves to break away and go to London, but since the story closes here we never learn, of course, if she takes that drastic step—and are much inclined to doubt it.

* * *

In this busy world of action and achievement, the thinker and the doer take the prizes, and contemporary fiction that recites the weighty problems of melancholy persons who make no move to solve them, lacks an element of interest. So we find it here. The book is slow, lacking continuity and balance and those homely little episodes that make a story worth the telling. Nothing ever happens. It is but a dissertation on human emotions.

—Ruth Hale Deam.

Pitiable Fate of Famous Dancer

THE DIARY OF VASLAV NIJINSKY. Edited by Romola Nijinsky. (Simon & Schuster, New York.)

THIS book must, of necessity, appeal to a very limited audience; to the scientific who are interested in clinical findings, or to the curious who seek further information on the emotional relationships of the dancer whom effusive critics hailed as "the god of the dance." Diaghileff is dead, Nijinsky has been in an asylum since 1919, and the romance that attended his strange courtship and marriage has faded into the past. These in themselves seem reasons enough for keeping this pitiable document from the general reading public.

No one will question that Nijinsky was a great dancer. That he was a creative genius is another thing, since the difference between execution and creation is vast. His physical makeup seems to have fitted him peculiarly to execute the most difficult ballet technique, for certainly no dancer has been able to equal the tremendous leap that made audiences gasp. His creative efforts in choreography, and this seems to be a concensus of critical opinion, left much to be desired.

* * *

The dairy, written in 1918 and discovered later in a trunk, has an uncanny smoothness. The events recorded dovetail perfectly with the biography written by Madame Nijinsky. The chimerical fears, hates and poor delusions are mercilessly exposed, and even an enemy would fail to be unmoved by the pathos in these pages which chronicle the slow lapse into the half-light of dementia of a once charming personality.

—Tom Edwards.

The Real Power in History

MAN'S WORLDLY GOODS. By Leo Huberman. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

WHEN history is studied without its economic background, the result is incompleteness. And when economics is studied without its historical implications, the result is likely to be dullness. This probably is why Carlyle called political economy "the dismal science."

But when history and its economic background are brought together, even in such a rapid survey as this book represents, the result is genuine enlightenment. Since the writer attempts to cover the whole story of man and his worldly goods from the feudal system of the twelfth century to the capitalist and Communist systems of the twentieth, the survey must be a rapid one. The product, as the writer says in his preface, is "neither an economic history, nor a history of economic thought, but a bit of both."

The teaching of history long has emphasized the ambitions, wars and conquests of this or that great King. But what of the merchants and financiers of the period, who were the real powers behind the thrones? What of the economic trends that controlled the course of events more than did the monarchs?

Mr. Huberman writes, for example: "Say '1649' to an English schoolboy and he'll respond with 'Death of Charles I.' He wouldn't think of answering, 'Introduction of turnips and other root crops from Holland.'" But, as the writer shows in succeeding paragraphs, the humble turnip played an important part in English history. It revolutionized cattle raising and farming, agriculture became more profitable, the population increased, the demand for manufactured goods grew, the factory system was stimulated, transportation was improved, and so on.

In the Middle Ages, man's wants were simple and every manor or demesne was self-sufficient. With the rise of trade and of cities came the guild system, first of craftsmen and then of merchants. This developed through several stages into the factory system and the reign of capitalism.

The writer's style is of exceeding simplicity, occasionally even of third-reader type. But the reader is not offended, entranced as he is by the lucid explanations of knotty concepts and the novelty of economics without, or at least with few, polysyllables. Interesting excerpts from ancient documents and early economists, all duly credited, bolster the account and betoken a vast amount of research. There are numerous illustrations, many from early prints.

Mr. Huberman's novel approach to his subject is highly successful. He has produced a book that will bring new conceptions to many readers, and encourage them to find out more for themselves from the economic works listed and appraised in his 11-page bibliography. It is a book much worthwhile, both in itself and as an introduction to the broader fields of which it gives a clear though condensed report.

—Ferd Gottlieb.

Took All Learning For His Province

PASCAL; THE LIFE OF GENIUS. By Morris Bishop. (Reynal & Hitchcock, New York.)

PASCAL is known, more or less, in many fields. As physicist he is remembered for his studies on air-pressure and the vacuum; as mathematician, for his treatise on the cycloid, which provided formulas of great importance in geometry; as inventor, for his calculating machine and the mercury barometer; as polemist and philosopher, for his "Provincial Letters" and the "Pensees."

During his life he was actively engaged in practically every intellectual pursuit that was open to men of his time, and in each of them he gave unmistakable evidences of genius. His mind was a superb mechanism, almost miraculously capable of grasping truth in its most elusive forms, and of ordering his discoveries.

And yet, somehow, a vein of tragedy seems to have extended through everything he did and undertook. Time after time he conceived great plans for scientific investigations, for philosophical studies, for religious writings—none of which ever saw the light of day. He gave up his ideas and projects one by one, turning always towards something new, something which, he felt, might be more significant. He veered almost at random from the salon to experimental science, then to mathematics, and finally to Port-Royal and the icy logic of Jansenist religious doctrine.

This biography by Morris Bishop, the first complete description of Pascal as man and as historical figure to appear in English, has three notable qualities. It is the result of painstaking research; it has been quickened by an insight into human motive and its broader implications; and it is written in an imaginative, allusive and exact prose.

Mr. Bishop's account of Pascal's spiritual development has the reality of good fiction, and his story of the bitter controversy between the Jesuits and Port-Royal, a battle that split seventeenth-century France in two, is proof that scholarship need never be simply the unimaginative study of documents without life.

A Great Lyric Poet And Her Time

EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLAY AND HER TIMES. By Elizabeth Atkins. (University of Chicago Press, Chicago.)

EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLAY, in this first book entirely devoted to her, has not been impaled like a bright butterfly on a white background, but is treated as a human being, holding a fine heritage from the past and influenced by the present, which she has interpreted in her own way. She is presented not as a creature separated from others, writing by flashes of divine inspiration, but as a person with a high zest for life, epitomizing and crystalizing in her art the world-views that move great masses of people. Her place in the poetry of the World War and of the experimental period following the war is considered and compared with that of her contemporaries.

"Edna St. Vincent Millay and Her Times" should interest a great number of people. Those who already consider her the greatest living American poet will find their appreciation deepened. Those who like her just a little, may obtain more understanding from this book. Those who don't like her at all may enjoy the author's keen and witty analysis of the American scene from the "poetic renaissance" up to today.

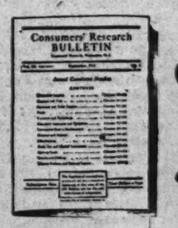

Miss Atkins, although scholastic in her approach, writes in a lively and personal manner, with liberal use of lovely and pertinent quotations. She is a professor of English at Chicago University and has a broad knowledge of literature.

Autobiography of British War Chief

HAIG: AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY. By Duff Cooper. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., Garden City, N. Y.)

FROM source material which included the diaries of Field Marshal Earl Haig, commander-in-chief of the British armies on the Western front, Duff Cooper, Great Britain's Secretary of State for War, has contrived an autobiography which falls short of being a good tactical history of British operations on the Western front, and fails to present a properly personalized picture of the No. One British warrior.

Traveling a course between a defense of Haig for various of his actions as a strategist and a presentation of the Field Marshal's character as man and soldier, Duff Cooper's biography leaves the reader with the feeling that he has not had enough of either, that he has gained no full understanding of Haig's work as a military leader, no intimate acquaintanceship with Haig the man.

From such of Haig's diary as is quoted, he appears to be the traditional Scot, reserved and sometimes dour, but with a hidden streak of sentiment. From the author's account of his military actions, he is revealed as a soldier of the old school, advocate of the heavy frontal attack or the dogged, never-say-die defense, which must be successful because a British soldier never is defeated.

Haig, member of the famous family of Scotch distillers, was educated at Oxford and Sandhurst, soldiered for Britain in South Africa, the Soudan, and many another far-flung field before he replaced bungling Sir John French on the Western front. His biography reveals in him many of the characteristics attributed to Pershing, principally an antagonism to the French generals with whom he was operating, and a dogged determination never to allow his soldiers to be commanded directly by French strategists. Much criticised during the war, as was inevitable, he returned home to the acclaim of the empire, was made an earl, and received a handsome financial reward from his grateful monarch.

"Haig's diary," says the author in conclusion, "ends abruptly on Nov. 11 (1918). There is no trite moralizing, no smug expression of self-satisfaction, no paean of triumph over the great victory. What he had further to say upon the subject was said that night upon his knees."

Origin of Species In Heroines

PAMELA'S DAUGHTERS. By Robert Polfrey Utter and Gwendolyn Bridges Needham. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

THE authors have left no stone unturned in their search for origins of species in heroines, and quote extensively from almost forgotten novels of the past two centuries, raising many interesting questions as to the relative importance of economics, of fashions in dress, of manners, and of scientific invention in their composition. If every woman is a daughter of Eve, so, it seems, is every heroine a daughter of Pamela.

From 1740, when "Pamela was born at the age of 15 from the pen of Samuel Richardson," to the "thoughtful thirties," heroines have set out to get their men with such weapons as delicacy, sensibility, prudery, chastity and tears. The most powerful of these was chastity, for in the early days of capitalistic enterprise it was the only thing women had that commanded a price, and every novel from Richardson to Scott dealt with the economic necessity of matrimony. To be an Old Maid in fiction was a matter for opprobrium, until Bachelor Girls were invented in the twentieth century. So clad in modesty, "which is to chastity like paint, save the surface and you save all," and laced to the point of swooning, these damsels pursued the only course open to them, for a loss of their amateur standing meant a forfeit of their role as heroines.

Trollope, Feilding, Jane Austen, Thackeray, and Meredith portrayed women whose characters were not wholly dependent on the distinction of sex, but they did not point to the prevailing fashions in heroines. Their influence was not felt until the time of Victoria, when a heroine might have a fault, and when marriage was not her only choice. In the first chapter, "Victoria, Where Is Thy Victory?" the authors discuss the post-war Freudian heroine whose wild and mysterious freedom was no heritage from her literary ancestors. Her realization in the past few years that mother was right, brings her back into the fold, a chastened, modern daughter who has come to the conclusion that a home and family are worth bargaining for.

The authors neither praise nor deplore their subjects; their conclusions are logical, but not dogmatic. The fact that they began to write in 1919 accounts for the enormous amount of research noted in the indices, yet this great burden of labor has left no heaviness in its wake. The light and easy style, coupled with the factual interest, makes this an altogether delightful study.

A Tale of the Jews Under the Nazis

THE WAR GOES ON. By Sholem Asch. Translated by Willa and Edwin Muir. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.)

SHOLEM ASCH, who several years ago gave us an impressive picture of Russia in his "Three Cities," now presents the events that made a Nazi Germany possible. In this novel, which is published in England under the more appropriate title, "The Calf of Paper," Asch introduces a respectable German-Jewish family, the Bodenheimers, and through the experiences of these individuals reveals the decadence of a great country that has lost a war.

In the course of the five years covered in the book, 1918 to 1923, figures like the "Man With the Black Beard" (Hugo Stinnes) come to prominence, ruthless egotists who, under the cloak of patriotism, exploit the downtrodden classes, heaping up treasures for themselves; the masses starve while profiteers and speculators live in luxury; more and more worthless paper money is printed; the "non-commissioned officer" (Hitler) gets his start; fanatical nationalism and racial prejudice begin to grow in the minds of the people.

Thus the background is drawn for the tragedy of a banker's family which, in Asch's portrayal, may stand for the tragedy of the Jews in Germany. It is all true and convincingly presented. There is Max who married an "Aryan" woman and to whom dignity and "good name" meant more than anything else; there is Adolf, the art connoisseur, who did not bother about his surroundings and politics; there is Heinrich, the political writer, who was all for assimilation, who acknowledged the "Nordic" type as superior but refused to be baptized. Finally, there is Hans, Max's son, baptized and yet a Jew. Neither Jew nor Gentile, his struggles are the most pitiful. He falls in love with the daughter of a Junker. The girl's Nazi brother cuts off her hair, her family disowns her. When she marries Hans and is expecting a baby, her brother shoots her to prevent another Jew from entering the world.

* * *

Another type familiar to the Kurfurstendamm during the inflation was the international gambler and profiteer. The Russian Jew, Judkewitch, is one of them. With all his crookedness and nerve, he is the direct opposite of the decent German Jews depicted in this novel. Asch, a foreigner and a Jew himself, recognized this fact. He did not, however, see the true thoughts and endeavors of the democratic Germans, of Liberals who were thrown into dungeons. The introduction of a Gentile counterpart to Heinrich Bodenheimer, an intelligent German intellectual, might have turned an important novel into a more important document.

SHIP'S PARROT. By Honore Morrow and William J. Swartman. (William Morrow & Co., New York.)

THE adventures of Robert, a remarkable parrot, and a cabin boy, David Pendyn, aboard the Cornish brig, North Star, on her perilous voyage to the Black Sea.

Well-Rounded View of Japanese Problems

EYES ON JAPAN. By General Victor A. Yakhontoff. (Coward-McCann, Inc., New York.)

UNLIKE most recent books on Japan, this one leaves the reader with a feeling of pity instead of fear toward the Land of the Rising Sun. Gen. Yakhontoff, who has an intimate knowledge of the nation as a result of 25 years' residence there, part of the time as military attache, builds a strong case for his assertion that an explosion will occur soon—mass revolution or Fascist coup d'etat.

It seems unbelievable that the alignment of the contending social forces has not yet crystallized when the following points are recapitulated: Farmers, heavily in debt, see their produce prices dropping; the exceptionally numerous petty merchants are being ruined by big-store competition; the professions, depressed by a falling living standard, are swinging to the left; contract girls, penned in barracks with iron bars at night, work long hours for 48 cents a day. Labor spies, hired thugs, employe intimidation and red-baiting prevent the formation of a united proletarian front.

The "haves," their pseudo-paternalism losing its grip on the "have-nots," are desperately cultivating chauvinism to arouse the dispossessed to seek their blessings in conquest abroad, preaching patriotism to make growing hardships seem more worth enduring, using nationalism to divert the minds of the angry from the real culprits at home to far-away foreign villains magnified by propaganda.

As a remedy, he suggests that Japan cool its imperialistic fever and get relief from the pressure of the military elements. After a housecleaning that would result in making Nippon a real home for its people, Yakhontoff presumes, the nation could "recreate a common language for dealing with the rest of the world, to restore Japan's position as a trusted member of the family of nations, and to return the country to the road of international co-operation."

Otherwise, he indicates that Japan, feudal and reactionary as was old Russia, may go through the throes of sudden and bloody revolution. If the militarists acquire full power, he predicts that they will find little money to be squeezed from the heavily taxed population and none to be borrowed abroad. Then, he states, there will be nothing for them to do but go to war and pray for a miracle.

The General, neither pro nor anti-Japan, gives a well-rounded view of the nation and its problems.

The Life and Death Of a Chamois

DEVIL. By Waldemar Schmidtmann. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York.)

THIS book, sub-titled "The Life Story of A Chamois in the Austrian Alps," is an unpretentious and straightforward nature story by a man completely familiar with his subject. The narrative is centered about Teufel, a chamois buck. Simply recounted are Teufel's birth, his slow accumulation of animal wisdom, his fighting rise to leadership of the chamois tribe, and finally his death at the hands of a hunter.

There is little sentimentalizing. Throughout the book one is aware of the hardness of nature and of the necessity for strength and skill to survive. Quite matter-of-factly the author records the deaths of a young chamois and a young hunter, both of them too gentle, too impulsive for life in the mountains. But if mountain life is cruel and exacting, it is also beautiful. There are spring time, cl ar skies, winter grandeur. Even snow slides and blizzards have a fearful loveliness.

The author has lived in the Alps and loves them. He has much to say of human as well as animal life in the isolated mountain world. Here too is interesting information about codes of sportsmanship on great Austrian game preserves.

Mr. Schmidtmann himself has translated his story from the German. His English is clear and idiomatic, though occasionally florid. "Devil" should appeal to all, children and adult, who like their out-of-doors and wild life straight, unsophisticated and unsentimentalized.

—Lemoine Skinner Jr.

AMERICAN AGENT. By Melvin Purvis (Doubleday Doran & Co., Garden City, N. Y.)

MUCH has been written on the remarkable success of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in exterminating public enemies, but it remained for the former head of the Chicago Bureau to tell the story completely. Never hesitating to give credit to other police organizations, never refusing to admit errors, Purvis tells an exciting tale.

It is the old story of the careers of John Dillinger, Pretty-Boy Floyd, Ma Barker and all the rest, but greater detail and a willingness to look into the whys and wherefors of criminal minds make it seem new. There is much, too, that has never been printed before.

The book is really an autobiography of Purvis, 99 per cent of which is devoted to the eight years he spent as a G-man. He resigned last year to return to law practice, having had his fill of excitement. During his period of service he faced death several times, frequently slept in his office while directing an important hunt, ate irregularly and suffered from nervous indigestion. Now that the "heat" has died down and possibly because of differences with J. Edgar Hoover, he has returned to quieter pursuits.

Lloyd George's Impressions of Clemenceau, 'The Greatest French Statesman of His Time'

Angry 'Tiger', Given 'His Turn' as War Premier at 78, an 'Overbearing Old Warrior' But 'Calm in Action.'

THE estimate which David Lloyd George, wartime Prime Minister of Great Britain, formed of Georges Clemenceau, wartime premier of France, is set forth in the section here following of Lloyd George's War Memoirs.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.

WHEN Paul Painleve fell from power in November, 1917, France seemed to have exhausted its waiting list of possible and seasoned Premiers, Viviani, Briand, Millerand, Ribot, Painleve—they had all been tried and found wanting. Then came a dramatic change which had a decisive effect on the conduct of the war.

There was only one man left—Georges Clemenceau—no one wanted him. The President, Poincare, disliked him. He had insulted every prominent politician in France and conciliated none. He had no party or group attached to him. He was the Ishmael of French politics.

I once said of him that he loved France, but hated all Frenchmen. He was, nevertheless, much the most arresting and powerful personality in the arena of French politics during the Third Republic. He was a deadly controversialist who had brought down one Minister after another with his piercing and pertinacious sword.

The men out of whom ministries were composed he held in the utmost contempt. His scorn for them was all the more withering because it was justifiable and entirely genuine.

Briand he despised as a mellifluous ranter of turgid commonplace. Poincare he could not abide. I never heard him speak with respect of any French politician except Jaures, the great Socialist leader, and he was dead. As for the rest, he held them all in unmitigated derision.

When you asked his opinion, as I often did, of someone or other of them, he concentrated his reply either into a contemptuous ejaculation, not always publishable, or into a fierce snort. In his estimation, they were just flabby and flashy parliamentarians and nothing more.

Clemenceau knew them all well—too well—and held them in utter disdain.

Master of Words and Action.

Clemenceau was a master of words. No orator of his day had a more perfect command and choice of word and phrase. But he was pre-eminently a man of action. His scorn was for the men who thought words a substitute for deeds and not a stimulus to deeds.

During the whole of the war he had criticised and condemned everybody and everything. His newspaper had been suppressed. He started another. It had no circulation—except in the quarters that mattered to him. Deputies and Senators read every word of it. He made few speeches, but in parliamentary committees he was a terror not so much to evil-doers as to those who, in my opinion, are worse in an emergency—the non-doers.

For three years no one had thought of him as a possible war Premier He was a growler, and an old growler at that. He was 78. He had only just recovered from a bad operation before the war.

Shortly before he was called upon to form a ministry, I ventured to suggest to a prominent French deputy that Clemenceau ought to be given a chance. He scoffed at the idea. The Tiger was, in his opinion and in that of every trotter through the couloirs of the Chamber of Deputies, clean out of the reckoning.

I pointed out that shortly before the war he had held office and turned out to be one of the strongest Prime Ministers of the Republic. My informant replied that he was no longer the man he used to be. He was now only a petulant and querulous old fellow.

Then all of a sudden there came a cry from the lobbies of the Chamber of Deputies: "Why not give the Tiger a turn? If he fails, as he probably will, it will stop his snarling, and we can then try someone else, and we can silence him by an allusion to his own failure." His success was attributable to a desire for his discomfiture.

These whisperings reached the ears of Poincare, and he listened to them. Hence the greatest war ministry in the whole long succession of French cabinets during this conflict. At 78, Clemenceau began the most notable episode in his strenuous and stormy career.

Lloyd George Meets "Tiger."

The first time I ever met M. Clemenceau was at Carlsbad in 1910. T. P. O'Connor arranged a meeting in his rooms.

Soon after I arrived, there bustled into the room a short, broad-shouldered and full-chested man, with an aggressive and rather truculent countenance, illuminated by a pair of brilliant and fierce eyes set deeply under overhanging eyebrows. The size and hardness of his great head struck me. It seemed enormous, but there was no dome of benevolence, reverence, or kindliness. It was an abnormally large head with all the sympathetic qualities flattened out.

He looked the part of a Tiger—the man-eating Tiger who had hunted ministry after ministry, and rent them with his terrible claws. He came into the room with short, quick steps. He was then 70 years of age, and his greatest days were to come seven or eight years later.

We were introduced and he greeted me none too genially. I was then chancellor of the exchequer and was doing my utmost to urge an understanding with Germany on the question of naval construction. I feared war was inevitable unless such an understanding could be reached.

Clemenceau referred to my efforts with scornful disapproval. His hatred of Germany had a concentrated ferocity which I had never seen before, not even among the most violent of our British Germaphobes. Their hostility to Germany always seemed to be calculated and histrionic—his was of the blood Later I understood it better.

My first interview with Clemenceau was not a success. He made it clear that he thoroughly disapproved of me. Had I never seen him again, I should have recalled him as a powerful but a disagreeable and rather bad-tempered old savage.

His Real Fascination.

It was years—eventful years—after this meeting that I discovered his real fascination. His wit, his playfulness, the hypnotic interest of his arresting and compelling personality.

And a day was to come, sooner than any one of us had anticipated then—when events occurred that explained to me his apprehension of the menace as well as his detestation of the arrogance of German imperialism.

I remember driving with him from the historic meeting at the Trianon Palace Hotel. Versailles, after he had handed to Brockdorff Rantzau and the German delegates the draft of the Peace Treaty. I drove back to Paris in his car. As we passed the ruins of the palace of St. Cloud, which had been burned by the Germans in 1871, he told me how he remembered seeing the blaze.

He was mayor of Montmartre during the siege of Paris, and from the heights of his mayoral domain he witnessed the destruction of the famous chateau. That event seemed to have burned itself into his memory even more than the scenes of hunger and privation to which he so effectively ministered.

On this occasion he spoke with unwonted placidity about the events of 1870, rather like a man in whom the internal fires of revenge had at last been quenched by the cooling draught of victory.

He spoke to me, with emotion, of the poignant scene in the French Assembly in 1871 when Jules Favre came straight from an interview with Bismarck to report to the Deputies the nature of the terms demanded, and the ruthlessness with which the triumphant Chancellor had treated the supplication of the French delegates for some amelioration in the demands.

Tears came into Clemenceau's eyes—for the first and only time in my intercourse with him—as he described how "the old man," in attempting to describe the harshness of the conqueror, broke down in the tribune and wept. I then understood something of Clemenceau's hatred of the Germans.

They had not only invaded France, defeated her armies, occupied her capital, humbled her pride, but in the hour of victory had treated her with an insolence which for 50 years had rankled in the heart of this fierce old patriot. When I met him at Carlsbad the sore was still stinging him into anger. He was essentially an angry man.

Those who read his relentless words on the death of Herr Stresemann will know that not even victory had completely stamped out the embers of vengeance in the bosom of this terrible volcano of rumbling and surging hatreds—personal, national, political and religious.

Restless, Indomitable.

That he should have succeeded as War Minister is not a matter of surprise. He possessed restless energy, indomitable courage and a gift of infecting others with his own combativeness and confidence.

His courage is best illustrated by the story told of him when it was proposed that the French Chamber of Deputies should move to Bordeaux at the beginning of the World War.

The Germans were within a few miles of Paris, and President, Senators and Deputies thought it better to get out of range of the German guns ere it was too late. Clemenceau refused to go, and when he was asked whether he did not think they ought to leave Paris, his answer was:

"Yes, we are too far from the front!"

His courage was never questioned even by his bitterest foes, but they were not as ready to acknowledge his wisdom. When he was not in a passion, or when his personal or political prejudices were not engaged—and he had his lucid intervals of composure—he took as sane, sensible and penetrating view of a situation as any man I ever met.

By conviction and temperament, he was an inexorable cynic. He had no belief in the ultimate victory of right. His faith was in organized and well-dressed force. He believed it to be in the interest of humanity that strength should prevail over weakness.

In one of the most piquant passages of arms between himself and President Wilson, he reminded the American idealist that the United States of America would never have come into existence without force, and that but for force it would have fallen to pieces half a century ago.

Defeat for Presidency.

The last time I saw him as Prime Minister was after the defeat of his candidacy for the presidency of the Republic. It was for him defeat accompanied by every circumstance of humiliation, and he felt it deeply.

It is the first and only occasion on which I have ever seen this brave old man betray any feeling over a personal hurt to himself. He had not sought nomination. On the contrary, he had resisted up to the last moment pressure brought to bear upon him. He did not want it. He only gave in because he was assured by many who afterward betrayed him that it was in the interests of France that he should remain at the helm until the peace was finally established and France had recovered from her wounds. Reluctantly, he allowed his name to go forward. A personal intrigue engineered a rebuff for him in the face of the whole world. A man whom he despised (Deschanel) was chosen in his place.

When I left Paris the following morning he came to the station to see me off. He did not attempt to conceal his chagrin that Frenchmen should so soon forget his services. When I said to him:

"The public soon forgets; it is the ultimate fate of all who serve it faithfully."

He replied: "They will not do it quite like this in England."

Formidable Swordsman.

Apropos his defeat by M. Deschanel in the contest for the presidency, a story is told of a duel he fought before the war with his successful rival.

Clemenceau was a very formidable swordsman, and as he pressed his opponent the latter retreated further and further from the threatening weapon.

At last Clemenceau got tired of this continuous retreat. Putting his sword under his arm, he waved his hand and, with a bow toward M. Deschanel, said:

"Monsieur is leaving us."

Twenty years later, in a different duel, it was M. Deschanel who drove the expert fencer off the "ground."

Frenchman in Every Fiber.

Clemenceau was the greatest French statesman—if not the greatest Frenchman of his day. He was in every fiber of his being a Frenchman. He had no real interest in humanity as a whole. His sole concern was for France.

As long as France was humbled, he cared not what other people were exalted. As long as France was victorious, he did not worry in the least about the tribulations of any other country. To him France was all in all. When he began public life he found his beloved country humiliated to the dust. When he ended his career, he left France the most powerful state on the Continent of Europe—largely through his exertions.

In criticism he was virulent and ferocious. He was by nature a killer. But in action he was calm, restrained and practical. He was always ready to concede or to compromise in order to get a move on.

My first experience of this quality was over the Versailles Council. When he came into office, his first impulse was to sweep away all the decisions arrived at by his predecessors.

Among them was the effort to organize an Inter-Allied general staff at Versailles to co-ordinate the war effort of the Allies on sea and land. His notion was to run the war from his office in Paris. He soon discovered that Britain, Italy and America were not disposed to take orders from the French War Office.

Command of the Sea.

Like all Frenchmen in the war—Generals and Ministers—he concentrated his mind exclusively on the land campaign and was inclined to say with the rest of his distinguished compatriots, "There shall be no more sea." He gradually realized the decisive importance of command of the sea, where the British fleet and British shipping were predominant.

When he came into power he had not made a real study of the war problems as a whole, but he was not above learning his job. Like all great men, he was not too proud to perceive his mistakes or to alter his plans to conform with that perception.

At first he was difficult and dictatorial, but he soon understood that this would not do, and after his first meeting at Versailles, he realized that a new organization which surveyed and kept itself informed, and took cognizance of all the Allied activities in every quarter and element, would be helpful to him in the discharge of his onerous duties.

It was the first time he had come into contact with certain aspects of the struggle—notably those that finally decided the issue of the war, the blockade by the Allies and the efforts made to thwart the desperate but dangerous counter-blockade. He realized for the first time how completely the Allies depended not only for their resources, but for their daily bread, on our shipping, and how necessary it was to protect it and to repair its losses.

I have never transacted more important business with any man than with Georges Clemenceau, and I have never met any man during the whole course of my public life with whom I enjoyed more to do business.

Overbearing Old Warrior.

I came to the conclusion, at the very start of our official contact, that it was necessary to impress upon this strong-willed and overbearing old political warrior that any attempt to hector or to bully would not be tolerated, and that he must treat all representations coming from the spokesmen of the British Empire with respect and that he must apply to them the best thought of his powerful mind.

At an early date I chose a topic upon which there was some difference of opinion, but as to which I felt assured that we were entirely in the right. When he rather curtly and in his roughest manner tried to sweep me aside, I protested with an emphasis—perhaps a deliberate over-emphasis — which completely astonished him. He very adroitly gave in. After that, his temper, which could be savage, never ruffled our intercourse.

CLAIM OF SUCCESSOR TRUSTEE UNDER HANDLAN WILL DENIED

$27,313 Refund of Deficiency Tax Assessment Sought Against Estate.

Claim of the successor trustee under the will of Alexander H. Handlan, founder of the old Handlan-Buck Manufacturing Co., who died in 1921, for refund of a deficiency tax assessment of $27,313 against the estate in 1922 was denied yesterday and judgment for the Government entered by Federal Judge Charles B. Davis.

In levying the deficiency assessment the Commissioner of Internal Revenue contended that 1550 shares of stock of the Handlan-Buck company, a railway supply concern, were a gift of Handlan to his three sons, to take effect only after his death. The successor trustee, Thomas N. Dysart, contended the gift became effective four years before Handlan's death.

Judge Davis said the evidence showed Handlan received dividends on the stock during the four years preceding his death and that as a matter of law the issue already had been determined by the Missouri Supreme Court, which held in 1933 that the shares were part of the estate.

The claim for refund, filed in 1927, had lain dormant in Federal Court pending outcome of extensive State court litigation over the estate, which totaled more than $1,000,000. The State court litigation was settled in 1935.

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

PAGE 6-I ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 6, 1936.

Jane Cowl Comes Back to City in "First Lady"

Actress Last Here in 1931 to Appear at the American Tomorrow Night in Comedy Based on Social Skirmishes in Washington.

JANE COWL, who has not played in St. Louis since she was Viola in "Twelfth Night" at the Shubert in 1931, returns tomorrow night in the George S. Kaufman-Katharine Dayton comedy, "First Lady," at the American. It will mark her first visit to that theater.

"First Lady," which ran for 244 performances at the Music Box Theater in New York last season, is a comedy of social and political rivalry in Washington. Miss Cowl has the role of Lucy Chase Wayne, daughter of a President and wife of the Secretary of State. She is ambitious to elevate her husband to the presidency but is faced with the rivalry of Irene Hibbard, wife of a Supreme Court Justice.

The resourceful Mrs. Hibbard is using her efforts not in behalf of her husband but in support of a young Western Senator, whom she hopes to marry after divorcing the Justice. Lucy Wayne's strategy is to start a boom for Justice himself, a boom which threatens to get beyond her control. It is in such a situation that she is called upon to use all her wiles and her political experience as well in getting what she wants.

While the impression prevails that material for the comedy came from the Alice Longworth-Dolly Gann feud of some years back, the authors stanchly deny such a thing. Miss Dayton, whose first play this is, has been noted for some time for her magazine satires on the doings of "Mrs. Republican" and "Mrs. Democrat" in Washington. Kaufman, one of the most consistently successful writers in the theater, will be remembered for "The Royal Family," "Once in a Lifetime," "The Band Wagon," "Of Thee I Sing" and "Dinner at Eight." He and Edna Ferber are authors of the current Broadway hit, "Stage Door."

Miss Cowl, since last in St. Louis, has been in several Broadway productions, including the S. N. Behrman comedy, "Rain From Heaven," which has been presented recently by the St. Louis Little Theater. Her adversary in "First Lady" is played by Ann Mason, with Florenz Ames, formerly of Municipal Opera, Hunter Gardner, Oswald Yorke, Ethel Wilson, Thomas Findlay, Helen Brooks, Judson Laire, Diantha Pattison, King Calder, James Seeley, Carrie Reynolds, Paula McLean, Marjorie Crossland and others in the large supporting cast. All but a few were in the New York production.

A week from tonight the American will get its first musical of the season, George White's "Scandals," with Willie and Eugene Howard and Helen Morgan. The production is one that ran from December to March last season on Broadway, and reopened for a tour in Chicago last June. Rudy Vallee, Bert Lahr, Cliff Edwards and Hal Forde were with the show when it first opened, along with the Howards, but dropped out as time went on.

Other principals here, most of whom were in the original show, are Earl Oxford, George Dewey Washington, the Stanley Twins, the unit known as "Sam, Ted and Ray", Richard Lane, young leading man who is to go into the movies at the close of the run; Estelle Jayne, Gloria Rich and Fred Mannatt. With the chorus-girls, the cast runs to 100 members. Music and lyrics for the show were written by Jack Yellen and Ray Henderson, Russell Patterson designed the settings and Russell Markert staged the dance numbers.

THE "Scandals" engagement will be followed by a dark week at the American, with "Pride and Prejudice", Helen Jerome's dramatization of the Jane Austen novel, arriving on Monday night, Dec. 28. Produced by Max Gordon, with settings and costumes by Jo Mielziner, the Eighteenth Century comedy was one of the surprise successes of Broadway last season, running from November to May. In the cast are Muriel Kirkland, Molly Pearson, Lowell Gilmore, Eugene Rawls, Evelyn Byrd, Robert Cornes and others.

Prospects for the period after Jan. 1 have not materialized into any definite bookings. John Geilgud has extended his New York engagement in "Hamlet" for an additional week, and his announced tour now includes only Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Washington, Philadelphia and Boston before he returns to London in February.

Two of New York's shows, it is announced, will be seen on the screen in 1937. "Stage Door," which now stars Margaret Sullavan, has been bought for Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers and Burgess Meredith. Work will begin early in the year on "Idiot's Delight," with Clark Gable in the Alfred Lunt role and either Greta Garbo or Carole Lombard as his leading lady.

The latest excitement on Broadway has been caused by the return of Noel Coward and Gertrude Lawrence, in the series of one-act plays which they gave in London last season. Ranging from his usual brittle comedy to Victorian tintypes and coconey vaudeville, Coward's writing has given full range to his talents. Three plays are presented each evening, with nine making up the full series.

William Wycherly's "The Country Wife," from the Seventeenth Century dramatic library, has been brought over from London by Gilbert Miller with Ruth Gordon as the star. Although the saucy infidelities of the Restoration ladies are still amusing, greater praise went to Miss Gordon's interpretation of her role.

The Theater Guild has set forth, not too successfully, with "Prelude to Exile," based on the life of Richard Wagner, in which Wilfred Lawson plays the composer and Eva LeGallienne, Mathilde Wesendonck, and "Plumes in the Dust," in which Henry Hull essayed to represent Edgar Allan Poe, has gone its way.

Scipione Guidi To Play Concerto With Symphony

SCIPIONE GUIDI, concertmaster and assistant conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, will be the soloist at concerts on Friday afternoon and Saturday evening at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House, playing the Glazounow violin concerto.

Guidi, who came to this country as a concert violinist in 1916, joined the St. Louis Symphony in 1931 and has been heard as soloist annually since then. The Glazounow concerto was last performed at an orchestra concert here seven years ago by Nathan Milstein. It is in three movements, to be played without pause.

The concerts will be introduced with the world premiere of an Introduction and Fugue, by the St. Louis pianist-composer, John Kessler. For his subject, Kessler has selected a melody that is in fundamental character related to a chorale, although the Fugue itself is conventional, with the principal subject and counter-subject in various treatments by different orchestral groups.

Alexandre Tansman, famous Polish composer-pianist, will appear as soloist at the orchestra's concerts on Dec. 18-19. He will be heard in the first American performance of his concertino for piano and orchestra, while the orchestra will play the world premiere of Tansman's Adagio for String Orchestra and his arrangement of Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D Minor. Brahms' First Symphony will complete the program.

This week's program in detail:

Introduction and Fugue, — — John Kessler
(World Premiere)
Concerto for Violin and Orchestra, Op. 82, — — — Glazounow
I. Moderato
II. Andante
III. Allegro
(Played Without Pause)
Excerpts from "Le Sacre du Feu" ("The Fire Bird") — — — — Stravinsky
(a) King Katschei's Infernal Dance
(b) Berceuse
(c) Finale
"Waldweben" ("Forest Murmurs"), from "Siegfried" — — — — — Wagner
Overture to "Tannhauser" — — Wagner

The "Ten Best Pictures" of 1936

By Colvin McPherson.

THE time has come, conductors of the Film Daily's annual poll remind me, to vote on what I consider the "Ten Best Pictures of 1936." Running down an alphabetical list of more than 400 candidates (as many reviewers will vote in the poll), I have listed these:

Craig's Wife.
Dodsworth.
Fury.
The Great Ziegfeld.
Libeled Lady.
A Midsummer Night's Dream.
Mutiny on the Bounty.
The Story of Louis Pasteur.
A Tale of Two Cities.
These Three.

Only pictures generally released between Nov. 1, 1935, and Oct. 31, 1936, are included in the present poll, as the poll does not quite keep with the calendar. And the selection of only 10 pictures must necessarily leave out a great many fine and entertaining films of the past year.

On a consolation list, accordingly, might be put "Anthony Adverse," "Ceiling Zero," "The Country Doctor," "The Ghost Goes West," "The Green Pastures," "It's Love Again," "The Milky Way," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "Modern Times," "My Man Godfrey," "One Rainy Afternoon," "The Petrified Forest", "San Francisco," "Show Boat," "The Texas Rangers," "Two in the Dark" and several others, all of which cause the voter to hesitate. It might be well, too, to list some of the worst pictures, such as "Yours for the Asking," "The Big Noise," "Riffraff," "Dancing Feet," and "His Brother's Wife," and some of those that promised most and gave greatest disappointment. The latter group would include "I Dream Too Much," "Mary of Scotland" and "The White Angel."

Defending the main choices is not a difficult task, except in perhaps one or two instances. A hasty analysis would classify "The Great Ziegfeld" as a bountiful musical, with a great deal for everybody; "A Tale of Two Cities" as offering the same wealth in the dramatic and spectacular line, "A Midsummer Night's Dream" as one of the screen's all-time accomplishments in the blending of fantasy and musical score, and hampered only by deficiencies in cast.

"Mutiny on the Bounty," in my opinion, went overboard on sentimentality, exaggerated cruelty beyond justification and showed technical flaws, but in sheer concept, for such scenes as the ship becalmed, has rarely been equaled. "The Story of Louis Pastuer," similarly, nowhere showed finesse of writing or direction, but mainly by the performance of Paul Muni was lifted into the realm of vivid, heart-stirring biography.

"Craig's Wife," "Dodsworth" and "These Three" were as close to flawless films as the year witnessed and all three hold out hope for the future in that they dealt with everyday meanness of human beings, and not the stock villainy to which movie-makers are addicted. "Fury," starting with far less resources, came to eminence for the sheer force of its sermon on lynching and a few magnificently dramatic scenes. By and large, "Fury" was an example of the directorial genius of Fritz Lang.

The reaction to "Craig's Wife," "Dodsworth," "These Three," and "Fury" ought to teach the studios how much there is to be gained by getting close home. It was no accident that most audiences, however small, applauded when John Boles, in "Craig's Wife," smashed his wife's favorite vase.

The remaining choice, "Libeled Lady" ranks as the year's most finished comedy, by virtue of playing, writing and direction. "My Man Godfrey" was as hilarious, maybe a little more, but not as artfully done, not as sensible. "Theodora Goes Wild," another comic gem, is not on the voting list.

"San Francisco," the year's most financially successful picture, according to Hollywood report, is not ranked in the 10 for the reason that, although containing many good things and a truly eventful earthquake, it was a hodge-podge of music, melodrama and boy-meets-girl. Its phenomenal success, one might as well explain, came about largely because it was offered ahead of schedule to tide starving movie audiences over the famine times of summer. In other words, it had little competition.

Many fine performances will be set down in the "Ten Best" pictures and outside them. Rosalind Russell in "Craig's Wife," Spencer Tracy in "Fury," Luise Rainer in "The Great Ziegfeld" and Muni in "The Story of Louis Pasteur" deserve extra recognition and are getting it. Conversely, no scenes of the year were quite as sickening as those where Warner Baxter kissed Myrna Loy's back in "To Mary-With Love" or Alan Dinehart tried to look fatherly, or motherly, I have yet to decide which, in "Reunion."

The coming 12 months will see a great deal, I hope, of Spencer Tracy, Martha Raye, Humphrey Bogart, J. Edward Bromberg, Akim Tamiroff, John Carradine, James Stewart, Thomas Mitchell and Jean Hersholt. Yes, and Simone Simon.

Current Films

AMONG the films of the week, that sure-fire farce, "Three Men On a Horse" gains eminence not only from lack of serious competition, but also because it offers to movie audiences the best version of the John Cecil Holm-George Abbott opus that St. Louis, at least, has seen. It is mainly that the picture cast is superior to either that came to the American Theater last season.

Frank McHugh, who plays Erwin Trowbridge, the greeting card writer and race dopester, does that job in his own style, which is sufficient. Half a dozen Hollywood comedians might have done equally well, several (I am thinking in particular of Charles Butterworth, who once was mentioned for the role) might have done better. Erwin is no Hamlet, no Falstaff, not an individual really but only a type of man-mouse that gets hydrophobia and bites everybody just before the final curtain.

So it isn't particularly with McHugh that the movies make a gain, but in using Allen Jenkins for Charlie, a "natural" if there ever was one, and in picking up Teddy Hart, the original Frankie, and Sam Levene, the original Patsy, from the New York company. These three, it will be remembered, are Erwin's pals in the saloon and hotel scenes. Both Hart and Levene will be expected in future pictures, with Hart, a small cartoon in a derby hat, having the most space.

Carol Hughes as Erwin's wife, Paul Harvey as her brother, Joan Blondell as the blonde, and Edgar Kennedy as the bartender, all set themselves to making big parts out of little ones. Only Guy Kibbee, as Erwin's boss, seems out of key. The slightly soiled character of the humor still is slightly soiled, very few of the stage's laugh-getters are omitted, and an added scene for Frankie in a maternity hospital comes near to topping the entire comedy. The camera is able to show also the house-building monotony of Ozone Heights and the race between Equipoise and Mr. Khayyam. Otherwise, the screen settings look exactly like those on the stage.

The Fox's second picture, "Flying Hostess," gives Judith Barrett, a new actress, opportunity to prove that she can bring a big transport to land, with dying and wounded all around her, and give the necessary appearance of emotions at the same time. The little girl does all right. But with all the gangsters, criminals and such flying between Kansas City and Los Angeles on transport planes, I'd be afraid to venture in one of the darn things. A foreword to "Fugitive in the Sky," at the Missouri apologizes, however, and assures the audience that flying is a "fast and safe form of transportation."

Pennies From Heaven.

HARRY L. ("BING") CROSBY comes from prison to do good among the lowly, at the Ambassador. His crooning and best wishes are extended first to Edith Fellows, her grandfather, Donald Meek, and then to Madge Evans, welfare worker. The fact that a conflict exists between Miss Evans and Miss Fellows, whom for want of a better word, we shall call a gamin, keeps the show creaking along for the space of 81 minutes or so. Bing sings often, Louis Armstrong's orchestra comes to his rescue, a cafe venture fails, and much has to be suffered before all concerned make up into happy family. "Pennies From Heaven," it might be explained, are those which grateful auditors at Bing's courtyard auditions toss down to him. Whimsical, isn't it?

The Ambassador stage show represents a fair selection of the present-day vaudeville arts, torch songs, marionette show, harmony trio and mimicry of Fred Allen, Ben Bernie, Joe Penner and others.

One Way Passage.

The hats are funny in the revived "One Way Passage" at the Missouri, "Speak to Me of Love" isn't the song hit that it was in 1932, motion pictures have become less worldly, less realistic, less sinful, if you will, but Hollywood, too, is hardly presenting romance in any better light, or in a way to be better treasured among theatrical keepsakes. The love affair of William Powell, condemned killer, and Kay Francis, condemned heart case, carries on to its lovely finish. Comedy performances of Frank McHugh and Aline MacMahon are still as joyful.

Crime and melodrama are fellow passengers in the second picture, "Fugitive in the Sky." The air transport, grounded in a dust storm, comes down near Cuba, Mo., which should file suit. "The March of Time," reviewing Belgium, the St. Lawrence Waterway and WPA theater projects, is the third item.

That leaves for new films, only the Shubert, where a red, green and brown musical, "Devil on Horseback" (something similar on the eyes) and a Western, "The Arizona Raiders," are playing. The St. Louis has a new stage show and second-run film. Of unusual entertainment value at the St. Louis is Senor Wences, a juggler and ventriloquist who combines the two arts in an amazing display. Loew's continues to play "Love on the Run" and the Orpheum has taken Mae West off the Ambassador's hands.

Change in Little Theater Cast.

Harriet Foote, Little Theater actress who was a member of the Globe Theater Company in San Diego last summer, will replace Elmira Roessler in the cast of "The Shoemaker's Holiday" at the Little Theater for the three remaining performances tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Miss Roessler was forced to withdraw because of a radio engagement.

Russian Film to Be Shown.

"Peasants," Russian film drama based on the problems in winning over the peasants to the collective system of farming, will be shown twice next Sunday evening in Assembly Hall No. 1 at the Municipal Auditorium, at 7 o'clock and 9 o'clock.

New Sound Stages Go Up for Big Cinema Year

By H. H. Niemeyer.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 5.

PRACTICALLY anybody around the studios will tell you that 1937 is going to be the biggest year the cinemas have ever known. The movie cathedral customers have money and are willing and ready to spend it; the picture factories seem to be rolling in wealth and are doing a lot of rolling. The largest lot out here, the Twentieth Century-Fox layout, has just bought a golf course next door and, for some reason not yet apparent, Mr. Century or Mr. Fox or somebody is covering the 18 holes with new sound stages. The same thing is going on at Warners' except that the Messrs. Warner didn't buy a golf course. Just put up a million dollars' worth of new stages and things on the ground they already had. One of the new buildings is to be a casting office. Just why a vast structure is needed for a place to tell job hunters that there is "no work today" is not explained but the building is going up all the same. And, what is more important to the army of film workers—the S. O. S. workers, stenographers, publicity people, writers, everyone in fact except the actors—has been informed that the major studios will hand out two week's salary checks as a Christmas bonus.

The factories are all busy making pictures, too, which means that a lot of people are working. Now the aspect of any big studio changes and shuttles like a kaleidoscope most of the time. There are the same buildings, of course—or there were the same buildings until the present boom got under way—the skeleton staff, the bootblack at the gate and the same handful of policemen, but everybody else comes and goes. Paramount is usually at its most crowded when Cecil B. de Mille is doing one of his spectacles, and extras in Roman garb, armor or pioneer togs go around in a whirlpool. Or when Frank Lloyd does a historical piece, like "Maid of Salem," with as many as a thousand extras. If extras should ever put up a statue to somebody it will be to De Mille or Lloyd.

Or to Henry Hathaway, who likes period dramas on a big scale, like his current salt-water epic, "Souls at Sea." That reminds us none of these three was ever an extra. Lloyd, a six-foot Briton, with a broad Scot's accent, used to do bit parts in the old days at Universal, and directed one-reel thrillers. De Mille, the son of a professor, was an actor. Hathaway, a broad-shouldered half-back type with a rolling gait and a cigar between his teeth, began as a stage hand when a kid, vows he would have made a grand machine-gunner. That's because he used to turn out a barrage of Wild Western yarns at the rate of three a week.

ONE of the two directors at Paramount who were bona fide extras is Wesley Ruggles, who rose to be a Keystone cop and tumbled off Black Marias into the middle of cactus. He is a sedate and more-or-less highbrow director now, with "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie," to his credit. The other is James Hogan, who donned a suit of gray and a false beard as an extra to play General Robert E. Lee. He is now directing a Bulldog Drummond opus.

About the middle of this month Paramount will be as noisy as a boiler factory and as crowded as a five-and-ten store on Christmas eve, for ten films will be in the making. But as the scripts are still being written, there will be a fortnight of tranquility on the lot. You can stroll up and down for hours without bumping into anybody in the news.

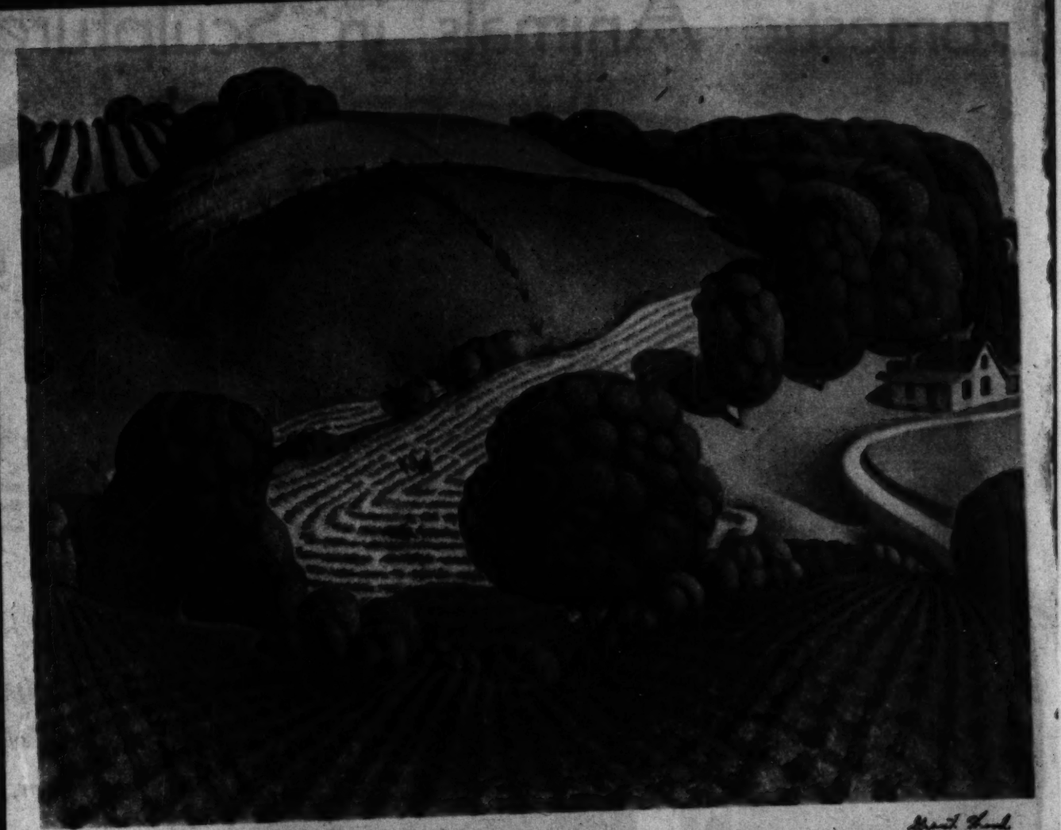

The other day a tall man with glasses and an explosive tousle of black hair hurried through, script under arm. Rouben Mamoulian, late of the New York Theater Guild, he was, on his first sojourn on the Paramount grounds in years. He directed "Porgy," you remember. And now he is to direct a play that Arthur Hornblow Jr. will produce.

For some reason the studio won't be doing any society plays this season, or no more than one or two, but will lay stress heavily on social history. Like "High, Wide and Handsome," which will have to do with the oil industry in Pennsylvania. And Hathaway's "Souls at Sea," all about a strange affair in mid-Atlantic, when a bark is going down and everybody aboard is to be tried to see if he should be saved or not.

This accounts for the only batch of extras on the lot these few days—all of maritime aspect. Hathaway remarks he can tell the real sailors from the straightaway extras. The salts look like movie people, and the extras chew plug-cut and walk as if they were toeing the line on a boat in a hurricane.

That reminds us of the difficulty Hathaway had in getting good footmen for his swank buffet luncheon scene the other morning. He got some real waiters to pass around the muffins and marmalade, but they acted in a very self-conscious manner. So he put in their place half a dozen extras who couldn't even sling hash in a one-arm lunchroom, and they acted beautifully, as if they had been butlers all their lives. We don't know what that proves, unless it be that acting is a trade in itself.

Perpetuating This Civilization's Domestic Animals in Sculpture

A Berkshire pig in black metal with head, feet and tail in silver.

Color, as Well as Form, Is Indicated in This American Artist's Record.

Shire stallion in bronze.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PARIS, France.

IN KEEPING with the modern disposition to find beauty in utility is a project on which Herbert Haseltine, one of the most prominent of American sculptors, is engaged. Haseltine is making sculptures of useful domestic animals—of animals that furnish labor, food and clothing for men.

Despite its modernity, the work may be said to go back to prehistoric times for inspiration. Paleolithic and Neolithic artists carved the forms of animals on bits of bone. The ancient civilizations of Babylonia, Egypt, China and India left sculptured representations of animals they hunted and raised. Down the years have come such records by which can be traced, after a fashion, changes in many of the common beasts associated with the lives of human beings. So this sculptor of the present day is creating not only objects to give esthetic pleasure, but a record in durable metal and stone which will give future ages accurate information about twentieth century livestock.

In 1922 Haseltine began this job, planning a first series of 30 sculptures of horses, cattle, swine and sheep. Working slowly and carefully, he has now completed 28 of the studies, which have found places in some of the notable museums of the world, including the Luxembourgh in Paris, the Metropolitan in New York and the Field Museum in Chicago.

It has been the sculptor's aim to make these studies accurate representations of the best results stock breeders have been able to achieve in the various types of animals portrayed; this called for faithful recording of "show points," without, however, sacrifice of artistic principles. To show the highest type of each breed, he used as models animals which had won championship awards in the great stock shows.

The first in the series was a study of the champion Shire stallion Field Marshall V, from the stables of the late King George V of England. For the type specimen of the Aberdeen Angus bull, the model was a famous champion, Black Knight of Auchterarder. Bridgebank Paymaster, which won highest honors in both England and Scotland for three years, was the model for the Shorthorn, and Twyford Fairy Boy was chosen as the representative of the Hereford breed. The ram Challenger has been portrayed as a superior specimen of the Lincoln sheep, which are noted for the luxuriance and high quality of their wool.

Three kinds of work horses have thus far been portrayed in the series, the Shire, the Suffolk Punch and the Percheron. The Clydesdale also will be represented, and possibly the big Belgian cart horse. The cattle are the Shorthorn, Aberdeen Angus and Hereford beef breeds, and the milk breed, the Dairy Shorthorn. There are two types of sheep in Haseltine's select gallery, the Lincoln and the Southdown, the latter celebrated for its mutton. Middle-white and Berkshire are the types of swine chosen.

Haseltine made his studies from life. In various places in England, Scotland and Ireland he visited the champions he had selected, studied them painstakingly, talked with their grooms and herders about them, learning all their superior points, and modeled the animals in clay. The clay modelings were shipped to Paris, and in his studio here the sculptor completed the work by casting the figures in metal or carving them in marble or granite, and making appropriate pedestals for them. All are one-quarter life size.

HASELTINE has not been content to use form alone in his portrayals, but with those breeds whose markings form a special characteristic, he has sought to show this feature by using materials corresponding as closely as possible to the colors of the animals. For example, Hereford cattle, which are characterized by white head, tail and legs and reddish body, are portrayed in bronze plated with white silver and reddish gold. The Shorthorn is sculptured in reddish-brown marble, the Aberdeen Angus in black Belgian marble. The Middle-white hog is done in pink marble, the black and white Berkshire has a body of black metal with head, feet and tail of silver. Bronze, plated with reddish gold, represents the chestnut color of the Suffolk Punch horse, while the gray Percheron's coloration is shown by silver plating. Patinas are also used to give suitable colors to the sculptured figures.

School Days Begin at Seventy

J. J. Allen, the school's oldest pupil.

How an Oklahoma Educator Is Trying to Make Life Well Worth Living for Septuagenarians and Their Elders.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oklahoma.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER JR., with all his millions, couldn't enroll in the school which Dr. W. A. McKeever conducts here. Professor Albert Einstein, with all his scholastic attainments couldn't pass its entrance examination. Yet the school is free and places no emphasis on scholarship. If a person lacks the single qualification for membership, only time can help him. A man or woman has to be at least 70 years old to be accepted as a pupil by Dr. McKeever.

The School of Maturates, as its founder calls it, breezily coining a noun out of a verb, is a novelty in adult education—in very adult education. A school exclusively for the old, its purpose is to enable its pupils to spend their declining years happily and to prolong their life. It seeks to overcome the ill health, loneliness, mental inactivity, neglect and self-pity that make old age for many people little more than a miserable waiting for death.

More than 900 men and women, residents of Oklahoma City and vicinity, are enrolled in the School of Maturates. Some of them moved here to take part in its activities. Nearly a third of them are 80 or over and several are past 100.

Once a month class is held, and sometime as many as 500 pupils attend. These classes are held in a church or school or public hall, as the school for the aged has no buildings. Dr. McKeever lectures and sometimes there is a visiting speaker, but most of the time is occupied by the pupils themselves. They "recite," telling what they have learned from the course and discussing their own application of the principles taught and the problems that arise. There is usually some entertainment and some social "visiting." For special achievements certificates signed by Dr. McKeever are awarded.

Between classes the maturates visit a good deal among themselves. It is one of the obligations of those who are able to do so to visit others who are confined to their homes by disability or the need of rest. Dr. McKeever spends about half his time calling on his pupils.

In general, Dr. McKeever tries to improve and maintain the bodily health of his pupils by instructing them as to diet, fresh air and rest, and to promote their spiritual well-being by encouraging gaiety, interest in contemporary events, occupation, mingling with other people and religious faith. It is this educator's belief that old people should eat sparingly of starchy foods and sugar; he urges on his pupils diets which are calculated to keep the blood alkaline. "It is remarkable," he says, "how a proper alkaline diet, made up mostly of fruits and vegetables, will revive both the body and the mind of the aged." He mentions that one of his "boys," 112 years old and still active, has been an enthusiastic eater of cornbread and greens all his life.

These aims of Dr. McKeever are set forth more completely in the 10-point program for his pupils' guidance which is the basis of study in the School of Maturates. The points are:

1. Use of a diet suited to the peculiar needs of the aged.

2. Natural methods of elimination of the poison wastes of the body.

3. The pursuit of some hobby or light employment intended to preserve an interest in life.

4. A plan for helpful and inspirational leisure, with inclusion of some entertainment.

5. The habit of getting outdoors daily for the stimulating effects of fresh air and sunshine.

6. The practice of giving regular attention to the general news and world progress.

7. The cultivation of relations of friendship within the family and outside, with visiting by members among themselves and with others.

8. The studied practice of avoiding complaining, fault finding and brooding over the past.

9. Keeping up interest in and attending church.

10. Cultivation of a cheerful philosophy of life through reading, meditation and "a living faith in the Eternal Goodness."

Within the School of Maturates there is a Live-a-Century movement, which is fostered as an aid to longevity; it provides an additional incentive to live, and the desire to live is considered an important factor in prolonging life. It is part of the instruction that the normal life span of man should be 100 years in keeping with a theory that the life span of many animals is about five times the period of growth.

THE oldest pupil of the school, J. J. Allen, the cornbread and greens eater, celebrated his birthday not long ago. Many of the Maturates took part in the festivities of the occasion. Among them was Elizabeth Smith, the oldest woman Maturate, who was going on 102. Allen served ice cream, sweetened with honey to his guests, and there was a birthday cake which weighed 200 pounds. Dr. McKeever says Allen has his fourth set of teeth, which he cut when he was 88 years old; and that when he was 104 he cultivated 60 acres of corn by himself.

Dr. McKeever, who founded the School of Maturates three years ago, is an educator, author and lecturer whose professional interests have ranged from the problems of childhood to those of old age. A former professor of philosophy at the Kansas State Agricultural College, he was also head of that institution's department of child welfare. It was there that he became interested in the possibilities of special education for the aged, and for a time he conducted a class for persons over 80. He is 68.

As superintendent of the School of Maturates here, Dr. McKeever not only receives no salary, but arranges for the payment of expenses, which he estimates at between $500 and $600 a year. Pupils are not charged. He has explained: "I have made it a rule of my life to do my social projects in a missionary spirit. If you charge for such work it kills the spirit of it, and 'it is the spirit that quickeneth.'"

When the Devotee of Wild Life Turned His Attention to Girls

Charles Weir Beall.

Ninon Bunyea (at right).

"Screams for help were mixed with backstage oaths and cries of murder."

The Battle Royal Between a Furious Blonde and a Beautiful Brunette Over the Favors of 58-Year-Old Charles Weir Beall.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

THOUGH Charles Weir Beall used to hold down the sturdy chair of first vice-president at Harris, Forbes and Company and the no less impressive furniture accorded a director of the Chase National Bank, he also amused himself playing with wild animals. Matter of fact he had a third business connection more unique than the other two. He was Frank Buck's partner. The author of "Bring 'Em Back Alive" shared his enthusiasm and one of his menageries. But today Charles Weir Beall could write a thriller even more lively than the animal captivator's. Suggested title: "Hell Hath No Fury. . . ."

Today Frank's partner would have no trouble choosing between an incensed Bengal tiger and a woman scorned. He'd pick the tiger any day. He's had his lesson, it's cost him dear. At the age of 58, having experienced the 1929 panic, wild animals seemed tame and he went in search of more dangerous games. He found them.

Perhaps it would be more correct to say that they found him. It was in the silly season of that bleary year, 1930, that Ninon Bunyea—blonde and mannerly with plenty of what it takes—swept into his office at Harris, Forbes enveloped in a cloud of expensive odors and slightly implausible hopes. What did she want? Nothing much. Just two or three elephants, about 60 monkeys, a cobra, eight stage hands, some animal trainers and $25,000 in legal tender. No more eloquent description of Ninon Bunyea should be written than this: She got them. Whether the feat should be attributed to the slightly fuzzy state of mind in which responsible financiers found themselves that year is no more than an academic question. Ninon Bunyea found Charles Beall a ripe judicious veteran of the debacle and left him the angel of a play called "Jungle Love," destined to expire in a Jersey fauburg even as its leading lady expired (she passed out cold) at the unheralded appearance of a dangerous cobra slithering unprompted over the sill of a stage set window. Manhattan never had the enviable privilege of seeing "Jungle Love," but it cost Charles Beall more than $25,000 to shoy it to over-optimistic denisens of the so-called subway circuit, where New York shows sometimes get their first airing, where infant mortality is high and casualties are commemorated with a goose egg.

But if cash customers for "Jungle Love" were a rarity, the public found the show's angel an object of considerably greater interest. Brought into the focus of general curiosity, he answered cross-questioners benignly, told how he'd started his zoo with a cat, a canary, a dog and a gold fish and how later, "I used to enjoy going into the animal cages. It's all a matter of knowing the mind of the creature. If it means to attack, you must attack first. . . . I'm too old to take such chances with my friends now." In fact Beall seemed to feel it was time to retire. "My friends" were transported to the jungles of Massepequa, Long Island, where they shared a nice up-to-date zoo with the creatures Frank Buck brought back alive. About the same time Ninon Bunyea likewise took up her residence at Massepequa, on an estate she shared with the zoo.

Ninon was more than a vision of delight. She was a girl with a personality. Her origins were obscure—a Dutch mother, a French father, a hamlet in Indiana. She was born Ninon Mabel Bunyea, she says, but dropped the Mabel on the advice of an Indian astrologer.

Her fifth husband, Fred Hewer, was a colonial. She lived in India. She had 20 servants. The Viceroy and the Countess Rading and the Governor of Bengal—people like that—had her to dinner. She danced with the Prince of Wales. An American financier of 58 was no exotic in Ninon's career. She took him in her stride.

SHE took him for another excursion into producing. He was angel for "The Stork Is Dead," which was taken over by A. H. Woods. With or without her advice he built a movie lot on his place and filmed "Jungle Love." He made shorts for "The Voice of Experience." And withal the Beall-Bunyea partnership seems to have been not unhappy. Financially it was more happy for Bunyea, who left for a job in Hollywood holding a deed for the Massepequa estate.

But Ninon Bunyea was by no means selfish. She was afraid her Mr. Beall would be lonely while she was gone, so she got Paddy Reynolds, one of the girls from "The Stork Is Dead," to come and keep house for him while she was away. Paddy was hard up; she welcomed the chance. And Ninon, great woman that she is, didn't have a qualm about the arrangement.

It was October, 1935, when Ninon returned East after her movie venture. She was disconcerted, on returning to her estate—the one Beall had deeded to her at Massepequa—to find that the front door was closed in her face, that little Paddy Reynolds had given strict orders that she wasn't to be admitted under any circumstances. Ninon went away to think things over. She didn't come back until two weeks later. But when she came back she had the deed in her bag and when the watchman refused to admit her, she simply waved the paper in his face and stalked through the gate. "I entered like a perfect lady," she said later. What followed can best be told with excerpts from Miss Bunyea's subsequent testimony in a court of law.

Aileen (Paddy) Reynolds.

She came into the house through the kitchen and walked with studied elegance to the living room. She could see Beall lying on a sofa in a posture of voluptuous ease, which he didn't alter as he caught sight of her. "Something kicked me," she says, "as I came through the door. I think it must have been a foot."

No sooner had she recovered her poise than she was thrown off balance again by the arresting posture of Paddy Reynolds, who was on the point of letting fly with a telephone. "I was very nervous and when she threw the phone at me and began to scream I probably acted in self-defense and may have hurt her," says Ninon. Girls will be girls.

From that point on there was considerable confusion. There was an end to poise. Hair was pulled. Faces were scratched. Clothes were torn. Screams for help were mixed with back stage oaths and cries of murder.

Beall lay on his sofa and surveyed the melee indifferently. He must have looked like something left over from a Roman festival. Fortunately the telephone had landed within his reach. He stretched out and picked it up. The Nassau County police drove up a few minutes later to find both ladies panting hard and bleeding. Ninon, triumphant, waved her still intact deed in their puzzled faces and supposed belligerantly that she could do as she liked in her own house. They supposed she could. At any rate Paddy Reynolds wasn't any longer in a position to dispute the point. She was taken off to a hospital, where she was attended by day nurse and night nurse for the next 10 days. Ninon waited for her to be taken away, then set off for her apartment in New York. Beall, still holding down the sofa, finished his nap.

It was two months later that Ninon received three callers at her Central Park West apartment—two Nassau County detectives and a New York plain clothes man. She graciously acquiesced when they told her to come along and, slipping into a mink coat and a couple of diamond rings, went with them to West Side Magistrate's Court. There she was ordered to appear in Belmore, Long Island, the following week, to answer assault charges. Meanwhile she was placed under $25 bond.

Sleek and dainty and self-contained, the redoubtable Ninon duly made her appearance in the Justice of the Peace court at Belmore the next Monday. No sooner had she taken her seat when she was handed a paper announcing Paddy's $50,000 suit for pulling off clothes, pulling hair, bending wrists, kicking. . . . Paddy was discreetly absent, but when Ninon's lawyer said he was going to file a counter suit for twice the amount, the plaintiff's attorney promised he'd have his client in court a month later. Ninon made no pretext of penitence. "I beat her plenty!" she whispered sweetly. But she was willing to forgive and said that all she wanted was recovery of the Massepequa estate.

Last January 7 the ladies faced each other, glaring, in the Belmore court. It was a luscious episode. Six jurymen heard Paddy, who stated she had been Beall's secretary, give the following testimony:

"She grabbed me and tore at my chest. I fell to the sofa. She came back at me. She bent my wrist back and sprained it. She tore the hair from my head. I was in bed 10 days. . . ."

"Can you typewrite, do shorthand or bookkeeping?" Ninon's attorney asked her.

"No," the rich man's secretary answered. "I can't."

Then Ninon magnificently took the stand.

"Were you married," she was asked, "when you met him?"

"No," she said demurely, "but I was everything a girl could be to Mr. Beall. And I was a grass widow. No, a sod widow. Yes, a sod widow." The cross-questioner waited for the effect of that one to sink in. Then the case went to the jury. Fifteen minutes later the six men filed in and announced that they had acquitted her of the charge—third degree assault. Paddy Reynolds didn't get off so easy. Later she was forced to answer the same charge, was found guilty and was fined $50.

But it was a Pyrrhic victory for Ninon. Paddy Reynolds stayed on as Beall's secretary. Ninon went back to her lonely Central Park West apartment. But by this time the reader is too well acquainted with Miss Bunyea to suppose that she would let things rest there.

Last summer the informant Ninon had stationed out in Massepequa sent word that Paddy planned to go to Mineola to keep an appointment with her hair dresser. Ninon, accompanied by a stalwart guard named Eddy O'Daniel, hied herself off to the estate, again armed with her deed. Arrived at the gate she stationed the guard with orders to block Paddy's entrance when she returned. Then she went into the house — by the front door this time and very stately, too—and proceeded to make friends with Beall once more. She was irresistible, or as nearly so as she knew how to be.

WHEN Paddy Reynolds got back to the estate, she was duly halted by the heavy-set O'Daniel. Pointing to a car drawn up outside the gate he ordered her off. "You're stuff's in there," he said laconically. And Miss Reynolds, smarting, jumped in and drove off to the police station to report that Beall was in grave danger for his life. "That woman" wouldn't stop at anything. . . .

But when the police arrived they found Beall quite healthy and in a towering rage. He insisted that Ninon Bunyea be thrown out at once. But Ninon waved her deed and swore she wouldn't go. Beall's explanation that he had filed another deed making over the property to himself and had willed it and all he owned to Paddy was not enough. Paddy and her police had to decamp, she to the nearest judge for a habeas corpus writ directing Ninon to produce Beall in court the following day.

The courtroom scene was as good as the earlier one. Paddy insisted that Ninon was terrorizing Beall and making him sign checks against his will. Ninon declared that Beall had been living in constant fear of Paddy, who had kept him incessantly drunk so she

The DEPARTMENT of DEAD ENDS

A New Series of True Life Murder Stories

"That, George explained, was to be a fish pond."

"The Department of Dead Ends" is a little known section of England's famous Scotland Yard which serves as a catch-all for data and clews connected with unsolved crimes. It is also the repository of various odds and ends that the police pick up from time to time, which have no evident connection with a crime but which conceivably might have some connection if the facts were known. Most of these Dead Ends remain dead. But occasionally one of them is called to life by some apparently innocent happening and serves as the final damning bit of evidence against a criminal who had been living for months—or even years—in the belief that his guilt would go undetected for all time.

It is these cases which form the basis of the remarkable series of true life murder stories now running in this magazine. The author is Roy Vickers, an English writer who has gained an enormous popularity in Great Britain by reason of the fascinating way in which he builds up both his plots and the mental and emotional characteristics of the principal characters. This is the seventh story in the series.

The FISH POND

By ROY VICKERS

SURGEONS will often claim success for an operation that has resulted in the death of a patient—provided that there is a reasonable lapse of time between the two events. By the same thought process George Hudson might have claimed that he had successfully murdered Ethel Mollett, concealed the body and removed all traces of the crime.

True that he was hanged for it all. But that fact must not be allowed to dim his brilliance as a criminal. He beat the police and for nearly a year afterwards led a life of blameless domesticity.

By all the rules of the game, if one may call it so—by everything that was logical—he ought to have escaped. He was beaten by a preposterous coincidence—by a million-to-one chance that happened to turn up against him.

He was born at Salisbury, the son of a well-to-do architect. Both his parents were killed in the Salisbury railway disaster of 1902 when he himself was 22 and within a month or two of qualifying in his father's profession.

The death of his parents left him with a little under £200 a year and a clear sum of about £800. It was just enough to enable him to live in idleness and with that object in view he decided to move to London, where he had neither friends nor relatives to worry him with advice.

Romance met him, as it were, on the door step—or, more exactly, in the third-class compartment in which he traveled up to London—in the person of Ethel Mollett.

Ethel was 18, the daughter of a farm laborer from an outlying village. She was on her way to take up her first situation as housemaid to a chemist living in Tredegar road, Bow, E. She was plumpish and pretty with apple cheeks and big, trustful eyes.

To these rather elementary physical charms she added the subtle fascination of being very bewildered and rather helpless. She had never before left her village except for an occasional jaunt to the market town. She was more than a little afraid of the train and quite horribly afraid of the vast city that lay at the end of the journey.

Hudson told her tales of London, the kind of tales that the rustic mind seems curiously eager to believe, tales of staggering dangers that beset the unwary. If this did not allay her fears, it at least made her snatch at his offer to see her safely to her employer's house.

Before they parted the girl had gratefully accepted Hudson's generous invitation for her first free afternoon.

For the next year the story of their association is the commonplace story of a man's infatuation for a woman who is his social and intellectual inferior. He was fascinated by her naivete and innocence—more brutally expressed, her almost incredible "greenness."

He kept her very much to himself. Invariably, on her afternoon off, he would call for her at the house in Tredegar road. There was no narrow snobbery about him. He allowed himself to be interviewed by the chemist and his wife as Ethel Mollett's sweetheart, who was supposed to be employed in some vaguely humble capacity on the night staff of a newspaper.

In May of the following year Ethel was granted a fortnight's holiday which she spent with Hudson at Lowestoft.

Just a little of the greenness had perhaps worn off by this time, for at the end of June we find her unwilling to listen any longer to reasons, however ingenious in themselves, for postponing the wedding day. The wedding must take place at George Hudson's earliest convenience, or she would consult not only her employer but also her father.

Mention of her father frightened Hudson. He knew the village custom in these matters. Her father would come first; if he were not successful he would return with all the relatives and friends he could muster. The village, in short, would pool its resources for the purpose of putting pressure upon the man who had made love to one of its maidens. They would come to his lodgings (where Ethel had never been) and make scene after scene.

All this would upset George Hudson's other plans.

"You don't know what you're talking about, my dear," he said in the man-of-the-world tone that she so admired. "For one thing, if you tell your employers they will promptly turn you out. And what is the good of upsetting your father — you don't think his word counts for anything up here, do you?"

One imagines her trying to ignore this and repeating with deadly monotony her demand for marriage.

"Now listen to me. If you carry out these ridiculous threats of yours I will never speak to you again. Promise to do as I tell you and we'll 'go to the parson,' as you call it, this afternoon."

This overawed her and she promised to obey—a promise she kept with a literal faithfulness that was her undoing.

A FEW minutes later they were interviewing the rector of the parish. As the girl was a minor he asked the usual questions and was assured by Hudson that her parents would send formal consent and would, of course, be present at the ceremony.

Next, they took the train to Victoria, as Hudson had lodgings in the adjacent district of Pimlico. He gave her the satisfaction of accompanying him while he in turn gave particulars so that the banns might be called in his parish.

The very obvious genuineness of the reverend gentleman, the indisputable reality of the adjoining church, banished the last of her suspicions of the strange manner in which one apparently got married in London. She was ready once more to obey George Hudson in anything.

He told her to ask for an hour off the next evening and to meet him at Bow Station—and in the meantime to say nothing to her employer or anybody else of their imminent wedding.

George Hudson is possibly the first murderer in history to hit upon the remarkable device of "trying out" the murder before actually committing it—to see if it were really as safe as it looked.

It was his intention that Ethel Mollett should disappear in such circumstances as to suggest that she had met with foul play at the hands of some man other than himself.

It was easy enough to make so very gullible a girl disappear without leaving any direct trace. The vital question was—had the police some trick up their sleeves for finding young women who disappeared without leaving direct traces?

He proceeded to find out in the following manner.

When Ethel met him as arranged at 8 o'clock, he took her from Bow to Waterloo Station. This, of course, was in the days when the station was a comparatively small one, surrounded by a network of mean streets. In one of these mean streets, known as Walsall place, he had prevously booked lodgings in the name of Wall (doubtless suggested by the address) for himself and his wife.

Here, at No. 7, he installed Ethel as his wife and presented her with a brown paper parcel containing various articles of feminine attire which he himself had bought to offset the inconvenience caused by leaving her employer's house without luggage.

On the following morning he gave her £12 and told her to go to a certain shop and buy, readymade, a walking costume, a new hat and anything else she wanted, after which she must return to Walsall place and pass the time as well as she could until he came back from Salisbury. Overnight it had been agreed, at his suggestion, that he should go by himself to her parents, explain the situation in full and beg them to come to the wedding. That, she readily admitted, would be "better than writing." She was always ready to believe that almost anything was "better than writing." She gave him messages which he promised to deliver.

Now, although he did not deliver the messages, he did go to see her parents. But he went first to the house of her late employers at Bow who were in a state of mingled indignation and alarm at the girl's failure to return the previous night.

Before they could get in a word edgewise he asked whether Ethel were ill, as she had failed to keep an appointment with him the previous evening.

Explanation was followed by discussion. At the right moment Hudson made a manly confession. He had intended, he added, to behave in as honorable manner as was left to him and to marry her secretly as soon as the statutory three Sundays had passed. He had wanted to see her the previous evening in order to persuade her, against her will, to inform her kind employers.

This explantion only made Ethel's disappearance seem all the more sinister. It was incredible that such a nice, quiet, simple country girl should elope with one man when the banns were about to be called in response to another. It almost looked as if something must have happened to her.

"There's just the one chance that she has gone home," exclaimed Hudson. "It's not much use wiring—her people probably can't read. I'm going down to see for myself and if she isn't there I'm going straight to Scotland Yard and I hope you'll back me up in all I say."

He went down to Salisbury, told the same substantially true story that he had told the girl's employers and on his return to London that night went with the chemists to Scotland Yard and laid the "facts" before the authorities.

Any suspicion that might have fallen on George Hudson was allayed by the fact that investigation showed that the story he told was true in every particular. It was true about the banns—it was true that he had been to see the girl's parents.

The grief-stricken parents had supplied through Hudson the only existing photograph—a wedding group taken three years previously which was of little use for purposes of reproduction. A description was published, giving details of the dress in which she had left the house in Bow.

Hudson knew that he was in no danger from that published description. She was wearing her new dress and the description of her face and figure would have fitted thousands of young women.

On returning to the squalid lodgings in Walsall place, the account he gave of his interview with her parents must be considered as an item of propaganda rather than a summary of facts. That he had indeed been there she could not doubt because he gave an accurate description of the cottage. Besides, she did not bother to doubt anything—now that George was really going to marry her.

She was therefore willing to believe that her father had promised to come, with her mother, to the wedding, that in the meantime he wished her to keep the whole thing as secret as possible, to continue to live under the protection of her future husband and to obey him in all things.

FOR once her placid nature found obedience difficult because obedience consisted mainly in staying indoors and doing nothing but look at the books and magazines that George brought her (Ethel, it must be admitted, was but an indifferent reader). George left her alone a good deal, having, as he told her, so many things to attend to.

One of the many things that George attended to was Scotland Yard. At any odd time of day he would make himself a mild nuisance by calling for news of his "missing sweetheart." Another item that claimed a good deal of his energy was the renting of a house.

In those days it was easy enough to rent a house, but George Hudson wanted something rather special in the matter of a garden. It need not be a big garden nor a beautiful garden—it merely had to be a garden that was not overlooked by the neighbors.

He found what he wanted at Surbiton, then a very small suburb, struggling to expand.

One afternoon, some 10 days after she had left Bow, he took her down to Surbiton and showed her that which he described as their future home—a pleasant little six-roomed house with a very fair-sized garden adequately screened by a high wooden fence. In that part of the garden which was intended for the growing of vegetables two men were putting the finishing touches to a circular pit, five feet deep with a diameter of 10 feet.

THAT, George explained, was to be a fish pond with an ornamental fountain in the center. The local men had done the digging.

He paid off the local men and then, being possessed of the key, showed Ethel over the house. . . . There arises the pathetic picture of the girl flitting from room to room in the eager business of home-making — wholly unsuspicious of the dreadful significance of the "fish pond."

In spite of her entreaties he did not take her to Surbiton again until the following Monday—two days before their promised wedding day. The police had had a clear fortnight in which to find the missing Ethel Mollett. They had failed to discover so much as a single clew.

In short, the coast seemed as clear as any murderer could reasonably expect.

They left their lodgings, depositing their scanty luggage in the cloak room at Waterloo whence Hudson subsequently reclaimed and destroyed it.

They arrived at the house in Surbiton in the early evening. In his pocket he carried a velvet pad of the kind that is used for dusting silk hats, a part of which was eventually found in the girl's mouth. In the house were several lengths of box cord with which he bound her and suspended her by the neck from the baluster rail on the first floor.

He spent the hours of darkness burying her in the "fish pond" with a spade previously brought to the house.

On the next day, having removed all traces of the night's toil, he called on the house agent, mentioned a sudden change of plans which would make it impossible for him to occupy the house and suggested that he should forfeit his half-quarter's deposit in return for cancellation of the lease.

The agent was quite willing to do this but raised the question of the fish pond.

"I've already had it filled in," explained Hudson. "Or course, it makes a bit of a mound just now, but that will subside in a week or two. I don't imagine it will be a bar to reletting."

It was no bar. . . . The house was let for the September quarter and duly occupied by a dentist with his wife and child who, as far as we know, made no complaint about the kitchen garden.

The case of Ethel Mollett was filed in the Department of Dead Ends amongst the other still unsolved mysteries.

During his year of residence in London George Hudson had had plenty of leisure. The late Ethel Mollett's demands on his time had been limited to one afternoon per week and alternate Sundays.

Through a mutual friend in Salisbury he had early become acquainted with a Mrs. Strickland, a very, very buxom widow some dozen years his senior. During the year of frequent meetings the acquaintanceship had ripened into something deeper. In November an advertisement in The Times proclaimed that they were engaged and would be married in January.

It cannot be known whether George Hudson was attracted by the lady's ample person or by the fact that she had inherited from her late husband a grocery business in the borough that yielded her over £1000 per year—together with a very suitable house on the outskirts of Guildford.

THE marriage, however, did not take place in January, but in February, the postponement being caused by the lady having a serious "heart attack," for which the doctor prescribed a period of absolute rest. As a fact, the unhappy woman was suffering from Bright's disease from which she died two years later—though this was not known at the time.

In February, then, they were married and spent their honeymoon at Herne Bay, but were driven away after three days by the inclemency of the weather, returning to the bride's house at Guildford, where they settled down to a humdrum life of prosperous indolence.

From time to time Mrs. Hudson, as she now was, had a repetition of the "heart attack." But as she was always able to obey the doctor's orders to rest, no one was unduly alarmed.

Every Monday she would go to the borough to interview the manager of the grocery business, to receive a report of the previous week's trading and to draw in gold enough money for her current expenses.

As she was anxious to reduce her weight she would walk, when weather permitted, from Waterloo Station to the borough. When walking, one of her ways lay through Walsall place.

This latter fact does not seem to have disturbed George Hudson in the very least, as he never accompanied her. Sherlock Holmes himself could have found no link in the fact of Mrs. Hudson occasionally passing through a street in which nearly a year

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

HIPPOLYTE PHILIBERT BESSON
GLADYS VALLEBUONA

The French Deputy Who Played Tag With the Police

PARIS, France.

WHEN the late Marion Zioncheck, United States Congressman from the State of Washington, was going through a series of adventures which made the front page of the newspapers, he seemed like a completely unique personality for a man holding public office. Citizens everywhere found it difficult to understand that he had been voted into a high governmental position by thousands of constituents.

What few Americans knew, however, was that over in France there has been for several years a counterpart of the late Zioncheck in the person of a member of the French Chamber of Deputies whom the press has dubbed the "Incredible Philibert." As a matter of fact, the Frenchman's chase across France and into Belgium and back into France again, a chase which he repeated many times and during which he used all sorts of disguises and every kind of method of transportation, from motorcycle, automobile and bicycle to airplane, provided even more excitement for the Gallic populace than anything Zioncheck ever staged.

Today the "Incredible Philibert," whose full name is Hippolyte Marcellin Philibert Besson, and who is no longer a member of the dignified Chamber of Deputies which finally brought itself to expel him in March of 1935, is in jail, pending a psychiatrist's report on a sanity examination which the court ordered Besson to take. Whether the report will be pro or counter Besson's sanity remains to be seen, but, whichever way it will be, the French public is certain, from past experience, that the "Incredible Philibert," who they think bears a strong and striking resemblance to our comedian, Ed Wynn, will lose little time in devising some new scheme whereby he can embarrass the already much-chagrined French police department.

IT SEEMS that it was Hippolyte Marcellin Philibert Besson's many eccentricities which most endeared him to the voters of the provincial region of Le Puys in Central France from which he hails. None of them used to tire of talking of his sandy-colored hair, which grows only in two patches above and behind each of his ears, and which he has grown into long strands trained to twine like the proverbial ivy above his highly-polished brow, nor of his fiery temper which was liable to explode at the slightest provocation. Nor were they unmoved by his unusual attire which included, during the cold winter months, a conspicuous and gaudy muffler yards long which he wound many times around his neck, and, in the summer, a vivid blue straw hat which gave him a sort of distinction. His favorite vehicle was once the bicycle and upon it he traversed the countryside, clad in a long, old-fashioned duster.

Another one of Besson's incorrigible traits was the habit of being unable to resist the sight of a braided cap, whether it was adorning the head of a railway conductor, a policeman, a door man, a bell boy or any kind of uniformed worker. Immediately on seeing one of these articles of head gear Besson was seized with the temptation to capture it; refusing to resist the urge, he kept on collecting braided caps until he acquired an assortment which became the envy of the town and the environs. Later, when his troubles began to mount, Besson did not stop at collecting the caps of policemen; he acquired the habit of kicking them, hitting them, and even biting them in order to embarrass them and extricate himself from their slippery clutches.

Still another whimsical idea of Besson's endeared him to his constituents; he hated to make speeches from a conventional rostrum. Somehow, he had a penchant for addressing groups of people from peculiar places and it was no novelty for the French press to run pictures of Besson making campaign speeches from the branches of trees or clinging to lamp posts. And, since Besson was an insatiable talker, given to making speeches any time and any place, often at the wrong time and the wrong place, his pictures appeared with great frequency.

Born in the town of Vorey, in the Le Puy district, in the Haute Loire Department, some 50 years ago, this thorn in the side of France's politicians, police courts and process servers startled his political career at an early age. Thirteen times the voters elected him either Municipal Councilor or Mayor; at his fourteenth campaign, in 1932, Besson's political ambitions ncreased and he ran for a seat in France's great Chamber of Deputies, a legislative body corresponding to the United States Congress. Besson won the election and in 1932 he found himself in Paris as Deputy Besson, prepared to continue his unusual career as the eccentric representative of the blue straw hat and bicycle.

There was, however, one slight obstacle to Besson's complete tranquillity as a deputy who had rightfully won his election. There happens to be a law in France which allows citizens a total of 31 days in jail before they are disbarred permanently from ever again holding public office. At various times, during his knockabout career, Besson had been behind the bars for a total of three weeks due to the fact that he had passed bad checks and attacked uniformed people in an unseemly manner. This meant that if Besson were to be placed behind the bars in jail for even 10 more days, he would perforce have to write finis to his political career.

Now, just before Besson left for Paris, he had again found himself involved with the law. It seems that there was an attachment on the house where he was born and that he owed a lawyer in Le Puy the sum of 5644 francs under this attachment, or so the lawyer claimed. This same lawyer stated that after Besson had paid him only 2300 francs, he had stolen the receipt for the entire 5644 francs. The lawyer proceeded to sue Besson for this unpaid part of the bill, equivalent to about $200, and the court took the lawyer's word against Besson's. Besson was ordered to pay up; Besson refused; in default of the payment, since there was a question of a stolen receipt besides an unpaid debt, the court sentenced Besson to three months in jail.

Then the chase of a lifetime really began. Since Parliament was going to meet, Besson went straight to Paris, took his seat, and immediately claimed parliamentary immunity. This made it impossible for the police to arrest him as long as Parliament continued to meet. As soon as Parliament adjourned, Besson took a plane and flew across the border to Belgium, thus keeping on evading arrest.

Nor did Besson keep quiet about his case. He has a sharp tongue and he used it to the embarrassment of the French police as well as to the chagrin of the Parliament whose amenities and dignity he offended. Finally, in July, 1934, the police did succeed in bringing him into the police court, handcuffed, but not yet beaten. In order to catch him, the police had had to chase him as he eluded, dodged and outwitted them on motor cycle, on foot, on trains and on airplanes. He bewildered them; he escaped them time after time; he kicked them and twitted them mercilessly; finally they managed to handcuff him and bring him, unrepentant, into court.

Hippolyte Philibert Besson.

In court, Besson began making a speech immediately, telling the world that the entire chase for him was inspired by his enemies who had one aim and one aim only, the political assassination of Hippolyte Marcellin Philibert Besson, a deputy in the French Chamber. He could not understand why the court should take the word of an obscure lawyer and doubt the statement of an elected deputy. He appealed from the three months' prison sentence. While he was waiting for the appeal to come up, Parliament reconvened and the police could not rearrest Besson due to his parliamentary immunity. By the time the appeal did come up, Parliament was adjourned, but Besson had left the country, after writing a note to the Judge telling him he had gone away to investigate conditions in the rest of Europe.

That investigation led to a sort of share-the-wealth scheme which Besson concocted; it was all based on a Europa dollar which in turn was based on something Besson called a labor standard. Besson was certain he could end world depression by starting a new kind of international currency; for a time he had bundles of these Europa dollars printed and paid for all his purchases with them. When he began doing this, the French people began to wonder whether Besson was really as funny as he seemed.

AS SOON as Parliament reconvened in 1935, Besson was back in France again. And this time the members of the Chamber of Deputies themselves were growing a little weary of hearing the French people laugh at one of their members who evaded the police and the dignified law courts of France all over the place. They were sick of his use of parliamentary immunity to escape punishment and many of them were growing a little bored with his irresponsible and irrepressible habit of making completely inappropriate speeches that prevented them from carrying on their regular business.

As a consequence, the Chamber of Deputies on March 8, 1935, voted to expel "Incredible Philibert" from its ranks and deprive him of his parliamentary immunity and privileges once and for all. As Le Figaro, an important daily newspaper of Paris, said the next day: "The Chamber of Deputies yesterday morning disposed of the case of Monsieur Besson. The procedure was not an agreeable spectacle, for it was long, pitiful, somewhat grotesque, a sort of 'guignolade.'

"The dismissal could have been done quickly and simply, but nothing is done simply at the Palais-Bourbon. Besson incurred a prison sentence of three months for having stolen from a lawyer. He appealed to the Court of Appeals of Le Puys. The Court turned down his appeal and a higher court made it even more definite.

"All that was needed was the formality of dismissal, but those who make the laws make them for others. They themselves are above them. At both the extreme right and the extreme left, Besson found friends. Two medical deputies said that he was a medical and not a political problem.

"'The jury of the Seine acquits a deputy convicted of fraud,' said M. Vallat. 'Such men dishonor the Parliamentary vote and have power.'

"'Yes,' said M. Amidieu du Clos. 'For several thousands of francs, you are severe. But those who steal millions go free. Besides, the popular verdict will not ratify his dismissal.'

"Other deputies mentioned Besson's ailing, dying mother, the fact that if dismissed he would become a public charge, etc. Renaud Jean, as well as Drs. Pechin and Nast, defended Besson as a sick man.

"Le Figaro considers such things medico-sentimental effusions.

"M. Pernot then said: 'The law must be enforced. It would be a stupid paradox if this man who is not really eligible for the Chamber could keep us in a state of siege in this assembly just to give himself immunity. To pronounce his dismissal is not to refuse to be humane. On this point, the Ministry will do whatever is necessary to help him.'"

"By a vote of 312 to 85, adjournment of the Chamber was urged.

"Then Besson jumped up and shouted 'Helas!' He said it was all a political trick calculated to ruin him.

"Yvon Delbos, who presided, tried with great patience and kindliness to stop Besson's speech. But Besson screamed to the deputies: 'Assassins!' With that he made his getaway. Five minutes after he walked out of the Chamber, he was ousted by a vote of 338 against 28. His parliamentary immunity was over. But once more he made an escape."

The funniest thing about his dismissal was the manner in which he made tht escape. Besson headed for the exit of the Chamber, not seeming to worry about the fact that special guards had been placed around the Chamber to prevent his leaving. To the police brigadier who stood at the door, Besson snarled: "Do not touch me. I have my parliamentary immunity. The vote, my friend, has not yet been counted." The brigadier did not touch Besson, who walked out, calmly ate some lunch which he had in his pocket right under the noses of the guard, and then, when word came that the vote had been counted, and the guards dashed after him en masse, he disappeared in a taxi with the police cars far behind him. The brigadier was suspended from the force for a month.

THE Ministry of Justice was more pained than ever; the French press and public more amused than ever. The Ministry of Justice gave Police Inspector Delmont the job of nabbing Besson and bringing him to court once and for all. It happened that Delmont was known to the French public by the nickname of "Bouboule," because of the strong resemblance he bears to the fat comic strip character named "Bouboule" popular throughout France. Thus in March, 1935, began the duel of wits between Besson and "Bouboule," with the entire French populace looking on. And "Bouboule" was supposed to arrest Besson and see that he got a 10 months' term behind the bars, for there were added sentences, like a three months' one for kicking and biting policemen.

"Bouboule" had a terrible time. One night Besson took refuge under an American flag in the war cemetery; he spent the night strolling around the American Soldiers' Cemetery at Suresnes, where extra-territoriality applies and prevented his arrest. Another time he evaded "Bouboule" and his men by dashing from a borrowed limousine across the snow-covered countryside outside his home town. Still another time some friends of his lent him an automobile and a chauffeur with which to make a getaway to Belgium; Besson, however, decided to visit his mother in Vorey. When the police at Vorey learned of this visit, they stopped the car in which Besson was riding, and, while they were examining the chauffeur's credentials, Besson went out the other door and crossed the fields with the cops in full pursuit.

Thus it went on, with "Bouboule" rushing to Montmartre when he heard that Besson was doing card tricks in the cafes there, with "Bouboule" taking planes, trains and motorcycles, not to mention taxis, always to be just too late to trap Besson. On June 9, 1935, William Archer, an engineer friend of Besson, won a proxy election for Besson's seat in the Chamber on this platform: "A vote for me is a vote for Besson," thus indicating that Besson was right when he said his constituency was with him to a man.

THE great blow came last December 20, however, when—to the disappointment of the French press, which had filled its columns with millions of words about this hilarious gentleman, and the dismay of the French public, which loved to discuss the irrepressible Besson over the wine glass and the pernod, but to the great relief of the police department—the nine-month battle of the chase between Besson and Police Inspector Delmont came to a glorious conclusion. "Bouboule" dragged his prisoner, Besson to headquarters and gave him up to the seemingly inevitable 10-months' jail sentence which would forever seal his political career.

But Besson was not to be so easily downed. Right in court, his friends produced a pardon signed by Albert Lebrun, President of France. Besson was at liberty once more.

A few weeks ago, the "Incredible Philibert" was in trouble again, for whether there's a Popular Front Government or not in France, it seems that Besson will go on forever. This time the elusive ex-deputy had been seized for an examination of his sanity after he had refused to submit to a test voluntarily in the matter of his prosecution for the alleged theft of a business document. When asked to return the document, Besson had replied: "I am willing to give it back, but I can't get it now because it is in Spain."

Finally Besson is in jail, but only pending a psychiatric report on his sanity. Whether he will remain there for the report is a question for discussion.

Learned Championship Tennis Playing With a Robot

ATLANTA, Georgia.

GLADYS VALLEBUONA'S mother had an idea she ought to become a concert pianist. It was a good idea, too, says Gladys, "except that it wouldn't work, probably because the piano was too meek. No matter how I hammered it, it wouldn't fight back."

And then her father, a tennis fan, inveigled her into the Georgia State tournament summer before last. She wasn't much of a player, but she did invest in some of the handsomest shorts ever seen in the South. And suffered an attack of stage fright which got worse and worse as, paralyzed, she watched the balls go by.

It happened, however, that her disposition was nothing like her piano's. And the direct result of that is that, at 19, she has discarded the long-suffering piano for a vindictive tennis robot named "Frankie," won half a dozen titles and embarked on a drive for national championship which entails training hardships ranging from bag punching and spinach to ballet dancing.

Last May the then much-defeated Miss Vallebuona went up to Spring Lake, New Jersey, to go to work on her many tennis faults with Leslie Beasley, former Davis Cup coach. In the summer she entered the Eastern tournaments. She was beaten by some of the finest players in the game. But, knowing she hadn't a chance, she forgot about shorts and things, fought like a tigress, came home to win the Atlantic City championship for women and the Georgia and Alabama State titles. She was runner-up in the Mid-Atlantic singles. She shares the Tennessee doubles title. And, on the way to other victories, she has undertaken a Spartan regimen.

First of course, she needed plenty of practice on the court. But she lacked opponents, and besides, she says, real opponents take your mind off the game. So her father built a wooden wall at the end of their home court and she bounced balls off it by the hour. But, if not quite as meek as the piano, it was singularly unimaginative. And so her father obtained the electrical tennis robot, which looks more like a stove pipe on wheels, but has ways as sly and malicious as a professional wrestler's.

Gladys Vallebuona.

It has a hopper for 60 balls that drop one by one through a slot in range of a catapult-apparatus which fires them out to order—volley, smash, lob, serve or mix them up, any way you please. "Bitsy" Grant named it Frankie because it lays them down in a barrage as steady as Frankie Parker's. The only thing Frankie won't do is chase balls. When Frankie runs down, Gladys retrieves the balls and dumps them into the hopper.

Gladys and Frankie, the robot, at their daily grind.

Her first supplementary training was surprising. It was dancing—tap dancing for speed, ballet dancing for balance. She had been "terribly awkward," she says, and it "stood out like a sore thumb when I went up against the seeded players." She went into Billy Daly's gymnasium and tackled setting up exercises for suppleness, rope skipping and stationary bicycle riding for legs and wind, rowing machines and chest weights for back, shoulder, arm and abdominal muscles.

"Then, of all things, Mr. Daly put me to punching the bag. I have developed a pretty good left hook and right cross, which I hope I'll never have to use. The exercise was intended to improve my timing and I think it has been successful. And you have no idea how much fun it is to play a tune on a punching bag."

Here is her daily program:

Up at 7, practices for an hour with Frankie, the robot, before breakfast.

Breakfast—and plenty of it.

Two hours at the "health club."

An hour at the dancing studio.

An hour and a half to two hours walking.

Lunch.

Two hours in the afternoon with Frankie and occasionally with a real live opponent.

—The rest of the day she can do as she pleases, even to shopping or a movie, but curfew rings at 10 p. m.

Gladys was a junior at Oglethorpe University in Atlanta. She quit because she didn't have time for that and tennis too.

She passed up parties.

She ate pecks of spinach, though she hates it.

She mapped out a program of training that would make a professional boxer turn pale with horror.

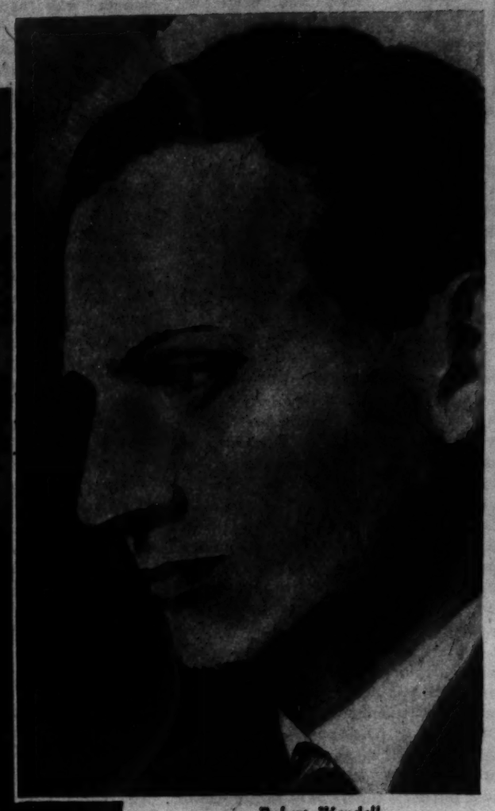

And she is moving toward the tennis heights.

HOW the SPY, 'MARIE LOUISE', LURED Another MAN to His DEATH

What Led Up to the Execution of Robert Wendell, Accused of Betraying the Secrets of the Fortification of Helgoland.

Maria Louise Baeckendorff.

Robert Wendell.

"Last month he was led into the prison court where a top-hatted official executioner stood waiting with his great ax, and given one last chance. Asked to reveal the name of his British correspondent he wearily shook his head and knelt before the block."

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LONDON, England.

HELGOLAND is a tiny island fast shrinking away to nothing under the lashing waves of the North Sea. Its area is now less than a fifth of a square mile. When Germany acquired it from England during the last years of Prince Bismarck's career, it was five times as large. But even today Helgoland is the most important strategic point on the North German coast. As the key to Bremen, Hamburg and the Kiel Canal its naval importance is second only to Gibraltar's, so far as Germany is concerned.

Early this summer rumors that the Nazi Government was refortifying the little crumbling island began to circulate internationally. On June 12 they were printed in American papers. Something over a month later the question was brought up in the House of Commons and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was the target of pointed questions by members who wanted to know what the Government proposed to do about it. Eden admitted having in his possession complete reports on the refortification, but said that even though this and remilitarization of the Rhineland were blatant violations of Versailles Treaty regulations, England could afford to overlook them in the interests of world peace.

These conciliatory remarks seem to have been the basis for a cruel and violent German spy crusade. Even though the French secret service is said to have divulged some of the inner workings of what followed in this underground chase—what was behind the Niagara of publicity that emanated from Berlin—the truth in these matters is hard to come at. Secret trials and rumors "on the authority of the French secret service" and tall tales of treachery and disgrace are lumpy matter to swallow at a gulp. What is known is that three men have just died under the executioner's ax in a bleak Berlin courtyard, presumably as an answer to Anthony Eden's complacent remarks in the House of Commons.

It is a sordid story that has come out, more sordid for being only one of a series that is epidemic on both sides of the Franco-German border. But what stands out as a splotch of color in this seemingly futile tragedy of misguided patriotism and disgrace and death is the figure of a charming German woman who appeared anonymously three years ago at the trial of Lieutenant Norman Baillie-Stewart, the young British officer incarcerated in the Tower of London and subsequently court-martialed, dishonored and sent to the penitentiary. At Baillie-Stewart's trial a girl named "Marie Louise" was described as the German operative who had betwitched the young officer and led him to betray military secrets.

Now her name crops up again as the instrument the German secret police employed to implicate Robert Wendell as the source of Anthony Eden's remarks and England's detailed information on the refortification of Helgoland. "Extraordinary efforts were made to conceal the details of the trial and the identity of the witnesses appearing against the accused man," reads an apparently authoritative account, "but it can be revealed now for the first time that the real name of Marie Louise is Maria Louise Baeckendorff, a native of Silesia, aged about 30. The daughter of a distinguished German civil servant connected with a family of ancient lineage, she has been employed in secret service work for at least 10 years. . . ."

THERRE is something sinister and morbidly suggestive about the young and beautiful women who occasionally make their appearance in these spy cases. Secret service men say that they are a great rarity, seldom trusted with important missions and considered likely to be lacking in the machine-like emotional stability that qualifies a man for this profession. Yet stories of the Mata Hari sort are strangely persistent. They have a certain plausibility in addition to natural fascination. And according to current reports the siren of the present tale is an unusually gifted and enigmatic character, peculiarly attractive to men and single-minded in her devotion to a cause that denies her all security, all hope of normal happiness and all chance of reward, or even sympathy.

It would be interesting to know just what took place in the inner offices of the Gestapo, Germany's secret police, the day messages arrived in Berlin telling of Eden's remarks in the Commons. It is quite incredible that Germany—the high command, that is—believed that refortification of the North Sea naval base could be kept secret for long. Possibly it was hoped that the matter could be concealed from the general public until arrival of an auspicious moment for Chancellor Hitler to announce it dramatically as an accomplished fact.

It must be taken as a foregone premise, however, that those in charge of a nation's defense are unable to take very seriously the solemn mockery of "military secrets." Knowing the ability of their own secret operatives to buy or steal almost any information they require regarding the national defenses of another nation, they must perforce give their competitors credit for having access to the same underground sources.

THE spy racket, in other words, is a game no more mysterious than chess; all the pieces are visible on the board—at least to the players; but when a pawn is taken a man's life is snuffed out. That sometimes takes it momentarily out of the realm of farce, where disenchanted civilians may think it belongs.

Whatever the hard-faced men closeted in the Gestapo headquarters may have said privately that day towards the end of July, then, they felt that Eden's challenge must be answered publicly—if only to save their own face before the German public, which is taught to take the spy menace with deadly seriousness. With little effort police rounded up three men who could be implicated in the sale of the Helogland secrets to British agents. These men were secretly examined and two of them were privately court-martialed and sentenced to death. They were executed. The third man—either because he seemed willing to talk or because he actually had information to divulge—was allowed to turn state's evidence. That is, he was given a reprieve on condition that he would disclose the identity of a fourth person believed to be higher up in the ring which sold the information.

On the basis of information thus obtained, the secret police put Robert Wendell on the spot. Wendell was the German-born son of a British couple. His father was English, his mother Scottish. He had been educated in German schools and was a graduate of an important institute of technology. He was a bachelor in his early thirties and a military engineer of considerable ability. His appointment to the staff in charge of secretly refortifying Helgoland must have been a considerable honor, since only men presumed to be not only capable, but above suspicion, could be entrusted with a position involving such a touchy point in international relations.

It isn't beyond the limits of possibility, however, that there was method in the appointment of a man of British ancestry to such a position. How can one know in such a case that an innocent man has not been framed for political purposes? Wendell's protests of innocence later on were conceivably genuine. A secret trial gives the observer no assurance that the accused has had a fair hearing—or any hearing at all for that matter.

Also, it may be assumed that what information has gotten out has been wilfully divulged by the police. Wendell wasn't picked up immediately. Instead he was turned over to the wiles of the mysterious Maria Louisa Baeckendorff. According to photographs in the possession of the French secret service, Maria Louise is distinctly seductive, not a great beauty, to be sure, but a woman of decided charm and intriguing manner.

SHE is said to have made Wendell's acquaintance at the port city where he lived while working on the Helgoland project. She is said to have become extremely intimate with him, to have reached a stage of intimacy where they swapped latch keys, as a matter of fact, and to have used her key to introduce investigators into the young engineer's apartment.

If Fraulein Baeckendorff is in truth the Marie Louise of the Baille-Stewart case, her method was probably simply that of the spy courtesan. That she was able to show officers plans of the new fortifications in Wendell's possessions proves little. Copies of compromising documents are reported to have been entered as evidence at the secret trial.

Who knows whether it was even a surprise to Robert Wendell to be confronted by Maria Louise at his secret court-martial? Closed doors are the most suggestive symbols in the world. They put all sorts of queer ideas into non-military minds.

Robert Wendell, at any rate, was given the same opportunity for a reprieve which was accorded the man who turned him in. He was told that if he revealed the name of the British agent (supposedly a woman) who bought his information for the use of the Foreign Office, he could get off with his life. It is said that his mother was brought to the cell where he was imprisoned in an effort to persuade him to accept this magnanimous offer. It is said that she refused to have any part in such a dishonorable treaty, that she advised her son to stick by his guns and go down with his flag flying. That, at any rate, seems to be what he decided to do. Last month he was led into the prison court where a top-hatted official executioner stood waiting with his great ax, and given one last chance. Asked to reveal the name of his British correspondent, he wearily shook his head and knelt before the block. He died.

The DEPARTMENT of DEAD ENDS

ago Ethel Mollett had been concealed from the police.

But where Sherlock Holmes might have failed, blind coincidence triumphed. The million-to-one chance turned up in the form of a telegram delivered one Thursday afternoon at the little house in Guildford.

"Have had another attack am better now and no need to worry but please come and help me home at 7, Walsall place. Mary."

No. 7! This echo from the past was, to say the least, disturbing. If he were to go there, it was just possible that Mrs. Sidwell, the landlady, might recognize him. She might possibly reveal the fact that he had lived there with another woman ostensibly his wife. But there was no need, George assured himself, to lose his head.

He went to the doctor who lived in the same road, told him what had happened and asked him to go up to Waterloo and bring Mrs. Hudson home—in case she should need medical attention on the way.

She would not, the doctor asserted, need medical attention on the way. He had other cases on hand and did not feel justified in doing a job that Mr. Hudson himself could do perfectly well.

"All right, then, I'd better go myself," said George—but did not go. Instead he sent the cook—who returned out of temper close upon midnight unaccompanied by her mistress.

MRS. HUDSON, she reported, had had a second attack and although she had recovered she had no confidence in her ability to accomplish the journey home without her husband.

George did nothing that night nor the following morning. About midday came another long telegram, urging him to come at once and help her home. He showed it to the cook—who pointed out that it would be useless for herself to make a second journey.

"All right, then, I'd better go myself," said George for the second time and, being short of loose cash, borrowed eight shillings from the cook and left the house.

But he did not go to Walsall place. He went to a boarding house in Bloomsbury and lay low for a week, assuming that his wife would go home by herself. The newspapers at that time were making much of the Baroda case (a case of lapsed memory) and he intended to say that he had set out for Walsall place and that before he arrived he, like the notorious Baroda, had suffered a lapse of memory.

It was a simple enough plan. Even if nobody believed in the lapse of memory no very great harm would be done.

It does not seem to have occurred to George Hudson that his wife was genuinely fond of him. Alternatively, he does not seem to have guessed that a reasonably loving wife would be, not offended, but alarmed by his actions.

A confused exchange of telegrams was followed by a reappearance of the cook at Walsall place. Nothing but an accident or worse, asserted Mrs. Hudson, could have prevented George from coming to her aid. What more naturally therefore than that, before returning home with the cook, she should inform the police of her husband's mysterious disappearance.

She insisted on inquiries being made at every hospital in London and this clearly was a job for Scotland Yard.

At Scotland Yard the name, "George Hudson," came indirectly to the notice of Sergeant Haskins, who a year ago had been employed in the search for Ethel Mollett. It was a funny thing, he thought, that now it should be George's turn to disappear—but it was no more than a funny thing. On the face of it there could be no logical connection between the two events. And it was nothing but sheer red tape which compelled him to send a memo to Dead Ends, where they would no doubt file it as an "echo" of the Ethel Mollett case.

The hospitals yielding no information, Haskins took a train to Guildford and there saw amongst others the doctor and the cook.

"Looks like one of these cases of a lapse of memory!" thought the Sergeant who had also read all about the notorious Baroda.

But, lapse of memory or not, George could not live for very long on the cook's eight shillings, so to be on the safe side, Haskins interviewed the manager of the local branch where George had a banking account.

Two days later Haskins was informed by telephone that Hudson's check for £10 had been cleared through the account of a boarding house in Bloomsbury. Haskins sent a junior to the boarding house, who presently telephoned that George had just sat down to lunch.

The chase was at an end and Dead Ends was duly informed that the mystery had been solved.

Tarrant applied the old formula of assuming that a logical connection existed between events palpably unconnected.

Applying the formula, a conclusion emerged—that George had shown a calculated and systematic unwillingness to call at No. 7 Walsall place. And by means of the kind of semi-scientific guesswork on which the theory of the department was based, Tarrant guessed that his unwillingness was concerned with the mysterious disappearance of Ethel Mollett.

He instructed one of his own juniors to bring Mrs. Sidwell, the landlady, without fail to the Yard at 2 o'clock—and at 3 o'clock he himself walked in with an amiably chattering George Hudson, ostensibly to settle some formality in regard to his "disappearance."

On the way to Tarrant's room the unsuspecting George Hudson was seen and recognized by Mrs. Sidwell. The supposed formality was soon completed and George departed to make the best job he could of the lapse-of-memory story to his devoted wife.

But a double relief of plain clothes men were told off to escort George unobtrusively to Guildford and to keep a watch on him until further orders.

IN THE meantime Superintendent Tarrant learned from Mrs. Sidwell that George Hudson, under the name of Wall, had lived at her house with a young woman—at the very time when he was playing the grief-stricken lover and urging the Yard to redouble their efforts to find his missing bride-to-be, Ethel Mollett.

Where did the couple go when they left her? Mrs. Sidwell was sure she couldn't say—but she had heard them talking about a house they had seen once and were going to see again. She did not know where the house was, but she thought you must go to it from Waterloo Station, as they had run from her house to catch the train on the first occasion.

A police circular was promptly sent to all the police stations on the line within 100 miles of London, instructing them to make inquiries of all their local house agents.

Two days later Superintendent Tarrant was talking to the Surbiton house agent who told him all he knew of "Mr. Wall," bringing in, almost as an afterthought, the story of the proposed fish-pond.

That afternoon, by the courteous permission of the dentist, who tenanted the house, Scotland Yard began digging operations.

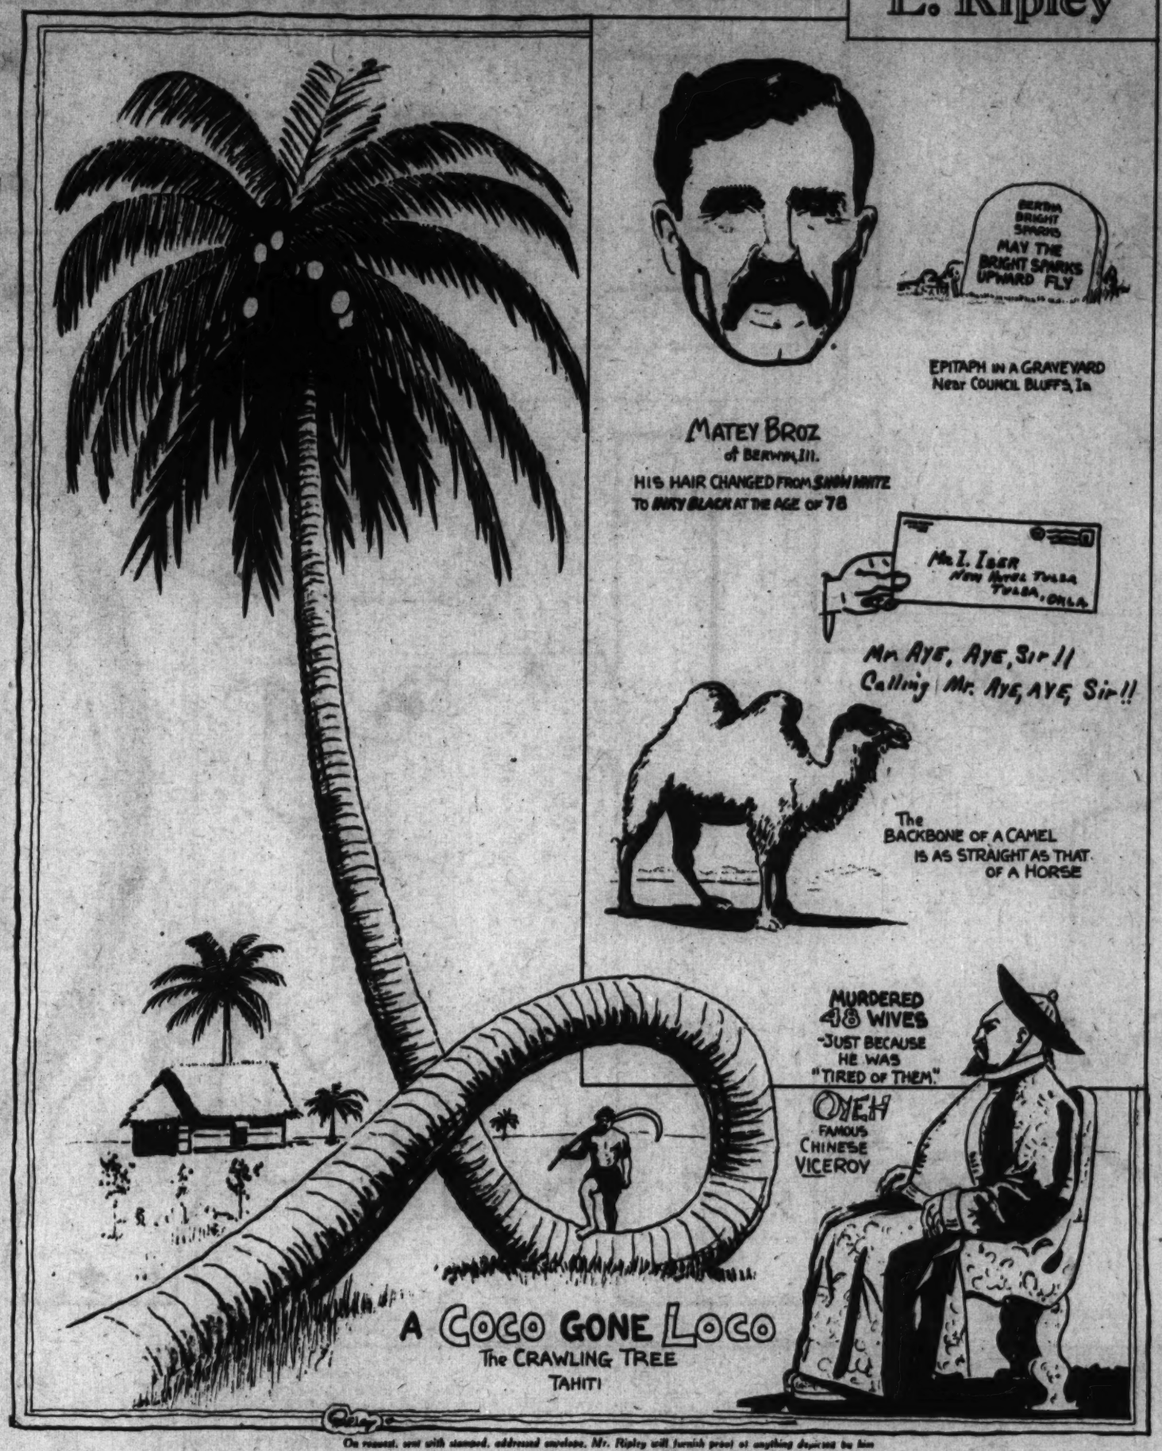

Hudson was hanged in August.

could have her way with him.

"Poor deah!" said Paddy. "And to think I took her into my house when she didn't have so much as a pair of shoes. . . .

"You know," she continued airily, "I have royal blood in my veins. I am descended from Sir Joshua Reynolds, the painter. My father is Major Francis Henry Reynolds of the British Army. My mother came from the finest, most noble family in Tipperary." She told reporters that Beall probably wouldn't show up because Miss Bunyea had given him a black eye, while he was trying to get in touch with her by phone. Miss Bunyea had a black eye, too, she said, but she wouldn't say how she had come by it. She was suing for Beall's release from that woman's influence. . . .

At 11 o'clock Beall appeared—doddering, frail, silver-haired. Sure enough, he had a black eye. He was looking more than his 64 years. Judge Cortland Johnson invited him into his chambers and the man went in and the door closed behind them. According to the Judge, Beall said he wasn't being held at his estate against his will. He liked it there. He liked having Miss Bunyea back. And a few minutes later in the courtroom he administered a determined snub to Paddy Reynolds.

"This is just a case of two women scrapping to get the best of an old man in his last years," Judge Johnson said, his voice dripping acid.

"They've poisoned me against that wonderful man," sobbed Paddy, a little incoherent, as she rushed to a phone to call up the friends who had urged her to file the suit.

The reporter who got past the gate at Beall's estate to interview Miss Bunyea found there three movie sets and a very big merry-go-round. Ninon met him in the living room with a pitcher of pineapple juice in one hand and a plate of cookies in the other. A mongrel dog named Haile Selassie, who affected red polished toe nails, fawned at her feet.

"Ah!" she said huskily as another reporter came up, "ah, how my heart has ached this year. I have waited all the year for this day to prove to Sir Charles (that's my pet name for Mr. Beall; he calls me Miss Bunny) that my one thought has been for his happy future. You must understand that Sir Charles is not my lover. He's just a dear, sweet man whom I adore. We were SO happy. But, ah! my dear, that is gone. Now I shall stay long enough to see him protected from another. And then, good-by.

"YOU know, I don't know what to do with that marriage license and wedding ring—both unused, of course—which Miss Reynolds left behind. Miss Reynolds, poor deah! I took her into my house when she didn't have a stocking!

"About the black eye? My arm, you say? Oh, those! I've had them for a long time. . . ."

A few days later, Beall filed suit against Paddy charging she had withdrawn money from their joint bank account without his approval—$1165. She was brought to Bellmore police station, giggling. Giggling she plunked down $500 bail from a roll the size of a fist. Indignantly she fumed that the age, 42, entered in Beall's petition was nothing short of libel. She laughed at the charge of grand larceny pending against her for the alleged theft of the $1165. And when the grand jury met this fall, they failed to indict her.

Despite which Beall sued her in City Court, Manhattan, for the same $1165. Paddy filed a counter suit for $1225. Judge Vincent Lippe heard the case. The three principals were present. Ninon made a grand entry when called to the stand, but wept so hard she couldn't get beyond: "I—I've spent all this year trying to make dear Charles well. . . ."

"Compose yourself. Sit down or take a walk." She did both in succession. Back on the stand, she broke down again and the same performance was repeated. Ninon was really a magnificent witness. Miss Paddy Reynolds' case was thrown out of court, Beall's case upheld.

Paddy was left sputtering. "It's a shame," she apostrophized. "When he has so much money—a quarter of a million dollars. This means I'll have to give up everything. Everything. Even the ring my mother gave me. . . ."

Her attorney supported her loyally. "And he calls himself an animal trainer!" he growled viciously. "Hmpf!"

CORDAY Suggests

The Perfumed Wardrobe

A New Theory About Perfumes and Their Uses

WE ARE just a little weary of the traditional theory that there is "one perfume to match your personality." What is your personality? Are you really the same person from morning until night, or from week to week? Stop and think about this a little and you will realize that you and every other woman is a many-sided personality. You're gloomy one moment and gay the next. You're frank and vibrant now and maybe a little cold later on. One evening you may wish to relax and is wearing finery to the glossy confusion and the hectic exhilaration of night life, and the very next evening you may wish to curl up in a nice comfortable chair all alone with yourself and your thoughts. There are moments of romance and high adventure . . . and there when life doesn't seem worth the living. Do you recognize these many sides to you?

CORDAY, one of the world's foremost Parisian perfumers, asks the question: "Why use but one perfume when you have so many sides—how can one perfume fit them all?" Realizing the importance of your many moods, CORDAY has developed a new way of presenting perfume so that this entire idea of a perfume for every mood may be realized . . . at not too great an expense.

FIVE MOODS IN THE "PERFUMED WARDROBE" by CORDAY

CORDAY has captured the very spirit of these feminine moods . . . and imprisoned them in gleaming cut-crystal bottles. These are five of the finest and most expensive perfumes in the world. Each one radically different in type and fragrance and in the exact mood each one is intended to emphasize. For the first time a really planned wardrobe of perfume is available to women. It is not at a moderate expense if it is viewed only on the same theory that a woman couldn't wear less than a dozen suits for different moods or dresses for various moods. But CORDAY has made it possible for the average woman to have a perfumed wardrobe for the moods and needs of whatever personality she chooses to reveal.

● Tempest Blue . . . For the exotic hour . . . a rare perfume for impressive occasions—for exacting moments when everything must be in perfect tune—an odor to match the mood of formality $17.50

● Orchidée Blanc . . . A beguiling bouquet color for the blond personality—for the afternoon or the timeless mood . . . for the mood of fluid informal gayety $17.50

● Voyage a Paris . . . What "Swing" is to music this odor is to perfume. A sophisticated odor . . . for the romantic mood . . . that will get you into trouble if you let it $15

● Quicksand . . . A woodsy, tangy odor for the woman who likes the outdoors—equally at home on semi-formal occasions—an odor to match that "don't-care-care" mood $17.50

● Gardenia . . . For those hours when your "inner self" is truly revealed. For the unobtrusive mood . . . a true gardenia odor that expresses the spirit of the flower itself $17.50

SHIRLEY TEMPLE DOLL CONTEST GAME

Here comes our sweet little Shirley Temple Doll. She just arrived from Hollywood with her new Fall outfit. It's all in her shiny new Shirley Temple Doll Trunk, complete with an extra dress, pajamas, shoes, socks, rain cape, rain hat! Wouldn't you like a trunk and doll like this for Christmas?

All her clothes are exact copies of the costumes Shirley herself wears in the movies. This one is from "BRIGHT EYES" Ask mother to take you to see the new Shirley Temple Dolls' tomorrow . . . and see the dandy dresses that go with them!

This looks just like Shirley as she was in "Poor Little Rich Girl" . . . her curls, smile, and hazel eyes that close at bedtime. To own one is just like having Shirley for a playmate.

Every real Shirley Temple Doll has a beautiful big button on her dress with Shirley's picture on it, also a ribbon label reading "Genuine Shirley Temple Doll". With your doll you get an 8 x 10 picture of Shirley signed by herself.

There's a pretty frock! It's the famous Party Dress from "CURLY TOP". And please tell this to Mother: The Shirley Temple Doll is very well made. It lasts forever and you'll love it forever. There's nothing quite like a Shirley Temple Doll!

Shirley wears pajamas like these in "Poor Little Rich Girl". Get them for your Shirley Temple Doll—and a new hat, coat, dress and slip. . . . They cost very little and think what fun you'll have dressing her up just like Shirley Temple!

NED BRANT

By BOB ZUPPKE

DRAWN BY B. W. DEPEW

Invited to appear before the entire student body at chapel, Bud Shekels assumes they expect a public apology for his act in running onto the field to break up a scoring pass which allowed Standish to beat Carter, 7 to 6.

12-6

BEFORE WE CONDEMN HIM, LETS HEAR WHAT WENT ON IN THE MIND OF THE BOY WHO RAN ONTO THE FIELD IN HIS STREET CLOTHES AND INTERCEPTED A STANDISH FORWARD PASS—

BUD DOESN'T KNOW IT, BUT AS SOON AS HE GETS THROUGH EXPLAINING, WE'RE GOING TO APOLOGIZE FOR SNUBBING HIM

STUDENTS OF CARTER COLLEGE— I PRESENT BUD SHEKELS—

You could hear a pin drop as Bud leaves his seat high in the balcony and proceeds briskly toward the stage.

INCIDENTALLY, IT WAS THE ONLY PASS HE CAUGHT ALL SEASON

AS I CAME DOWNSTAIRS I HEARD A NUMBER OF HISSES— YOU KNOW WHAT HISS? GEESE! SO QUACK QUACK, RIGHT BACK AT YOU!

IF YOU THINK I CAME TO APOLOGIZE OR TO EXPLAIN, YOU'RE WRONG! I'LL TELL YOU WHY I'M HERE AND IT WON'T TAKE LONG!

I'M HERE TO SAY I'VE GOT MORE SCHOOL SPIRIT THAN ANY OF YOU APES WHO HAVE BEEN TURNING YOUR BACKS ON ME SINCE I SPOILED THAT FOOTBALL GAME— THANK YOU— GOOD DAY!

For a full 30 seconds the crowd, expecting an alibi, sits stunned as Bud finishes his tongue-lashing and leaves the building.

Then, realizing the injustice done the freshmen halfback, the undergraduates leap to their feet and cheer him to the echo.

WE WANT BUD SHEKELS!

COME ON— AFTER HIM!

YOU GUYS MIGHT AS WELL GET USED TO IT BECAUSE I'LL BE UP HERE FOR ONE REASON OR ANOTHER MOST OF MY COLLEGE CAREER!

THEY'RE STILL TALKING

About Glenna Collett's Greatest Uphill Fight to Win

12-6

Defeat grimed at her insolently that afternoon of Oct. 3, 1929 as Glenna Collett found herself four down at the fifteenth hole in defense of her national women's golf championship.

The crowd stood breathless as she rose to supreme heights to win the next three holes. The fans groaned as her perfect tee shot to the eighteenth green apparently hit something and rolled behind a tree in the rough.

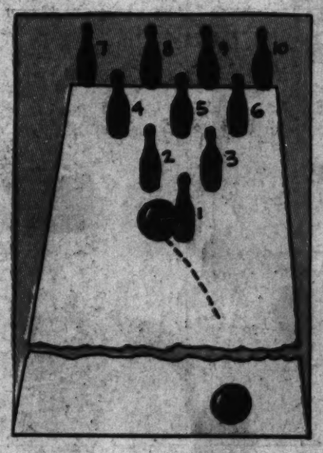

She didn't stop fighting. A mighty cheer went up as she pitched onto the fairway to within 20 yards of the green. But her opponent, Mrs. Harley Higbie, was as close in two as Glenna was in three.

The cheer swelled to a reverberating roar as Glenna won the eighteenth and nineteenth holes, matching victory from defeat in one of the greatest exhibitions of nerve and golfing spirit

It took two birdies, iron nerve and the surmounting of a crushing obstacle to win those last five holes, but Glenna Collett had what it takes. All real champions have it.

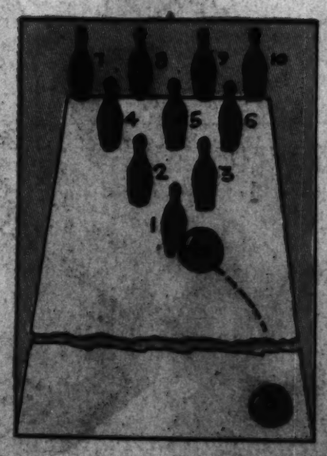

Bowling . . . . By NED BRANT

Delivering the Hook Ball

The hook ball, which travels in a curve down the alley, is the most popular among bowlers. It is rolled by taking a firm hold with the fingers and using an inward twist of the wrist. Don't use too much speed.

Start the hook ball on its way at a point about half way between the center of the alley and the righthand side, if you are a righthand bowler.

Next Week . . . . . More Bowling

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES RUIN YOUR GOOD TIMES

YOU can't dress up a pimply face. This is a sad fact to many young people after the start of adolescence—from 13 to 25, and sometimes longer.

During these years, important glands develop and final growth takes place. The whole body is disturbed. The skin gets especially sensitive. Waste poisons in the blood irritate this sensitive skin—and then ugly pimples appear!

Fleischmann's fresh Yeast is a great help in overcoming adolescent pimples. It clears these skin irritants out of the blood. And—with the cause removed—the pimples disappear!

Eat 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast each day—one cake about ½ hour before every meal. Eat it plain, or dissolved in a little water, until your skin is perfectly clear again. Start now!

A WHISPER IN THE DARK... BROUGHT ROMANCE TO RUTH

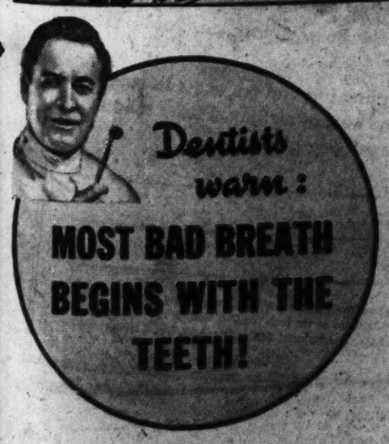

Read how Colgate Dental Cream protects you!

WHY let bad breath interfere with romance—with happiness? It is so simple—so easy to be safe if you bear this important fact in mind . . . the commonest cause of bad breath is improperly cleaned teeth!

Leading dental authorities point out that decaying food deposits, lodged in the hidden crevices between the teeth, are by far the most common source of unpleasant mouth odors—of dull, dingy teeth—and of much tooth decay. Ordinary cleaning methods, which merely polish the exposed surfaces of your teeth, fail to remove these odor-breeding deposits. Use Colgate Dental Cream. It has a special penetrating foam that gets into every tiny crevice—emulsifying and washing away these food and acid deposits that cause bad breath.

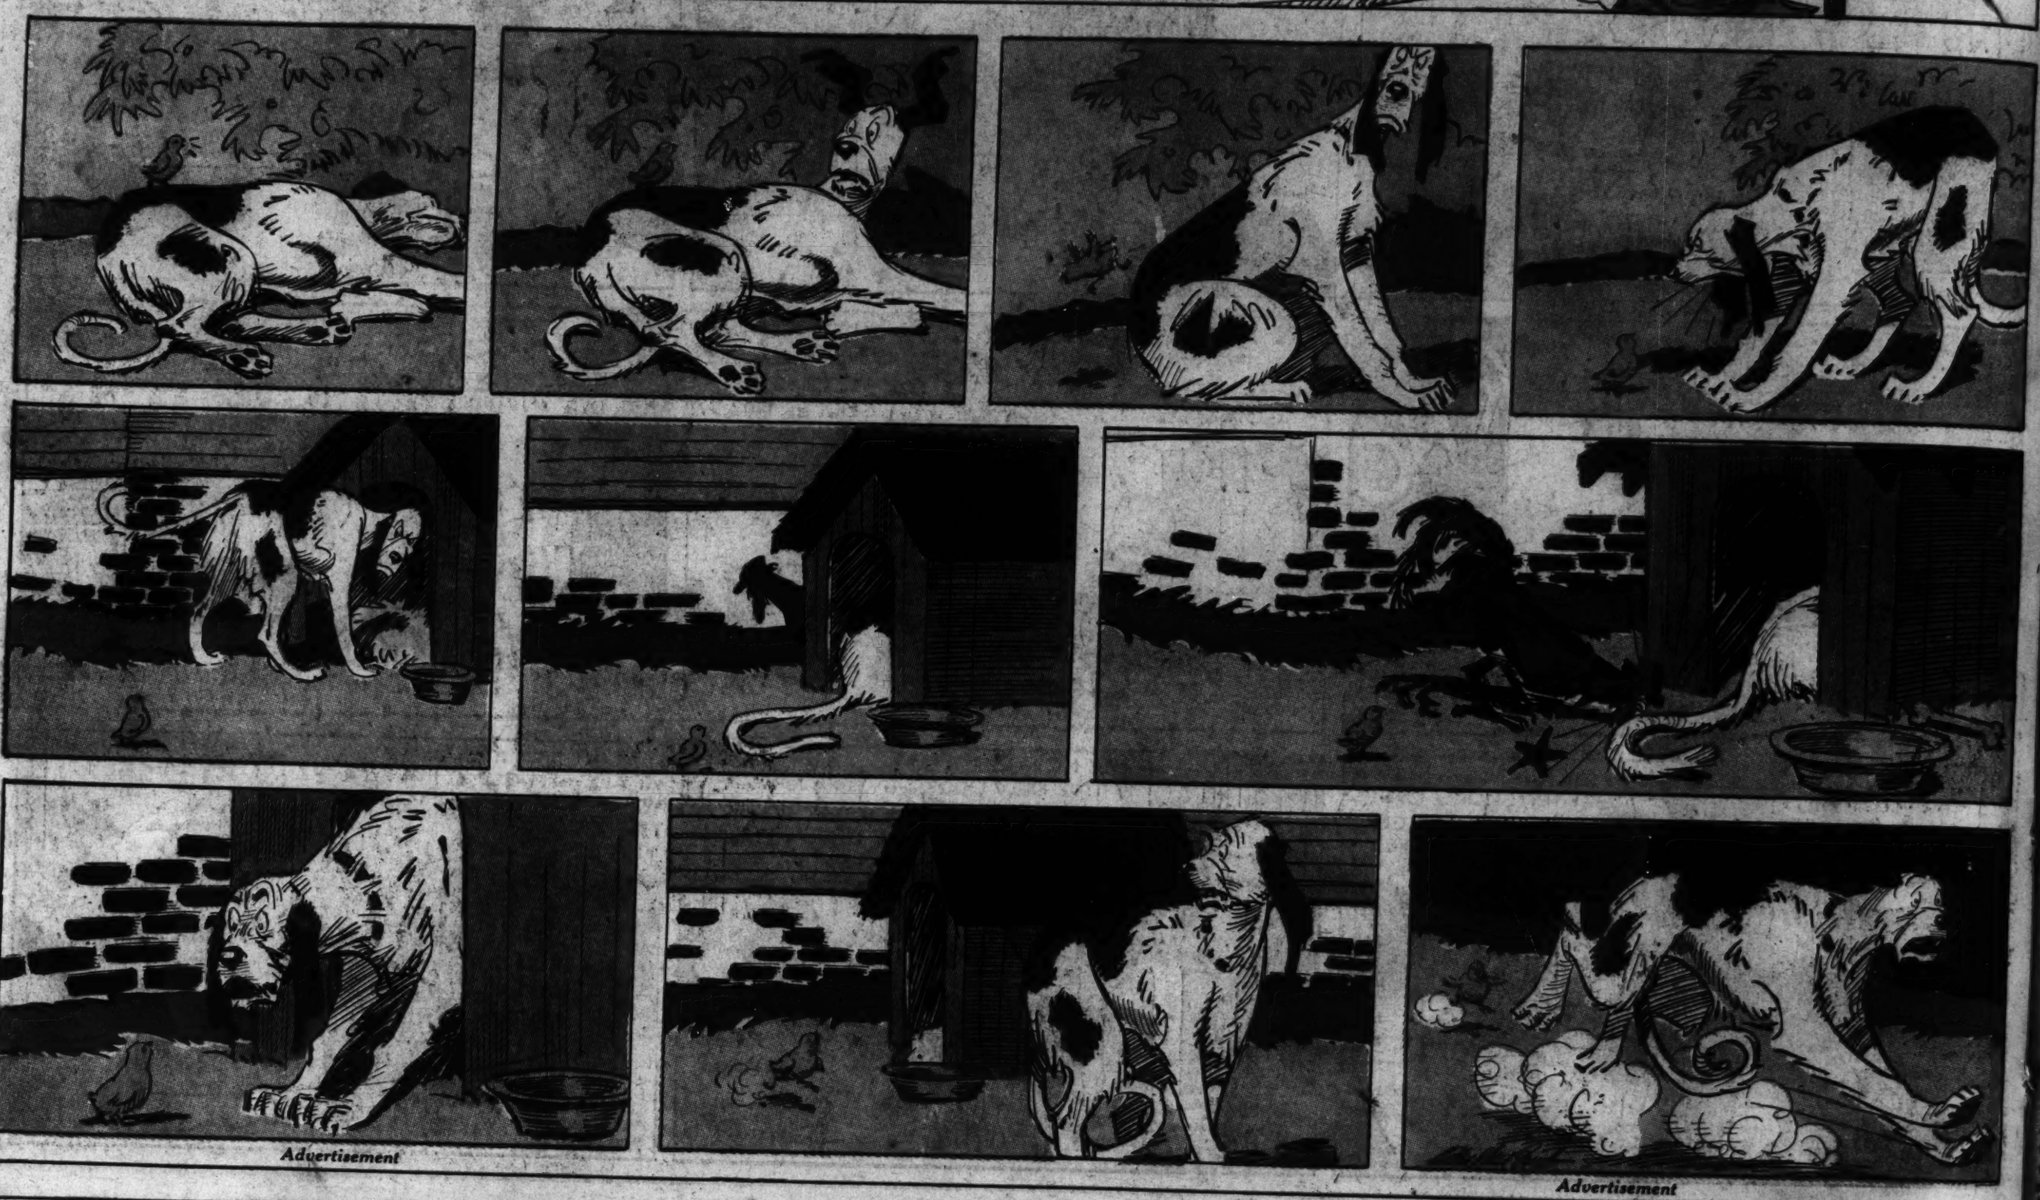

And at the same time, Colgate's soft, safe polishing agent gently yet thoroughly cleans and brightens enamel—makes teeth sparkle.

So brush your teeth, gums and tongue at least twice daily with Colgate Dental Cream and have cleaner, brighter teeth and a sweeter, purer breath! Why not get a tube today!
